JAPAN POUNDS TO A CLIMAX IN CONQUEST

Japan's great war machine, pounding toward a triumphant climax in its conquest of China, clashed again today with the interests of the United States and Great Britain. While Japanese artillery and airplanes hammered down the defenses of Hankow, representatives of Tokyo detained the American steamer, President Coolidge, as it prepared to leave Shanghai with about $4,450,000 in silver for the United States. At Hankow, the British river gunboat, Sandpiper, was damaged seriously by bomb splinters, which its officers reported were aimed deliberately at the little vessel by six Japanese bombers. Britain protested to Japan, who said there must have been some mistake. Probably 1,000 Chinese refugees were killed by Japanese bombers which sank small steamers on the Yangtze above Hankow. Canton, with many blocks of its business district burning, was in Japanese hands. There were rumors Gen. Chiang Kai-shek would resign in favor of former Premier Wang Ching-wei, thus opening the way for an armistice.

They'd Like to Dip $300,000 From Wishing Well

Walt Disney, cartoon king of the movies, seems to be acquiring a fine wardrobe of suits, what with two of them filed against his organization for alleged music piracy in "Snow White" and the Prince. Adriana Caselotti, left, the voice of Snow White, and Harry Stockwell, right, the voice of the Prince, demanded $300,000 in New York Supreme Court. They claimed millions of photographs records were made from the sound track of the film in violation of their contracts which, they say, restricted their voices to the movie alone. The dark-haired Adriana, who reportedly received less than $1000 for her work, seeks $200,000, and Stockwell, whose pay check was said to be under $500, wants $100,000. The film is reported to be grossing around $10,000,000.

Prague Shepperd, negro, and six volunteer companions broke camp and started home to Taylor, Texas, after Werner Falkenstein, also of Taylor, had gone over the ground with his "gold-finding instrument" and found none. Shepherd instigated the hunt with his claim that in 1917 he unearthed three bars of metal, of which he sold two for $500. He learned later, he said, that all three were gold.

Exercising Care In Stoves' Use Is Urge of Officials

Local fire department officials Monday urged citizens to exercise care in the installation and use of gas heaters and equipment this winter. Gas connections should be carefully checked, both to prevent fires as well as forestall any possible leaks which might result in asphyxiation or an explosion. Officials cautioned against placing heaters too close to walls, curtains or other inflammable material. It was urged that where rubber connections are used that the hose be inspected to make sure that they are not rotten and leaky. Metal connections are preferable, but strong rubber hose is safe if in good condition and properly installed. Household owners also were urged to see that open front heaters have protectors which will prevent personal contact with flames and guard against setting fire to clothing of persons standing too close to the stove. Officials have also warned against carelessness in lighting the heaters or other gas stoves, especially urging that gas jets not be opened too long before applying a match to start the fire.

Department Store Sales Up Slightly

AUSTIN, Tex.—Department stores and men's and women's specialty stores in Texas during September showed about the usual seasonal increase of sales in dollars over August but were moderately below September last year, according to the Bureau of Business Research of The University of Texas. The percentage decline in dollar volume was about the same as the percentage decline in retail prices of department stores; so there was practically no change in physical volume of goods, in comparison with September last year, the Bureau report said. Reports from 104 Texas establishments indicate an increase of 34.4 per cent in dollar sales over August and a decline of 5.2 per cent from September last year. Aggregate sales during the first nine months were 0.7 per cent below those of the corresponding period last year.

GOVERNORS TO COOPERATE IN WAGE-HOUR ACT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Governors of seven states today pledged cooperation to wage-hour Administrator Elmer Andrews in enforcing the fair labor standards act, which became effective today. Four of the governors represented southern states, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. The others were Iowa, Utah and Nevada. Andrews anticipated additional offers of cooperation from governors. He addressed to all state executives a plea for cooperation and asked them to attend a conference Nov. 14 to 16. Andrews, in an address today, praised the "fine spirit" shown by the majority of American employers as the act affecting the wages and hours of 11,000,000 workers in interstate commerce became effective. There was a touch of the turmoil of early NRA days as the labor department's wage and hour division began to function. The act imposes a rigid wage minimum and establishes a standard work week. It undertakes to abolish "oppressive child labor." It was enacted last June after a political battle royal which divided the Democratic party. President Roosevelt forced enactment. After last midnight it became unlawful to: 1. Pay less than 25 cents an hour or its equivalent to workers in interstate industry. 2. Pay less than time and a half in cash for all work in any week in excess of 44 hours. 3. Employ children in oppressive labor or employ a child under 14 in any capacity in interstate industry. The act became effective equally on large and small interstate business. Congress exempted farm labor from the act. Other major groups, wholly exempted include executives, administrators, professional persons and persons employed in local retailing or outside salesmen, persons employed in retail or service establishments largely engaged in intrastate commerce and persons handling farm products.

Discovery of America as International Villain

The recent Czech crisis would not have been complete until British newspapers found some way to blame the whole business on Uncle Sam. That moment has finally arrived, and so the whole thing is now official.

According to the magazine Newsweek, an astonishing amount of anti-American sentiment is finding expression in England these days, and it is being argued in London that the Czechs would not have been sold down the river if America had only done its part.

That amazing argument, it seems, goes like this: The British were slow in backing up France because the British were reluctant to commit themselves without assurance of American support. Such assurance not being forthcoming, the British government hedged and hedged until Czechoslovakia was signed, sealed, and delivered to the mercies of Hitler. Further, it is added, "Czechoslovakia was Woodrow Wilson's invention anyway," and hence the United States should have borne the chief responsibility.

Now it may well be that America should have been more active in European affairs in recent years. But it hardly becomes Britons to say so.

If your memory runs back to the early 1930's you may recall that the first serious blow at the Kellogg treaty, the league covenant, and the rest of the world's peace machinery was struck by Japan, in Manchuria. At that time it was an American secretary of state, Henry L. Stimson, who took the lead in trying to rally the democracies to stop the steal. Mr. Stimson boldly took his country out on a limb in his effort to stop the Japanese, trusting that the British—whose interests in the Orient were far greater than America's—would back him up as they had promised.

If Stimson's effort had succeeded, the history of the last half-dozen years would probably have been profoundly different. But the effort failed—because, when the pinch came, the British were looking the other way with great steadfastness.

It is important to remember this. For it was the Manchurian invasion that put the world's peace machinery to its first great test. If that machinery had worked then, Mussolini and Hitler would have behaved differently. That it did not work was due solely to the fact that in the pinch the British refused to let it work.

In the face of that indisputable fact, any Briton who complains that America failed to back up the British government in the Czech crisis is displaying a gall that ought to win medals.

And so to Czechoslovakia being Woodrow Wilson's baby: let it be remembered that Wilson, alone of the allied statesmen, went to Paris without an ax to grind, anxious solely to fabricate a more decent and happier world. It was the British government that campaigned on a "hang the kaiser" platform just before the Versailles conference, thereby making certain that an atmosphere in which a just peace could be created would not exist.

America has a good many things on her conscience, but when it comes to the failure of the world's peace machinery, the bulk of the load must be carried in London.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Badly understaffed, financially starved and slightly dazed by complexities of the law, the administration of the wage-hour law approaches the effective date of the act, October 24, convinced the law needs amending.

Millions of workers on goods moving in interstate commerce will be guaranteed a maximum work week of 44 hours, with time and a half for overtime, and a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour under the law.

But Administrator Elmer F. Andrews has no power to say which industries are covered by the law and which are not. The act makes certain definite exemptions and Andrews probably will issue a memorandum telling which industries are "obviously" affected, but will not attempt to show which occupations and industries fall outside. Employees in retail trade "obviously" are not affected and employees of factories making goods for sale outside the state "obviously" are. There is a large border-line group.

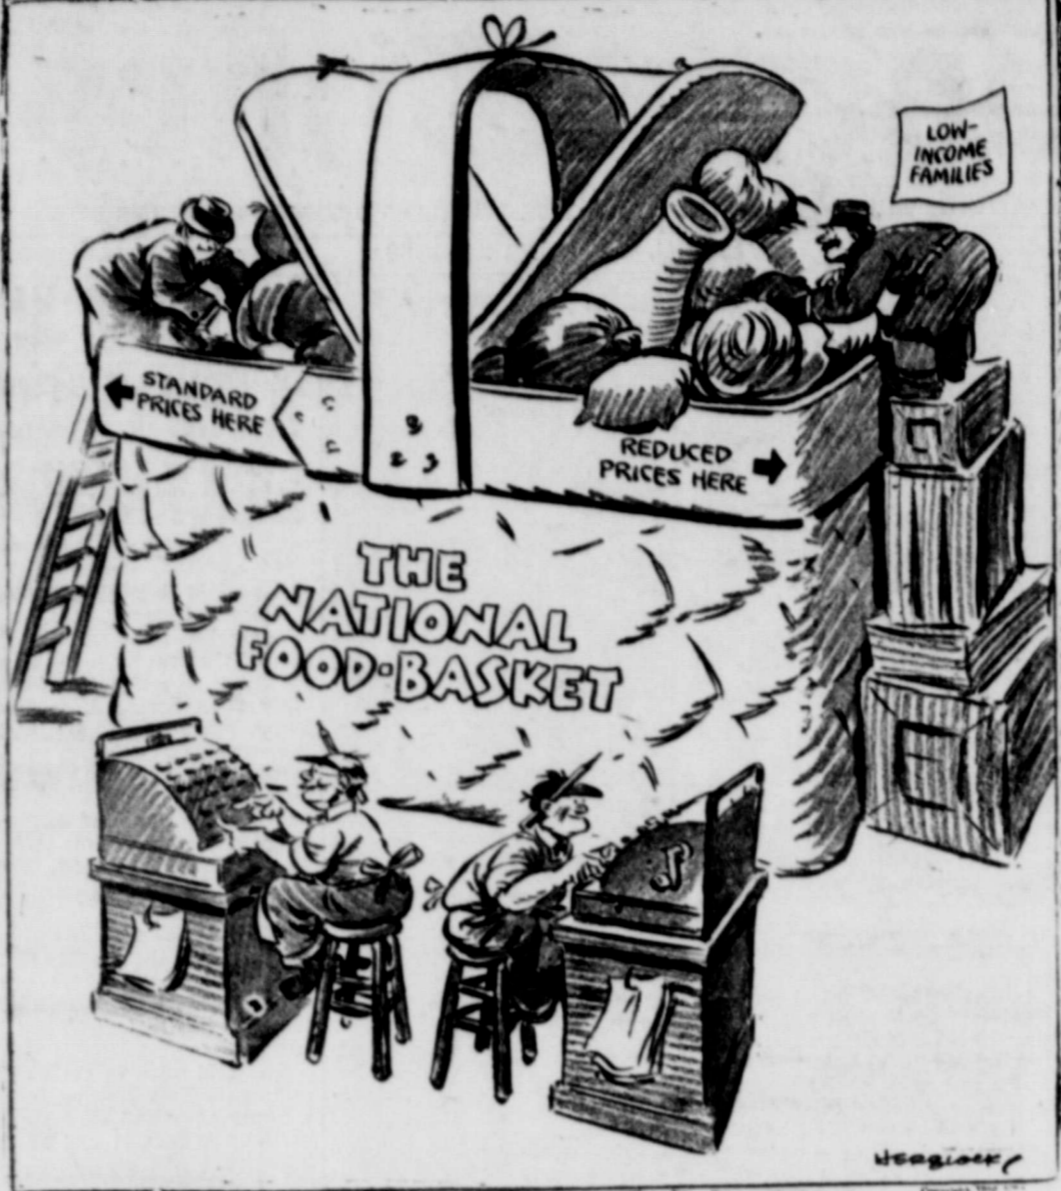

constitutionally extended, by decisions in individual cases.

Only employers "obviously" covered will be prosecuted if they fail to comply with the law. But both they and "border-line" employers can be sued by employees for double damages on unpaid overtime compensation or minimum wages, the courts deciding whether employees are entitled to damages.

Employers must keep records as to wages and hours, but need not turn in reports. Administrative definitions of learners, handicapped persons, seasonal employees, professionals, executives, "production areas" and others called for by the law will be published by October 24.

The administration has about 60 employees and expects to need about a thousand. It can't add to its present staff because it lacks funds. The Department of Labor asked $1,500,000 for administration. The Budget Bureau cut that to $600,000, the Senate to $500,000 and the House to $400,000, with Congressman Woodrum of Virginia assuring officials they were "lucky to get anything."

Kokomo Club Told How Sacks May Make Luncheon Set

"A 4-H club member can learn to make useful things without any expense," stated Miss Mabel Caldwell, assistant county home demonstration agent, at a meeting of the Kokomo girls 4-H club at the school house Wednesday, Oct. 19, with Wanda Donaldson, presiding.

Large sugar sacks, feed sacks and fertilizer sacks, when bleached make attractive luncheon sets, dresser scarfs and aprons. Luncheon sets or dresser scarfs with at least one inch hems make more expensive looking articles. Articles that are too decorative detract rather than add to the appearance. Blind-stitched hems with a small amount of single or double hem-stitching in the corners of luncheon sets or dresser scarfs make them very attractive with only a small amount of time spent in making them.

Each club girl is required to make one article by hand. The girls have their choice in making one of the following luncheon set, dresser scarf, head scarf or handkerchief.

Ima Timmons was elected parliamentary. Those present at this meeting were visitors, Mrs. Roy Crawley and Mrs. J. C. Timmons, Members, Virna Mae Eaves, Ima Timmons, Ernestine Jumper, Wanda Donaldson, Louise Eaves, Billie Jo Crawley, Phyllis Donaldson, Mrs. L. R. Higginbottom, club sponsor, and Miss Mabel Caldwell, assistant county home demonstration agent. —Phyllis Donaldson, reporter.

Blind Banker Sculptures Dinosaur In Wire

Mark Shoemith, America's famous blind sculptor, inspects the wire dinosaur by Berthold Ordner, blind Viennese artist.

ALTHOUGH blind, Berthold Ordner has accomplished the unique feat of creating a new type of sculpture. A "wire-plastic" dinosaur, 26 inches long and 12 inches in height was fashioned by Ordner by hand with no tools other than pliers and wire cutters. The figure has just been purchased by the Sinclair Refining Company of New York, as an addition to its large collection of dinosaur models.

Ordner, a banker, developed his new art, "wire-plastic," as an escape from despair when his eyesight failed him in 1929. He found not only an escape but a new life. After trying many mediums, he evolved the new method of forming figures by twisting and looping wire into a frame. He is able to achieve a remarkable feeling for form and texture through his use of twist and loops and through blending of different types of wire. Figures modeled in this manner by Ordner are considered by experts as being high artistry.

Your tired nerves need frequent relief

Known variously in early Scottish history as Skye terrier, Highland, Cairn, and Scots terrier, although that dog bore no resemblance to Skyes and Cairns of today. Nicknamed the "die-hard" for stout heart and unquenchable love for sport. Extremely independent.

HE'S GIVING HIS NERVES A REST...

AND SO IS HE

LIKE humans, dogs have a complicated set of nerves. But dogs are kinder to their nerves than we. They rest when they need rest... while we plunge ahead with our hurry and worry—straining our nerves to keep up with the fast pace. We can't turn back to the natural paces of life like an animal, but we can protect, soothe, and calm our nerves. Smoking a Camel can be your pleasant method for breaking nerve tension. Camels are mild, with the flavor of a matchless blend of costlier tobaccos. Smokers find Camel's mild tobaccos delightfully soothing—soothing—to the nerves.

SUCCESSFUL PEOPLE ADVISE "Let up—light up a Camel"

DID YOU KNOW? —that tobacco plants are "topped" when they put out their seed-head? That this improves the quality of leaf tobacco? That most cigarette tobacco is harvested by "priming"—removing each leaf by hand? Camel buyers know where choice grades of tobacco are—those that cure nicely—the mild, ripe, fragrant tobaccos. Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS...Turkish and Domestic.

SERIAL STORY MURDER TO MUSIC BY NARD JONES

CAST OF CHARACTERS
MYRNA DOMBEY—heroine, wife of the sensational swing band leader.
ROBERT TAIT—hero, newspaper photographer—detective.
ANNE LESTER—Myrna's closest friend.
DANNIE FEELEY—officer assigned to investigate Ludden Dombey's murder.

Yesterday, Feeley and Tait are unable to identify the attacker, but the taxi driver remembers an evening as he felt, Tait recalls the Dombey song success, "The Cat's Meow."

CHAPTER XVIII
 NEITHER Tait nor Feeley saw any humor in the fact that they were quite as much in the park as the unfortunate taxi driver. Certain that the wounded man could enlighten them no further they left the General Hospital a disconsolate pair if ever there was one.

On the steps of the hospital Feeley looked at Bob Tait. "I saw a good beer tavern near here."

"Lead me to it," said Tait wearily.

Within the next five minutes they were seated in a dark booth of beer parlor, a stein before each of them and a heaping bowl of popcorn between the steins. "Suppose," said Dannie Feeley, "that you start talking. You hire a taxi to take you on a foolhardy trip into the Millbay district. The driver gets knifed and thinks he heard a cat meowing. And you ask me if I ever heard of the cat's meow?"

"I mean the song," grinned Tait. "I told you about that song. If you said any attention to swing music you'd know that song. The one that Ludden Dombey was supposed to have written—and didn't."

Feeley nodded. "The one that was written by George Weeks, I remember."

"Yeah. So there's the chance that the guy who wanted to cut me up was our erratic friend, the unknown musician." Tait took a drag at his beer, leaned forward and went on excitedly. "Look, Dannie. Put yourself in his place. Suppose you'd been a third-rate musician all your life, living from hand to mouth—"

"I wish," said Feeley in a tired way, "I was."

"All right, let's dream it, then. You are. All your life you've figured you are as good as some of these guys in the big dough. And maybe you really are, the breaks being what they are. Then you write a song, and you're sure it's pretty good. But the song publishers don't think so. They never heard of you, anyhow, and what jobs have you had and with what orchestra? But you have faith in this song—it's called 'The Cat's Meow'—and you know how Ludden Dombey is the king of swins. And this is a swing song. 'It's ready. It's a thing from the bowels of Africa. It's Beethoven and Irving and something from the drums of the jungle. You know it is, because you know music and you've got the feel. But you're stuck—because, somehow, some way, you didn't get the breaks. You begin to realize that the authors of the nice guys all right, but they weren't quite right when they said that all men were created free and equal. You begin to tumble to the fact that something can happen between the time you were created free and equal and the time when you start to earn the daily bread. But that's all right, you're a good sport. You see that a guy named Ludden Dombey has got some breaks along with his hard work. So you take your song to him, and you ask him to put it over for you."

"I'm following you," said Dannie Feeley. "And I'll buy another beer."

Tait nodded. "Okay. . . . Well—you've taken your song to Ludden Dombey and he sees something in it. It's decided that a guy ought to let him plug it under his own name. Maybe he decides that, or maybe you do. Anyhow, that's the way it's done. And the agreement he makes is all right with you. Then, under Ludden Dombey's guidance, the song becomes one of the greatest contemporary hit smashes. And then . . . Tait paused a moment. "Then Dombey doesn't pay."

"I'd be sore," said Feeley. "Naturally."

"Not only that, Dannie. The song would come to be the one thing in your life. You'd think of nothing else. You'd see Dombey rising on that song. You'd hear it a dozen times a day. You'd want to scream out, 'I wrote that! I wrote that!' But you don't. Because you've an agreement with Dombey, and you think probably he'll pay out in the end and maybe he's getting more out of the song than you would with your name of—well, George K. Weeks."

TAIT stopped long enough to let the waiter set down two fresh steins on the table. "Little by little, you get a little screwy of the subject of that song. Maybe you get a little hungry, too, and a little tired of spending your nights in 20-cent flop joints. So you up and shoot Ludden Dombey dead after you've raised the price of a ticket to the Golden Bowl of the Pacific-Plaza."

Feeley nodded. "I get it. That sets me off. I hear that a guy named Robert Tait has been selected manager of Dombey's band. And I still haven't got my money—and by this time I'd like a little recognition, too. So I inveigle you down to the Millbay district and make some passes at you with a knife. And while I'm doing it I make a noise like a cat's meow—because that's the name of the song I got on my addled brain."

"That's it! That's what I mean."

Feeley grunted. "It sounds like something Leonard Macy would figure out with the help of that alienist, Doctor Darryl Mattise."

"Just the same it's a theory."

"Sure. And here's another one. Harris Rogers wanted to get even with you for doing him out of a soft job—with plenty of side money—and he figures to throw you off by making a noise like a cat. And the reason he does it is just because he thinks you'll cook up a fancy idea like the one you've been retailing to me."

"I agree with you, Dannie. That's another possibility, and probably it's a better one than mine. But what about that perfume?"

Feeley sighed. "You would bring that up. Are you sure you smell that stuff outside the Claremont Apartments where Anne Lester and Myrna Dombey roomed together?"

"If you'd seen the blond, Dannie, you'd remember it perfectly. It was in the entrance of the Claremont and it came from the blond. It isn't the kind of perfume that Myrna would choose."

Feeley regarded the younger man oddly. "I see. Then we've got to consider the possibility that the person who wanted to bleed you to death was the blond."

"We have."

"And that she also was the girl who knocked Dombey off?"

"Yes."

Feeley shook his head. "I've had like Dunphy making the rounds of the names we got from Dombey's papers. But there was nothing doing. At least half of them are blonds, too."

Tait glanced toward the window. The first streaks of dawn were breaking into the all-night eer town. "What do you say we go back down to the Millbay district and have a look at that factory building now?"

"There're two things I'd rather do," said Feeley. "One is sleep, and the other is drink a third glass of beer. But when I see my duty . . ."

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

By Bill Mayes

The Bulldogs have certainly showed a lot of improvement this year over the teams of 1935, 1936, and 1937, and they are not out of the running by any means, as they still have a chance of finishing either in second or third place in the eastern sector of the Oil Belt, which is quite a showing after finishing three years in the cellar, very deep in the cellar.

Out of three games played the Bulldogs have won one, tied one and lost one, for a percentage of .500. If they keep up their fight and win over Stephenville the Cisco game on Nov. 11 will be the same which will determine whether they finish second or third. Cisco which is undefeated, and will go into the Armistice game with that distinction, will have to play Breckenridge the following week, and a win by the Bulldogs will mean Cisco also will lose to Breckenridge and drop into third place, provided the Bulldogs win from Stephenville and Mineral Wells.

Just to show how much they have improved we have looked up the figures, which are very interesting, in each case is the Ranger score in games listed for the past few years, as follows:

- 1935
- 7—Eastland 13.
- 0—Brownwood 29.
- 0—Breckenridge 20.
- 7—Totals 72.
- 1936
- 6—astland 45.
- 0—Brownwood 50.
- 0—Breckenridge 90.
- 6—Totals 185.
- 1937
- 13—Eastland 47.
- 0—Brownwood 46.
- 0—Breckenridge 67.
- 13—Totals 160.
- 1938
- 40—Eastland 8.
- 0—Brownwood 6.
- 0—Breckenridge 32.
- 40—Totals 46.

So you can see that the season is already a successful one, as it shows a decided comeback, and if they keep on playing as hard a brand of football as they have this year the record should be even more impressive by the time the season is over.

May Robson is on the spot to act as chaperone. Playing at the Arcadia Theatre, today is the last day.

Amarillo Hopes For Big Fish Hatchery

AMARILLO, Texas—Plans for a fish hatchery to serve five states will be explained by Carl Hinton, manager of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, when the Panhandle Water Conservation Association meets here Oct. 29.

Hinton, executive secretary of the association, said he would explain the proposal for a fish hatchery and report on the progress made in building dams, lakes and other water conservation projects in this one-time "dust bowl" area.

John McCarthy of Amarillo, president of the association, urged especially that county commissioners attend the meeting.
