Militarization of the CCC Bobs Up Again

Repeatedly squelched in the past, the proposal to include military training in the CCC regime has bobbed up again.

Though no responsible military authority has asked or even endorsed the plan, it continues to be advanced. Congress can not too definitely reject this proposal, once and for all.

It is bad in theory. It is bad in practice.

First, the theory. Not even the most rabid backers of increased armament have as yet suggested universal military service for the United States. Yet it is proposed to subject to military training a single class of young men—those who have not been able to find a place in industrial life.

This is undemocratic. If military training is to be established on anything like a universal basis, then let all youths be subject to it. Even the totalitarian states do this, and at its worst, their military program has the merit of taking everybody without distinction. The draft of World War days at least had the merit of taking everybody.

But this proposal would train as soldiers a particular segment of the country's youth, leaving those in more fortunate circumstances untouched.

To advance any such program in a democratic country, whose foundation is in the equal treatment of all regardless of their circumstances, is a grave mistake.

Second, the practical side. The value of any such training, with six hours a week of military training sandwiched in with the regular week's work, is highly doubtful.

The CCC is a work program. It is and is meant to be a civilian program, as indicated plainly by its name "Civilian Conservation Corps." The aim is to furnish productive work to young men who have not been able to find a place in regular jobs, meanwhile teaching them as much as possible to qualify them for regular jobs when they get out.

Military training doesn't fit into his picture at all. It would merely disrupt the work without providing military training of any value whatever.

The CCC has done a fine job, as almost everybody admits. To mix it all up (at great expense) with military training, would ruin its record as a work organization, provide no worth-while military resources to the nation, and flout the basic democratic principle that if one young man owes military service to his country, all owe it.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—If running the manifold affairs of WPA gets Col. Francis P. Harrington down, it won't be the colonel's fault. He believes in putting a job in its place.

Most Washington office-holders tell you that they are on practically 24-hour duty—take work home at night, come down Sundays, live for their work, never have a chance to exercise or relax. But not the WPA administrator.

Col. Harrington figures that if a man has to work overtime day in and day out it's probably the man's fault rather than the job's. He recalls that when he first came to WPA as assistant administrator in the fall of 1935 he had to work 14 or 15 hours a day.

Nowadays he gets down to work about 10 in the morning and goes home around 6 or 6:30 in the evening. He steals a march on the job by coming down on holidays, now and then, and getting in three or four hours of concentrated work. Then, he explains, "these telephones leave me alone." He figures he will presently have things systematized so that he can move quitting time up a bit. But he'll never belong to the two-hours-for-lunch fraternity.

Following graduation from the U. S. Military Academy in 1908, Harrington entered the army engineer corps. He had charge of a construction crew during building of the Panama Canal and later oversaw maintenance there. When America entered the war, he gave up a mathematics teaching post at West Point to serve as instructor in officers' training camps. He is a graduate of several U. S. service schools and attended the Ecole Superieure de Guerre in Paris. The colonel celebrated birthday 31 last fall.

He looks as fit as a youngster fresh out of West Point. He has a clear, pinkish complexion—his nickname, among his friends, is "Pinkie"—and neat gray hair. He looks military, even in civilian clothes, but isn't the crisp, damn-you-my-man type at all. When you call on him he kills far back in his chair with his feet up and smokes a cigar.

He likes his present job—says it's more work than he was assigned to in the army engineer corps, but more fun too. He is inclined to think that WPA or something like it will be with us for quite a while yet, although he hopes that as business picks up the WPA roll can be cut down to a million men or less. This, he suspects, may take a couple of years.

He believes that WPA offers a chance to make a real contribution to the solution of one of the nation's toughest problems—what to do about the unemployed—and points out that since population growth adds half a million men to the ranks of the workers each year the problem may be a long time getting solved.

As an army engineer, Col. Harrington has had plenty of experience with civilian workers on construction jobs in private industry. He says it isn't quite fair to ask him to compare those workers with the WPA crews.

The private contractors pick the best men they can get, and the age level in their crews is substantially lower than in WPA. Those allowances made, he adds, the WPA crews can stand the comparison very well.

The colonel knows how to delegate authority, and refuses to let paper work pile up on his desk. He doesn't make snap judgments, but once he has passed on a problem or a job he doesn't go back and worry about it. He may take his time about saying something, but when he says it, it goes.

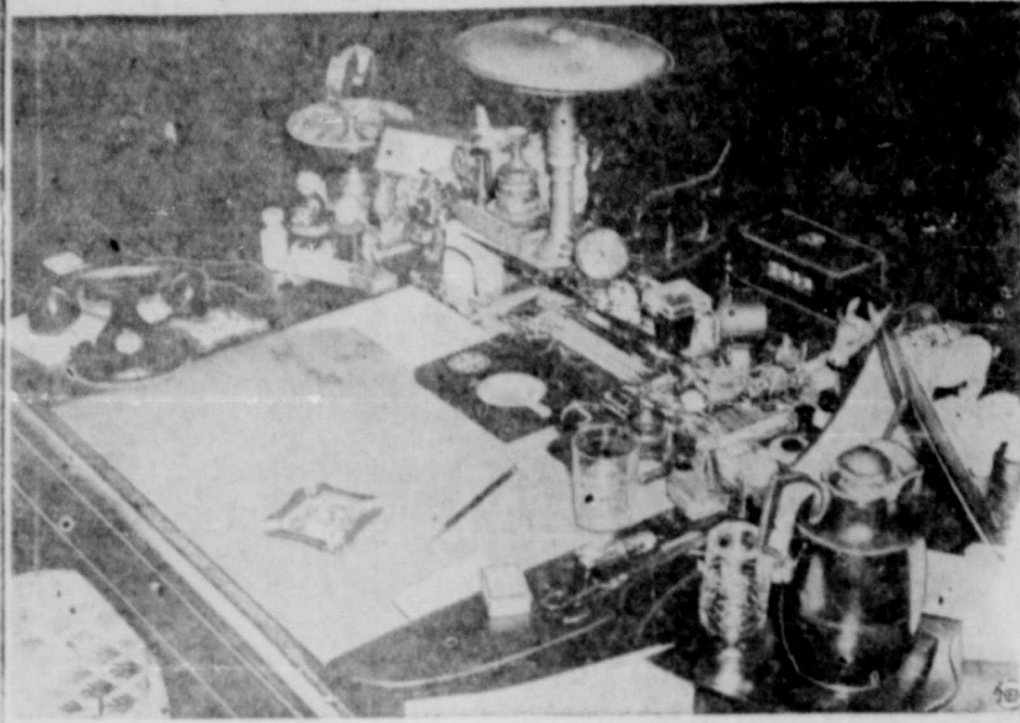

Col. Harrington lives in a house in Georgetown with his mother and daughter. He is a widower, Mrs. Harrington having died a little more than a year ago. He has one son, a student at Yale. (Copyright, 1939, NEA Service, Inc.)

Skeleton Is In No Immediate Danger

AUSTIN, Tex.—Frank Siddons, University of Texas student employed as part-time nightwatchman at state police headquarters, can guarantee the safety of the laboratory skeleton.

Last night Siddons flashed his light unexpectedly on a skeleton hanging in the crime detection laboratory. Recovering composure the watchman read the warning sign attached to one of the ribs, "Please Do Not Disturb." This morning laboratory employees found this note signed by the watchman: "Please Do Not Worry."

The President's Gadget Shop

The desk of the President of the United States, 6:35 p. m., says the clock—and Mr. Roosevelt has gone for the day, leaving behind him a litter of knick-knacks. Statuettes, ash trays, writing tools, timepieces, cigaret butts, water pitcher—just a few items collected along the way.

Cat Manager Is Not Predicting Baseball Pennant

ORANGE, Tex.—Bob Linton, husky new manager of the Fort Worth Cats, isn't predicting any pennants for the club which finished eighth in the Texas League last year, but he does believe he has possibilities of making them into a first division team.

With only two of the 32 listed players of recognized Texas League ability, the team's future rests entirely upon these "possibilities." Supporters of the Cats are predicting that one of two things will happen—either the Fort Worth team will be a top-notch club or an awful last.

But Linton, here with the Cats for some pre-season training, figures he has a pretty good "starting nucleus."

"For instance," he said, "where could one find as good a potential infield—ah, set, apparently, and ready to go? That's something."

"Also, we seem to have a nice nucleus in the matter of pitching. Trouble in a 156-game schedule like this in the Texas League, a club should have seven starters—or near starters. With scheduled double-headers almost every Sunday and a natural accumulation of rained-out games, it makes it tough on a seven-man staff."

It is the middle of the infield where Linton has started his rebuilding. Going on the idea that a club is no stronger than the area around second base, the new manager is counting on Euster Chatham, shortstop from Atlanta, to furnish the steady influence that was missing in 1938. Teaming with Chatham to form what Linton hopes will be a fast and effective double-play combination will be Clyde (Rabbit) McDowell, who is hoping to stage a comeback after being forced out because of illness most of last season. Lee Stelbins will hold down first base, at least at the start, while Frank Meths, promising youngster, will be tried at third base.

Carl Kott probably will serve as utility man. Larry Fischer, D. J. O'Brien and Harold Grant are other infielders.

In the outfield, Linton hopes to repair the big hole which was an evident thorn last year by bringing in Al Marshall from St. Paul to play centerfield.

Seven other outfielders will be tried out, with one of the more promising recruits being Bill Black, up from Lake Okechobee, slugger on loan from the New York Yankees, also figures prominently in Linton's plans for the outfield, as do Fred Feink and Jack Byrdam. John

Anti-Social Foods Enemies Of Disease Science Reveals

By United Press

STORRS, Conn.—The fumes of three anti-social vegetables—onions, garlic and horse-radish—were allies of medical science today as potential enemies of disease.

As far back as 1400 B. C., the superstitious have worn amulets containing these pungent flavorings, believing they ward off sickness.

History describes the frequent use of garlic by the physicians of Anthony and Cleopatra. Old Hebrew writing reveal that garlic was an ingredient of medicines for treatment of diseases of the lungs and stomach.

Modern bacteriologists have been investigating these ancient beliefs and practices. During 1936 and 1937 four scientists established that the vapors from crushed garlic and onions showed pronounced bactericidal properties.

Dr. Milton J. Foter, Connecticut State College bacteriologist, discovered that horse-radish, in some respects, was more potent than garlic and onions. Controlled experiments revealed that horse-radish fumes checked the growth of many forms of bacteria.

Dr. Foter discovered, among other things, that horse-radish fumes would kill tuberculosis organisms from two to four times as readily as onion vapors would. However, he cautioned against excessive claims for his experiments.

"I am not presenting these experiments as a cure for disease, but I aim to show that an interesting phenomenon has been disclosed. What the future of these experiments may bring is purely problematical, and not within the scope of any suggestion that I may make at this time."

Dr. Foter plans to extend his tests to determining the effects and applicability of his findings in laboratory experiments on living animals. He will, he said, pursue his assumption that a certain chemical constituent of the three vegetables is responsible for their toxic effect on the many forms of bacteria with which he has worked.

Correct Constipation Before—Not After!

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of emergency relief. Why let yourself suffer those dull lifeless days because of constipation, why bring on the need for emergency medicines, when there may be a far better way? That way is to KEEP regular by getting at the cause of the trouble.

It's common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, a pleasant, nutritious, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—comes straight to the cause by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

THIS VALUABLE BOOK GIVEN TO BOYS

As long as my limited supply of the new book explains the secrets of electrical energy, it will be given to every boy who possesses two Little Six or one Twelve BATTERY.

The book contains many illustrations and diagrams for harnessing electrical power: how to make telegraph sets, burglar alarms, rubber lights, magnets, a motor of other useful electrical devices. Every boy who wants to know how to handle electricity should exchange for his copy of the book as early as possible. Copies are only a limited number available. First come, first served.
