Time to Get Off Dead Center Again

While snowflakes still fly in northern cities, nevertheless spring is just where prosperity used to be—"right around the corner."

While eyes still watch eagerly for that first crocus and that hardy earliest robin, something else is being watched with closest attention.

It is the business upturn that is now so long overdue. Always a wise and well-balanced man, William Allen White of Emporia, Kan., has something to say about this that deserves wider circulation than is provided even by his justly-famous Gazette.

Returning from a California vacation, White circulated about his home town and found: "Trade is good, but some way psychology is sagging. We ought to buck up and look around and count our blessings. . . Times are looking up across the land. It would appear that we are to have a new attitude in our national government. Business is being considered. Commercial Street everywhere in Kansas and in the Nation is beginning to get a break."

White is no Pollyanna. He is best known for the way in which he can look a fact in the face and say "Hello!" The business machine has been idling along in neutral for some time. And nobody knows quite why. Both President Roosevelt and Treasury Secretary Morgenthau have announced that no tax changes are in prospect. That guarantees the tax stability for which so many have cried. The spring building season is about to open, and federal contributions to building will reach their height in early spring.

Secretary Hopkins is busily attempting to promote that better understanding between the administration and business which is so much to be desired. The stage for revival is set, but the actors refuse to take their places or to speak their lines.

Promoters Roosevelt, Morgenthau, Hopkins and others have given the cue, not once but several times. It is now up to the actors to pick up their lines and carry on the play.

The shadow of war hangs over all the world, but more and more people are being convinced that it may not be as black as it has been painted.

Probably as always, spring recovery will get under way before anyone realizes it, and when it does, the ones who are left behind will be the ones who didn't get into gear before the light changed.

An Atlanta, Ga., widow wants bachelors in the state penalized with a $100 annual tax. That's still cheaper than a wife.

Increase Shown In Area's Oil Average

The American Petroleum Institute reported Saturday that average daily crude oil production in West Central Texas the week ended March 4 was 30,600 barrels, an increase of 50 barrels over the previous week.

Hot Lunch Project Will Start Mar. 20

A project for the feeding of hot lunches to school children will be initiated Monday, March 20, in the Cisco public schools, Mrs. Medora S. Pitcock, supervisor of women's and professional projects in this area for the WPA, announced Saturday at Eastland.

Eastland Man Is Ill Of Pneumonia

W. A. Wignand, who has been seriously ill of pneumonia at his home in Eastland, was reported Saturday to have rested fairly satisfactorily that day.

POULTRY TALKED

Mabel Caldwell, assistant homestead agent, discussed poultry at a meeting of the Morton Valley 4-H girls' club this week at the school-house. Plans also were outlined for attending the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show.

PLANS OUTLINED FOR ANNUAL SAFETY MEET

ABILENE, March 11.—The Oil Belt safety conference, scheduled in Abilene on May 4-5, is the answer to a news reporter's prayer. Crowds, People, Parades, Bands, Children, Boy Scouts, Everything, Even pet animals.

The sky seems to be the limit on the number of people likely to be in Abilene for the two-day conference. Folks from 19 counties hereabouts will be in Abilene to learn more about the nation-wide movement to save lives by preventing accidents.

Fifth Conclave
Most of the details were outlined at a committee meeting held yesterday at the chamber of commerce, which will sponsor the annual event being held in Abilene for the first time. It's the fifth convention of the organization.

L. H. Taylor, president of the Oil Belt Safety Conference who lives at Ranger, met with the C. of C. committee headed by S. M. Shelton, general chairman. Plans were unfolded to make the Abilene convention "the biggest, most dramatic event ever held here."

Chairman of the parade committee is Ray Roe, Abilene fire chief, who will contact all 19 counties for entries in a procession expected to be several miles long. Prizes will be offered for school floats, industrial floats, business and club floats, trucks, cars and groups marching afoot.

All entries will convey the idea of safety and prevention of accidents. A feature of the convention here this year will be the introduction for the first time a unified safety program in educational institutions. The committee will have L. E. Dudley, superintendent of Abilene schools, as chairman.

Nationally known speakers will be here to address a meeting of school board members, school executives, teachers and PTA members in a special conference set for May 5.

Boy Scout first aid contests are scheduled on Friday afternoon of the same day. This division is under the supervision of Dr. Hubert Seale, Abilene.

Chairman of the industrial committee conducting first aid contests for seven-man teams representing firms, business concerns and civic organizations from the entire southwest is Chester Rogers, a safety engineer of Ranger.

"This will be the only first aid conference in the southwest this year," Taylor announced. "We already have inquiries from all over Texas and several other states about the date of the Abilene conference. It is impossible now to tell how many teams will be here. We figure on 50 at least."

Still another division is for highway and traffic officers. Chairman is Captain Harry Hutchison of the department of public safety. Several hundred of these delegates in uniform and on motorcycles and in patrol cars will join in the parade, set for late afternoon on May 4.

Included in the parade will be pet animals whose theme will be safe handling. "Every department of everyday life has the hazard of possible accidents," Shelton said, "and it is the aim and goal of the conference to impress upon the public the necessity of safety to prevent maiming and death. We expect to dramatize the methods used by safety experts to teach caution and prevention of accidents."

That Chamberlain umbrella may not shed water but it has certainly done well as a par for jokes.

Walker Twins Have Talk With First Lady of the Land

Abilene and Wesley Walker twin children of Mr. and Mrs. H. Walker of Ranger had an interview with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Saturday afternoon on the Sunshine Special of the Texas and Pacific Railway.

Mrs. Roosevelt was enroute for Abilene, where she spoke Friday night, to Fort Worth. The Walker children were also on the train.

The children asked the confidante of Mrs. Roosevelt was on the train, and he replied that she was not. He told Mrs. Roosevelt of the children and she sent for them and talked to them for some time.

Mayor Walker is trying to have Mrs. Roosevelt visit Ranger to inspect the NYA project, as Mrs. Roosevelt's hobby, and Ranger is fast developing one of the major NYA projects in the state.

Hardin-Simmons To Enter Twins In A Convention Mar. 2

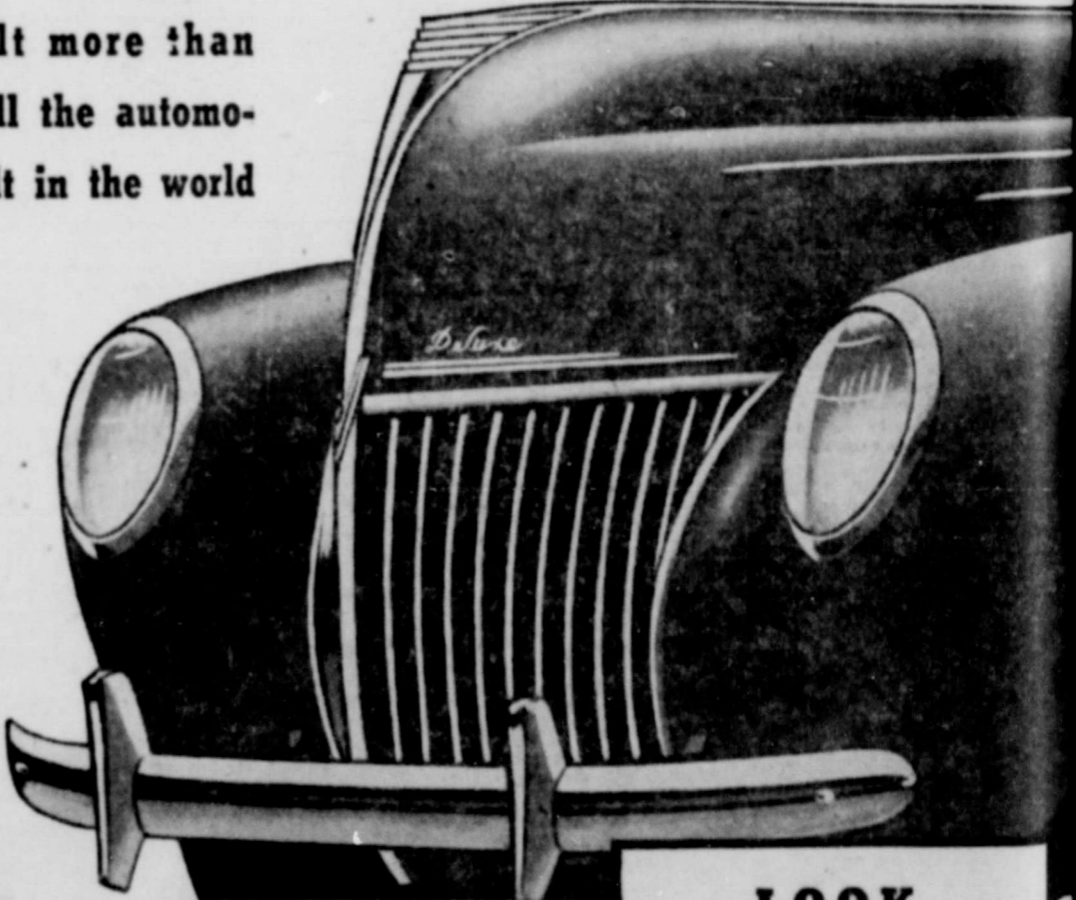

ABILENE, Tex.—Twin boys and twin co-eds will answer for Hardin-Simmons University at the Texas College Twin convention meets for its initial session Baylor University, Waco, Mar. 24-25.

Douglas and David Crow, sons of Dr. H. B. Crow, and Ha Brewer, freshmen from Sylvester, will attend the convention.

SERIAL STORY

'MRS. DOC'

BY TOM HORNER

Copyright, 1939, NEA Service, Inc.

The characters and situations in this story are wholly fictional.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ALAN WARREN—Ambitious young country doctor.
EMILY WARREN—Alan's wife.
DR. FARRELL—Alan's elderly associate.

Yesterday, Emily tells Dr. Farrell that she hates Summer, wants Alan to return to St. Louis. Then the telephone rings. It may be Alan.

CHAPTER III

"Oh, hello, Dr. Peterson. So good to hear you. Sorry I couldn't be at the station to meet you, but he's on a call. Do hurry out—you have the address 1114 West Esplanade. And Mrs. Peterson? I can hardly wait to see you, please hurry!"

Illustration by Harry Grissinger

"All night long I sat in front of the fire, waiting. It was terrible."

"Just exactly that. I never thought anyone could be so miserable as I was Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. All night long I sat in front of the fire, waiting and it was after noon when Alan finally did get home, so tired that all he could do was wish me a hurried 'Merry Christmas' and fall into bed. It was terrible. But fun, too. I've always wanted to trim my tree without any help or suggestions from anyone. I certainly got my wish."

"You're only telling half the story, Emily. As Alan's professor of surgery, Dr. Peterson, you would have been proud of him that night," Dr. Farrell went on. "Eight youngsters cut and smashed in a head-on automobile collision. And how Alan worked it, without a second's rest. A superb job."

"But that's enough of my troubles, Dr. Farrell," Emily interrupted. "Tell me more about things at home. Did Peterson did you have her New Year's party as usual? Did you all go out to the Hunt Club for breakfast, like we used to do?"

"The party was just the same, Emily, but we missed you. Everyone was asking your father when you'd be back. The orchestra even played your favorite 'Stardust' and dedicated it to you."

"I do, and I do, Emily. And so every member of the Ward family. They still have a mother's might not have had, if Alan stayed for your party."

"Emily isn't particularly fond of this life of a doctor's wife, is she, Dr. Farrell? The men were alone in the living room after the dinner had ended. Emily had taken Mrs. Peterson upstairs to show her the house."

"I do, and I do, Emily. And so every member of the Ward family. They still have a mother's might not have had, if Alan stayed for your party."

Time to Get Off Dead Center Again

While snowflakes still fly in northern cities, nevertheless spring is just where prosperity used to be—"right around the corner."

While eyes still watch eagerly for that first crocus and that hardy earliest robin, something else is being watched with closest attention.

It is the business upturn that is now so long overdue. Always a wise and well-balanced man, William Allen White of Emporia, Kan., has something to say about this that deserves wider circulation than is provided even by his justly-famous Gazette.

Returning from a California vacation, White circulated about his home town and found:

"Trade is good, but some way psychology is sagging. We ought to buck up and look around and count our blessings... Times are looking up across the land. It would appear that we are to have a new attitude in our national government. Business is being considered. Commercial Street everywhere in Kansas and in the Nation is beginning to get a break."

White is no Pollyanna. He is best known for the way in which he can look a fact in the face and say "Hello!"

The business machine has been idling along in neutral for some time. And nobody knows quite why. Both President Roosevelt and Treasury Secretary Morgenthau have announced that no tax change are in prospect. That guarantees the tax stability for which so many have cried. The spring building season is about to open, and federal contributions to building will reach their height in early spring.

Secretary Hopkins is busily attempting to promote that better understanding between the administration and business which is so much to be desired. The stage for revival is set, but the actors refuse to take their places or to speak their lines.

Promoters Roosevelt, Morgenthau, Hopkins and others have given the cue, not once but several times. It is now up to the actors to pick up their lines and carry on the play.

The shadow of war hangs over all the world, but more and more people are being convinced that it may not be as black as it has been painted.

Probably as always, spring recovery will get under way before anyone realizes it, and when it does, the ones who are left behind will be the ones who didn't get into gear before the light changed.

An Atlanta, Ga., widow wants bachelors in the state penalized with a $100 annual tax. That's still cheaper than a wife.

THE COLLEGIATE

A RANGER JUNIOR COLLEGE PUBLICATION

WHY I GO TO RANGER JUNIOR COLLEGE

When I graduated from Ranger High School in the spring of 1937, I received several pounds of bulletins, announcements, letters, and catalogues from various business colleges, teachers colleges, state-supported colleges, and denominational colleges.

I learned that there were a large number of any variety of colleges that I wished to attend; yet I did not hesitate in choosing to go to Ranger Junior College last year and then again this year.

One of the most important reasons why I go to Ranger Junior College is that I am a local girl and this is a local college. I could be attending the Ranger Junior College, board at home, be under the supervision of my parents and under the guidance of an excellent faculty with which I was already familiar; I could go to school with my friends and at the same time obtain credit for two years college work.

Since there is such a gap between the senior high school and the four-year college, the student sometimes finds it difficult to adjust himself to the changed circumstances; if he attends a junior college, he receives more attention and consequently bridges the gap more easily under the careful guidance of the experienced college instructor.

The college faculty has been chosen from a select group trained in the best institutions of the United States and holding advanced degrees from universities, such as Texas, Missouri, Baylor, Peabody, Brown, Columbia, Duke, and Yale.

Ranger Junior College is ranked as first class by the State Department of Education and is a member of the Association of Texas Colleges, and of the American Association of Junior Colleges. It is also given the highest rating possible by these organizations, so that work completed here is transferable at full value to other colleges and universities.

The laboratories are ample for all general courses in the sciences offered in the college. The Business Administration and other departments are all well equipped. The Library of the Senior High School and College contains over five thousand volumes bearing on the subjects taught. It is one of the best equipped and most serviceable public school libraries in the state.

work; and fourth, those who expect at the end of two years in college to enter their chosen field of business, vocation, or profession. Courses are offered leading toward higher degrees in arts and science education (teacher training), law, medicine, journalism, business administration, home economics, nursing, pharmacy, and engineering.

The Ranger Junior College also offers a well-balanced program of extra-curricular activities. In addition to the sports, there are four clubs: the Masquers, Talent, Sigma Epsilon, and Spanish. The Texas Junior College Speech Association also sponsors district contests in debate and orations.

POULTRY TALKED

Mabel Caldwell, assistant home agent, discussed poultry at a meeting of the Morton Valley 4-H girls' club this week at the schoolhouse. Plans also were outlined for attending the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show.

PLANS OUTLINED FOR ANNUAL SAFETY MEET

ABILENE, March 11.—The Oil Belt safety conference, scheduled in Abilene on May 4-5, is the answer to a news reporter's prayer. Crowds, People, Parades, Bands, Children, Boy Scouts, Everything, Even pet animals.

The sky seems to be the limit on the number of people likely to be in Abilene for the two-day conference. Folks from 19 counties herabouts will be in Abilene to learn more about the nation-wide movement to save lives by preventing accidents.

Fifth Conclude Most of the details were outlined at a committee meeting held yesterday at the chamber of commerce, which will sponsor the annual event being held in Abilene for the first time. It's the fifth convention of the organization.

L. H. Taylor, president of the Oil Belt Safety Conference who lives at Ranger, met with the C. of C. committee headed by S. M. Shelton, general chairman. Plans were unfolded to make the Abilene convention "the biggest, most dramatic event ever held here."

Chairman of the parade committee is Ray Roe, Abilene fire chief, who will contact all 19 counties for entries in a procession expected to be several miles long. Prizes will be offered for school floats, industrial floats, business and club floats, trucks, cars and groups marching afoot.

All entries will convey the idea of safety and prevention of accidents. A feature of the convention here this year will be the safety conference for schools, introducing for the first time a unified safety program in educational institutions. The committee will have L. E. Dudley, superintendent of Abilene schools, as chairman.

Nationally known speakers will be here to address a meeting of school board members, school executives, teachers and PTA members in a special conference set for May 5.

Boy Scout first aid contests are scheduled on Friday afternoon of the same day. This division is under the supervision of Dr. Hubert Seale, Abilene.

First Aid Contests Chairman of the industrial committee conducting first aid contests for seven-man teams representing firms, business concerns and civic organizations from the entire southwest is Chester Rogers, a safety engineer of Ranger.

"This will be the only first aid conference in the southwest this year," Taylor announced. "We already have inquiries from all over Texas and several other states about the date of the Abilene conference. It is impossible now to tell how many teams will be here. We figure on 50 at least."

Still another division is for highway and traffic officers. Chairman is Captain Harry Hutchison of the department of public safety. Several hundred of these delegates in uniform and on motorcycles and in patrol cars will join in the parade, set for late afternoon on May 4.

Included in the parade will be pet animals whose theme will be safe handling. "Every department of everyday life has the hazard of possible accidents," Shelton said, "and it is the aim and goal of the conference to impress upon the public the necessity of safety to prevent maiming and death. We expect to dramatize the methods used by safety experts to teach caution and prevention of accidents."

That Chamberlain umbrella may not shed water but it has certainly done well as a peg for jokes.

Walker Twins Have Talk With First Lady of the Land

Amelia and Wesley Walker, twin children of Mr. and Mrs. H. Walker of Ranger had an interview with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Saturday afternoon on the Sunshine Special of the Texas and Pacific Railway.

Mrs. Roosevelt was enroute from Abilene, where she spoke Friday night, to Fort Worth. The Walker children were also on train.

The children asked the president or if Mrs. Roosevelt was on train, and he replied that she was not. He told Mrs. Roosevelt of the children and she sent for them and talked to them for some time. Mayor Walker is trying to have Mrs. Roosevelt visit Ranger to inspect the NYA project, as Mrs. Roosevelt's hobby, and Ranger is fast developing one of the major NYA projects in the state.

SERIAL STORY

MRS. DOC BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

The characters and situations in this story are wholly fictional.

CAST OF CHARACTERS: ALAN W. HARRIS—Ambitious young country doctor. EMILY WARREN—Alan's wife. DR. FARRELL—Alan's elderly associate.

Yesterday, Emily tells Dr. Farrell that she hates Sumner, wants Alan to return to St. Louis. Then she calls the telephone rings. It may be Alan.

CHAPTER III

"Oh, hello, Dr. Peterson. So good to hear you. Sorry Alan wouldn't be at the station to meet you, but he's on a call. Do hurry out—you have the address—1114 West Esplanade. And Mrs. Peterson? I can hardly wait to see you, please hurry!"

Emily turned from the phone, smiling. Lights danced in her eyes. "Oh, Dr. Farrell, do you think he really could want Alan?"

"Perhaps, child. Whatever he is here for, whatever the future may hold, I hope only for your happiness."

"And that'll be— But I haven't time to be day-dreaming. Doctor, you stir up the fire, and bring in the cocktails. I'll see that Herminia has everything ready."

He filled his pipe from Alan's humidor, stared into the flames. "Emily certainly has her heart set on going back to St. Louis. For her sake, I hope it might be so... but there are so many other women here in Sumner who'll need Alan. Well, we'll see."

"I MUST say, Emily, if Alan misses many meals like this one, country practice has dulled his wits. Even Antoine's finest can't compare with your cooking. How do you do it, Emily?"

Emily laughed gaily with the big, white-haired man who had been her father's friend. And Alan's friend, too.

How well she remembered how his unstinted praise for the young medical student who had won her heart, had helped win her father's permission for their marriage.

"Brightest student we've ever turned out, Dr. Peterson has said. And now, Alan was wasting his time here in Sumner, bringing babies, being away from her whenever she needed him."

"It's my secret, Dr. Peterson," she said. "And would you believe it, Alan has never tasted this dessert."

"The man doesn't know what he's missed, dear," Mrs. Peterson said. "But you keep him on a diet?"

"No... we have it often, usually for some special occasion, however," Emily replied. "I call it my 'Alan's night out dessert.' Whenever I plan to have it, Alan gets a call, just as he did tonight, to remember our first party in Sumner, Dr. Farrell?"

"Indeed, I do, Emily. And so does every member of the Ward family. They still have a mother they might not have had, if Alan had stayed for your party."

"Yes, I know, I know, Doctor, but you would think that Alan would have stayed at home on the first night I entertained."

"Now, now, Emily," Dr. Peterson patted her hand reassuringly. "You bargained for that when you married a doctor. We had a little of that sort of thing, too, didn't we?"

"I'll never forget your birthday dinner—that was heartbreaking," Mrs. Peterson laughed. "I can sympathize, Emily. Being a doctor's wife is no easy job."

"But it is just that—a job," Dr. Farrell said earnestly. "It's a tough assignment, but husbandly duties and parties are just a small part of it. They go with it—just like the smell of ether... But Emily can take it, and come through smiling. Remember Christmas?"

"Don't tell me Alan doesn't even come home on Christmas," Dr. Peterson asked.

Illustration by Harry Crissinger

"All night long I sat in front of the fire, waiting. It was terrible."

"Just exactly that. I never thought anyone could be so miserable as I was Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. All night long I sat in front of the fire, waiting. And it was after noon when Alan finally did get home, so tired that he could do with me what he called 'Merry Christmas' and fall into bed. It was terrible. But fun, too. I've always wanted to trim my tree without any help or suggestions from anyone. I certainly got my wish."

"You're only telling half the story, Emily. As Alan's professor of surgery, Dr. Peterson, you would have been proud of him that night," Dr. Farrell went on. "Eight youngsters cut and smashed in a head-on automobile collision. And how Alan worked, without a second's rest. A superb job."

"But that's enough of my troubles, Dr. Farrell," Emily interrupted. "Tell me more about things at home. Did New Year's party as usual? Did you all go out to the Hunt Club for breakfast, like we used to do?"

"The party was just the same, Emily, but we missed you. Everyone was asking your father when you'd be back. The orchestra even played your favorite 'Stardust' and dedicated it to you."

"And all the gang were there, too? Wall and Rosalind, Hank and Virginia, John and Katherine? And did Myron come alone again?"

"I'd almost think you were there, my dear," Mrs. Peterson answered. "You've named the crowd so well. The bartender at the Old Rock House asked about you, too. You helped him mix drinks the year before, I believe."

"Oh, I did. And made Alan angry. Maybe I could be a barmaid if I came back again. Those were the days," Emily sighed.

"EMILY isn't particularly fond of this life of a doctor's wife, is she, Dr. Farrell? The men were alone in the living room after the dinner had ended. Emily had taken Mrs. Peterson upstairs to show her the house."

"It's hard for her to get into the swing of things, but she'll make it, Emily has lots of courage and that's what it takes."

"But she deserves something better, Dr. Farrell. Emily has had

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Nearly one-half of the vehicles tested for mechanical defects by highway patrolmen in the last two months were faulty, the state safety de-
