The Lima Conferences Re-echoes From Europe

European reactions to the Eighth Pan-American Conference at Lima are coming in now, and they re-enforce the feeling of American reporters that much was really accomplished.

The Manchester Guardian of England says: "The results are a little less than most experienced observers expected, but not much."

And it is odd to find even the Berliner Tageblatt admitting that "It would be wrong to say that the Declaration of Lima contains nothing, for it actually says something fundamental and decisive about the political attitude of the 'double-American' continent."

For the German newspapers made every effort to belittle the Lima conference, and most of them still represent it as a complete failure and disappointment to the United States.

Recognition by prominent papers in both Britain and Germany that Lima was important, it is a good sign that its lesson was not lost on the world. It backs up those American correspondents who have written that much was accomplished. The only disappointed ones were those who expected too much.

Pan-Americanism has moved slowly for 50 years. That it continues to move forward is the best augury—it is the direction that is important, not the rate of speed.

Some of the European comment, unversed in the Pan-American way of doing things, has adversely noted that no treaties were signed, and none remain to be ratified by the countries taking part. That is a strange criticism from a continent where treaties have become nothing but pipe-spills, and the most solemn signed agreements only the scraps of paper so disdainfully referred to by Bethmann-Hollweg. Declarations have served the Americas quite well enough, as Secretary Hull reminded the delegates at Lima, and each of them remembered that their very freedom rests on "mere declarations" of independence.

Hitler's reference to trade relations with South America in the Jan. 30 speech bears directly on the Lima decisions. "The German people must live—that means export—or die," said Hitler.

The Lima decisions do not tend to bar Germany from any rightful and proper share in South American trade. That nature and her own and South America's needs destine her for such a share, Secretary Hull is well aware.

What Lima does strike at is the German custom of exporting a pound of political propaganda and intrigue with every ounce of goods. It is this, and her own trade methods which tend to exclude others from fair competition, which hurt German trade and help produce the situation which Hitler himself admitted is getting desperate.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—After six years of strenuous and expensive effort, the New Deal program to help the farmer is back within shouting distance of its starting point.

The farm belt is sore again, and its soreness is reflected in Congress. It is quite possible that this Congress will go ahead and write a brand-new type of farm bill, tossing production control out of the window, having the government underwrite the farmer's cost of production, providing for the dumping of export surpluses and greatly broadening the field in which the present agricultural act operates.

An influential bloc of farm belt senators and representatives has lined up behind such a bill. A similar bill failed to pass the Senate last year by just six votes; this year, the bill's backers may find those six votes and more. A good man to discuss the whole situation with is Senator Arthur Capper. Senator Capper, a Kansas Republican, admits freely that President Roosevelt and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace are perfectly sincere in their desire to help the farmer. He says this administration is more friendly to the farmer than any in many years. But he also feels that the New Deal farm program has failed and that it is time to find a better one.

Just before he came to Washington this winter, Senator Capper held a conference in Topeka with 900 Kansas farmers. He also had letters from 1000 more. He believes he has a pretty fair idea of what the farmer needs.

First, he feels that regimentation and restriction of production must stop. If there is to be any control, he says, let farmers impose it on themselves rather than submit to something devised at Washington.

Next, he believes the farmer must be assured of the cost of production of his crop, plus a fair profit, as far as crops grown for domestic consumption are concerned. Surpluses, he feels, should be exported for whatever they will bring, either with or without government aid. He would shape tariff and foreign trade policies to preserve the American market in toto for the American farmer.

He would keep the present soil conservation program, and would continue to finance agriculture through the Farm Credit Administration—but he thinks 3 per cent interest is plenty for farm loans.

All of which comes reasonably close to expressing the provisions of the Frazier-Lemke bill introduced recently by the newly-formed farm bloc.

Senator Capper admits with a wry smile that farmers themselves are far from united in their views. "Those farmers I talked with at Topeka certainly weren't in agreement. Most of them, I think, do not favor the AAA act of 1938 repealed. But one group—a small but noisy one—wants the government to step trying to do anything at all for the farmer. A larger group wants some control of surpluses to keep prices from going down too far. Still others bitterly oppose production and marketing control, but do approve of the soil conservation program."

Sport Glances. . . . . By Grayson

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

DETROIT—Detroit's golden era of baseball . . . all sport, for that matter . . . comes to an end with a Tiger play for pay rule. When Mickey Cochrane sky-rocketed a set of Tigers known for their defeatist complex to a pennant in 1934, he also boosted salaries all the way along the line. The Detroit club hit its peak in a spending way when Cochrane paid the White Sox $75,000 for a leading Al Simmons after the Bengals had repeated in 1935 and went on to the world championship.

Detroit managed to run second in 1936 and '37, but dropped to fourth position last season, making it plain that a rebuilding program was necessary.

With this rebuilding program comes a general reduction in salaries. All but two or three athletes are affected. One exception, of course, is Lenzy Greenberg, the current home run king.

Next to the Yankees and Cubs, Detroit paid the highest salaries in baseball in 1938 and the team played its worst ball in five campaigns.

SEVERAL veterans, including Tommy Bridges and Billy Roell, have already been informed that their pay for 1939 will be considerably less than what they received in 1938. While there can be no holdouts in January, or even in February, more than one Tiger has remarked that he would not play or the salary offered. Bridges is first to make his objections public. The little right-hander returned his contract unsigned from Nashville. Detroit will present an entirely new left side in the infield. Del Baker is banking on Frank Croucher at shortstop, which relegates Rogell to the utility role.

Croucher is the Houston lad who broke his leg in training last spring, but recovered in time to finish well with Beaumont. Pinky Higgins, obtained from the Red Sox, lends stability at third base.

Naturally, Greenberg and the dependable Cwarley Gehringer are fixtures.

PITCHING will be built around Schoolboy Rowe, if he does a comeback. Bridges, Freddie Hutchinson, Roxy Lawson, and Vernon Kennedy, Baker has great faith in Schoolboy Hutchinson, for whom the Tigers rewarded Seattle so handsomely.

Catching remains a problem, with Birdie Tebbetts having the inside track. Rudy York is practicing chasing flies and making long throws at his Georgia home. A third catcher is Edward (Dixie) Parsons, who is being brought up from Beaumont. He resembles Bill Dickey of the Yankees and will do if he is half as good.

Detroit will string along with Chet Laabs for a while longer. In the outfield it also has Dixie Walker, Pete Fox, Roy Cullenbine, Frank Secory, and Lesh Fleming, the latter two being imported from the Beaumont farm. Fleming is a first baseman who is to be converted.

But outside of Greenberg and Gehringer, only one thing is certain. That is, that the noble athletes will have to earn their pay

Green Sand Found In Texas Softens City Water Supply

By United Press

FORT WORTH—The establishment of a new Texas industry, the mining of green sand high in zeolite content, as a result of Public Works Administration waterworks construction in the state was described this week by Uel Stephens, Associate PWA Regional Engineer at the annual waterworks and sewerage short school at Texas A. and M. College.

The green sand, found in limited quantities near San Antonio, is used in a bare exchange water softening process. The chief source of the zeolite, which the green sand contains, previously had been New Jersey.

The zeolite-bearing sand was first used in a water softening process developed for the Stamford, Texas, waterworks. It has been successfully used at this plant for three years.

The Stamford system uses water from the Brazos river. The hardness of the water from this river ranges from 30 grains per gallon during flood periods to as high as 85 grains during the drier seasons of the year.

Previous to the Stamford installation New Jersey zeolite cost $75 a ton delivered in Texas, a price which made its use prohibitive in most installations. In 1930 samples of the Texas green sand were tested by Dr. E. P. Schook, director of the Bureau of Industrial Chemistry at the University of Texas, who developed a process for its use. The cost of the Texas green sand is approximately $15 a ton.

Another feature of the Stamford plant, the PWA engineer said, is the regeneration of the green sand, after its use in the softening process, by treatment with brine which makes it release the chemicals it has taken from the water. Brine for this process is obtained from an abandoned well, which was drilled in exploring for oil. A sufficient amount of salt for this purpose from ordinary commerca sources would have cost an estimated $30,000 a year, it was explained. The total cost of this portion of the process was only $10,000.

The Stamford plant was built to produce 1,000,000 gallons of treated water per 24 hours, twice the present consumption of the community. The average cost of producing water of zero hardness at the plant, together with necessary filtration and purification is 3 1/2 cents per 100,000, which is one half cent less than the cost of similar treatment at Washington, D. C., New York City, Boston, or Richmond, all of which have piles of water at 60 per cent or higher to treat than Stamford's. Since the installation of a new system at Stamford, the other Texas communities have built similar plants.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just stays in the bowels. Gas builds up, your stomach, big and congested. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

A new liver movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel up and up. Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Birthday Spent In Hospital Will Be Happy One for Girl

By United Press
 BORGER, Tex.—Janet Overly will spend her fourth birthday on Feb. 25 in the Pantex Hospital.

But it will be a happy occasion for Janet and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dee Overly, because Janet will walk again. The parents once believed that their only child would never live to celebrate her next birthday.

Janet was burned severely about the lower part of her body two days after Christmas. It was cold that day and Mr. and Mrs. Overly, who had gone to the grocery store, thought it best to leave Janet with her 13-year-old cousin.

The children dressed up in paper hats and dresses to play "fairies." They lighted candles to perfect a fairylike setting. Somehow Janet stooped too near a candle and caught her clothing on fire.

Doctors are planning to graft skin from Janet's upper body to her legs. She lies now with the burned half of her body in an improvised tent, which is kept at 100 degrees temperature.

Ruffles Check In

Style-conscious winter vacationers saw something new in beach garb when Mrs. T. Jefferson Kelley of New York appeared at Palm Beach in this three-piece bathing suit of checked gingham trimmed with white pique ruffles.

Weed Killers Prove Boon for Ranches

By United Press
 FORT DAVIS, Texas—Sheep, first used by Davis Mountain ranchers for the sole purpose of killing obnoxious weeds, have proved of economic value to many farmers.

The sheep were introduced on one ranch four years ago to kill off a weed that had taken several sections of grass land. But now the ranchers are using them to balance against the market fluctuations that are the worry of cattlemen.

Sheep have a spring-time cash wool crop which farmers accustomed to income mainly in the fall and winter have found welcome. In addition, sheep graze rocky hill sides and summits where cattle cannot or will not go.

By stocking both sheep and cattle, ranchers who formerly looked with disgust on the woolly animals have found they frequently can sell their flocks for good prices when cattle will bring in little money.

16000 Youths Get NYA Student Aid

AUSTIN, Texas—Texas NYA officials have announced that more than 16,000 youths received assistance through the NYA Student Aid Program during the month of January.

More than 10,000 high school students earned an average of $4.42 for part-time work performed during the month, while the average for approximately 6,000 college students amounted to $12.72.

This total will be carried through February, and peak employment will be reached in March and April, J. C. Kellam, State Youth Director, estimated. Peak loads are usually reached in the Spring, Mr. Kellam added, inasmuch as family incomes are reduced due to the slack in seasonal employment, normally available during the fall and winter months.

Negro Problem In Schools Up Again

FRANKFORT, Ky.—There is a possibility the University of Kentucky here may be obliged to admit Negro students for the first time in its history as a result of a recent United States Supreme Court decision.

The high tribunal ruled, in the Missouri case, that Negroes could demand admission to public schools in states where no separate institution are maintained for them. A part of the ruling was that they could not be compelled to leave the state to obtain courses of studies offered to whites at home.

In Kentucky there are several Negro schools but none offers courses in law, medicine, engineering and other studies available to white students. However, the state does offer to pay tuition of Negroes in schools outside the state in certain of these courses. Missouri does likewise.

HEALTH IN DEFENSE PLAN

CANBERRA, Australia.—As part of Australia's National Defense Plan, the minister of national health has decided to launch a health program. "The millions we are now spending on national defense," he declared, "will be largely wasted unless we connect the link between health and national security."

Sewage Gas Keeps Flowers In Bloom For El Paso Park

By United Press
 EL PASO, Tex.—Forty thousand flower plants, kept warm this winter by gas from the city sewage disposal plant, will blossom in public parks in El Paso this spring.

A glass greenhouse 130 feet long and 30 feet wide houses the plants. The structure was built by National Youth Administration labor at a cost of $2,800.

Heat for the greenhouse comes from waste gas at the city sewage disposal plant. Ordinarily the gas would be burned to destroy its offensive odor.

Formerly plants were set out in city parks in the late summer and were exposed to the cold of winter weather. City Park Commissioner Hugo Meyer estimated that $500 was spent yearly to replace the plants lost.

Construction of the greenhouse will eliminate that loss, he said.

Old Doughboy with the dim of the last fracas still in his ears wants to know if we are paying rent on our first line of defense which it is reported President Roosevelt has said is in France.

What was good enough for Father is good enough for me, is exemplified again as the New Hampshire legislature votes not to replace the gallows with an electric chair.

Rector Takes Law In Hands After A Hit-and-Run Crash

By United Press
 FORT WORTH, Texas—The Rev. Louis F. Martin, Episcopal rector, is a strong supporter of law enforcement.

The pastor was en route to visit a sick member of his congregation when another automobile crashed into his car. Martin's car was damaged to the extent of about $100, but the other driver did not stop.

Without waiting to hunt up a policeman, Martin jumped on the running board of another car, and asked the woman driving it to chase the hit-and-run driver. With the dignified pastor clinging to the side of her machine, the woman ached through heavy traffic until she caught the fleeing car, the driver of which lost control of his automobile.

"He stalled his motor," Martin explained to officers who finally arrived to take charge of his prisoner. "By the time we were abreast of him, he had it started again. I leaped to the street, pulled his car door open and yanked off the ignition switch. The poor fellow was so confused that he couldn't talk coherently. All I could get out of him was a denial that he had been drinking."

The woman who aided the pastor calmly drove away as soon as

Remembers the Funeral of Lincoln

FORT WORTH, Texas—The sight of Abraham Lincoln lying in his casket made a lasting impression on a 10-year-old girl and today Mrs. J. A. Beagle, now 84, remembers vividly the funeral of the Civil War president.

Mrs. Beagle, daughter of a staunch Missouri supporter of the Confederacy, was visiting in New York with her parents at the time that Lincoln was assassinated.

"I can remember every part of it," Mrs. Beagle said. "My horse was drawn by four horses draped in black netting. A Negro in a top hat and mourning crepe on one arm was a long and solemn procession."

The excitement was over, and police could not find her to express their thanks.

Her family had fled from the States, her father having marked for death in Missouri, because he had refused to take the oath of allegiance to the Union.

The father was shocked by Lincoln's death, however, that his assassination was a tragedy for the South. He fled to the South. He fled to the late president, and fled to where Lincoln's body state. Next morning they were the funeral procession.

"I can remember every part of it," Mrs. Beagle said. "My horse was drawn by four horses draped in black netting. A Negro in a top hat and mourning crepe on one arm was a long and solemn procession."

SERIAL STORY

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES

CHAPTER X

Jeff lived in a walk-up flat just far enough off Sheridan to be out of the high rent district. As he looked forward to the third floor, he was struck by the beauty of the flat. His mother was a great girl, it had been her idea to bring Susie for dinner. And hadn't been idle curiosity, for Edna had a notion that she would need a friend. Edna was like that. Accustomed to the life of luxury, she accepted comparative poverty with a whimper. Edna was called a real beauty.

Jeff, a sort of wistful desperation. That's a lot to start with. Edna kept no maid. Ten years ago, when the depression struck, Jeff's father had been washed overboard. Two years later, exhausted and discouraged, he hadn't tried very hard to recover from pneumonia. He was only a drag on Edna and the boy, or so he thought. He'd managed to hang onto a little insurance, enough for Jeff's education and a few thousand for Edna. Wearily he had closed his eyes never to open them again.

of Sheridan Road, they are called. Don't ever let me hear of you stepping into a man's car." It was flattering, Susie flushed with pleasure, forgetting that no wolf, no matter how tame, had ever accosted her and very likely never would. "Oh, I'd know how to handle them," she said with pensive airiness. "You would—how?" Jeff asked, interested. "That was when Susie launched her story. She'd overheard it in the Waffle Shoppe.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX NEA Service Staff Writer THERE will be two great fairs and new ways of cooking "hot dogs" this year. Frankfurter Quails Split frankfurters lengthwise. Fill with one-fourth inch stick of sharp cheese (Savory dressing, pineapple or pickle may be used for variety). Wrap each frankfurter, spiral fashion, with a whole slice of bacon, fastening each end with a toothpick.

Place in a baking dish or on a broiling rack, split side up. Bake or broil in a hot oven (425 deg. F.). Turn if necessary to cook the bacon thoroughly. Bacon Hamburger Wrap 2-inch wide patties of hamburger with a slice of bacon. Broil. Top with slice of broiled mild white onion. For buffet parties, serve with crisp hamburger buns. A high grade "hot dog" dipped first in a barbecue sauce and then broiled or baked in a moderate oven is another 1939 specialty. Barbecue Sauce for Frankfurters One-half pound...

Those attending will have the privilege of seeing the student body at work. Also the annual meeting of the college Mothers and Dad Club will be held during the week, and this usually draws many of the student's parents to Abilene. Last year there were between five and six hundred out of Abilene visitors registered.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF HER?

Edna turned several pieces of skin before she spoke. At last she said, "I can tell you better after dinner. At first I was actually struck dumb. I thought, oh now I'm not so sure. Here's a sweetness about her."

"Why not, Jeff?" Edna asked. "Seems to me it would be only courteous."

"You don't know life, Edna, my gal. I'd rather pick up a highwayman with his gun sticking out of his pocket than one of those curbstone racketeers."

GOVERNORS DO NOT USUALLY SECURE MAJOR OBJECTIVES

By United Press AUSTIN, Tex.—If Gov. W. Lee Daniel fails to get a transaction (many now believe he will be satisfied with a retail sales tax) he will only be having the experience that other recent governors had. Former Gov. James E. Ferguson was elected governor on a platform demanding a farm ten-law. It was passed, but was invalidated by the State Supreme Court. Gov. W. P. Hobby's administration established woman suffrage in Texas. After Hobby, governors generally were unable to "put over" major projects. Gov. Pat Neff wanted a new constitution for Texas that would fit the state afresh from "hat boots." The old constitution, though considerably amended, is still in force. Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson passed an amnesty act to restore the powers taken from her husband by the Senate's impeachment verdict. A special Supreme Court held it invalid. Gov. Dan Moody proposed to build a state industrial prison near Austin. The bill did not pass. Gov. Ross Sterling advocated a $200,000,000 road bond issue. The necessary constitutional amendment never was submitted to the people for a vote. Mrs. Ferguson in her second term proposed the sales tax to settle the state's financial troubles. Her husband appeared before committees to urge it, but the tax was not levied. Gov. James V. Allred started his administration with a plan to build natural gas pipe lines from Texas to the industrial cities of the north and east. The plan failed. The record doesn't mean that governors have failed generally in important projects. It reveals merely that their chief proposals rarely have met legislative and court approval. "Farmer Jim" Ferguson is generally credited with starting the movement effectively for equal races.

Veteran Has Just Begun to Fight to Secure A Reunion

By United Press FORT WORTH, Tex.—Major Gen. M. J. Bonner, 92-year-old Confederate veteran, who is carrying on a one-man campaign for a "final" Confederate reunion in Texas, has "just begun to fight."

Fast Way To Ease Misery of COLDS IS WITH GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN

Neft obtained passage of the "open port law" to keep commerce moving in spite of strikes. It was held invalid by the Supreme Court many years later. Moody accomplished other prison reforms though the new prison plan failed. Sterling's administration was marked by his practical experience as an oil producer. Allred set up a state parole system, state unemployment compensation, and, after a bitter fight, barred parimutuel horse racing.
