FRANCE AND ENGLAND ARE READY FOR WAR AT ANY MOMENT NOW

By United Press
LONDON, Sept. 9.—The British government has received information which causes it to believe that the Czech situation is at the explosion point.
In official, as well as unofficial quarters, it was asserted the crisis was the gravest since August, 1914.
It was understood Great Britain and France were ready at a moment's notice to put into effect a joint defense plan which their general staffs have spent months perfecting.
Both the French and British fleets were ready for action. The British fleet in the North Sea, the French Atlantic fleet at Brest and the French Mediterranean fleet at Toulon.
It was disclosed that plans for joint naval, air and land action by British and French forces in the event of war, had been worked out in detail.
Another important development was a conference with Viscount Halifax, foreign minister, and former Foreign Minister Anthony Eden. The visit of Eden, who has been rumored likely to return to the cabinet, was of interest because it was his break with Prime Minister Chamberlain last winter that started England on her program for peace in Europe.

Well-informed quarters believed that "incidents" in Czechoslovakia might explain matters.
Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador to Germany, saw German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop at Nuremberg today. He was believed to have said that any rash step might involve many nations.
At Prague, the Sudeten party refused to resume negotiations with the Czech government for peaceful solution of the minority crisis until the Ostrau incident is "liquidated." Negotiations were broken off as a result of the alleged beating of Sudetens by Czech police at Ostrau.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The heaviest influx of foreign gold into the United States from war-jittery Europe since Oct. 9, 1936, was received in the week ended Sept. 2, the Commerce Department reported.

P. L. Crossley, past post commander of the Dulin-Daniels Post of the American Legion from Eastland, installed officers for the Carl Barnes Post at Ranger, Thursday night, assisted by Buck Hall, in what was described as one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the Ranger post. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.
Officers installed by the delegation from the Eastland post were Lee Dockery, post commander; G. W. Jones, first vice commander; Con Hazard, second vice commander; H. T. Schooley, third vice commander; Max Star, financial officer; J. B. Heister, historian; R. H. Hansford, service officer; A. C. Rice, sergeant-at-arms and Max Dutton, adjutant.
The following resolution was presented to J. B. Heister, retiring post commander, in recognition of his service to the post during the past year:
September 8, 1938
Mr. J. B. Heister, Post Commander, Carl Barnes Post No. 69, Ranger, Texas.
Dear Buddy Heister:
At a regular meeting of Carl Barnes Post No. 69, which was held on the 28th day of July, 1938, the following resolutions were submitted and unanimously adopted:
"Resolved that the Post Adjutant be instructed to write a letter of thanks to you as retiring Post Commander, and express the appreciation and gratitude of the members for your untiring and faithful service during the past year. During the past year the Post has increased its financial assets beyond that of the previous administration. It has paid every outstanding obligation as it became due, and at this time, the records of the Treasury indicate that there are no outstanding bills or obligations due or payable now.
In addition to the above, the Post has under your administration carried on in a very able manner its hospitalization and service work to the ex-service men living in this community. It has also done its full share in regard to community service and in other worthwhile projects which would be a credit to any organization, especially this of ours. The ground work for a more successful future has well been laid during the past year, and for this accomplishment, Carl Barnes Post No. 69 expresses its deepest gratitude to you as retiring Post Commander."
Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be recorded in the minutes of the Post, a copy be given to the local press for publication, and a copy mailed to the retiring Post Commander to go in his files as a pleasant recollection of the faithful service which has been rendered to this Post.
Yours very truly,
M. M. Dutton,
Post Adjutant.

Dewey Fights To Retain His Case Against Hines

By United Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—James Hines, powerful Tammany leader, today lost his fight to be freed from lottery charges on technical legal grounds.
Now he and his counsel must try to disprove the state's charges that he entered a corrupt conspiracy with the Dutch Schultz gang.
NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—District Attorney Thomas Dewey fought today to maintain the validity of his case against James Hines, Tammany leader.
With Justice Ferdinand Pecora nearly ready to rule on defense motions to throw out the charges against Hines, Dewey submitted a last-minute demand that the issues be left for the jury to decide.
The defense contended the charge Hines was a conspirator in the Dutch Schultz lottery had not been proved and had been outlawed by the two-year statute of limitations, because the conspiracy, if any, ended with Schultz's murder in October, 1935.

This July, however, brought a drop in tonnage to 1,998,787.7 as compared with 2,074,159 for July, 1937, Evans said.
Export tonnage gained. Goods shipped to foreign ports in July amounted to 526,355.4 tons against 376,483 in the same month of 1937.
A shrinkage in imports accounted for the loss last month. Only 11,559.3 tons were handled as compared with 76,629.9 tons in July, 1937.
Cotton exports are gaining over last year, Evans revealed. Cotton shipments this year to date have amounted to 530,175 bales.

Question of Human Rights Behind Bars Is Raised

It is a long time since there has been printed anything more shocking than the story of the four convicts who were sealed to death in the Philadelphia County Prison.

Many facts remain to be brought to light, and precisely what happened is not yet entirely clear. But it seems indisputable that a number of discontented convicts staged some sort of demonstration against prison food, that they were confined in a block of punishment cells for some time, and that eventually four of them were found to be dead, and upwards of a score of others were unconscious.

Now if this story were simply a shocker—a grim revelation of the lengths to which brutality can occasionally go—it would be worth no more attention than a passing shudder. After all, this modern world gives us plenty of illustrations of the scope of cruelty; one more or less is not very important.

It compels us to re-examine the question of the sort of treatment which society is obliged to render to lawbreakers; the question of the rights (if any) which a man retains even after he has been locked up as an outlaw.

For this sort of thing is nothing but the ordinary mistreatment of prisoners, writ large. It is an exaggeration, but only an exaggeration, of the sort of thing which is pretty general in jails and prisons all across the country—filthy quarters, bad food, brutal and callous guards, beatings, and all the rest.

According to a fairly common assumption, it does. It is argued that if a man doesn't like that sort of treatment, he can avoid it by obeying the law and keeping out of jail; that he has defied society and by becoming a criminal, and that he has scant right to complain if society gives him some uncomfortable moments in return.

Yet if you follow that argument to its logical conclusion it leads you into deep water. It is nothing less than a justification of all the stupid cruelties of foreign concentration camps. All the infamies that the Gestapo and the OGPU have inflicted on helpless men become fair, even praiseworthy, once you admit that a lawbreaker has no rights.

But beyond all of that, a society which follows such a course is dumb. For most of the men in our prisons and jails are going to be released some day. The chances that they will "go straight" afterward are certainly no brighter by cruelty and brutality.

Man is a contrary creature; the instinct to strike back, to get even, is pretty deeply rooted.

So the Philadelphia horror is worth a little thought—not as an isolated instance of inhuman folly, but as the fruit of a system which is bad from every viewpoint.

In return for all the bed-time stories father and mother have told you we present a breakfast-time story you can tell father and mother.

Once upon a time about fifty years ago a scientist discovered that without a certain marvelous substance found in only certain foods, good health, even life, was impossible. So for years and years scientists worked in great laboratories to learn more about it.

This marvelous substance is named "Thiamin" and is sometimes known as Vitamin B. Now father and mother must have Thiamin just as you must have it for best health. In fact, everybody must have Thiamin to nourish the millions of nerves in the body.

the past few years would be shown. Garner stated that for some time he had been trying to get the house open on Sundays but had not been able to secure the pictures necessary to be profitable, but arrangements have now been made whereby only the biggest pictures will be shown.

The opening Sunday picture, to be shown Sept. 11, will be "It Happened One Night," starring Claudette Colbert and Clark Gable. This picture won the academy award and is one of the best comedies ever produced. The picture did a marvelous business at the Arcadia, and Garner stated he had had more requests for it than for any other picture, possibly excepting Gary Cooper's "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town." This picture, incidentally, has been secured for Sept. 25.

On the Sunday following the initial opening, Edward G. Robinson will be seen in "A Slight Case of Murder," and other bookings include "Stella Dallas," "God's Country and the Woman," "Judge Hardy's Children," and "Waikiki Wedding," starring Bob Burns and Bing Crosby.

The admission prices at the Columbia will be the same on Sunday as on Friday and Saturday, Garner stated.

Dress Shop Head Tells of Business

By United Press
ST. LOUIS—Mrs. Lane Bryant—Mrs. Albert Malsin—revealed here that the national chain of dress shops bearing her name was started 38 years ago in a three-room apartment in New York when she was forced to provide a living for herself and a six months old son.

Mrs. Bryant said her first husband died shortly after the birth of her child. She began making fine tea gowns and lingerie for a wealthy clientele.

"In those days," she said, "I used to work until two in the morning, designing, sewing and delivering. I never gave credit because I wouldn't have had money enough to buy materials for the next day."

After a year Mrs. Bryant had enough business to open a small shop. After that, success came swiftly.

SERIAL STORY

PHOTO FINISH

BY CHARLES B. PARMER
COPYRIGHT, 1938
NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday Linda goes to "interview" Man o' War and Snake Bruce in the same assignment.

CHAPTER X

LINDA'S eyes widened. "Interviewing Man o' War?" She freed her hand from Bruce's grasp. "Who for, Bruce?"

"Free lance," he announced proudly. "Always was a damn good feature writer. So, knowing the state's holding a celebration this fall for Man o' War, I queried the National Weekly—and here I am, to interview the nag." He grinned again.

"So am I," she said. "Who for?"

"She told him. 'Hi-m-m-m! My competitor.' So Bruce had greeted her as though nothing had passed between them. She wanted—oh, so much—to apologize for her biting words. But this was not the time, the place. Now he was speaking again:

"Where are you stopping, Linda?"

"The Henry Clay, and I'd better be going. I've got my yarn; Man o' War told me a lot of exclusive things." She gave him her hand, lowered eyelids, said: "Mind, you'd better step on it, or I'll beat you."

"Hi! Wait! We're going to have lunch!"

"No such thing—I've a story to write."

A word of thanks to old Harbutt, a smiling nod to Bruce, and she was gone.

LINDA GORDON was the keen newspaper girl again. She drove straight to Western Union, telegraphed Moss:

"GOT YARN TITLED MAN O' WAR WRITES A LETTER STOP"

She thought an instant, then wrote on: "FOR YOUR INFORMATION NATIONAL WEEKLY HAS MAN HERE SAME ASSIGNMENT STOP RUSHING STORY."

She had a twinge of conscience about adding that, but—business was business. Bruce had to look out for himself.

She did a bit of shopping; and when she returned to her hotel found this telegram:

"THANKS FOR COMING TO BAT STOP PUT STORY ON WIRE TONIGHT STOP THIS IS MUST. MOSS."

The telegram was a bugle call to action. She guessed that Moss was going to jam the Man o' War feature in an edition going to press; publish it a week ahead of his rival—and the easy-going Bruce. Too bad, old Bruce—

She sat at her portable typewriter. "Let's see, 3500 words—about 14 double-spaced pages—"

Within the hour the phone rang. "Miss Gordon, this is a reporter. Won't you please come down to the ladies' parlor and let us get a good picture?"

The sudden request knocked her off balance. "Of me? Why me?"

"We're running a great story about you in the morning—"

"About me? I don't understand. Why, I'm a reporter myself! What have I done?"

"You've done a lot." The words came in a soft southern accent—non-friendly.

"But I'm busy writing—"

"Great! Then, we'll take an action picture of you at the typewriter. We'll get manager's permission; be right up."

ABRUPTLY he hung up. Linda got to her feet. Now just what was behind this? She'd jolly well know before anyone snapped her picture. But her anger melted when a youngster of 18, clean-looking, with great blue eyes, came in, followed by another youngster, with a camera.

"Just what is this?" she demanded.

"Miss Gordon, Mr. Jenkins, the horse auctioneer, told us you outsmarted one of the shrewdest trainers on the turf when you bought that Pompey colt last week. I want to get the real story from you—"

"Oh, that!" How dumb she had been. Of course it was a good yarn.

"You see," the reporter was smiling. "Mr. Jenkins said you pulled one of the smartest tricks he ever knew—demanding cash. As a rule, a horseman's check is good here; but he says you called for a pound of flesh, and got it."

Linda laughed. "Joke is, Monte Hill is an old friend—"

"But anything goes in a horse deal!" the reporter grinned.

"And I bought the colt in partnership with Brown Donald. He helped me do that outsmarting, as you call it."

"The steppichase rider? That's news, too."

At last she got rid of them, after several flashes had been made of her at the typewriter. Called for tea and sandwiches; ate, returned to work refreshed. The reporter's visit—it had boosted her ego. She was feeling great when she wrote "The End" after the last word of her yarn. Ten minutes to midnight she placed it on the wire; returned, put a "please don't disturb" sign outside her door, slept dreamlessly till past noon the next day.

The paper was under her door. There, on the front page, was her picture. And a two-column yarn: Famous Kentucky Writer Beats Shrewd Horseman in Pompey Colt Auction

IT had been a dull night in Lexington; and horse news is real news, there. It was dull on the wires, too. United Press picked up the yarn, made a little feature of it, shot it out on all circuits. It started a train of consequences—

"Hi-m-m, they left Brown Donald out," Linda said to herself as she read it. No wonder—the auctioneer was quoted at length, and he spoke only of "that pretty young miss with a triphammer brain."

Then came a telegram: "THANKS FOR YARN CONGRATULATIONS ON BECOMING TURF OWNER STOP—"

That news story must have been published in New York!

"PLEASE COVER TWO MORE ASSIGNMENTS IMMEDIATELY STOP FIRST GO TO BERWYN WRITE COLORFUL YARN OF HUNT SET AND GENTLEMEN RIDERS WHO MAKE CULT OF STEEPLCHASING FOR GLORY STOP THIS LITTLE KNOWN RACING ANGLE STOP—"

Go to Berwyn! That was the millionaire's estate where Brown Donald was riding this week! He could tell her all about it. Of course she'd get

"SECOND GATHER MATERIAL FOR UNIQUE YARN WOMEN AND RACING STOP CONTRAST MILLIONAIRE OWNERS AND POVERTY-ROW WOMEN TRAINERS STOP WIRE ACCEPTANCE. MOSS."

She drew in a deep breath! The story she wired in must have been a whiz—she had made good with a bang! Of course, she'd cover these assignments. She'd do that and race with Uncle Sandy, too. Edgar Wallace wrote and raced in England; Peter B. Kyne did in America—

She'd become famous—a celebrity! She sent Moss one word—yes. She was still exulting when the phone rang. It was Bruce Radford, and a purposeful Bruce, too, judging by the tone of his voice:

"Linda, I've got to see you right away."

"See me? Why aren't you writing?"

"Never mind that—I'll surprise you; about the writing business. But I want to see you about Golden Toy. I think you'll listen—"

His voice broke off, ominously.

"Why—why, yes, Bruce; I'll be right down."

PEEPING THRU The KNOTHOLE

By Bill Mayes

DEFENSIVE work is coming in for its share of attention at the Bulldogs' training periods now, and the offense is showing steady, but not rapid, improvement.

Since the new tackling dummy has arrived the squad is getting daily drills on tackling technique, both on the dummy and on players carrying the ball. While one group works on the dummy, the remainder of the squad makes tackles on men running with the ball. This, and blocking, is still taking a good part of the coaches' time. They are the things that should have been given to the team in past years, but have been overlooked. All of which makes the practice sessions slower in developing the sparkle that a team needs, as more time has to be given to fundamentals than would ordinarily be the case.

After the blocking and tackling had been given due attention, pass defense became the order for the past few days. Most of the smaller men, with Tipton running in the quarterback position, have been passing against the larger men. But a few of the lettermen are on Tipton's team. Passing has been confined, mostly, to short passes in the flat zones and directly over the line, and a good percentage of them have been completed. Occasionally, just to cross up the defense, Tipton runs with the ball. Although he wasn't a backfield man in his playing days, he steps out with some speed and is rather elusive. He runs something like Glenn Wyatt, who was all-state quarterback on the Abilene Eagles after the Eagles obtained him by transfer from Sweetwater back in 1932.

MARGE of "Myrt and Marge" of radio fame stops to refresh and refuel while taking a well earned vacation. She finds the stops on the road as important as the going and has chosen a station with Registered Rest Room facilities, a guarantee of cleanliness and comfort.

It was in the Ranger-Abilene game that year (1932), that Wyatt was gaining considerable ground, and John Bray, who was playing center and doing a fine job of line-backing, was having some trouble in stopping him.

Between halves Bray conferred with Eck Curtis. "Shucks, coach," Bray said. "I can't stop that Wyatt. Whenever he jumps I don't know which way he is going next. Whenever I get set he jumps some other way, like a flea."

"Of course you can't tell which way he is going," Curtis replied, "because he doesn't know either. You just watch any holes in the line, then when Wyatt starts through you be on the other side of that hole, going a little faster than he is. When he is in a hole in the line there is only one way he can go, towards you. Out in the open he can go any way. So you have to stop him at the line." And Bray did, so effectively that Wyatt quit trying to run and began passing.

BUT HE DIDN'T figure on Rankin Britt, who was playing end for Ranger. Britt hit him so often and so hard when he tried to pass that he soon gave that up, too, and was pulled from the game by Mayhew. He played the remainder of the game on the bench and Abilene lost, 20 to 0.

ON PASS DEFENSE, if the passer is rushed like that he hasn't much chance of completing a pass, and stands a good chance of losing ground. There are some ends of the Bulldogs this year who can, when they get started, give a passer almost as much grief as Britt did back in 1932 and 1933. When they hit their stride, passing will not be such a cinch for the opposition.

ALMOST EVERY DAY we change our mind about who is going to be effective in the backfield. Little Charley Martin, who has been a little slow in learning his assignments, now sparkles on occasions, and looks like he is going to be a good ball carrier.

New York Is Seen As Poultry Center

By United Press

FORT WORTH, Texas—James E. Rice of New York, general chairman of the World Poultry Congress, told Texas baby chick raisers here that this state had prospects of becoming a national center for that industry.

"Texas protects and regulates its livestock industry through a rigid inspection service," said Rice, "but it makes no attempt to build a great poultry industry on the same plan."

Legislation is needed, he said, to insure high quality eggs, chickens and turkeys. A grading system could establish that, he added.
