Jury Finds Woman Guilty In Murder Case

REPLY FROM LABOR FELT OVER FRANCE

PARIS, Dec. 2.—Labor replied to severe government punitive measures today with sporadic strikes.

Three hundred discharged workers tried to storm a factory in one portion of the country. They stoned guards and six trains, no railroad workers, and 18 mobile guards were hurt before riots were driven off.

At Lille, strikers demolished two street cars and stoned mobile guards. Then they were arrested. Other arrests were reported throughout the country.

Workers were locked out in many factories. The new disorders resulted from the labor consideration decision to urge workers to resist the government determination to break labor contracts.

Some 700,000 workers were absent for awhile during the crisis.

Two Advertisers Convinced Ads In Times Really Pay

Two Ranger Times advertisers were thoroughly convinced today that Times advertising really pays, and that people read the advertisements in large numbers.

Last week Henry Hinnold placed a small want ad in the Times, advertising two small houses he had for sale. The ad was run three times at a cost of 41 cents. Before noon the day following the first appearance of the ad he had 11 prospective buyers.

"I sold one of the houses," Hinnold stated today, "but when I found there was such a demand for them I decided I had better keep the other, so I didn't sell it, though I could have done so."

Anderson-Pruet, Inc., local Chevrolet dealer, advertised that the car in which Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker were killed would be displayed at their showrooms Thursday, Dec. 2.

"We thought that possibly two or three hundred people might come in to see the car," Pruet stated Thursday night. "But we didn't anticipate any crowds as we got. We have accurate check, but I believe fully 2,000 to 3,000 people have seen the car. There has not been a time throughout the day that the showrooms were not almost filled with people. I don't know how everyone heard about it."

"Well, you advertised in the Times, didn't you?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied. "But it was just a small ad. I didn't have any idea so many people would read it, or that such crowds would swarm in to see the car after just one small ad was run."

Moral—If you want through the columns of the Times watch for the crowds.

All Employees of Interstate Working For German Relief

Every employee of the Interstate theatres here and in every corner of Texas is working feverishly preparing for the benefit day set aside by Interstate theatres—137 of them—for the relief of refugees from Austria and Germany.

Karl Hohltzelle and R. J. O'Donnell, president and vice president respectively, of Interstate have set December 7 as the day on which every cent taken in at their theatres throughout the state will be given to the Joint Distribution Committee, composed of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Committee for Catholic Refugees from Germany, the International Relief Association for victims of Nazism, the United Palestine Appeal and the American Committee for Christian German Refugees.

This committee was organized after the world war and has been functioning as a relief organization throughout the world ever since. The duties of the committee are to give aid to the most needy cause and international relief experts are agreed there is no greater need at this time than that of refugees from Hitler.

Receipts of the theatres, without a single deduction, will go to allay suffering among the refugees. Catholic, Protestant and Jewish refugees alike will share in this relief.

Motion picture producers and distributors have agreed with Mr. Hohltzelle that there will be no charge whatever for the films shown in the 137 theatres on December 7.

Civic and religious organizations have expressed a willingness to assist in the drive to raise funds. There will be many men speakers in the various theatres throughout the day explaining the need of refugees.

The Interstate offices in Dallas and at many of the theatres throughout the state, patrons have asked if they might contribute to the fund. It was these requests that prompts the Interstate organization to take up free will offerings at all theatres during the day of the benefit film shows.

No Throat Ills For A Sword Swallower

HOXIE, Kas.—John G. (Lucky) Ball, who turned from lion taming to sword swallowing for a "soft" job, believes there's no better way of avoiding throat ailments than "to gargle a sword now and then."

To prove his assertion, Ball cites the fact that not once since he started swallowing swords five years ago has he been bothered with a sore throat. His wife, one of the few women sword swallowers in the country, likewise has not suffered from throat trouble although she has unusually large tonsils.

Ball quit taming lions and started swallowing swords after a lion severely injured him. There is no danger of being injured by swallowing a sword, Ball said, unless there are jagged edges on the weapon. For a chaser, Ball eats fire.

Ball has appeared in several motion pictures and now is under contract. He came to Sheridan county, Kas., years ago to put on his lion taming act, married a local girl and since then has claimed this as his home county.

Caution the First Requisite in Dealing With Germany

It probably would be just as well for the American government to be extremely cautious about this much-talked-of plan for Anglo-American cooperation to help settle the Jewish problem in Germany.

With the avowed aims of this scheme—to find some means of getting the Jews out of Germany and settling them in a place where they can try to put their shattered lives together—every American will have the greatest sympathy. Certainly something needs to be done, and if the American government can help things along it ought to do so.

But we need to know precisely what is contemplated by all parties to such an agreement before we commit ourselves.

First of all, it is pretty evident that the Hitler government would like to use its persecution of the Jews as a club to force concessions from other nations. Says the newspaper Das Schwarze Korps, official organ of the crack S. S. guard.

"We shall use Jewish hostages systematically, no matter how shocking some people may find it."

That is a fairly plain warning, not unlike the message which a successful kidnaper might send to the victim's relatives. Germany wants a number of things from the outside world—trade agreements, colonies, stifling of criticism, and so on—and it is quite in the cards for the government as Berlin to refuse to take part in any program for the relief of Germany's Jews unless some of these things are granted.

And while it is important that the luckless victims of Hitler's savagery be extracted from their predicament as quickly as possible, it would be bad indeed if Hitler should discover that he could get concessions from the outer world simply by tightening the thumb screws on the Jews. Once that precedent was set there would be no end to persecutions. The civilized nations would simply be submitting to blackmail, and the lot of such Jews as could not immediately be brought out of Germany would become worse than ever.

In the second place, it might be remembered that the record of the Chamberlain government in dealing with Hitler is hardly such as to inspire confidence.

The Chamberlain government intervened in the Ethiopian tangle—and Mussolini got exactly what he originally demanded. It intervened in Spain—and the Rome-Berlin axis ran the smoother. It intervened in the Czech crisis—and Hitler got everything he had asked for.

If the American government is to act jointly with this Chamberlain government in seeking relief for the Jews, it ought to let London know that it is interested solely in helping the victims of a towering injustice and not in placating a dictator. And thereafter it ought to keep its eyes wide open.

Something has to be done to help the people against whom this blow from the dark ages has been launched, and if America can help in the doing of it America undoubtedly will want to do so. But before any program is drawn up a great deal of caution needs to be used.

What the country is waiting for now is to find that the recent warlike broadcasts from Europe were simply old works of a British novelist.

That stimulated news broadcast proved stimulating as well.

Police Baffled by Pure Gold Brick

FLORENCE, Italy.—An ingot of pure gold has baffled Italian police and hampered the liquidation of two cases of robbery perpetrated here last summer.

Several months ago a band of thieves broken into Villa Marmagliano, mansion of Mrs. Beulah Branch, widow of a Chicago banker, for many years a resident of Florence. They carried off money, silverware and jewels for a total value of more than $100,000.

A short time later another theft, the traces of which had strange resemblance to the one at Villa Marmagliano, occurred in the palace of Goffredo Visconti, an eccentric 90-year-old multi-millionaire of Florence.

Police put their ablest detectives on the case and after four months arrested a prominent jeweler of Florence, Sestilio Giannini, on charges of receiving stolen goods.

Following Giannini's confession police captured Otello Balsani, leader of a band of half a dozen thieves including his 25-year-old mistress, Valeria Uccifili. Police have rounded up the entire band which now is awaiting trial in the Murate jail of Florence.

In the home of a member of the band, Angiolo Cini, police found an ingot of pure gold weighing about 350 grams.

Cini confessed that part of the gold bracelets and ear-rings stolen from Villa Marmagliano had been melted together with rings and

Mrs. Branch's jewels were recovered in part in Giannini's shop but a diamond ring worth $10,000 and a pearl necklace of greater value had not been found.

Police have not reached any decision regarding the gold ingot which perhaps will be equally divided between the American widow and the aged Visconti.

Canada Spends $3 Per Capita on Arms

MONTREAL.—Great Britain is spending more than twice as much per head of population on armaments as the United States and eight times as much as Canada. Brigadier R. O. Alexander, D. S. O., commanding officer of the Montreal military district, told the Canadian Society of Cost Accountants and Industrial Engineers at a meeting here.

Describing organization of Canada's militia, air force and navy, Alexander said the Canadian government was spending $3 per capita of population on these services, compared with $12 per capita in the United States and $25 in Great Britain.

Alexander described the armaments expenditures as "a form of national insurance" and denied there was any attempt by military forces of Canada to glorify war or militarism.

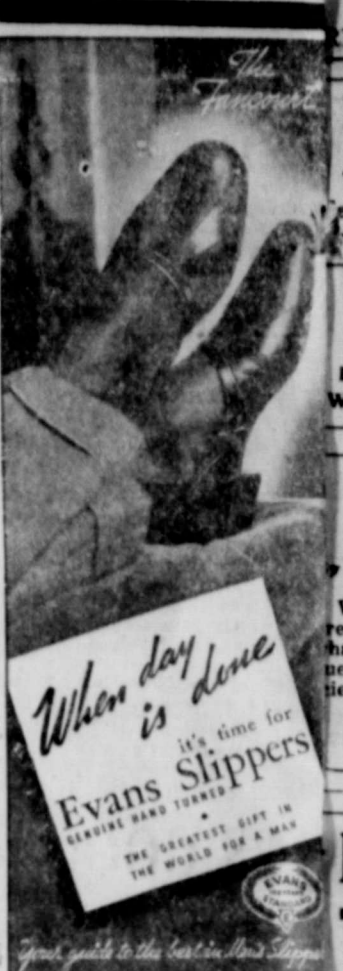

"We are, I suppose, the most unilitary people in the world," he said. "Yet that does not mean that we cannot be good fighters. Still you hear in schools and in some sections of the press that we are trying to militarize Canadians."

"Of course, this is absurd. We regard ourselves as a form of national insurance—just as the fire brigade is a form of insurance for any city."

Scottish Rite Hospital Develops Minds As Well As Curing Bodies

Occupational therapy is one of the most important features of the Texas Scottish Rite Hospital regime for treating crippled children. Youngsters who have started life handicapped by some deformity, after their ailments have been corrected, are usually found to have a tremendous inferiority complex. The occupational therapy classes teach them basket weaving, leather work, sewing, doll making, painting and many other occupations to make their hands nimble and show them that they can "do things." Here's a little Mexican boy at one of the looms in the occupational therapy department. He still wears braces but is acquiring self-confidence.

ANNUAL MAIL EARLY PLEA IS SOUNDED

"Mail early" is perhaps the most time-worn adage in postal phraseology but annually it is the most earnest entreaty issued by the postmasters the nation over. It is even more so this year—at least with the local postmaster.

Already, even before December's arrival, he has begun educating the public toward this objective.

"It will greatly help us at the postoffice for patrons to mail early," it was said. "It will facilitate handling of the Christmas mail and lighten the load during the last few days. Moreover, don't forget that Christmas comes on Sunday this year and that no parcel deliveries can be made then, except special deliveries."

He reminds that early packages may be marked "Do Not Open Until Christmas."

One practice the Postmaster advocates in connection with Christmas mailing is that holiday greetings be sent first-class.

"Large numbers of Christmas greetings, mailed in unsealed envelopes at the third-class rate of postage, are disposed of as waste each year because they are undeliverable as addressed, due to removal of the addressee or other cause," he pointed out.

"Such greetings are not entitled to the free forwarding privileges accorded these mailed in sealed envelopes at the first-class rate, and consequently, the senders in many cases never know that the greetings were not received by the addressees. This would never be if the greetings were mailed sealed at the first class rate."

Commuting Teachers Visit Three Schools

By United Press

CLEVELAND, O.—The school of social sciences in Western Reserve University, although 20 years old, uses few textbooks and three members of its staff also teach at the University of Pittsburgh or the University of Pennsylvania.

Because the field is so new and changing, few textbooks have been written, according to Dr. James E. Cutler, dean of the school. Consequently, the students pursue their researches by visiting hospitals, consulting the files of the Community Fund and generally use all of Cleveland as a laboratory, under supervision of instructors.

The three "circuit riding" teachers are Dorothy Kahn, who teaches at Pennsylvania on Saturdays; Ruth Gartland, teaching in Pittsburgh on Saturday, and Gertrude Wilson, an assistant dean at the University of Pittsburgh, who teaches here Tuesdays and Mondays.

Those Mexican travel posters advertising the place as a sportsman's paradise seem a little superfluous. Everybody knows by now about the wonderful golf of Mexico.

SERIAL STORY LOVERS AWEIGH

BY BETTY WALLACE
COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JUDY ALCOTT—admiral's daughter. She faced a choice between two navy suitors.
DWIGHT CAMPBELL—ambitious lieutenant. He faced a choice between his wife and duty.
JACK HANLEY—lying sailor. He faced a test of a patient love.
MARVEL HASTEN—navy wife. She faced the test of being a good sailor.

CHAPTER XXIII

JACK HANLEY had been in Sick Officers' Quarters a month now. His arm had knit beautifully, his ribs were almost well. He could sit up in bed, but he hadn't been in a wheelchair yet. Commander Sloane believed in doing things slowly. He had said, "You want to try again, don't you? Take it easy."

Judy, who spent much of each day there in the white room, was happier than she had ever been before. They talked of their marriage. "A week after you get out, I'll be over that is!" She wouldn't have a big wedding, like Marvel's. But she'd have all that mattered. Her father, giving her away. Her mother. Her friends she had grown up with, on stations all over the world. For their honeymoon, there would be a motor trip, and a visit in Virginia with Diane. The memory of Bill Bell still lived with Jack. Bitterly, sometimes. "He had a child. Maybe it would have been better if I—"

"No!" Judy said. "No, no, no! You mustn't talk that way. There must have been some reason—something we can't see. You'll do wonderful things for the service."

One afternoon when she was getting ready to drive to the hospital, Magda Hamilton came in. "Just got back from Bremerton yesterday. The Texarkana and the destroyers and everybody will be in tomorrow."

She sat on the sofa. "We—we were shocked when the news came about Bill Bell. That's the breaks, I guess."

Then she said, "Have you heard what happened up there?"

Judy said, "No, I haven't. What?"

"Your friend, Mrs. Campbell, said Magda. "She didn't come at first. Tommy said Dwight was almost out of his mind. Kept writing."

her. Then she showed up, a week ago."
 "Judy was impatient. Her interest in Dwight Campbell and Marvel was dead, she told herself. They had their lives to live, she had hers. She looked at her wrist-watch. "I don't want to be late. Jack waits for me. You know how dull S.O.Q. is."

Magda said, "She came in a yacht, with a party of friends. That man we met at her house, warning—Cary Tennant. It was his yacht!" She shot Judy a speculative glance. "To make a long story short, she and Dwight had an awful row. In public. On the Texie, to be exact. She said she was going back on the yacht, the way I heard the story, and we're in that modern mansion of hers, or stick aboard ship."

Judy found no words. She and Magda went out together. But as Magda got into her own car, she was smiling a little. As if she knew what havoc her news had wrought in Judy's breast.

Judy turned the key in the ignition, slipped on the starter furiously. What difference did it make if Dwight and Marvel had quarreled? She had forgotten Dwight Campbell was on earth. But had she, asked a small voice inside her. Had she really forgotten? Or had she only been too glad to sink her torment into the ready balm of Jack Hanley's love? He needed her. He'd been hurt. She had worried about him, been grateful he had come through alive. It was natural that her pity for him should whisper to her wayward heart, trap her into believing it was love.

But it was love. It was peaceful, and sweet, and real. She would marry him and have a good life. She didn't care what Marvel and Dwight did! They meant nothing to her!

But the image she had tried hard to banish forever rose again. Just the sound of his name could bring it back. His eyes, the way his hair grew. His splendid height. The touch of his fingers, burning on her arm.

"No!" she said out loud. And then she found that she was driving past the white house where he had lived with Marvel. It was not on the way to the hospital. How had she gotten here?

Furiously, she turned the car, almost careening over a curbstone.

She drove swiftly to the hospital. Her cheeks were bright with color. She marched into the bare hall, she entered the elevator. She must calm herself. Jack would be sure to see that she was upset. . . . He had been reading a book she had brought him. He laid it aside. "You're late!"

"You weren't reading! You were just looking!"

"I can't help it," he said. "I count the minutes. The clock seems to stand still. You try lying in bed, with nobody but a dumb nurse—"

"She's a pretty nurse."
 "She hurts when she starts after those bandages." Then he asked, "What kept you?"

"Magda Hamilton, back from Bremerton."
 "Oh."
 "Gossip, that's all." She would not tell him about Dwight and Marvel. She would not. And yet, somehow, the words were saying themselves. "Marvel Campbell arrived in a yacht. Cary Tennant's yacht."

"The slick, dark-haired chap?"
 "Yes. And Marvel and Dwight had an argument. Right on the ship, the way Magda told it. Tom probably told her. The fools!"

JACK leaned back among the pillows. "Those two were due for stormy weather. It won't help his personal reputation file any to have stuff like that in it." Then he said, "So that's why you're—"

"I'm what?" she asked quickly, challenge in the way she said it. "I was just repeating meaningless gossip."

He didn't answer.
 She dropped her eyes. "Do you think it isn't meaningless to me? Do you think I care?"

"Judy," he said slowly, "I know you've never really gotten over him. Love's a funny thing. I know how he hurt you, and I know what a cruel, arrogant creature she is. But just the same, you never were able to ignore them. You never wholly forgot him. I'd be blind, not to know. Sometimes, when you sat here, planning the future with me, I thought maybe I was wrong. Maybe you did love me. But don't you see, while Dwight and I are in the same navy, my path and his—your path and his—are bound to cross. I'm not prying, I don't want anything but your happiness. Judy, look at me. Tell me the truth!"

Judy raised her eyes. Her lips quivered, but she said steadily, "Dwight Campbell means nothing to me." And even as she said it, she knew she was lying.

Automobiles May Be Given Danger Stamp at Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—A plan whereby reckless motorists may be further humiliated in an effort to make city streets safer is being studied by Chief Davis, commissioner of public safety.

To supplement jail sentences, fines and tongue lashings by City Judge W. C. Bateman and newspaper stories condemning them, traffic law violators soon may be forced to exchange their regular license plates for those which read "law violator" and carry a large white skull on one side and a black number on the other. Under the skull is the word "careless." The letters and numbers are large and white and the background is black.

The plan to add to the offender's embarrassment was originated by J. F. Dougherty, of Beverly Hills, Cal., who said he decided to introduce it in Memphis because "I thought it best to start in the nation's safest city instead of the largest."

His plan is to deprive a careless driver of a regular license in favor of the plates identifying him as a menace to the public and at the same time warning other motorists and pedestrians. The offender would be compelled to pay the cost of manufacture of the license.

Dougherty asked Davis to "think how carefully society safeguards the public from dangerous germs, how it quarantines and placards dwelling houses to warn others of a contagious disease."

Then he asked the commissioner to consider society's carelessness. "If we but eat and drink and sleep, and let everything go on around us as it pleases, we might as well not have lived at all."

"To defend weakness against strength, the oppressed against the great, the oppressed against the oppressor."

He sent with his letter a gift in return, a serving tray made in his cell.

Ambassadorial Grins

William Phillips, American ambassador to Italy, right, and Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson, recently recalled from Germany, appeared in jovial mood as they arrived at Warm Springs, Ga. They told the President of Nazi and Fascist treatment of minorities.

ness in regard to the "traffic germ."

"Daily," he said, "thousands of dangerous traffic germs are disseminated from courts with a verbal warning and a fine. They are turned loose and they scatter upon our streets and highways."

"Why," he demanded, "do we not brand these with licenses and the prudent driver and the careful pedestrian? This will give them a chance to recognize the presence of danger."

Dougherty argued that dangerous drivers are the same as victims of scarlet fever in that they don't want their affliction publicized.

"The scarlet fever patient," he said, "hates the red sign on his door worse than he does the disease. So would a car owner rather pay a heavy fine than carry around a license which will humiliate him wherever he goes."

While the nation has had a decrease in traffic deaths, Memphis already has had more traffic accidents this year than during the entire 12 months of 1937. Thus Memphis stands little chance of repeating in 1938 the record of the nation's safest city, the title awarded last year.

For that reason, Dougherty's plan is receiving serious consideration.

Life Term Offers Thanks For Kindness In Lengthy Letter

FLORENCE, Ariz.—William Faltin, who has been in the Arizona state prison longer than any other man, and who may be there for the rest of his life, has written a 6,000-word letter thanking an Arizona woman for a $1 bill, a poppy, and some verses of Scripture.

He did not know her name and probably never will, for the unidentified woman sent her gifts through the governor's office, "for the convicts longest confined in the state prison at Florence."

Faltin, who has been there 26 years serving a life sentence for murder, philosophically wrote: "Life's length is not measured by the hours and days, but by that which we have done therein for our country and kind. A useless life is short, if it last a century, but that of Alexander was long as the life of the oak, though he died at 35."

OKLAHOMA CITY—Nebraska has had powerful teams in the past, but none of them dominated the Big Six and Missouri Valley football spotlight to any greater extent than the current undefeated Oklahoma Sooners.

Yet a consensus of coaches, writers, and other schooled observers give Tom Stidham's squad no more than three places on the 1939 All-Big Six and Missouri Valley team. Iowa State and Kansas State place two men each, with the other positions divided between Tulsa, Nebraska, Kansas, and Missouri.

The "All" backs of this section are Everett Kischer of Iowa State, Hugh McCullough of Oklahoma, Paul Christian of Missouri, and Elmer Hackney of Kansas State.

Kischer, a 155-pound triple threat, is the finest quarterback available.

McCullough stands six feet and weighs 180 pounds. This Oklahoma City lad calls plays from the fullback position, so his triple-threatening may be utilized under the Stidham system. He is the hardest hitter of a hard-hitting team. He does all the kicking.

CHRISTMAN, a 202-pound sophomore, passed, plunged, punted, and piloted Missouri back to gridiron glory. He is described as "One-Man Gang" best describes Hackney.

The ends are Waddy Young and John Shirk of Oklahoma.

Young, a 203-pound senior standing six feet two, is a strong candidate for All-America.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By MRS. GAYNOK MADDOX
 NEA Service Staff Writer

EVEN a one-dish meal has a pattern.

First, a protein-rich food, such as meat or cheese, or fish or eggs. Then a starchy food such as potatoes, corn, rice, macaroni, noodles or bread, and finally one or more vegetables. With this balanced "service saving" hearty dish there should be a salad, dessert and beverage. Then all will be happy and all well fed.

A popular American version of the Italian polenta makes an ideal "family far" main dish. Prepare by frying slices of chilled corn meal mush and serve with a tomato sauce to which a small quantity of browned-hamburger steak, or left-over cooked meat has been added. Or use a plain tomato sauce and serve the polenta with a dish of grated cheese to be sprinkled on as taste dictates. Or the dish may be baked using the corn meal mush cubes for the top and bottom layers, and filling the center with the meat sauce.

To make lumpless mush, mix the meal with a little cold water first, then stir in boiling water. Use no more than 3 cups of water and about 1 to 1 1/2 teaspoons of salt for each cup of corn meal.

Codfish With Spaghetti (4 to 6 servings)

One-half pound salt codfish, 2 cups uncooked spaghetti broken into short lengths, 1 quart canned tomatoes, 1 bay leaf, 1 small onion chopped, 1 sprig parsley chopped, 1 tablespoon olive oil.

Freshen codfish in cold water, but not long enough to take out all of the salt. Simmer codfish and tomatoes with the bay leaf. Fry onion and parsley in olive oil and add. A quarter cup chopped olives added at the last moment is a welcome touch. Cook spaghetti in rapidly boiling salted water, drain and add to sauce.

Zucchini, summer squash and round flat white squash belong in

Tomorrow's Menu
 BREAKFAST: stewed pears, dry cereal, poached eggs on whole wheat toast, buttered toast, jelly, coffee, milk.
 LUNCHEON: Codfish with spaghetti and tomatoes, sliced bananas, cookies, tea, milk.
 DINNER: Pineapple juice, baked stuffed summer squash, stuffed onions, chocolate bread pudding, coffee, milk.

One summer squash (about 3-4 pounds), or equal amount large zucchini squashes, 1 small onion, 1 tablespoon celery, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-2 cup bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup ground, 1 cup cooked carrots or 1 cup sliced radishes, 1 egg slightly beaten.

Wash squash, cut off ends and scoop out seeds with a spoon. Save the ends. Sprinkle inside of squash with 1 teaspoon of salt. Brown the chopped onion and celery in melted butter; combine with the remaining ingredients. Fill squash with the meat mixture. Fasten the ends on with wooden picks.

Brush outside of the squash with cooking oil and place in shallow heat resistant dish. Arrange stuffed onions around the squash and bake in a moderate hot oven (375 deg. F.) until the squash is tender. Cut the squash crosswise in serving slices and garnish with strips red pepper and parsley. Serve from the baking dish.

New Fencing Ideas Used In West Texas

By United Press
SIERRA BLANCA, Texas—Modern wrinkles in fencing range lands are being utilized in Hudspeth and Culberson counties now that the cattlemen's antipathy to sheep is dying out.

Mesh-wire fences and wind-charged electric fencing to protect stock from predatory coyotes and wolves are going up on ranches as cattlemen add sheep and goats to their holdings.

Stockmen say sheep and cattle will graze on the same range and that sheep make themselves doubly profitable by producing lambs and wool, while range cows produce only calves.

New to Hudspeth county are the electrically-charged fences designed to put to rout any predatory animal coming in contact with the wire. Windmills generate the electricity for storage in batteries used to charge the fences.

Municipal Power Towns Advised to Use Advertising

AUSTIN—Central Texas towns buying power from the Lower Colorado River authority will be urged to advertise extensively to increase the use of power.

This policy was announced by Max Starcke, in charge of power sales for the authority. Starcke pointed out that it was to the advantage of the authority to get the maximum use of its power and he believes the best medium to educate consumers in its uses is through the local newspapers in the municipal power towns.

By some this policy was interpreted as a bid for goodwill from the newspapers in the affected territory which may be opposed to the theory of municipal ownership.
