The San Francisco coast guard cutter Itaska was nearing the steamship West Nilus, wallowing off Lower California with her tailshaft broken.

Will Courtesy Be Met With Courtesy?

The law has been upheld which is intended to protect foreign diplomats from harassing or threatening "demonstrations" in front of embassies. By refusing to review the sentences of four men convicted under the law, the Supreme Court apparently closed any further direct appeal.

Congress passed the law at the suggestion of the State Department after street "demonstrations" before the German and Italian embassies by people opposed to the policies of those governments.

"Congress shall make no law," says the Constitution, "... abridging ... the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances." The cardinal point of the first amendment must be carefully and vigilantly guarded. It is one of the very cornerstones of liberty.

The new law skates uncomfortably close to the edge of this guarantee. But as nothing is said about assembling and petitioning other governments for the redress of somebody else's grievances, one must presume that constitutional rights have not been infringed.

The law is based on courtesy. Ever since nations began to deal with one another, an ambassador has been granted special immunities and privileges. The most savage tribes often take pains to guard and protect one who comes on a mission from another. So it has been always the custom in civilized countries to consider the actual grounds of a foreign embassy as practically territory of that nation.

In return for this sort of consideration, nations have always expected foreign ministers and ambassadors to mind their own business with equal punctiliousness. Any dabbling in the internal affairs of the country to which they are credited has always in the past been considered the worst of bad manners and a poor repayment of the courtesies extended.

In passing the law as that under discussion, the United States has put something of a strain on the rights of her own citizens in order to guarantee to foreign representatives a courtesy by no means extended to ours in all other countries.

It has every right to expect courtesy and consideration in return. If any foreign representatives do not understand such language, and use their diplomatic status and privileges to mix into American domestic affairs, thus repaying courtesy with discourtesy and abuse, then the next work should not be courteous. It should be "Out!"

Three Cleveland bandits entered a store, frightened the proprietor by blowing their noses vigorously, then walked off with $150. That's the first time we've ever heard of anything profitable from a cold.

Deer Is Sentenced To Death If He Is Not More Careful

By United Press
FORT WORTH, Tex.—Pedro, who has persisted in barbarism despite all opportunities to be civilized, has been ordered into exile. Furthermore, if Pedro doesn't mend his ways and give indications of co-operation within the ensuing three months, he must face a firing squad.

Pedro is the playboy deer whose last public antic was an escape from the Fort Worth zoo two weeks ago. He left a trail of havoc along his avenue of escape and climaxed the incident with an attack upon a 23-year-old man, John Granger, who was en route to call upon a young lady.

Granger fought back, received reinforcements, and four zoo employees arrived in time to tie Pedro and return him to his pen.

That escapade came after Pedro had been docile for several months. His last "binge" had been an escape in which he jumped a 12-foot fence and terrorized late stayers at a nearby night club. That incident, police reported, caused several local night clubbers to forswear drinking for a short period.

Pedro was born on a farm near Fort Worth owned by G. B. Henderson of Dallas. He first came into the public eye when he learned that he could leap his 12-foot fence and have lots of fun scaring engineers on the railroad line that ran adjacent to the farm.

Henderson decided Pedro needed discipline, so he turned him over to the Forest Park Zoo in Fort Worth. He was furnished with a mate and started well on the way to domesticity. Then one day he became angry at his spouse and stamped her to death. He leaped his fence and had to be recaptured.

Pedro's last escapade infuriated zoo officials. They notified Henderson. Henderson ruled that Pedro must go to the San Saba county ranch of O. B. Leonard and if he doesn't reform within three months, must be executed.

Celebrated Moyer Painting Is Found

By United Press
SENECA FALLS, N. Y.—A copy of an inconspicuous painting among various historical items on the second floor of a building, a life size oil painting "Recognition," by Constant Moyer, celebrated artist, has been found. The painting was exhibited at the Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia in 1876, where it was a prize. At that time it was valued at $8,000 and is considered worth much more than that now.

SERIAL STORY
WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday Susie's dream came true when she saw Dick Tremaine at the orchestra. As she introduced her but she declines.

CHAPTER XXI

The smooth gentleman was the master of more than ceremonies. How Susie became separated from Jeff, how she got to the platform, she could never have said. But there she was, shaking hands with the colorful orchestra leader making the best of it. She had been lionized so endlessly of late, had met with so much insincere adulation, that this latest move seemed part of the picture.

Dancers had gathered around the stage. Among them Susie saw Dick Tremaine, his eyes fixed on her. He was proud and smiling at him and he frowned. The master of ceremonies spoke into a microphone as he addressed the guests of the Pump Room.

"We have Suzanne with us tonight," he said with a what-does-it-amount-to cadence in his smooth, delighted voice. "She needs no other introduction. We know and admire her as Suzanne, the beauty who dropped from no where into here." He was proud that line and showed it. "I'm going to ask Suzanne to talk to you."

Catching her hand with a deceptively casual grip he drew her to the microphone. Instantly she was picked out by the wandering spotlight and, for a moment, panic seized her. Then she saw Dick Tremaine. He was rudely making his way through the dancers, his eyes holding her face intently.

Susie laughed softly, exultant like the thrill she felt when she was asked to talk to you. "Thank you, Mr. Master of Ceremonies," she said, head a little on one side, eyes on the microphone. "Greetings from the Pump Room to America and all the ships at sea."

The master of ceremonies liked this, he nodded encouragingly. Plainly he'd been fearful of a flop on his program. Unrehearsed amateurs always gave him the jitters. He smiled broadly. The girl was doing all right.

"This is Suzanne talking to you," Susie went on, her pretty voice natural and easy, "and I only know one thing to talk about. I'll give you three rules for beauty. Eat two pounds of candy every day, take absolutely no exercise and never, never get in bed before 4 in the morning." She laughed, a musical little giggle. "That's silly, isn't it?" she asked, contentedly. "It's the best I can do tonight. Thank you and good night."

"Susie," she turned from the microphone. Dick was standing at her feet, laughing up at her.

Jeff scowled beside him. She started for the steps.

"Wait a minute," the orchestra leader begged, pleased with the bit of entertainment which had brought forth riotous applause from the diners. "What else can you do beside giving beauty hints?"

Susie never knew why she said it. "I can sing," she told him gravely. She caught Jeff's horrified expression and wished she had been more reticent. Dick led the storm of applause. Well, she could sing. Just because Jeff had never heard her sing was no reason why she couldn't.

"Good for you," the musician clapped his hands. "What can you sing?"

"What can they play?" Susie countered with a nod toward the orchestra. She was going over big with the audience. Wanting to be amused they were taken with her naive simplicity. They might snub her tomorrow, but tonight she was their darling.

"You name it and we'll play it," the orchestra leader put in.

"All right—I'll sing 'Day After Day'."

After the first few words of Susie's song a hush fell over the room, a breathless, incredulous hush. Her voice was beautifully trained, it had strength and sweetness and an appealing, tender quality. And, undoubtedly, she had the ability to put herself over. She swayed to the music while a rich melody poured forth.

Singing she looked straight into Dick Tremaine's eyes.

Dick smiled, it was as if they were alone in the crowded room. With the end of the song Susie leaned down and Dick swung her to the floor. They stood alone in a small, hushed island while waves of applause rose and fell about them. It was over in a moment. Jeff, scowling darkly, fought his way to Susie's side and she jerked herself back to reality.

"Jeff," Dick said, "how about introducing me to Suzanne. I've had her on my 'must meet' list for a long time."

JEFF stiffly made the introduction and some two graciously stepped back to give up his place as Susie's dancing partner. Susie was in a rapturous daze. Her dream had come true. It was better than her own dream, better than any dream in the world.

And then she was dancing with Dick, not stumbling or losing his time, like a drifting sawdustflake in the circle of his arm, sure of herself, exquisitely thrilled.

Dick grinned down at her, but doing so, never in the least forgetting "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," he said.

FAVORITES AT SAN MARCOS STATE COLLEGE

Brains and personality as well as being lovely "to look at" characterize the six beauties of Southwest Texas State College, San Marcos, pictured above. Elected by the student body for presentation in the school yearbook, the Pedagog, these girls had first to qualify in good looks, scholarship, friendliness, good fellowship, and all-around character development. They are known as the college Galliardians, taking their name from the school flower, the galliardia.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—A good many of the troubles of WPA have come from its sheer size. Others have come from its newness and the nature of the job it has been trying to do. Still others have been the result of ordinary human mistakes.

Take the last first. Ordinarily, WPA has approximately 100,000 foremen on duty at one time. Some of them know how to handle men; some of them don't. Some of them know how to plan a job and some of them don't.

Working for them are men from relief rolls. Many of these men feel they have a grievance against society. In many cases, they will be doing work they never did before. In addition, incentive to good performance which obtains in private industry is lacking.

Put those factors together, and you are certain to get some spotty performances. One WPA crew may be welded into an efficient working unit; another may indulge in horseplay, waste its energy through inefficient operation, or get out of control of its foreman and start shoving-leaving.

WPA authorities are trying to remedy this by an educational program for foremen. For more than a year, classes for foremen have been held. At these classes practically everything is discussed, from the essentials of leadership to safety precautions and how to stop fights. At present, such classes are being held in 15 states.

Again, lost motion may enter the picture through faulty planning in one locality several small projects may be under way separately when they could be welded into one at a considerable saving.

WPA's biggest trouble, however, has come from the very nature of its job. WPA exists primarily to put men to work; that has to come first, even when—as does happen occasionally—there isn't enough real work to go around.

Maj. B. M. Harloe, chief engineer and assistant administrator of WPA, points to a typical example—what happened in San Francisco in the fall of 1935, when WPA was just getting under way.

"Our orders were to get a certain number of people at work," he says. "We had to put 20,000 people to work in San Francisco. Now the area of that city is relatively small—only 43 square miles. The outlets available for relief labor then were the parks, the streets and the airport. Because we were just starting, the procedure for getting projects approved was slow. The city officials were new to it also. So there was a scarcity of projects.

"But we had to put those 20,000 men to work. So we crowded them on the jobs. Maybe we assigned three times as many men to a job as were actually needed. They got in each other's way. There wasn't any way out."

Politics, of course, has been one of WPA's major headaches.

Harry Hopkins' recent appearance before a Senate committee, in which the senators examined the whole principle of the extent, if any, to which a WPA administrator may properly make political speeches and appeals, is a matter of recent memory. Unquestionably, much of the current opposition to WPA arises from the feeling that it has been used as an instrument of political coercion.

You cannot find—at least I can't—anyone in WPA who will admit that it has actually been so used. But it is freely admitted that in many cases local politicians have made use of WPA on their own hook.

At WPA headquarters here, it is insisted that the organization is breaking up this abuse wherever it gets wind of it.

Sunday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Orange and grapefruit juice, dry cereal, fried scrapple, creamed potatoes, currant jelly, coffee, milk.

DINNER: Chopped green salad, roast lamb, horseradish brown gravy, pan-roasted potatoes, spinach timbale, buttered cauliflower, butterscotch pie, coffee, milk.

SUPPER: Creamed tuna and green peppers on toast, hot biscuits, fresh fruit cup, sugar cookies, tea, milk.

A chafing dish of hot creamed chicken and mushrooms would be a delicious addition, particularly for the Valentine supper party.

Your cakes will sing the affectionate praises of St. Valentine. They should have pink icing and past and pale green icing flowers on them. Include strawberry ice cream for dessert, of course, or a strawberry gelatin concoction in a heart-shaped mold.

Finish off with tea and coffee, nuts, peppermint wafers with lovers' messages, cigarettes and assorted sugar candies.

Valentine Sandwich Trays. Paper sandwich plates in red, gold and powder blue are effective and easy to make for the Valentine party.

To make one tray use a paper lace doily. Decorate it with hearts and flowers cut from decorated paper. Paste this to a paper plate. The handle is made from two wires wrapped in white crepe paper. Bend wires to form the two hearts at the top and then wrap the four ends of the wires into one stem.

The stem is put through a hole punched in the center of the paper plate. On the under side of the plate, separate the four ends of

Transient Brings Crime Total Up Famed Sheriff Says

By United Press
EL PASO, Texas—Transients who wander from one town to another and won't take a job if it's offered them are responsible for a great amount of crime, according to Sheriff Chris P. Fox of El Paso county.

Fox said he had received numerous letters from other peace officers, expressing the same belief and willingness to attend a conference to discuss the problem.

To investigate the transients in this section, Fox sent one of his deputies out to pose as a farmer and offer jobs as field laborers at good daily wages to a group of 60 transients waiting to board a freight train.

"The only response was inquiries about train schedules," Fox said. "That's an honest example of how anxious transients and hoboes are to get honest work."

"The transient problem is becoming more serious every day," he added.

Fox wrote police chiefs and sheriffs in several southwestern states recently, asking them if they would attend a conference to seek a solution to the transient problem. He said that many officers had replied favorably to the suggestion.

Jewish Leaders Of Southwest To Meet

HOUSTON, Tex.—Preparations are underway in Houston for a conference of Jewish leaders from Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Northern Louisiana. The meeting, which will be held March 12, has been called by Herbert Mallinson, of Dallas, chairman of the Southwest region of the Joint Distribution Committee. Mr. Mallinson said that nationally known speakers will analyze international affairs in their relation to Jewry, and will explain the activities of the JDC. These speakers, Mr. Mallinson said, will also show what remains to be done, particularly with reference to European Jewry—how lives must be reconstructed and rehabilitated in refugee lands. He emphasized, however, that there will be no money-raising activity in connection with the conference. "European Jews are facing a perilous situation due to the fact that European dictators, in their attempt to conquer democratic civilization have turned on defenseless minority groups," Mr. Mallinson said. "As a result, the Jew has been called upon to bear the brunt of this assault upon the freedom and security of all liberty-loving people irrespective of race or creed."

Plans for the conference in Houston are under the general direction of Simon Sakowitz, of Houston, regional vice-chairman of the JDC. Mr. Sakowitz explained that the JDC is not a new organization formed merely to cope with the present emergency in Jewish affairs throughout the world. Mrs. D. Souther Monday evening. There were three tables of progressive bridge and one table of forty-two. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Bob Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hurst; Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Arterburn; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Arterburn held high score in bridge for the evening and Mr. Thomas and Mr. Arterburn second and third highest. Mrs. Pace and Mr. Johnson held high score in forty-two. Dainty refreshments were served consisting of cake shaped as hearts, clubs, spades and diamonds, niblets, salad and coffee. Mr. Town was honored with a beautiful birthday cake and handkerchiefs. He cut the cake and the hostess served ice cream.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!
If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble. If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines. If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted, nutritious cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.
