The Planes Shoot By, and Man Crawls On

Maj. Alexander De Seversky flits west across the continent in slightly more than 10 hours, knocking nearly an hour and a half off the previous record and giving a new demonstration of the unbelievable speed man can command when he takes to the air.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announces details of a new scheme to help the farmer, and a substantial number of federal dollars are marshaled for a new attack on the perennial farm problem.

For America's farm problem is older, in point of years, than the airplane itself. Before the Wright brothers invented the airplane the farmers was crying for help—and with good reason, too.

Yet the problem remains unsolved. The speed that we can display with our machines is simply non-existent when we come up against the business of solving a problem in economics.

To say all of this is simply to say that we know all about working with machines but very little about working with people.

It sometimes looks as if there were no limit at all to the things we can achieve in the realm of mechanics. Whether it involves building a plane that will travel faster than the plane somebody broke records with last year, or damming a river that has so far been beyond control, or devising a machine more efficient than none already in use, we can usually be pretty confident that the thing will presently get done.

But when we begin dealing with people rather than with machines, our skills seem to leave us. Mr. Wallace's continued grappling with the farm problem is just one case in point.

Someone will break de Seversky's record, probably, before the ink is dry on this column of type. That record, in its turn, will fall a little later. We can confidently look forward to continued progress.

But who will be bold enough to say that this newest project of Mr. Wallace's will at last do the trick? Look ahead a quarter of a century, and one of the first things your imagination shows you is some future Secretary Wallace trying to help the farmer.

Arkansas Not Optimistic Over Football Team

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Football talk is none too optimistic up here in the Ozarks, where Coach Fred Thomsen and his University of Arkansas Razorbacks will have to place an almost complete new backfield on the gridiron this fall to replace the star pass-lingers who last season made Arkansas the best passing team in the nation.

Gone from the Parker roster are Jack Robbins and Dwight Sloan, who hurled most of the passes last year, and Jim Benton and Ray Hamilton, ends who received them.

To replace the two veteran backs Thomsen has Ralph Atwood, flashy letterman who probably will get the call at quarterback, Ray Eakin, a dependable punter, and Frank Mosely, a speedy ball-carrier. Gloyd Lyons, also a contender for the quarterback post, Ray Cole and Marion Fletcher are the only other lettermen. Only sophomores are available for the end positions, Howard Hickey is probably the outstanding candidate of the group, which also includes Maurice Britt, P. J. Frieberger, and William Southernland.

One veteran, Randall Stallings, will be at tackle. The other post will go wither to Jan Carter or Newman Miller, both sophomores. Wilfred Thorpe, a letterman, and Milton Simington, sophomore, probably will play guard.

Captain Lloyd Woodell will return to his center position. With their toughest schedule in years and a team top-heavy with inexperienced men, the Razorbacks have few backers who expect more than a 50-50 conference season. The Parkers will have a good line, however, it is agreed by almost all observers, and that may make a big difference. In spite of their spectacular and effective offensive, the Arkansas last season never could be depended on to "hold that line."

As a result there was heavy scoring in practically all Arkansas games.

The customary opening "push-over" game was dispensed with this season, and the Parkers will begin against a fairly strong opponent, Oklahoma A. & M. College, at Fayetteville, Sept. 24. Their longest trip of the season—also the longest in the school's history—will be to San Francisco for the game with Santa Clara Oct. 22. Other road contests will be in the South and Southwest.

The schedule follows: Sept. 24—Oklahoma A. & M. at Fayetteville.

Oct. 1—Texas Christian at Fort Worth (conference game).

Oct. 8—Baylor at Fayetteville (conference game).

Oct. 15—University of Texas at Little Rock, Ark. (conference game).

Oct. 29—Texas A. & M. at College Station, Tex. (conference game).

Nov. 5—Rice Institute at Fayetteville (conference game).

Nov. 12—Southern Methodist at Dallas (conference game).

Nov. 16—University of Mississippi at Memphis, Tenn.

Nov. 24—Tulsa University at Tulsa, Okla.

Commercial Ants Store Away Honey

MELBOURNE, Australia.—A communitarian colony of ants that employs the bodies of its citizens as storehouses for honey has been discovered in central Australia by Charles Barrett, famed naturalist.

Ants of the ordinary black variety in appearance, these insects, Barrett says, have adopted one of nature's most extraordinary means for providing their colony with food.

How the ants choose the fortunate or unfortunate fellow creatures that will spend the rest of their days inert, a mere helpless bag of sweetness, Barrett was unable to ascertain.

Seemingly any member of the colony is eligible. Once selected, the working ants bring to the "storehouse" their daily grains of nectar. The "honey pots" swallow the nectar, but instead of absorbing and digesting it for their own use, Barrett says they keep it intact in their bodies for the general use of the colony. They have two stomachs, one a private one and one a communal affair. When a member wants honey, Barrett learned, it carresses the honey-pot with its antennae. The living pantry then passes out a drop of the desired fluid from its mouth.

As its body swells with the taking on of the honey supply, the "honey-pot" ant assumes the appearance of a shiny, deep-toned cherry.

Head and thorax remain unaltered with the result that the ant looks ludicrously disproportioned. Aborigines call the honey ant "Yarumpa," and eat it alive as a delicacy, Barrett says.

The news that a concrete fort was built in Washington recently in a day's time leaves one cold. Digging's quicker, and still not quick enough.

The stag barbecue and Calcutta pool will be held after the qualifying round closes Sept. 9. The tournament dance will be at Lake DeLafosse, Saturday evening, the 10th.

Corn Carnival Planned In G

GRANGER, Texas.—The Corn Carnival of 1936, featuring a coronation of a Queen and probable attendance of 500,000, will be held here Sept. 10-12.

The Corn Carnival is a local business men and vocational leaders' affair with Ralph W. M. master of the Texas Grange, Elmore R. Torn, agricultural director of the East Texas section of the Grange.

Features of the carnival include corn exhibitions, singing, shucking, hand sawing, and other amusements.

A Queen of Corn, crowned over the day's activities, will attend a pageant and an evening. She will be a duchess to be called "Corn Queen" and escorted by the who will be dubbed "Corn

Your Telephone Company is Mostly People serving you in Texas

IT TAKES a lot of people... nearly 9,000 in Texas... to see that more than four million telephone calls each day flow swiftly to their destinations.

It takes operators, whose skilled fingers stand ready to flash your calls on their way; linemen, to keep the voice paths open for your words; experts to see that no trouble happens in the intricate telephone apparatus that serves you; engineers; accountant; men and girls in business offices.

To each one of these 9,000, Texas is "home". They work here; their children are in Texas schools. Last year their pay checks totaled more than eleven million dollars, and they spent nearly all of this in Texas. They are an important part of your community.

The telephone company, like its people, is also part of Texas. It is here to meet this state's need for friendly, dependable telephone service. It serves its own interests best by giving good service at reasonable cost to you.

Public Is Warned Of Danger Found In Some Oysters

AUSTIN, Tex.—Beware of un-certified oysters," warns Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. In Texas each grower of oysters is furnished a certificate from the State Health Department covering the oyster beds he uses, provided surveys of such areas have shown them to be free from pollution and the shucking houses are sanitary. A shipping number is granted simultaneously with the certificate, and this number must accompany all shipments of oysters to show their source.

Each operator of a shucking house where oysters are opened must have a certificate testifying that his shop has been found sanitary and his employees have been examined and found free of all communicable diseases, particularly typhoid fever. These certificates are issued annually. The Federal government cooperates with the states by exercising supervision over methods used and issues lists of certified shippers in all parts of the country where oysters are produced.

The safest oysters in Texas are the ones accompanied by a certificate from the State Health Department. The oyster has much to commend it as a food: protein of good quality, a rich source of iron and copper (important as a protective against anemia,) a liberal source of iodine essential to the proper functioning of the thyroid gland and a fair amount of vitamins.

Don't Let Constipation Drag On!

Do you often have days when you wake up tired—when you feel dull, snaky, "off kilter" down? It's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble!

If you eat what most people do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are that just this fact is responsible: you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines that helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, what you need is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains "bulk" plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and see if your old sparkle doesn't come back! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MAN O' WAR BOBS INTO ELIGHT AGAIN STOP WILL GO TO FARAWAY FARMS EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

First, Will insisted on showing two of Man o' War's great sons, Crusader and American Flag. He pointed to an empty stall: "That's jes' waitin' for War Admiral to come home and be with his pappy. An' hear" - with a sweep of his arm he pointed to a fourth stall in the immaculate stable: "Heah is Man o' War himself!"

YES, Linda remembered. She had seen that race - sitting by Monte Hill's side. Monte was rooting for the Admiral that day.

"I wasn't, Will," she told him. "Lord bless you, ma'am - course not! Anyway, old Red, he hear that hissin' and he go half-crazy. He writ out a telegram, an' he sent it to War Admiral, an' they give it to him jes' as he get to the post. It say: 'Son, yo' pappy remin's you you done won 10 races straight - make this 'even. Never min' that crowd o' pore whites booin' you - you is quality - go out an' win, son - win for yo' ol' man.'"

"And he did! War Admiral when Snark come alongside him, he say, git back in the rear - where you belong - you can't pass quality folks, an' Snark, he git back, an' War Admiral he win for his pappy - almos' bus' a trac record. Red writes him a long letter dat night. He say, 'Son, yo' pappy mighty proud. You win even wid dem pore white trash hissin' you. We's improvin' de horse breed; hi's time humans improve theirselves.'"
