WHOLE NATION IS IN GRIP OF COLD WEATHER

A cold wave swept down from Canada today, bringing sub-zero temperatures to the United States and sending thermometers to their lowest points of the winter.

Canada and the north central states felt the brunt today, but forecasters said the cold would reach the Gulf of Mexico tonight. Gales roared across the Great Lakes. Airlines reported many planes were grounded last night, but today service was being resumed.

Coldest temperatures were recorded at Devil's Lake, N. D., where the thermometer reached 22 below zero. The minimum reported in Canada was 58 below at Mayo, Yukon Territory.

High winds accompanied the cold in the Midwest. Dust storms were kicked up in Oklahoma and Kansas.

The northern half of Texas was gripped by a hard freeze that moved south and was expected to freeze as far as the Gulf Coast Tuesday night.

Temperatures will start to rise again Wednesday, forecasters said. At Lubbock the thermometer dropped last night to 8 degrees. Other temperatures included Amarillo 14, Abilene 20, Dallas 23.

Deportation of 500 Mexican Families to Start In Next Month

EL PASO, Tex.—Deportation of more than 500 Mexican aliens who entered the United States illegally will be undertaken within the next 30 days, it was announced here by Grover C. Wilmoth, district director of immigration.

Notice to leave the United States within 60 days has been given the aliens. They constitute a group which has been at large in the United States pending legislative action in congress concerning their status, Wilmoth said.

Most of the aliens live in Texas and New Mexico. They are expected to apply for permission to enter the United States at the American consulate in Juarez, Mexico. Meritorious applicants will be given special consideration, Wilmoth said.

Until now, they have been allowed in the United States for humanitarian reasons, many of them having married American citizens and having children born in this country.

Big Grain Firm Is Charged With Violation of Act

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today charged Cargill, Inc., a large Minneapolis grain firm, the Cargill Grain Co., of Illinois, and four officers of the corporations with violation of the commodity exchange act.

If found guilty of the charges the corporations and the individuals could be denied trading privileges on commodity contract markets.

The defendants were charged with manipulating the price of 1937 September and December Chicago corn futures and having engaged in fictitious sales of corn futures during the latter part of March, 1938.

The complaint said these fictitious sales encouraged participation in the market.

Roberson challenged Texas sheriffs to match his square dancing capers when he submitted his entry for the El Paso National Square Dancing Contest to be held Dec. 31 as an event of the Southwestern Sun Carnival at El Paso.

"A sheriff is just a city dude unless he can square dance," Roberson declared.

Recent Survey of Crippled Work Tells Activities In Past 5 Years

Following is an article prepared by B. E. McGlavery, supervisor in this area for the crippled children's work of the State Department of Education:

A recent survey of the work of the crippled children's division in the State Department of Education over the five-year period ending Aug. 31, 1938, reveals many interesting facts concerning the activities of the division. While the survey covers the five-year period, most of the work of the division has been done in the past three years since the enlarged federal program and state appropriations have been available through the Social Security of the Federal Government and the state funds which have matched the federal appropriations. The children's bureau in Washington and the State Department of Education have made the fund available to our crippled children's division and the work in Texas as in some other states is sponsored by the Department of Education, with Hon. L. A. Woods as state superintendent and Mr. J. J. Brown of Austin as the director of the crippled children's division.

Treatment is provided for children of normal mentality who are under 21 years of age and whose parents are unable to provide the care that is needed for crippled children whose condition can be improved by surgery, hospitalization or artificial appliances. Hospitals and surgeons are chosen by the State Board of Health for the use of the crippled children's division, and are so located as to make their services available to children in all sections of the state. During the five-year period ending on Aug. 31, 1938, the crippled children's division has hospitalized 4,011 children. There is scarcely a county in all the state that has not had at least one child cared for. In spite of the large number who have been hospitalized there are now on the waiting list, Dec. 20, 1938, more than 800 children who are asking for treatment, with little chance that many of them can be cared for in five to six months. One of the things responsible for this condition is the fact that very rarely do we find a child who can be properly cared for by a single trip to the hospital or the surgeon's office. Instead the survey reveals that often many trips are needed, stretching over periods of two, three or even four and five years. In fact, if 1,000 new cases are cared for during the year 1938, 600 of these cases will be returned for hospitalization during 1939; 300 of the same cases will be hospitalized in 1940 and 100 of them will require care in 1941. To give you a single instance we have a child in one county that has received treatment over a three-year period that to date has cost the division $719.85, and the treatment must continue for some time to come. If the question is raised as to the value of such treatment let me say that this child, to begin with, was a helpless case following infantile paralysis and that today she is walking with the aid of braces and crutches and there is every reason to believe that she will be able to go to school and ultimately be able to live a fairly normal life in the local community.

A brief study of the types of diseases and other causes of the crippling will be of interest. Of the 4,011 children cared for during the five-year period there were 959 cases of infantile paralysis, 459 cases of osteomyelitis, 192 cases of tuberculosis of the bone, 120 cases of spinal curvature, 62 cases of rickets, 46 cases of bone tumor, 299 cases of club foot, 289 cases of hare lip and cleft palate, 259 cases of old fractures which needed reconstruction under the direction of an orthopedic surgeon, 25 cases of wry neck, 15 cases of bow legs, 55 dislocations, 33 cases of extreme flat feet, 60 amputations and many others in different classifications.

As supervisor in North Central Texas with an office in Eastland, B. E. McGlavery has charge of the work in 44 counties. In these counties there are more than 700 children who have been hospitalized during the five-year period. Of these 700 children, 359 were crippled from disease, 227 were born crippled and the other 114 were crippled because of accidents. In quite a number of the accident cases amputations were necessary. Most of these cases have been hospitalized at the hospitals in Fort Worth, Dallas, Waco or Marlin, but a few have gone

WHEELER TALKS PLANS TO AID RAIL SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Chairman Wheeler, Mont., of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, said after a conference with the president today he would be glad to cooperate in a program for railroad rehabilitation.

Wheeler discussed with the president the plan for improving rail conditions, submitted by the special railroad advisory committee, which reported to the white house last week.

Wheeler said he discussed, generally, rail conditions with Mr. Roosevelt. He said he did not agree with all findings of the committee, but the report could be used as a basis for legislation in the new congress.

Wheeler said he planned to confer with Chairman Lee, dem., Calif., of the House Interstate Commerce committee on the situation and expressed belief that "some" railroad legislation would be enacted.

Death Takes Big Toll Over Nation

Violent deaths from the nation's three-day Christmas holiday passed the 500 mark today, more than twice as many as were reported a year ago for a two-day holiday.

At mid-day the total reached 508, with traffic accidents blamed for 350. At least 158 others died in hunting accidents, fires, drownings, murders and suicides. Last year approximately 250 violent deaths were reported during the Christmas holidays.

California reported 45 deaths, Texas 49, and Pennsylvania 40. Snow, sleet and rain contributed to many traffic accidents.

Parker County Is Enriched Christmas By Turkey Sales

WEATHERFORD, Tex.—Parker County turkey growers received an extra $100,000 to spend as a result of a successful holiday season that saw more than 50,000 dressed birds shipped away to grace festive tables.

The income was the largest received from turkeys in this county for more than 10 years, and the numbers were greater than for several years. The better birds, growers said, went out before Thanksgiving; but the quality generally was good despite a detrimental, dry fall season.

Twenty-one carloads of dress turkeys were sent out from Weatherford by railroad, and their total weight was almost 50 per cent greater than the shipments last year. The value of the dress turkeys was about $90,000, and an additional $10,000 worth were sold alive.

Inauguration May Be In Steer Stadium

AUSTIN, Dec. 27.—Governor-Elect W. Lee O'Daniel's wish to be inaugurated at the University of Texas stadium today was granted by house and senate members appointed to arrange for the ceremony.

The final decision, however, rests with the legislature, which meets Jan. 10. If the recommendation is followed it will be the first time a governor has been inaugurated away from the state capitol.

Threatening to blow up a Chicago bank with two vials she said contained nitroglycerin, Mrs. Mary Schuch, 36, obtained a $5000 check, and then was arrested. The "nitro" was water.

Non-Lawyer Due To Be Speaker of House This Session

Rep. Emmet Morse of Houston, who is unopposed for speaker of the 46th Legislature, will be one of the few non-lawyers to hold the position.

Charles Thomas of Denton and Lee Satterwhite of Panhandle were other speakers who were not lawyers.

Retiring Speaker Robert Calvert of Hillsboro said that he thought as a rule an attorney would be better qualified for the speakership. He hastened to explain that he did not think Morse would be handicapped.

"Emmet has been in the house so many sessions and is so familiar with the rules (he headed the rules committee) that he will not miss legal training," Calvert predicted.

Incidentally, Calvert said the members will get an entirely fair deal from Morse.

"I differed with many of the things he was for," Calvert said. "When he had the votes he wouldn't spare you, but he never did anything tricky to take advantage of you."

Morse had been an advocate of liquor by the drink and a return of racing. Some felt his selection as speaker meant an advantage for those measures.

"It will not have a bit of effect on Emmet's rulings in the chair," said Calvert. "He will call them as he sees them."

Calvert expects Morse to be a great success as speaker. He thinks Morse has two qualities that will help immensely. One is an even temper. The other patience. "I lack both and I know how he will need them. I had to guard myself against my temper and impatience," said the retiring speaker.

FRANCE MIGHT ALLOW USE OF DJIBOUTI PORT

ROME, Dec. 27.—France may be disposed to make certain non-territorial concessions to Italy concerning Djibouti, observers believed today.

French sources said the French note, delivered yesterday, contained no specific statement about Djibouti.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—The governor general of French Somaliland has urgently asked Paris for army and navy reinforcements. It was reported today, and the requested aid was sent.

One Paris newspaper reported general action that the governor general acted because of an Italian concentration of troops on the frontier and attempts by Italians to demonstrate. Two other Paris papers also reported heavy Italian troop movements in East Africa.

Cattle Shipments From Mexico Are Halted at Border

EL PASO, Dec. 27.—American owners of cattle in Mexico sought permission today to export several thousand head of cattle that were "in delivery" when the Mexican government placed an embargo on cattle shipments to the United States.

The flow of cattle across the border was halted abruptly yesterday when customs officials received notice of the embargo, effective as of Dec. 22.

A trainload of 800 cattle was tied up in Juarez. Other cattle owners had completed transactions for shipments. There was no danger, however, of cattle flooding the Juarez stockyards as railroads have refused to load cattle for several days.

Mexican stockmen learned that the department of economy, fearing a meat shortage, had issued the embargo. Under the embargo cattlemen must obtain a permit before shipping livestock.

Aid of Rangers Not Needed to Protect Galveston Suspects

GALVESTON, Dec. 27.—Sheriff Frank Biagne rejected the assistance of Texas Rangers today in protecting two men charged with the slaying of Harry Thomas Phillips, 24, on Christmas Day.

"Because of public feeling, the sheriff said, he had obtained a continuance of hearing for Leo Lera and Mike Calandra, the accused men, until Thursday.

"Rangers E. M. Davenport and M. W. Williamson came here from Houston and said they would like to take the prisoners to Houston for safe keeping, the sheriff said. "I told them it would be a relief on me, the officers of Galveston county and the good people of the city if I allowed them to take the men to Houston."

WEST TEXAS—Fair, not quite so cold north portion, severe freeze north and central portion and near freezing Rio Grande Valley. Severe frost.

Go Easy on Indicting Nations as a Whole

Edmund Burke remarked a long time ago that you can't indict a whole nation. His remark is worth keeping in mind today, when the temptation to do exactly that is sometimes almost irresistible.

It is hard enough to sum up the character of one man, if for no other reason than that most of us are a mixture of two or three or more distinct personalities. At times we are swell folks, and at times we are pretty akin to the people whom society has to put behind bars. And if individuals can present contradictory traits, how much more is that true of whole nations?

Science Service points out that if large numbers of refugee Jews from Germany are to be settled in Tanganyika Territory—where plenty of fertile land is available—the menace of the tsetse fly, carrier of sleeping sickness, will have to be met.

It can be met in various ways. Proper clearing of the land will help to keep the insects under control. Care in choosing homesites will also be a help. Most important of all, is the fact that a specific drug for the cure of African sleeping sickness exists.

And here is the interesting part. This drug is a pre-war German invention. Known as Bayer 05, it was developed by German chemists on the basis of researches made by Germany's famous medical scientist, Dr. Paul Ehrlich—a Jew.

It would be highly ironic, of course, if Jews driven from Germany were to be settled in a former German colony and protected against disease by a German drug which owes its existence to the genius of a German Jew. But that isn't the point just now. The point is that if you try to define the "real" Germany, you have to take every step of that complicated equation into account.

Biographers have spent a good deal of time trying to get at the real essence of great men—trying, for instance, to define the "real Lincoln." And they always wind up by finding a mixture. The "real Lincoln," for example, was both the Lincoln who wrote the Gettysburg Address and the small-town lawyer who liked to tell some-what off-color stories, the crafty prairie politician and the statesman of the second inaugural. Good and bad, shoddy and sterling, were inextricably mixed in him as in all other men.

And the same is true of nations. The "real Germany" is the Germany that prosecutes Jews—and the Germany that provided the world with a great weapon against death. It is Ehrlich as well as Hitler, the victims as well as the oppressors, the givers of gifts to mankind as well as the tyrants.

Which is something very much worth remembering in these trying days. We must hate wrong—but not the nations from which wrong comes, for much good also comes from them.

Livestock Moved Through El Paso In 1938 Is Heavy

EL PASO, Tex.—A good livestock year has caused very heavy movements of cattle through El Paso all during 1938. Good rains in Montana, Wyoming and Nebraska resulted in bumper feed crops in those states, creating a ready market for cattle, West Texas stockmen pointed out. More than 70,000 head of cattle have passed from Mexico through this city since last Jan. 1. Other herds from West Texas ranches have been shipped through here. Sales were good because of brisk markets and high prices. The Palomares Land and Cattle Company has shipped 3,000 head to Denver from its Sierra Blanca, Texas, ranch; 1,300 to eastern markets from Three Rivers, N. M., and 2,600 from Mexico during the past month, El Paso stockyards officials said. The Babcoera Development Company, Hearst-owned firm controlling vast ranges in Chihuahua, Mexico, will ship 10,000 calves and cows through El Paso this year, it was announced. Other shippers included the Oro Grande, N. M., ranch of J. D. McGregor, which sold 1,400 calves;

Alcohol Test Shows Plus, But He's Sober

TORONTO.—Walter E. Lunn's ability to absorb alcohol amazed medical authorities here. During an inquest into a fatal accident, Dr. W. L. Robinson, Toronto University pathology professor, told a coroner's jury, that, according to a new blood test, the alcoholic content of Lunn's blood after the accident was 3.8 to 1,000 parts of blood—enough, according to accepted standards, to make anyone completely drunk. Coroner W. H. Avery, who conducted the inquest, however, told the jury that Lunn was quite normal after the accident except for a slight odor of alcohol on his breath. "According to the test," the coroner said, "Lunn should have been absolutely drunk and unable to walk straight and answer questions. Yet when I saw him he did not appear to be drunk and he was very co-operative concerning the blood test."

a pebble now and then into the brook. He might have been thinking out loud. "I see I was wrong about a lot of things, too. For instance, after I had the accident I thought it was no use going on. I didn't want to go on, to be honest. I had had my life all planned out. What I wanted to do."

CHAPTER XIV

ALLY and Dan were indeed friends now. Dan came out to house often, sometimes for a spin to spend an evening. Occasionally Sally met him the city for a luncheon date every Sunday they spent the day together. They went long hikes, Dan swinging his stick, Sally determined to keep step with him. They had a row of it; they played golf, they went horseback riding, Sally went on Lucky Star, Dan on her father's stables...

"YOU didn't answer my question," Sally said. She, too, picked up a pebble, tossed it into the brook. The little circle it made widened, and then disappeared. There is only one person I shall ever become engaged to, Sally thought. And she had said she would wait—forever if need be—until that person had licked the things he felt had got the better of him.

No need to tell Sally what that had been, this boy who had been a king on his skis, who had been a very part of the mountains in which he had been born and raised. "I thought—this was while I was laid up—it would be better if I didn't get well. I hoped I wouldn't, when I found out I might never walk, when I knew I could never ski again. But I see now I was a coward to think that."

"Do I act like an engaged person?" Sally smiled at him. "You act just as you should," Dan said gravely. "You are a swell person, Sally Blair."

"I just wondered," Dan returned. She had asked what had made him think she was engaged. But Corey had asked him not to say that he had told Dan.

"No, no!" Sally broke in softly. She knew the extent of this boy's courage. "Yes I was," Dan's mouth was grim. "You were right, again, Sally, when you told me I was afraid of the world at the foot of the mountain. You see I knew nothing about it. Then I learned that someone—from that other world—wanted to help me, someone who sent for the best surgeon available to fix my leg, who paid all the expenses, who said he would stand by and see me through."

"I DIDN'T suppose there was anyone like that in any world," Dan said. His eyes were shining now. "A man so fine, so understanding, so good. This same man, Sally, sent for me to come to Boston, offered me the position I have now. This same man—and I don't even know his name, as his lawyer says he prefers it that I'll come through in me—that'll be in the Olympics. Where I'll be in the first place. Some day I'll pay back everything this man has done for me. You'll see, Sally. Nothing in this world—or any other—is going to stop me!"

"Terrible enough to scare me to death!" His expression was so serious that Sally laughed. "You were right, when you called me a coward," Dan said, after another moment. "I was—still am, I guess—when it comes to a girl like that. But I don't believe you are that kind of girl, Sally. Except maybe on the outside, I think, deep down inside, that you're as sweet and simple and natural as those spring beauties growing under these trees."

"Thank you, kind sir," Sally replied demurely. But her heart swelled with a fierce, warm joy. Dan did believe in her. He no longer could deny that. Oh, she must be exceedingly careful not to break that belief again. She must be the sort of girl he thought her, live up in every way to that.

Porter, whose father was a rich man, who felt, if he wanted any thing badly enough, he surely would get it eventually.

that limp he had!" Corey added, not without a shade of grudging admiration, from himself, that was genuine. Why! Reynolds walked as good as anyone. It was only when he was tired that he betrayed even a suggestion of a limp.

CHAPTER XV
NG afterward Sally was to remember that lovely day by brook and the things they had said about how happy they had been.

Corey still treated Sally with that attitude. He told her, as he had before, that he expected to marry her "one of these days."

"Yes, he has," Sally said, watching Dan pull himself out of the pool, climb agilely back onto the slippery ledge, walk with firm, sure stride back toward them. Sally had known that Dan had made wonderful progress this summer. But not until Corey called her attention to it had she realized that his long battle was almost won.

Many, many times she was to wonder why she had not asked her when Dan had told her that he owed him. If only she had how much heartache might have been spared.

It was not just that he had made good at Devon and Devons. And now that Corey was an up-and-coming young stockbroker himself, thanks to his Dad's influence, he knew the Dan's had made good all right, but it went even deeper than that. Dan was now a rival whom any man might well have to outsmart.

SHE said, "Dan can get the better of anything. Without help from anyone, either, except himself. That's the remarkable part."

WELL, if necessary, Corey told himself, he would outsmart him in whatever way came to hand. Even if it was a bit underhanded. For if Corey's principles were not as high as they might have been, as Sally's father had marked, it was not altogether fair to win, since he always had, he prided himself on being a good sport, but he was a poor loser.

It was most unfortunate that Corey happened to know that Sally's father was the chief stockholder of the firm that had employed Dan. Reynolds! Corey had wondered, casually at first, if there was anything more to that than met the eye. He resolved to keep his own eyes open, just in case there might be.

"I see," Corey said. He thought he saw plenty. He thought he saw a way to bring things to a showdown, to outsmart Dan. "You won't tell him, will you?" Sally said again, half under her breath, frequenting the club which they had gathered at the fashionable club swimming pool which they had had just executed a perfect backflip from the highest springboard. Sally had exclaimed, "Wasn't that a honey!" and her dark eyes had become bright with admiration.

It was Corey, surprisingly, who pointed out just how much Dan had changed to Sally one day. Corey, home now, was working in his father's office—or at least putting up a good bluff at working.

There had been so much more than admiration revealed, not only in her eyes, but in her tone, that Corey had decided it was about time there was a "showdown." Which was why he had remarked that Dan had made a remarkable comeback.

"He's certainly got the best of me," Corey said. "I've been meaning to tell him; some day I shall." She had been meaning to tell Dan too long, she realized now. Somehow something always had kept her from it.

Sally had gone up to Dartmouth the graduation exercises as she had promised she would. It had been an impressive sight, so many fine young men, in cap and gown, stepping from the threshold of one life into a new one. A new life that would be made easy for Corey.

"He's certainly got the best of me," Corey said. "I've been meaning to tell him; some day I shall." She had been meaning to tell Dan too long, she realized now. Somehow something always had kept her from it.

Indians Demanding A Paleface Purge

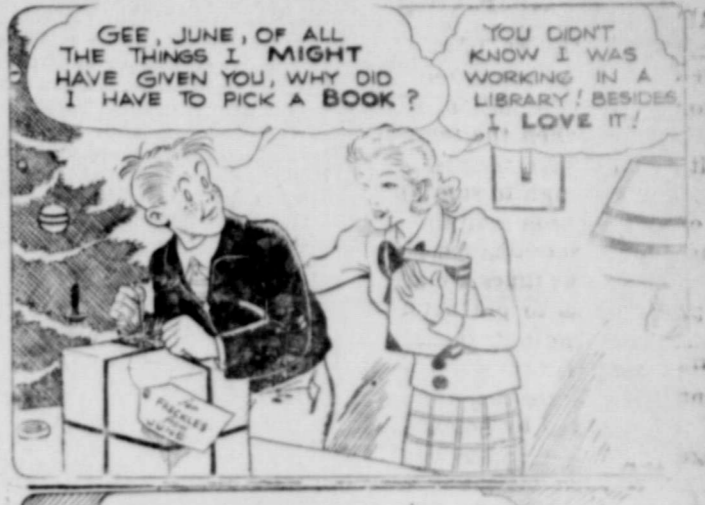

CAUGHANAWAGA, Que.—The Indians on the reservation here are on the "warpath" against palefaces. The tribal chiefs are demanding that the Canadian government "purge" the reservation of all palefaces and their adherents...

Chief Delisle contended that the Indians had a right to eject any trespassers on the reserve under the Indian Act and treaties dating back to the time Canada was ruled by France. The chief had a long list of grievances before Judge Thibault, newspaper from the department of Indian Affairs who attended the tribal council meeting and inspected conditions on the reserve.

reservation by the Quebec liquor commission and that the river water they were forced to drink was polluted. "I can prove that there are lots of people here starving," he said. LIFE SAVED BY GARTER. NEWCASTLE, Australia. A woman patient who wandered away from a local hospital and was lost for 12 days still had sufficient strength when a stray dog came her way to fasten her garter around the dog's neck. The dog returned to its owner, and the next day succeeded in leading a searching party to her whereabouts.

Announcement of Wedding Is Made
 Announcement was made this week-end of the marriage of Mrs. Hattie King of Eastland to Mr. W. L. Baker of Big Spring, Dec. 19, 1938, at Las Cruces, New Mexico. This came as quite a surprise to their host of friends in Big Spring, where Mr. Baker is employed by the Texas & Pacific Railway Co.

The wedding was a very quiet affair, attended only by Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Fabens of El Paso. The bride was attired in a suit of teal blue with wine colored accessories and wore a corsage of tallinn roses. The couple took a short wedding trip to points of interest in Old Mexico. They are at home at 310 Austin Street.

Ghost Stories In Village Lead Mayor To Form a Hunt

By United Press
POMEROY, O.—A female ghost who for months has excited and alarmed citizens of the little village of Hartford, W. Va., across the Ohio river from here remains at large even though a posse was organized to apprehend her. Many of the town's 433 residents said they had seen the ghost and others were awakened at night by the clatter of her footsteps on the hard surfaced road between Sliding Bill creek and the village school, distance of half a mile.

The spook usually appears, it is said, between 1 and 3 A. M., and walks along the road, always disappearing in the vicinity of the school. One prominent Hartford resident, Hugo Jubling, declared he had seen her pass his residence every night for a year. He said he has seen her clearly beneath a street light near his home and that on several occasions he called his wife's attention when the apparition appeared.

Some villagers said the ghost has no arms; others declared she had two heads. Mayor Charles Smith, responding to the many reports of the ghost, formed a posse, headed by himself, Marshal Robert Emberton and Constable Wayne Phillips. Members were placed at advantageous points and instructed to "corner" the ghost and try to learn her identity and business. The sound of footsteps was heard at 1:30 A. M., but when the posse closed in a man and his wife, out on a spook-hunting expedition of their own, were apprehended. Late travelers passing through Hartford can see little groups of men with flashlights, dogs and guns determined to solve the mystery. More timid citizens stay inside after dark, draw down the windows and double-lock the doors.

 to other hospitals, even to the State Hospital for Crippled Children at Galveston. The actual securing of hospitalization for crippled children is but a small part of the work of the supervisors and other field workers. Most of their time is spent on the after-care program of the children, who having been hospitalized for such time as absolutely necessary, must be sent home to convalesce. The supervisors are constantly making visits to the homes to see that the children are receiving the best possible home care in order that the benefits of hospitalization may not be lost. Where homes are not able to provide the proper care the supervisors get in touch with the various local welfare agencies and solicit their assistance in the care of the children. It is occasionally necessary to find a foster home for a child who cannot have the proper care in its own home. In some states convalescent homes are maintained for such care of children. Our funds will not as yet allow us to provide the actual hospital and surgical needs and at the same time maintain this much needed after-care program.

A breakdown of the crippled children's dollar as spent by the five-year period shows the expenditures to be as follows: 2.1 cents for occupational therapy, 3.5 cents for x-rays, 8.2 cents for artificial appliances, 10 cents for case supervision, 46.2 cents for hospital costs, 1.1 cents for laboratory fees, 13.9 cents for surgeon's fees, 1.20 cent for transportation, 2 cents for plaster casts and medication, 2.4 cents for operating rooms and 5.8 cents for administration.

Work done in Eastland county over the five-year period includes treatment of 38 children for whom $4,922.80 has been spent as follows: For hospital costs, $3,176.80; for artificial appliances, $531.60; for surgeon's fees, $1,120.00; for physio-therapy, $94.00, and for occupational therapy, $55.00. The largest amount spent on any one child was $719.85, while the smallest amount spent was $5.00 for an examination in which no hospitalization was recommended.
