Lump Benefits In Act Explained to Eastland Employers

By United Press
W. O. King, manager of the Social Security office of the Eastland county office, was a visitor in Eastland Thursday, contacting employers and claimants for lump-sum benefits under the Federal Social Security Act.

Employers are contacted in an effort to assist them in their own problems. It is quite essential that employers know the employees' account numbers, in order that their quarterly information returns to the Collector of Internal Revenue be accurate and complete. This is also of great importance to employees if their wages are to be properly credited by the Social Security board.

"We find many individuals who are entitled to file claims, yet do not know they are qualified to receive lump-sum payments," King said. "Lump-sum payments are being made to workers who have attained age 65 on or after January 1, 1937, provided they have received wages from covered employment, and to widowers of such workers who have died before reaching age 65."

In such case, the amount of benefit is 3 1/2 per cent of the wages received from covered employment, beginning January 1, 1937, and up to attainment of age 65 or death. Workers reaching 65 or death who qualify for lump-sum payments must have quit work in order to receive payment. Any individual eligible to file a claim should communicate with the Social Security board, 412 Rust Building, San Angelo, Texas.

The San Angelo office of the Social Security board also has the responsibility for issuing social security account cards and duplicate numbers," King said. "Working outside of San Angelo, mail their applications to us, the cards will be returned by mail. Application forms may be obtained from the post offices in the county of San Angelo," King said.

Wages Says States Of Union Not Free

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes, commenting on President Roosevelt's unsuccessful intervention in Maryland primary, said today that no state is a free state.

"I consider it the merest piffle to consider any issue of outside intervention when the person in question is an official of the United States," he said.

"I said he considers Maryland more a free state than any other state," and none of them free, for that matter."

Tammany Chieftain James J. Hines, pictured above flanked by his jubilant lawyers, isn't as optimistic about the mistrial ruling in his lottery conspiracy trial as his grin might indicate. Flower, Plants Will Be Feature Of Annual Fair

For the first time in the history of the Eastland County Fair, an extensive flower and plant exhibit will be held at this year's exhibition scheduled Sept. 29-Oct. 1.

Mrs. Frank A. Jones, chairman of the committee arranging the flower and plant exhibit, urged all Eastland county citizens to participate in that department of the fair.

The exhibits may be taken to the south building on the former Pickering Lumber company yard between Wednesday, Sept. 28, at 1 p. m., and Thursday, Sept. 29, at 1 p. m.

While the exhibits will be guarded, no responsibility will be taken by the fair group. The exhibitors must have their names and the owners' on the container. Ribbons will be awarded for the best roses, dahlias, assorted garden flowers, most artistic bouquets, best arrangement of flowers, best foliage plants, best blooming plants and the most unusual plants.

Other members of the committee are Mmes. W. P. Leslie, T. E. Payne, George Hipp and John Harrison.

County 4-H Teams To Receive Medals

Awards of special gold medals have been approved for the county winning 4-H team in the National 4-H Dairy Demonstration Contest, announced the Committee in charge. The team members are Albert Bennett of Eastland and Neil Eaves of Gorman.

The subject of their demonstration was "A Practical Cooling Tank for Texas Farmers," and they were coached by Hugh E. Barnhart, Assistant County Agent.

Silver medals are approved for the second placing team, Buster Bennett of Eastland and Vernon Bennett of Eastland. Their subject was "A Practical Cooling Tank for Texas Farmers."

The Hopkins county winning team won the state contest and receives an all-expense trip provided by Kraft-Phoenix Cheese Corporation to compete in finals at the National Dairy Show in Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 8-15. The eight top teams, two from each extension section, will divide $2,800 in college scholarships.

The purpose of the contest, conducted in cooperation with Extension Agents, is to focus attention of dairymen on producing methods which insure a profit, and yield a better, purer product for the consumer.

Reed, who succeeds Mrs. Bess Terrell, has been a shorthand reporter 23 years and has emceed in that work except for a short period when he was secretary to J. E. Lewis, Sr., district manager of the Texas Electric Service company.

Cobb's tremendous speed was attained in a renewal of the friendly racing duel of a fellow countryman, Capt. George Eyston. Eyston held the previous record of 345.49 miles per hour. Eyston said he would bring his seven-ton Thunderbolt racer back tomorrow for an attempt to recapture the record.

The entire squad was out Wednesday night for a short workout under the bulbs, with most of the practice session being limited to kickoff practice, passing and punting. A short dummy scrimmage, with the starting lineup used on defense, was given, with plays similar to those used by Gorman being run.

CONFERENCES AMONG POWERS MAY CONTINUE

By United Press
BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, Sept. 15.—Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister, and Adolf Hitler, bargained face-to-face today in the Bavarian Alps while a worried world waited to see if the results would mean peace or war.

The head of the British government and the leader of Greater Germany, met in the great hall of Hitler's retreat with an hour after Chamberlain's 700-mile dash by air and train from London.

Chamberlain came for a showdown on what must be offered Hitler to satisfy his demand for self-determination by the Sudeten German minority in Czechoslovakia.

It was impossible to know what went on at the momentous meeting, but in London diplomatic sources said Chamberlain would, in effect, ask Hitler point-blank: "Are you anxious for a military adventure or seriously anxious to collaborate in working out a peace plan?"

The question was prompted by information in diplomatic quarters the Nazis wish to achieve a military triumph.

If, on the contrary, Hitler is prepared to accept a diplomatic victory, the British and French are prepared to facilitate it on a basis of granting the Sudetens a degree of liberty "exceeding their wildest hopes."

Informed British sources believed that in exchange for concessions in the Sudeten land, Chamberlain wants Hitler's help in solving the Spanish war problems.

Chamberlain's first object is to obtain reopening of the Czech-Sudeten negotiations and to get the European situation off the balance between war and peace.

The talks probably will continue through tomorrow and perhaps Saturday. Chamberlain is dining tonight with Hitler. Neither speaks the other's language and they are talking through interpreters.

Veterinarian Says Sleeping Sickness Found Near County

Dr. Ross Hodges, Ranger veterinarian, has reported that several cases of sleeping sickness among horses have been found in this section of the county, though none have been reported recently in Eastland county.

Dr. Hodges reported that he has seen several cases in Palo Pinto county recently. He also states that remedies used last year with great success seem to be less effective this year.

The veterinarian stated that among the first symptoms of the disease were a twitching of the horses lower lip, popping the teeth together and walking in a round-about way to get to any object, instead of walking directly to it. The later stage is when the horse begins to get down and apparently has trouble in standing.

He reported one case of a young colt that, in attempting to go to its mother, circled before reaching her, and the same symptoms were noted in other horses with the disease.

Sleeping sickness is more prevalent on the west coast and in the western portion of Texas, he stated, than it is in this locality. It was first noted locally about a year ago.

One of Your Rights Is to Maintain Your Balance

The old camp-meeting hymn which exhorts all present to count their many blessings, naming them over carefully one by one, might not be a bad theme song for the people of the United States these days.

Counting your blessings may give you a touch of sinful pride, but it also helps you to realize how valuable some of the blessings really are; and that in turn makes it much less likely that you will submit meekly if and when somebody comes along and tries to take them away from you.

And the blessing that might be examined most closely just now is that familiar, much-talked-of, taken-for-granted thing—a free press.

You can appreciate it best by having a look at the sort of thing that happens where a free press does not exist.

A current dispatch from Berlin to the New York Herald-Tribune begins like this:

"The Nazi press attained new heights today in its choice of violent language to condemn the Czechs for 'arrogant, terroristic acts' in Sudeten territory. Streamer headlines in 'Der Angriff,' organ of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, read: 'Sudetenland in Greatest Distress—Violent Terror of Czech Bands—Unleashed Mobs Raging Through Deutsches Land.'"

Picture to yourself, now, the way you would feel, as an ardent and patriotic German, after you had lived on this kind of diet for a week or so. You would be straining at the leash, probably. Before long you would be in a frame of mind to support any warlike action your government might choose to indulge in, and in the end you would probably hail war itself as a noble act of liberation and a blow against a shameful tyranny.

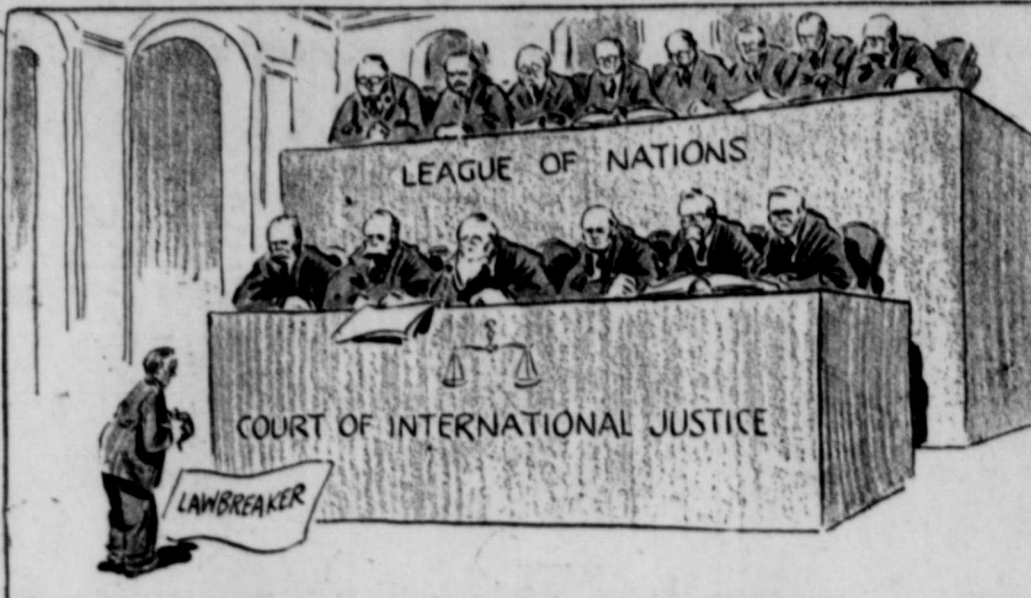

Behind the scenes, of course, are wirepullers who want the whole German nation to feel precisely that way. The Nazi press campaign is simply a means of making sure that Hitler will have solid support for any belligerent course he may take. And since no one can present the other side of the question—since no paper in all Germany can hint that these reports from Czechoslovakia are overdrawn—the press campaign is bound to succeed.

And that means that the German people have been placed at the mercy of their own emotions. They can be played upon by their own government, and they have no defense—because every avenue through which their emotions can be reached, every inlet for news and propaganda, is in the hands of the government.

It is that sort of thing which a free press prevents. Propaganda does exist, of course, even where the press is free, and false reports do circulate; but there is always a counter-weight on the other side. The citizen has a chance to use his own judgment.

What is happening in Germany right now is perhaps the most powerful of all possible arguments for a free, uncontrolled press.

Things Haven't Worked Out Exactly as Planned

Farm Boys, Girls May Get Jobs On Youth Programs

AUSTIN. — Texas farm boys and girls, jobless between seasons, will be given a chance this winter to put their off-season time to profitable use, J. C. Kellam, state director of the National Youth Administration, announced today.

During the next three or four months, 2,000 young people, between 18 and 25 years of age, who live in rural areas, can be assigned to NYA work projects all over the state. The NYA is cooperating in this way with the general program to improve southern rural conditions, Mr. Kellam said.

More than 11,000 young men and women already have been assigned to Texas NYA work projects this year and the 2,000 who can be added from rural sections will not replace those now at work. As in the case of the 11,000, the 2,000 will be given the opportunity to earn an average of $12 to $14 a month.

"One of the greatest problems faced by rural youth has been the intermittent opportunity for employment. There are jobs when crops are to be planted or harvested, when cotton is to be worked or picked. When these things are accomplished, there are dull seasons, with few, if any, opportunities. It is this slack the NYA is endeavoring to relieve. In short, it is attempting, so far as its funds will permit, to provide the opportunity for productive work and training over the whole twelve months of the year, by filling in the normal, seasonal gaps."

Young men will be assigned to the projects best suited to their individual needs, Mr. Kellam said. Some will be employed in soil conservation work, others will help build community centers and home economics cottages. They will help improve rural schools and playgrounds. Others will be assigned to resident projects providing agricultural training at Texas Technological College at Lubbock, Buchanan dam on the Colorado river, A. & I. College at Kingsville, and the Luling Foundation Farm.

Young women will be assigned to such projects as assisting county home demonstration agents, working in public hospitals and cafeterias, and to part-time resident projects.

"In all cases, training will be definitely emphasized. We want to assist these boys and girls to be better and more efficient farmers and farm homemakers," Mr. Kellam added.

Wooden Derrick Is Becoming Oddity In New Oil Fields

ALVIN, Texas.—In the midst of the most modernly equipped oil wells in the new Hitchcock field near here stands a wooden derrick of bright yellow pine.

W. N. Hunter, operator of the well, was asked to explain why the "old fashioned" material was used instead of a metal derrick.

"Well, we had to meet a spudding date," Hunter said, "and it just occurred to me that the derrick could be built more quickly of wood. But when I called a construction company and told them what I wanted, the proprietor almost went through the ceiling. He said he hadn't had such a request in ten years."

The singular derrick is over the Joe D. Hughes No. 1 south outpost well.

"Most of the crew members never worked on a wooden derrick before," Hunter said, "but they seem to like it because they can drive nails anywhere and hang up things easily."

"Looking at it sure reminds one of the old Spindletop field days, when there were none but wooden derricks."

"In all cases, training will be definitely emphasized. We want to assist these boys and girls to be better and more efficient farmers and farm homemakers," Mr. Kellam added.

Bullet Breaks Pipe But Man Is Unhurt

CLARENDON, Texas.—Tales of close shaves by bullets always have been a heritage of the West, but never before was a pipe shot from a man's pocket without ill effects or without its owner being aware.

To Tom Tate, resident of Hedley, near here, goes the honor of having his pipe shot from his pocket. Tate revealed that a .22 caliber bullet shattered his pipe, blowing it entirely free of his pocket without tearing the cloth.

Tate said he was approaching his barn and knocked the ashes from his pipe. He slipped the pipe into a pocket, where his small son earlier had placed the bullet.

"I heard a loud report," Tate said. "I looked around to see who was shooting and unconsciously ran my hand into my pocket. There were only a few bits of my old pipe left, but my clothes were not hurt a bit."

Police Edit Radio Calls for Home Use

NEW ORLEANS.—The police department hopes its home-listening public will notice some improvement in radio calls.

It used to be when a man got so soused he couldn't keep his feet, he went on the air like this: "Patrol wagon so-and-so, pick up drunk who is down at —."

Under new regulations the operator says it something like this: "Patrol car so-and-so, a man is down at the corner of —."

There can be no mention of drunkenness or anything that is likely to offend the ears of home listeners.

"You'd be surprised how many people listen to those calls at home," one police official said. "Now it wouldn't sound right to talk about a man being drunk in front of women and children."

However, if a man is murdered with an axe, it is still murdered with an axe on the police radio. But the killer couldn't be any means be described as "drunk."

There are few countries left who hold unnecessary positions. Second, there are the WPA and other governmental organizations founded to take care of the unemployed. Third, are the loan organizations which are established to help business enterprises in danger of going on the rocks and the encouragement of building prosperity, but which despite long term contracts must have security which can and may fall back into the hands of the government. And forth, the present predicament of the railroads which eventually the government may find it necessary to take over. Thus it is the government is beginning to support the people and not the people the government.

Hunter Calls Big Horn Kill a Thrill

MONTREAL. — Hunting big-horned sheep in the Canadian Rockies is better sport than "big game" hunting in Africa, Harry Snyder, Canadian sportsman, said on his return here after a four-month expedition in Africa. During the trip, Snyder's party bagged the largest bull elephant and giraffe ever shot, and came across an albino giraffe. "The thrill in killing a big-horned sheep in the Rockies is the difficulty which the hunter experiences in locating the animal," he said. "One must climb dangerous mountains with the hope that

In Africa, on the other hand, conditions are different. The game was easy to locate, with the aid of guides, and often Snyder's party came across an entire herd of wild animals clustered together. "There is no object in shooting a beast under such circumstances," he said.

When President Roosevelt put men on governmental relief he was, and still is, severely criticized by many for doing so. Yet in all fairness open minded Americans must admit that he could have done little else if he were to prevent civil strife since so many people were going hungry. The trouble is that nothing has since been done to elevate this condition nor is it entirely the President's fault. When we get down the root of the evil we find that it is business and the men who run it who are at fault. And it all has to do with the wages of the masses. When the common run of people are being paid good wages and there is plenty of production then there is no such thing as a depression. In 1890 Congressman McKinley said: "I do not prize the word 'cheap'; it is not a good word of cheer; it is not a word of comfort. Cheap merchandise means cheap men and cheap men means a cheap country." Like most of us McKinley seemed to have the idea that cheap merchandise was the direct cause of everything else being cheap when in reality it is cheap wages that make a country cheap. If wages are high, merchandise will take care of itself. It always has. Benjamin Franklin once said that a country had to be rich be-

CHAPTER XV

They were sitting at a table in the clubhouse when Monte exploded his bombshell.

"Linda, want to pick up $10,000?" He asked the question casually, but she saw a tense look in his eyes.

She was silent for a long while, just looked at him. "Monte—what's the game?" she asked at last.

He dropped his voice almost to a whisper: "I don't want you to start Golden Toy in the Stakes."

She felt herself stiffen. "Why not?"

He glanced away an instant. Then he said: "Three months ago I got odds of 12 to 1 against the Maid in the Stakes. I put up $4000. I win $48,000 if she comes in plus the purse. I can win if your colt stays in his base; the filly is at top. I'll give you $10,000 cash—tomorrow—to keep him there. And $10,000 more when Merry Maid wins. Fair?"

Linda looked steadily at him; slowly she gathered her gloves and bag, pushed her chair back, with an old-fashioned horseman's air.

With all his faults, he plays a different game. He'd punch you in the nose if you made such an offer to him, Monte, Monte!"

"Listen, Linda, we're friends—" he began, but she cut him short: "We were, Monte—we were." She smiled wanly. "I guess you're right; women and racing—they don't mix."

She left him, standing by his table; tugging at his coat, a confused look on his face.

Race-mad folk crammed the Downs' roocoed stands when the bugles sounded Boots and Saddles; and Golden Toy, in the Golden silks of scarlet and purple, led the field out, to the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home."

"We got a chance," Uncle Sandy told Linda, as they stood in the infield. "If Toy don't run out—"

"They're off!"

Starting from an extension of the backstretch, the field spurred down the mile sprint.

"Yes, sir—it be Toy and the Maid!" Uncle Sandy exclaimed, as the golden chestnut and the dark bay filly shot out from the pack.

"Hi—mi! Three lengths a'round ahead o' the field. The first quarter—the watch clicked in his hand—"It be in 22 flat—that's sizzling."

Down the long backstretch those two horses fought eye to eye—the field far behind. Now they were going into the far turn. Uncle Sandy pocketed his watch.

"Yes, sir—Marder's opening up a bit."

They were coming into the stretch. The grandstands, crowded with humanity, let out a great roar.

"Look—look!" Linda grabbed her uncle's arm. They were running wide into the stretch—Golden Toy was bearing out, carrying Merry Maid with him.

"That darn colt!" Sandy Gordon began, then changed his tune. "None—Marder's got him; they just went out a little way—they comin' home in the middle o' the track."

Down the last two furlongs the colt and the filly pounded—neck and neck.

"Uncle Sandy—Uncle Sandy! Com' on!" In excitement Linda seized the horseman's arm, started toward the finish line.

A great golden chestnut—a dark bay—she shot under the wire together noses on a line.

Uncle Sandy stopped. "Durn if I ain't astounded. He didn't finish the thought."

A sign flashed from the bulletin board:

PHOTOGRAPH FINISH
"The judges," Uncle Sandy said calmly, "they got to look at the picture—look from top o' the grandstand. The nag whose nose touches the wire in that picture—he or she wins. Won't take but a minute for that high-speed camera to show 'em."

He led her to the vacant winner's circle, by the judges' stand. In a moment the horses would canter back, the jockeys weigh out—

A BUZZING sound overhead—a metal carrier slid down a trolley from the grandstand to the judges. It held the picture. With her heart pounding furiously, Linda saw the judges take it out—look at it—nod in agreement.

The senior judge rose, pushed a button—

A light flashed on the bulletin board:

RESULT
No. 1
Golden Toy won!

"Wait—ain't official yet," Uncle Sandy warned, as Linda turned, exulting, to him. "Why—what could there be—"

As she saw Monte Hill step from the group of trainers and go up to the judges' stand.

"Don't lead him in yet," a judge called from the pagoda as Golden Toy galloped up. Monte Hill and his jockey were with the judges, talking excitedly. Suddenly a light flashed on the bulletin board—a gigantic gasp went up from the stands:

FOUL CLAIMED
Sandy Gordon, Linda, and the jockey went up the stairs into the judges' stand! The senior judge spoke:

"Marder, Jockey Heck claims you fouled him—ran him wide coming into the stretch."

"I didn't!" Marder's jaw shot out aggressively. "This colt did run wide last week—ran to the fence. I was lookin' for it this time—holdin' him in. Comin' into the stretch—we were comin' so fast—we just naturally swung out a bit—Merry Maid happened to be on the outside—but we didn't touch her—we straightened out in the middle of the track—and we outrun her to the wire!"

The judges conferred a moment. The senior looked up. "The foul is"—his face was stern—"disallowed!"

Linda Gordon looked at Monte Hill—shook her head, turned her back on him, forever.

They were sitting at the dinner table in a cottage behind the track: Sandy Gordon, Linda, Bruce. "Uncle, I'm giving you one-third—$10,000—of our win and sales money," Linda said, with a fond smile. "The rest goes—"

"Goes into an annuity for you," Bruce spoke quickly.

Uncle Sandy nodded. "I can buy three-four right nice 3-year-olds with my money—"

"Callie," Linda smiled up at the buxom woman passing the cranberries, "is Norman in the kitchen?"

"Is he?" Callie grinned. "He's gnawin' away on de turkey drumstick this minute."

"Tell him to come in—bring his drumstick, too."

Norman came to the door, a big grin on his face. "You wants me, Miss Linda? Here I is."

"Yes, Norman. We're all going home, tomorrow. Next week, Mr. Bruce and I will be married in the front parlor of Radford Farms—a day before it is sold. And, Norman—" she leaned forward, smiled, said: "It's an old southern custom for the colored folks to be married in the white folks' parlor. So, since you and Callie have been engaged all these years—we thought you'd like to be married after we are. Wouldn't you, Norman?"

Norman gulped—his eyes grew wide and white.

"In de parlor, wid you all there?" A big grin cut across his dusky face. He looked toward the smiling Callie. "Yes, ma'am, I shore would! If—if Sis' Callie will have me."

College of Mines Is Enlarging Stadium

EL PASO, Texas.—Preliminary work by a college student force has begun on the $15,000 WPA project for enlarging the capacity of the College of Mines stadium by 2,400 seats. Dr. D. M. Wiggins, president of the college, announced.

The stadium, scene of the annual Sun Bowl game, will seat 8,400 spectators when the enlargement is completed.

noted here that the control of mice and rats and insects makes him valuable.

Red-Shouldered Hawk or Singing Hawk: This is a valuable hawk because 32 per cent of his diet is insects, 28 per cent mice and rats, 25 per cent of his diet being frogs, game birds, rabbits and poultry.

Red-Tailed Hawk or Hen Hawk: The diet of this hawk consists of 55 per cent mice and rats, 10.5 per cent insects, 9 per cent rabbits and squirrels, 6 per cent poultry and the rest in game birds, frogs and aquatic animals.

The Rough-Legged Hawk or grasshopper hawk eats 63 per cent insects, 20 per cent mice and rats and the rest in frogs and small mammals. Food habits shows that this hawk should be protected.

Owls
The Great Horned Owl: Of all the owls this one is condemned by farmers and hunters because of depredation to poultry and game birds. Note the diet: This owl's diet consists of 95 per cent mammals, mostly rats and mice, four per cent small birds. Only 2 per cent of his total diet being poultry and game birds. So does the diet of the Barn Owl consist mostly of rats and mice and other small mammals. In the number studied there was not a single game bird found in the food of the little Barn Owl.

I hope that this article will help some who enjoy the killing of owls and hawks to think before you shoot.

HAWKS AND OWLS

Many sportsmen over the state consider that they are doing a good turn when they kill a hawk or owl of any kind. This is a great mistake, and I hope that this article will help clear up the misunderstanding among the sportsmen to hawks and owls.

Not long ago I saw a picture in newspaper, where several sportsmen had killed about 100 hawks, about 75 per cent of the hawks shown in the picture were valuable hawks. The other 25 per cent were unimportant and were on the unimportant list of birds of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission.

Many people who see a hawk or owl immediately get the idea that "all hawks are bad birds." This is an opinion that should be cleared up, because we have so many valuable hawks in this section of the state.

The food habits study revealed a leaflet titled "What Hawks

Eat," published by the National Association of Audubon Societies of New York shows that only three of the eight hawks listed to be dangerous to certain wildlife species.

Hawks may be divided into two classes as to their food habits.

(1) Hawks that subsist largely upon small birds such as Cooper's Sharpshinned and Goshawk, and (2) those that feed almost exclusively upon rodents (all except the sparrow hawk and osprey). The sparrow hawk, contrary to the notation of its name, feeds almost exclusively upon insects, the osprey feeds upon fish.

Most owls subsist largely upon rodents and small mammals.

Let us examine some specific examples of food of some common hawks and owls. First we will consider the destructive hawks that are rapid in flight flap and glide flight, perching under cover, small size, long tail, and short blunt wings. Screeper, Hawk or Chicken Hawk: About 55 per cent of his diet consists of small birds, 17 per cent of mammals such as mice and rats, 12 per cent game birds, 10 per cent poultry, 3.3 per cent rabbits, and the rest in frogs and insects.

The Sharp-Skinned Hawk: His diet consists of 94 per cent small birds, 3.6 per cent rabbits, insects mice, poultry. This is a hawk that should be controlled, as well as the Cooper's hawk.

The Marsh Hawk, or Mouse Hawk feeds almost entirely on small birds: 41 per cent of his diet consists of this, 33 per cent mammals, rate, rabbits, squirrels; 9 per cent and the rest of his diet consists of frogs, insects and poultry. Again we have another hawk that should be controlled.

Valuable Hawks
The five valuable hawks shown by the Audubon Society include most of the larger hawks that soar in circles, perching in the open, large in size, slow in flight, long wings with a short, broad tail.

Broad Winged Hawk, or House Hawk: This hawk eats 39 per cent frogs, insects and snakes make up 30.9 per cent of his diet, 23 per cent mice and rats, 3 per cent small birds, and the rest of his diet will be game birds, aquatic animals and rabbits. It will be

WILL HARRIDGE announces that the American League is on record as being in favor of a less lively ball.

Harridge intends to get his owners together during the world series, and dig into the subject with the manufacturers.

Practically everybody in both major leagues agrees that something should be done to bring about more balance between pitching and batting. Home runs are much too cheap.

Many trace this year's epidemic of injured and sore arms—those of the Deans, Schoolboy Rowe, Lefty Grove, Tommy Bridges, Carl Hubbell, Bob Feller, Van Lingle Mungo, Johnny Allen, Hal Schumacher, Red Lucas, Bob Klumper, Jack Wilson, and some more—to the fact that the jack-rabbit pill makes it compulsory for pitchers to bear down at all times.

Every ball dealt is a potential home run.

The National League had a different cover put on the pellet this season, but all it did was make the ball harder to handle, according to the pitchers.

CABBY STREET of the St. Louis Browns is in favor of the return of the spitball.

"Besides having the advantage of the lively ball, the batter now has shortened distances to the fences," remarks the Old Sarge. "I know pitchers who have been in the majors for seven or eight years without developing a good curve. Any strong young fellow can learn how to throw and control the spitter in a very short time."

Whitlow Wyatt traces arm injuries to trick deliveries. This Georgia farmer, sold by Milwaukee to Brooklyn, has been in professional baseball for eight years, but admits that he did not learn how to pitch or take care of his souper until last season.

Wyatt advises young pitchers to concentrate on a natural delivery, on the fast ball, the curve, a change of pace, and control, and forget about screwballs and such. He points out that trick deliveries require such difficult twists that eventually they lead to injuries.

"YOUNG pitchers must work on the perfect follow through," asserts Wyatt. "They should never let the ball leave the hand near or around the ear. They should always let it leave the hand after the full sweep of the arm."

"They should also remember that all deliveries are gripped the same way. The only variation comes in the delivery of the slow pitch, when the grip is loosened to obtain the slower spin."

Wyatt advises young pitchers to grip the ball across the seams because it lets them put on greater spin.

He says that another common fault of pitchers is loafing in the off-season.

"That sort of rest didn't help my arm," explains Wyatt. "It left me flabby. Now, when I get back to Buchanan, Ga., I really do a lot of manual labor on my farm. It strengthens my arm so much that when I go into training in the spring I know that the old kinks in the shoulder and elbow won't kick up again."

Whitlow Wyatt is returning to the majors a wiser and better pitcher.

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—If you don't like the way the monopoly investigation goes, blame the Yale Law School!

Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, in charge of anti-trust cases and Department of Justice member of the Temporary National Economic Committee, is a professor on leave from the school.

Arnold has his own dean working for him this summer—Dean Charles E. Clark of Yale Law School, who helps with Arnold's regular work and in the monopoly inquiry. Although Arnold temporarily is Clark's boss, Clark will be boss again when Arnold returns to New Haven.

Walton Hamilton, Yale professor of business, public and constitutional law, was recruited by Arnold to locate and outline trouble spots where the business system doesn't function.

George Dession, professor of criminal law at Yale, will stage-manage the first monopoly hearings. Allan Hart, former faculty member, is handling the "group medicine" anti-trust case against the District Medical Society and the American Medical Association.

Half a dozen young lawyers who were graduated from Yale also are working with Arnold and an unknown number of law school students are "dollar a year" men.

Also on leave from the law school is Chairman William O. Douglas of SEC, a monopoly committee member. SEC Commissioner Jerome Frank is a former lecturer at the school. A Douglas right-hand man is Abe Fortas, resigned from the faculty to handle administration of the holding company act. Roger Foster of SEC is another former faculty member.

Arnold, Clark, Hamilton, Douglas and Frank all have been publicly mentioned as Supreme Court possibilities. But the leading candidate for the existing vacancy is still Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard Law School—which has contributed more graduates to the New Deal, but not as many professors.

LOVELL H. PARKER, 12 years chief of staff for the congressional joint committee on taxation, has resigned to become a private tax consultant. Most senators and representatives claiming to know much about taxation owe their reputations to Parker. It was he who wrote Senator Pat Harrison's attack on President Roosevelt's criticism of the last session tax measure.

Parker was born in Osterville, Mass., on Cape Cod. Discussing lack of co-ordination of state and federal tax policies, he sometimes relates a story his father told him many years ago.

Musk rats were pests in the nearby towns of Mashpee and Barnstable. A Mashpee town meeting voted a 25-cent bounty for every muskrat killed, the town treasurer to pay a quarter for every pair of muskrat ears presented. Men and boys made 50 cents a muskrat by delivering tails in Mashpee, ears in Barnstable.

Next year each group of town fathers decided to fix that. Mashpee voted to pay for ears. On the same day Barnstable voted to pay for tails.

After another year of 50-cent muskrats the towns co-ordinated and agreed on tails.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

ANSWER: Wrong. Tadpoles do not drop their tails, but absorb them. HERRINGS have scales that are known as "deciduous," because of the ease with which they rub off when the fish is handled.

Robert King, Former Ranger Grid Star, Son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. King, Marries Popular Greenville, S. C., Girl

Of interest to his many friends in Ranger is the following article taken from the Greenville, S. C., Piedmont, relating the wedding of Mr. Robert Burrough King, former Ranger high school football star, and Miss Gladys Mason of Greenville, which took place recently in that city:

With its long line of lofty windows open to the early morning light, Buncombe Street Methodist Church was the scene yesterday of one of the most interesting of the late summer weddings. At 7:30 o'clock Miss Gladys Mason became the bride of Bob King, who came to Greenville from Ranger, Texas in 1933 to become one of the most popular stars ever to play for Furman's vaunted Purple Hurricane. Countless friends of the young couple find the most cordial interest in their marriage.

The following formal announcement of the marriage has been made:

Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Mason announce the marriage of their daughter
Laura Gladys
to
Mr. Robert Burrough King on Thursday, the twenty-fifth of August
Nineteen hundred and thirty-eight
Greenville, South Carolina
Early Morning Marriage
The ceremony to which no cards had been issued, took place in the early morning with only close relatives and intimate friends to witness it. A prelude of nuptial music was rendered by Miss Fred-erica Morris prior to the wedding at which the Rev. R. F. Morris, minister of the church, officiated. Miss Morris played first Kreisler's "Old Refrain" and then to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin the young couple entered the church together and stood with the minister at the altar to take the vows.

The quiet of the early morning hour lent new solemnity to the ring ceremony which was used, and the simple, effective decorations at the altar lent new beauty to the traditional dignity of the church wedding.

On each side of the place where the young couple stood to take their vows tall floor baskets of late summer flowers in a variety of pastel shades had been arranged in decoration. In the center of the altar, against a background of greens a low basket held a still different arrangement of flowers whose colors were particularly lovely in the early morning light.

During the ceremony the organist played very softly Schubert's "Serenade."

Lovely Bride
The bride, one of the city's loveliest blondes, wore a tailored dress of Ray Blue fashioned with a bolero over a bodice with lingerie touches to relieve its smart lines. Her hat and accessories were of pink brocade and her flowers a shoulder bouquet of autumn roses.

She has many friends here where she has always made her home and where she was educated in the local schools who are most cordially interested in her marriage and who are delighted to know that she will continue to make this city her home.

Friends throughout several states, particularly in the South, find interest in the marriage. The bride's mother is a native of North Carolina and a wide family connection throughout that state are interested in the marriage which took place here yesterday morning.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. King, of Ranger, Texas. He came to Greenville in 1933 to enter Furman University from which he was graduated, cum laude, with the class of '37.

He was one of the most popular students at the University in recent years. He was president of his sophomore class and captain of the Purple Hurricane his senior year. He has had few peers as end on a football squad, and those who do not know him personally will recall his brilliant playing on the Furman team. He was named all-state end for three years and all-Southern end.

Mr. King has maintained his connection with Furman in the capacity of coach since his graduation.

On Wedding Trip
Mr. and Mrs. King left the city immediately after the ceremony for a short wedding trip, after which they will return to Greenville to make their home on East Paris road, where they have taken their apartment.

For traveling the bride wore a light weight suit of navy blue with a tight blue blouse and navy hat. The wedding is one of the most interesting events of the late summer throughout the South.

Conscience Letter Received In Midland

By United Press

MIDLAND, Texas—Somewhere in Dallas there lives a man with a rested conscience, for the Midland Chamber of Commerce received the following letter under a Dallas postmark:

"In 1917 I stole a pair of gloves from J. H. Barron and company. Please see that this $2.50 reaches the right parties. Also stole bottle grape juice and some cakes from an elderly man who ran a cafe in your city. See that this $1.50 is given to the right parties. Thank you."

The letter, unsigned, contained four $1 bills, and at the bottom the writer had drawn a crude outline of one city block as he remembered it, arrows pointing out the stores mentioned.

The money was delivered to Barron's widow and to W. S. and M. R. Hill, whom persons familiar with Midland in 1917 declared were the operators of the cafe.

Ever Wonder Why You're Constipated?

Do you ever have days when you just have to drag yourself along, when you feel tired, sink-because of that constipation? Then why not find out the real cause of your trouble?

What have you had to eat lately? Just things like meat, bread and potatoes? If that's it, you may not have to look any farther. It's likely your trouble is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.

If "bulk" is what you lack, your ticket is a dish of crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars." Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
