International Boundary—North American Style

A big commercial transport plane was flying from Cleveland to Detroit the other day. Taking the shortest route, it swung northwest across Lake Erie, flew over a sizable corner of Ontario, and then crossed the Detroit river and glided down to a landing at the Detroit airport.

One of the passengers was a young man who recently spent upwards of a year in Germany with the branch office of an American firm. When he got out of the plane he remarked:

"That was the most thrilling thing that has happened since I got back to America."

"What, this flight?" asked an acquaintance. The flight had been extremely unexciting—a short, uneventful hop made in perfect weather.

"No," said the young man. "The way we flew over the international boundary without anybody noticing it. We crossed from the United States, flew over Canada, and then flew back—and nobody said a word. That's the sort of thing that couldn't happen in Europe. Planes don't cross international boundaries there, not without a lot of negotiation and formality. They go far out of their way to avoid flying over a little strip of foreign territory. If they didn't, the pursuit planes would go after them."

Which is just another way of saying that we who live in North America never realize how lucky we are—until we see what we would be up against if the European system prevailed over here.

But perhaps it isn't entirely luck, after all. When you stop to think about it, there is nothing to prevent the United States and Canada from distrusting each other and glaring sullenly across the border in the European manner—nothing except the fact that each nation uses good sense and neighborly forbearance.

The United States, for instance, could easily claim that it "needs" the raw materials which Canada has—the metals, the wood pulp, the other things that keep the Great Lakes steamships busy all summer long. It could argue that unless it "controlled" the supply of these things its whole economy would be endangered. And it could go ahead and lay plans for the conquest of the Dominion.

Canada, on the other hand, could point out that its liberty was endangered by the colossus to the south. It could complain about the disruptive influence of American visitors—those C. I. O. organizers who have disturbed Ontario's premier, for example—and it could close the border with patrols, forts and so on.

The situation that would result would be every bit as logical as the situation which is commonplace on almost every European border.

That peaceful boundary between the United States and Canada is, as the young traveler remarked, an immensely thrilling thing. But it doesn't exist by accident.

It is what it is because the people of the two countries have chosen to act sensibly.

What to Do When the Warm Weather Comes

EATING—A FEW PIECES OF ICE IN A BOWL OF HOT SOUP WILL HELP TO COOL IT. WHILE YOU ARE WAITING FOR IT TO COOL YOU CAN DECIDE WHETHER YOU WANT TO EAT OR JUST FORGET THE WHOLE THING.

SLEEPING—TRY COUNTING POLAR BEARS INSTEAD OF SHEEP. IT WILL MAKE YOU FEEL COOLER AND WILL GIVE THE SHEEP A REST TOO.

WHAT TO WEAR—DISCARD YOUR CLOTHES AND WALK DOWN THE STREET WEARING NOTHING. YOU WILL FIND THE RIDE IN THE PATROL WAGON VERY REFRESHING AND A FEW DAYS IN A NICE, COOL CELL WILL KEEP YOU OUT OF THE SUN.

WORKING—IF IT'S HOT AT THE OFFICE, TAKE ALONG SOME ICE CUBES AND BUILD A SMALL IGLOO ON TOP OF YOUR DESK. AFTER A WHILE THE BOSS WILL COME ALONG AND FIRE YOU, AND YOU WON'T BE WORKING IN A HOT OFFICE ANY MORE.

AT HOME—BEFORE LOCKING YOURSELF IN THE REFRIGERATOR, IT IS A GOOD IDEA TO BORE HOLES IN TWO SIDES OF IT. THIS WILL GIVE YOU CROSS-VENTILATION.

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS—RUN AROUND SLAPPING PEOPLE ON THE BACK AND ASKING 'IS IT HOT ENOUGH FOR YOU?' AFTER YOU HAVE BEEN HIT ON THE HEAD A FEW TIMES YOU WILL NOT BE CONSCIOUS OF THE HEAT.

Bank Holdups Have Declined Since Dillinger

Son John and Bride Rival FDR as Anglers

Still honeymooning, the John Roosevelts—he is the youngest son of the President, she the former Anne Lindsay Clark—went a-fishing 20 miles off Bermuda and returned with an impressive haul, proudly displayed in the photo above. John caught five barracuda and a bonito and landed a shark. Anne hooked a 22-pound barracuda. "We hope Dad hears about this," commented young Roosevelt, "since F. D. R. is something of a fisherman himself."

SERIAL STORY

HAYWIRE HOUSE

BY EDWIN RUTT

COPYRIGHT, 1938
NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, shooting their way
the Restoration, Bull Griffin Tony Spaldini announced they going to stay for the night.

CHAPTER IX

COMPLETE silence greeted
Mr. Griffin's announcement.
He finally broke it.
"Well, gee," he began, "I don't know whether . . ."
Sally stopped him. Sally was a who missed none of the tricks, since she'd been chivied into hotel business, she was going to do it. And how. She glanced toward the Harknesses.
Harknesses were retreating.
Identify Mrs. Harkness, somewhat stunned, had decided to obey Griffin's peremptory order to "sit."

Tony Spaldini

"Very well," Sally said, in a business-like voice. "You can stay over. Our rates are $6 a day per person."
"Six . . . huh?"
Sally saw that an explanation was in order.
"This," said Sally, "is the Pennington-Parker Restorium. A place—she threw Kinks a severe glance—"for real relaxation."
"Well," Mr. Griffin decided, "it's all right. I could go for some rest. In a big way."
"Our rates," said Sally, who hadn't taken her eye off the ball, are $6 a day per person."
But if she thought that this was going to throw Bull Griffin for a loop, she had mistaken her man.
Griffin expertly shifted his gun from his right hand to his left, rolled it into his pocket and produced a roll of money that would have shocked a hippopotamus. He peeled off a $100 bill.
"Here you are," he said. "Dat's da tax of us fer a week. Keep change an' buy yourself a aeroplane." Sally took the money dazedly.
"You—mean you're actually going to pay us?" she gasped.
"Without a fuss?"

MR. GRIFFIN was insulted.
"Sure," he said. "Wotcha think I am, a deadbeat?"
"Aw, we ain't tough, lady . . ."
"Aw, we ain't tough, lady," interrupted Mr. Griffin affably.
Only wit' mugs like da Little Cheese."
"But I don't see why you should want to stay in a place like this."
"Well, now look, lady," said Bull, the voice of one who addresses primary grades. "It's like dis:
an' da Little Cheese usta be like dis. Dat wuz before I'm wised to wot a dirty, brin', double-sassin', little wresel he is. But two weeks ago I'm wised."
"What wised you?" said Sally, who was beginning to learn the patner.

"Aw," said Bull, "me an' da Little Cheese is in da same rack —er—line of business. Poultry.
You know, chickens an' eggs. Only his territory's Queens an' I got da Bronx. An' everyting was okie-doke till two weeks ago he comes up to da Bronx an' tries to cut in on me. Well, dat makes me boin. Tings like dat don't go wid me." His face darkened and he trotted out a gem gleaned from his vicarious reading. "I don't brook no interference."
"I got it," said Kinks. "You an'
the Little Cheese are having a war."
"Dat's right," said Bull. "I'm gittin' him an' he's gittin' me. Only he ain't, see? But tonight me an'
Tony has business in Noo Haven.
Well, a couple of da Cheese's boys is hangin' around da Bronx an' dey sees us go. So dey follies us.
Dere's a little shootin' off an' on' an' we slides off da main road toward dis place to give 'em da slip.
But we ain't quick enough. Dere right on our tail an' comin' down dis road dey plugs our back tire.
So we pull in here. An' da only reason dey ain't still shootin' at dis house is we hit one of 'em t'rough da winder. Dat leaves two against one so dey takes it on da lam. Get it, lady?"
"Yes," said Sally. "But if they've gone why do you want to stay?"
"And why did you say at first that it was to be for just overnight and then pay us for a week?"

A CRAFTY expression appeared upon Bull's rugged face.
"Well," he said, "I got to tinkin'. Den guys is gonna beat it back to da Cheese an' spill wot's happened. Da Cheese is never gonna figger us to stay here. So wot do we do? We lays low here an' da Cheese don't know where we are.
Den, after a little, Tony an' me takes a trip to Queens. Da Cheese ain't suspectin' nuttin' an' dey ain't nuttin' to it. We pulls our rods an'—bam! Da Little Cheese goes for a ride all smothered in chrysanthemums." Mr. Griffin leered in gloating anticipation.

"I'll send 'em to him meself, damn if I won't!"
Sally nodded. "I think that's a very brilliant plan, Mr. Griffin.
Stay here just as long as you want. Come along now, I'll show you your room."
On the following afternoon there was a little trouble with Mrs.
Harkness. Mrs. Harkness was not partial to Mr. Griffin and Mr.
Spaldini.
"We're leaving tonight," she told Sally. "I don't know what kind of a place this is. Those men are rough, loud and coarse."

SHE had elected to deliver this edict in the living room where Mr. Harkness was tamping contentedly with a light wire. And before Sally could reply Mr. Harkness spoke, most unexpectedly.
"I refuse to leave this house," he said.
Mrs. Harkness whirled on him.
Were her ears betraying her?
"Alvin Harkness, what do you mean?"
"Just," said Mr. Harkness, splicing wire expertly, "that I'm not going anywhere else. I like Mr.
Griffin. He's interested in my idea for a revolver that shoots by electricity. My mind is made up, Elflectra. We stay. That is final!"
And the worm, having turned, prevailed for perhaps the first time in his life.
Two quiet days followed. Mr.
Griffin's car had been incarcerated in the barn. Messrs. Griffin and Spaldini were spending the time at pinocle. Mr. Harkness, drunk with victory, was electrifying the mounted animal heads with a kind of reckless abandon. The Lord was in his Heaven and all was okie in the world.
On the afternoon of the third day Kinks sat in the kitchen watching Sally make biscuits.

"All is well on the Rappahannock," he said. "Peace and serenity walk the lana. Which seems a propitious moment, Miss Pennington, to ask you when you intend to marry me?"
Before Sally could frame a scathing reply Mrs. Clipstack clattered into the kitchen.
"See here," panted Mrs. Clip-stack. "I don't know what things are a-comin' to. There's a lunatic in the front yard takin' rabbits out of a hat!"
