Ethiopia Keeps on Being Difficult

A few years ago the poverty-stricken, land-hungry people of Italy set out to get a break for themselves by taking over the rich lands of Ethiopia.

Obviously they needed a break of some kind. Italy is full of mountains and rocks—and some 42 million people. The ordinary Italian works hard and doesn't get any too much to eat; no wonder he went for it when someone told him that there were fat farm lands and general riches to be had for the taking down in Africa.

So there was a war, and peace-loving folk on this side of the water took what comfort they could in the reflection that when the shooting and the killing stopped, things at least would be a little better for the common people of Italy.

But now it begins to look as if these Italians had bought a gold brick.

A dispatch from Rome to a New York newspaper reveals that the Italian government has given up its plans for the colonization of Ethiopia—for the time being, at any rate.

In the first place, the country isn't fully pacified yet. It won't be pacified until the natives have been secured in the possession of their own lands—and there happen to be about twice as many of these natives as the Italian high command had figured.

In addition, the riches that Ethiopia possesses aren't the kind that can be gathered quickly. General Attilio Teruzzi, undersecretary for Italian Africa, remarks that it will be years before the country can be made ready for colonization.

So the colonization campaign is off, and the government is trying to get the people to think about colonizing Libya instead.

Which leaves the ordinary Italian who paid for the war sitting right back of the eight-ball, as nearly as it can be figured out from this distance.

It's easy to be wise after the fact, of course. But it doesn't hurt to point out that sort of thing is what a nation inevitably lets itself in for, when it gives up trying to think and turns all its problems over to a military dictator to solve.

The dictator is certain, sooner or later, to look for some "adventure" that will make people think that their troubles are being taken care of. And the adventure is very likely to end the way this Ethiopian conquest is ending—in general disillusionment.

The Japs and the Chinese seem to be applying old-fashioned industrial methods to warfare. The former go in for the speed-up, and the latter counter with the stretch-out.

APPROACHING CRISIS

New Type Resident Project Is Launched In NYA Program

AUSTIN—A new type of NYA Resident Project offering a related work and training program in stenographic and clerical work for girls who want to learn more about the commercial field has been launched at Blinn College in Brenham, co-sponsor for the Project, J. C. Kellam, State NYA Director, has announced. Thirty girls eligible for NYA employment were selected for the Project on a basis of their interest in Vocational Work and their ability to profit by this type of training. The Project is the outgrowth of an idea advanced by Congressman Lyndon B. Johnson some two years ago when he was then serving as State Director of the NYA.

EVERYTHING SET FOR THE OPENING PITCH

Wrigley Field, Chicago, scene of the opening world series warfare, Oct. 5, and the starting pitcher Vernon Gomez, left, of the Yankees, and Bill Lee of the Cubs.

Girls work part-time as clerical assistants in local public offices to earn a wage sufficient to pay for their room and board and personal expenses. During the remainder of their time they take part in vocational classroom and laboratory training in the College Commercial Department under competent instructors provided by the College. The Project will operate for a period of about nine months. The NYA girls live on the third floor of Blinn College Girls' Dormitory on a cooperative basis under the supervision of Miss Chloe L. Quebedeaux, NYA official, and the College authorities. President C. F. Schmidt has encouraged each girl to take part in all extra-curricular activities offered by the college.

"Girls who are high school graduates, or the equivalent, were assigned to this Project and most of them have had at least six months' experience in clerical work," Mr. Kellam said. "work experience and training made available through the regular channels chosen vocational field, training does not carry college credit."

Bringing Home the Treaty

Waving the "no-more-war" pact signed with Adolf Hitler, Prime minister Neville Chamberlain acknowledges the crowd's cheer at Heston Airport, London, as he returns from the historic meeting with Hitler, Mussolini and Daladier at Munich Germany. After the four powers agreed to avert war by ceding areas of Czechoslovakia to Germany, Hitler and Chamberlain signed a pact banning war between their nations. This picture was radioed from London.

DRESS your fish simply. It will taste smarter. Fresh fish needs no disguise, despite all the complicated talk you may have heard. Oysters, too, respond best to gentle treatment. They are their own reward in most cases. Buy only 100 per cent fresh and quick frozen fish. It should be firm to the touch, have red firm gills and be moist of eye and have shiny scales.

Fish Baked in Milk

(Serves 4 to 6)
Two pounds fish filets, 1 egg, 1-3 cup dry bread crumbs, 2 cups whole milk, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-2 teaspoon minced garlic, 1 teaspoon finely chopped parsley.

Clean filets and wipe dry. Beat egg lightly and brush over one side of filets. Then sprinkle lightly with salt, bread crumbs and lemon juice. Lay in well-greased baking dish. Pour in milk. Add salt to taste and pepper if wanted. Then dot bread-crumbed fish with butter. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) for about 35 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley and serve very hot.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grape bowl, dry cereal, fried cornmeal, honey, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Pigs in blanket, lemon sections, cole slaw, orange cake, tea, milk.

DINNER: Fish baked in milk, parsley potatoes, green peppers stuffed with eggplant, grapefruit and lettuce salad, steamed apricot pudding, coffee, milk.

Pigs in Blanket

(Serves 4 to 6)
One pint large oysters, 1-2 pound thinly sliced bacon, salt and pepper to taste, lemon sections.

Clean oysters, carefully removing all bits of shell. Drain thoroughly and season delicately with salt and pepper. Wrap a strip of bacon around each oyster and secure with a toothpick. Use a shallow, lightly greased baking dish. Stand wrapped oysters on end. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about an hour, or until bacon is crisp. Serve with sections of lemon and dishes as you like.

Here they Come Down Our Street!

Remember the thrill when the six-foot drum-major twirled his gold baton and turned the big parade right down your street? Some of the world's most exciting business was coming right by your door!

There's another parade of exciting business that comes down your street every day—comes right into your home. It's the newspaper you are reading now. On the newspaper's pages march rank after rank of pictures and word-pictures of what the world is making today—from new breakfast foods to overcoats, from jewelry to overshoes. Lots of them are things that you want and need—and you have a grand-stand seat to watch them all march by. Just sit back in your easy chair and take your choice—the newspaper advertisements tell you all about them and even where you can get them. Make it a point to read the advertisements—they bring the world right down your street!

SERIAL STORY

HIT-RUN LOVE

BY MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

CHAPTER XV
A SUPPRESSED air of excitement hung over the traffic court. Groups of people clustered together...

"She can't tell anything that will hurt me," he insisted bitterly. "That remains to be seen," Tom said quietly...

TOM said something to Burke and the big officer came over to Pat. "Let's go in your office and let them finish up here," he told her...

Alone in the privacy of her room she aimlessly fingered the papers on the desk, stared at the notes on her pad, tried to get her thoughts in order.

"They would finish up. Larry would pay his price to society. Life would go on, but it would be empty, shorn of the glamor and romance that it had once worn."

The petals fell, covering the desk with their color.

The door opened and she looked up. It was Tom. She turned her head, afraid for him to see her face. The silence was too long.

"The—the flowers are gone, too," she said tensely. They were words, spoken simply to fill the silence.

"There'll be others," he said. "And they'll be as sweet. Flowers fade, but there are some things in life that don't. Love doesn't fade; not real love, Pat. Not the kind I feel for you."

"How can you now, Tom? After I was so blind and weak."

"It wasn't blind or weak to do what you did. Don't think I'm not aware of what it took to make you call Kent's bluff. It wasn't easy to tell what you know, particularly when it involved the man you cared for. But you had the strength of your convictions."

"The things Larry said weren't true, Tom. I mean about telling simply to further my own ambitions."

"I know, darling. You gave him his chance. He just didn't know how to play your honest game. Maybe this will set him straight for the rest of his life. I'll do what I can to get him off easy. If he makes restitution to the family, well—I think perhaps a light sentence and probation will be punishment enough. You see he's already lost you."

"He couldn't see things the way we do," she said. "We do see life the same way, don't we?" Tom said gently.

"That's why I need you. All our problems won't be solved so easily, but if we're together—"

The pressure of his hands on hers was strong and kind. The days ahead no longer seemed empty and meaningless. Even the petals on the old oak desk caught the sunlight from the window and recaptured the beauty of spring in their faded glory.

After that Larry seemed to collapse. "Well, what should I do?" she heard him say.

Where Poles Get Slice of Czecho

The Poles have passed the platter and the Czechs have sliced away another part of their fast-diminishing little land, agreeing to withdraw troops from the areas shaded in the map above. An international commission will draw up a new frontier, probably giving to Poland the areas 50 to 70 per cent Polish and leaving Czechoslovakia the region where Poles are 10 to 50 per cent of the population. Smaller map locates the disputed area.

The President Counsels With Cabinet as Europe Seethes

As the nations of Europe moved toward war, President Roosevelt, chief executive of the most powerful democracy in the world, summoned his cabinet, above, into special session to consider the part the United States will play when and if war comes. The President already has dispatched two peace appeals to Adolf Hitler. Pictured here, reading clockwise around the table, are President Roosevelt, Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Attorney General Homer Cummings, Secretary of Navy Claude A. Swanson, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Secretary of War Harry Woodring, and Secretary of State Cordell Hull. WASHINGTON LETTER

BY GERRY DICK
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—Both Republican and Democratic national committees are giving some high-powered attention to what the "little woman" thinks about politics these days. At one time party leaders disturbed the domestic calm of the housewife's kitchen on election day, when they sent someone around to persuade her to leave the baby or the pickled preserves long enough to visit the election booth. But today both parties have full-time divisions that pay year-round attention to what women are thinking about government and politics between election days. The Democrats entrust this job to Mrs. Dorothy McAllister, head of the women's division of the national committee, and the Republicans have Marion Martin directing women's activities for their national committee. The education program for Democratic women brings lecturers on national affairs to local groups. Mrs. McAllister and her aides seek opinion by making reporters of party members throughout the country and these same members are informed on labor, international relations, agricultural policies, etc., so that they may lead discussions in Democratic groups. Republican women will be kept informed by monthly bulletins from committee headquarters here giving pertinent facts about major legislation before Congress. The Republican program hasn't got under way, won't in fact until the first meeting of the National Federation of Republican Women's Clubs in Chicago later this month. Dorothy McAllister is young, talks well, rapidly, makes everything she says sound vitally important. She has brown hair, cut in a long bob, brown eyes, is attractive, keen, fashionably dressed. She likes to work with women near her own age and younger. Marion Martin, directing the Republicans' modern program, is about the same age, 30ish, buoyant, with a contagious freshness and forcefulness. Both women have tremendous enthusiasm for their jobs. Both have a sense of humor. Miss Martin thought it hilariously funny one time when she found she was facing a large audience which had come expecting to see and hear Marion Davies. And both women are young enough to think the hardships of organizing tours a lark. Mrs. McAllister laughs about the time she had just time for a shampoo in Washington and had to wait until she reached Boston, tumbled but undismayed, to get a wave. They've both had the experience of motor breakdowns and have learned to thumb their way to a speaking engagement. Watching them in action you decide what the modern woman needs to chase the blues away is not a new hat, but political activity. (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

BY HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service
NEW YORK.—Call out the Phi Beta Kappa boys. There's going to be a lot of thinking done on the college gridirons this fall. And a lot of severe headaches on the coaches' benches. Take that on the word of Lou Little, Columbia University's professor of applied gridiron science who is drilling his students these days at Baker Field for their first recitation on Oct. 1 in the Yale Bowl, in the presence of rugged and unsympathetic Elis and some 60,000 spectators. The game is the first of the season for both. Says Little: "This sport is getting to be a fast game of chess. We used to be able to scout a defense and know pretty much what to expect. Now we still scout them, but we've learned to expect anything and everything. College football today is certainly no place for the athlete who isn't alert and quick-thinking. The result is that the quarterback has no monopoly on generalship and brains in this game any more. You know, they used to say that a lineman needed was a good strong back and a good pair of arms and legs. That's not true any more. The lineman, as well as the back, must be prepared to change blocking assignments constantly, at an instant's notice." "It's a tough schedule," asserts Little, "especially with big games coming so early. But I'm convinced that that's the trend of modern football. Boys get more fun out of a real contest than from a game in which they're running against the 'south wind' and piling up 50 points against no opposition." "That kind of game makes a boy careless—and then he's more likely than otherwise to be hurt."

Ft. Worth Group Will Visit Ranger On Tuesday A. M.

A group of business executives from Fort Worth will visit Ranger tomorrow, beginning at 10:55, and will remain in the city for a short visit before leaving for Eastland. This trip is designated as a dignified, sincere, friend-making visit, with helpful and constructive features. There will be no ballyhoo, no speech making, and the entire time spent here is to be taken up in making personal contacts with the business men and citizens of the town, it has been stated.

Upon arrival of the special train on which the group will travel, they will parade to the Gholson hotel, where they will disband for personal visits around the town.

A group of Ranger citizens, who have been appointed as a reception committee, will motor to Strawn in the morning, board the train there and ride back to Ranger with the delegation from Fort Worth.

Loud speakers connect all the cars, and enroute from Strawn some of the highlights on Ranger and the activities of the town will be presented in short talks by members of this committee and will be transmitted through the loud speakers, to each coach.

This is a novel good will tour idea that is being sponsored by the Fort Worth chamber of commerce to promote more friendly relations between the two towns.
