State Cleanup And Fire Prevention Week Proclaimed

AUSTIN, Tex.—The week of April 2 to April 9 has been proclaimed State Cleanup and Fire Prevention Week by Governor W. Lee O'Daniel in an official proclamation issued at Austin. State and city-wide clean-up campaigns are scheduled over the State, these campaigns to facilitate public health protection, lessen fire losses and promote public safety, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

The cities and towns of Texas will conduct programs of far-reaching activities. Scheduled for inclusion is cleaning, draining, graveling of streets and alleys, cleaning city parks and playgrounds, malaria control, fire prevention, garbage and trash disposal and spring house cleaning for homes and business establishments.

The observance of good sanitation principles indicates the necessity of prompt removal of all waste matter in and around homes to lessen the spread of disease, notably disease affecting infants and children. Clean-up week is designed to focus attention upon the dirt and disease problems of the State.

Spring clean-up week provides an opportunity for the proper disposal of fire-generating accumulations. A check of homes and business establishments to unearthy conditions which are favorable to insect infestation should be instituted.

Clean-up week gives each citizen an opportunity to investigate cleanliness of services which affect health conditions in his home. As a citizen you have the right to know whether your water supply is pure, whether your milk comes from a clean dairy, whether your community makes use of proper sanitation methods, whether your home has proper sewer connections and plumbing installations. You should make it a point to better inform yourself on the sanitary measures carried out in the various divisions of your municipal government and in business.

The idea of spring clean-up week in Texas is that it be an intensive one week period of scrubbing, raking, painting, etc., and it is hoped that spring clean-up week will generate a standard of cleanliness in each community which will be carried on for the succeeding weeks of the year.

Texas Has Largest State University

AUSTIN, Tex.—Its student body numbering 10,879 for the year, The University of Texas leads the national field of universities with separate A. & M. colleges, figures released here today by the registrar show.

There were more June graduates last year than the University had students during the first 21 years of its existence, the records reveal.

Its increase of 4,218 students in the last five years is larger than the entire enrollment of the state universities of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi or Arkansas.

From 1923 to 1927, the University increased 23.5 per cent, from 1928 to 1932, 21.5 per cent. Largest increase came in the period from 1933 to 1937, registering 50.1 per cent.

Pre-Easter Meet Begins Today at Methodist Church

Starting this morning at the First Methodist church of Ranger and continuing all this week will be a series of sermons, songs, testimonies, and prayers in keeping with the Easter season. The services will begin promptly at 8 o'clock each evening during the week.

Rev. H. O. Bennett will deliver the sermons. He is a graduate of William Jewell College of Liberty, Missouri and also of the Seminary of Southern Methodist University at Dallas. Rev. Bennett is a native of Missouri and held many revival meetings throughout the State in a manner described successful.

During the services tonight he will relate his own conversion experience and call to the ministry. Rev. Bennett said Saturday that "The Lord came into my heart while I was still a farm boy without a practical training. I was so completely on fire for God that I went right out and led more than 30 of my friends to Jesus. During the many years of preparation, many reverses have come and at times the Lord seemed far away but I have found Him to be the Rock of Ages unshaken by the elements of time. As the years passed, and I am anxious to point Him to those who have not come to know Him."

FUEHRER GIVES ANSWER TO BRITAIN, COMBINING PEACE, WAR ATTITUDE

WILHELMSHAFEN, Germany, April 1.—Adolf Hitler today answered Great Britain by a challenge by which he implied that if England wants war he is ready for it.

Hitler declared that the present attitude of Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain may destroy the Anglo-German naval agreement of 1935 and inferentially the Munich pact against war in which it was embodied.

The Munich accord signed by Hitler and Chamberlain pledged the key nations never to go to war against one another again.

Hitler did not directly denounce the 1935 naval agreement, obviously referring to Chamberlain when not mentioning him by name.

"If an English statesman says that the problems should be submitted to discussion I say there were 15 years time for that."

Then Hitler throughout his armed challenge with reference to the world armament race, said, "If others want to re-arm I say this, You will not tire me out."

In the "peace pledge" taken by Hitler and Chamberlain at Munich last September, the two powers declared that the four-power pact which dismembered Czechoslovakia and the British-German naval agreement "were symbolic of the desire of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again."

Despite his war-like declarations Hitler announced today that the Nazi party rally at Nuremberg next September will be entitled "The Party Rally of Peace."

In an open expression of the defiance to the British-French "stop Hitler" drive the Fuehrer said, "I am not here nor are the German people here to live according to the dictates of the English or French but we are here to defend our life interests. This Reich is now strong enough, thank God, to protect our rights. We are not dependent on other states."

The re-broadcast of the speech to the U. S. only was mysteriously cancelled after Hitler had spoken a few sentences. There was no immediate explanation, either on the part of German or U. S. authorities.

The estimate on the number expected was expressed with the qualification that the weather would have to be pleasant.

Last year 1,000 persons assembled at Scenic Point to participate in the services. Churches throughout the county are cooperating.

LEGISLATORS CONSIDERING NEW MATTERS

AUSTIN, April 1.—With old age legislation at a halt, the Texas legislature seems likely next week to attempt the solution of a few of its other problems.

Members prepared to push other measures while a compromise on an old age plan is being sought. If one is reached other matters would be dropped to return to "Problem No. 1" as the legislators call old age assistance.

Senator Rogers Kelly of Edinburg will make an attempt to have the senate approve a new plan for raising the load limit on trucks moving fruit from the Rio Grande Valley.

He has secured a special setting for consideration of a new bill on the topic Monday. Rep. E. R. Wright of Huntsville claims enough votes to bring up his bill for financing old age pensions in the house on Monday. It calls for practically the same taxes and social security payments as those included in the resolution for a constitutional amendment which the house defeated this week.

There will also be an attempt in the house to get the pari-mutuel horse racing bill considered on Monday.

The legislature's course of the week probably will be determined by Gov. O'Daniel's radio talk Sunday.

Leaders thought it might be either an assistance or break up plans for a compromise on old age assistance.

Stop Mourning a Market Lost Forever

We might as well face it. The great European market, which took off our hands vast surpluses of farm products in the 1920s, is gone forever. It never did exist, really, because during the World War the need was abnormal, and afterward the trade was largely supported by huge loans.

Ever since the war, men have been dreaming of the return of this market to a "normal" which never was normal. Desperate moves toward self-sufficiency by all European countries, the rise of new and competing producing areas, the walling up of trade areas by totalitarian countries—all these have combined to destroy a market which once took the products of 50,000,000 acres of American farm land.

Secretary Wallace admits that this market is gone forever. The present trade difficulty with Germany, while it will cut down German imports here, will also further reduce export of cotton, for which Germany was a good customer. Overwhelming surpluses of cotton will continue to pile up.

There are two ways of facing this problem. One is to develop, insofar as possible, markets in the western hemisphere to replace those lost in Europe. Secretary Wallace is hard at work on this, and it is possible that some good can be accomplished in this way. But it will take time, planning, and government money.

Another approach is more immediate and more direct. Farmers in one-crop areas are beginning to realize that the great European export market is lost for good. There is not, and cannot be, any permanent future in producing for a market that is gone, despite any generosity the government can muster. More and more such farmers, directed by wise and forward-looking local leaders, especially in the south, are turning to crop diversification, raising vegetables, or dairying, to supply things now generally missing from the diet of the people.

A manufacturer who stubbornly went on building 42-cylinder automobiles that nobody could buy, and piling them up in a warehouse, would be considered cracked. But a farmer who continues to raise cotton and wheat that nobody can buy is just unfortunate.

More and more of them are thinking hard about raising things that people can buy. The soy bean has gone from a novelty into an important staple within 10 years. Many a farmer has found that well-tended woodland on his farm yielded him more than fields in unwanted crops. The domestic need for vegetables and dairy products in many regions has never been supplied at all.

Before the problem can be solved it must be faced. Realization that the European markets of the 1920s are gone forever is the first step.

Answers to these questions determine the relationship: Does the employer exercise control over the individual? Does the employer merely tell the desired result or does he determine the method of work, too? Who supplies the tools and equipment with which the work is performed?

An employer who feels that he is entitled to a refund for contributions now may file claim for them from one to four years after the date on which the taxes would have become due.

NEW JOBLESS INSURANCE LAW EASES TAX BURDEN OF EMPLOYEES IN TEXAS

AUSTIN, April 1.—More than two years ago, Texas launched its program of unemployment compensation when Governor Allied approved the measure designed to assist a jobless worker to find employment and to furnish him funds during his unemployment.

Today the employers contributing to the jobless insurance fund find assurance that their tax load will be lightened through the new unemployment compensation law effective yesterday.

Owille S. Carpenter, chairman-director of the Texas Unemployment Compensation Commission, estimates that the employers will pay ten to twelve million dollars less a year in jobless insurance taxes after 1948. Such a saving to the tax-payers will result in the "greatest tax reduction in the history of our state," according to Governor O'Daniel when he approved the bill.

Under the merit rating plan of the new law, employers will contribute after 1940 only the amount needed for the payment of jobless benefits. Last year employers contributed some twenty-three million dollars to the jobless insurance fund while less than ten million dollars was paid out in jobless benefits.

In contrast to the present three per cent contribution rate, the 1941 tax rate will vary from one-half of one per cent to four per cent by one-half per cent steps, depending upon the state-wide employment history with each employer's individual experience over the past three years.

At the end of a year, an employer who has not had eight employees on his payroll for twenty weeks during the year may ask the commission to terminate his coverage and thus release him from tax payments. The new law grants him until March 31 to file his application for termination of coverage.

Another important provision effective April 1 pertains to contractors and sub-contractors. A particularly sore point in the past for employers, the old law in many cases fixed the responsibility upon a contractor for reporting the wages of an employee but he is not responsible for the wages of a contractor. The former law defined ed the employer-contractor relationship but the definition was not the one generally accepted. The new law merely restates this definition and brings it into conformity with that accepted by the courts.

Statement Is Made
 By Calvin Brown
 On His Candidacy

Calvin Brown, street commissioner of the City of Ranger, has issued the following statement concerning his candidacy for reelection:

To the Citizens of Ranger:
 Some two years ago you elected me to the position of street commissioner, which position I have tried hard to be worthy of. I have tried to be fair to all alike. The City Commission has tried hard to work out plans by which the citizens who were behind with their taxes could pay them and in many instances the parties interested in trying to get their taxes off the books have been able to do so.

The City Commission has worked in harmony to get the bonded indebtedness of the city reduced and we hope with the plans we have at this time will be such that we will accomplish something during this year.

Through the cooperation of the City Commission we have been able to get W. P. A. funds for street work in 1938 in the amount of $33,455.30. Of this amount the city had to put of 30 per cent of these funds. We have now received approved projects from the W. P. A. at Washington in the amount of $27,016.00 and we hope that the project that is now in Washington will be ready to go soon.

I want to state now that I think that Ranger has the best law enforcement officers that there are in the state, and I can base that on the fact we have not had as much petty thievery as other towns of like size, and another thing the Commission has tried to have work to do together with the county which has given a lot of the idle work to earn a living and as a whole when people have work to earn a living they do not think of petty thievery.

We have started on one of the projects that the W. P. A. office in Washington has approved for better than $32,000.00. The City Commission has at this time other projects to be worked out through the W. P. A. office which will give a large amount of work to the laboring class.

The City Commission has brought to the town of Ranger the N. Y. A., which is one of the largest institutions there is in the entire United States. There are many thousands of dollars worth of machinery and equipment, together with the second largest broadcasting stations to be installed in the State of Texas.

This should make any city or town proud of the sponsors, and by being able to get this set up it brings into the town of Ranger more than $3,200.00 per month, or a total for the year of better than $38,000.00. Were it possible that we did not have the money from the W. P. A. Road and Street work, the Sewing Room that employs better than seventy women, the Nursery School, the Economics room, the N. Y. A. Boys and Girls Departments, and all of the other organizations that are connected with relief, where would our merchants of the town be? It would effect all the merchants, large and small alike.

Since you elected me as street commissioner I have given you many miles of chattered streets. I have improved many of the old streets so you could drive over them.

I have striven hard to hold the expenditures within my budget, which I am exceedingly proud of. If re-elected I will continue to perform my duties, to the best advantage for the city.

I will appreciate your vote.
 CALVIN BROWN.

COMMERCIAL bakers sell hundreds of thousands of Hot Cross Buns every Lent. But judging by the number of requests for recipes, many American women still like to make their own.

Hot Cross Buns
 One pint milk, 3 tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, 4 cups flour, 1 cake compressed yeast, 1-4 teaspoon ground cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon ground mace, 1-2 cup currants, 1-2 cup shaved citron, extra flour.

Scald milk. Add to it the butter, sugar and salt. Cool slightly. Beat the eggs well, then whip into the milk cream milk. Measure 1 cup of flour and whip into milk. Add 3 more cups of flour, a little at a time, beating in with rotary beater. Dissolve yeast cake in 1-4 cup warm water. Add to mixture and beat again. Set this mixture in warm place to rise until light, about 3 or 4 hours.

Beat down and add spices, currants dusted with flour, and citron. Add more flour to make consistency right for kneading. Grease a large bowl and put the

No matter in which church you have membership; the cause and activity at this season is one of unity between Houses of Worship. All secular amusements and activities should be subordinated during this week and our efforts and thought centered upon the Christian message of hope. "Today is the day of Salvation."

In GOOD WEATHER or BAD—

You're SAFER on NEW Firestone CHAMPION TIRES

The Only Tires Made With the NEW SAFETY-LOCK CORD BODY and GEAR-GRIP TREAD...

Stronger Cord Body—More Non-Skid Mileage

YOU'RE safer on any road in any weather when your car is equipped with new Firestone Champion Tires. They give you greater protection against blowouts because of the exclusive Firestone Safety-Lock Cord Body and they give you greater protection against skidding because of the amazing new Firestone Gear-Grip Tread.

The sensational new Safety-Lock Cord Body is the result of a new and revolutionary means of locking greater safety into the cord body of the tires. This is accomplished first, by the use of a new type of tire cord called "Safety-Lock," in which the cotton fibers are more compactly interwoven to give greater strength. And then the fibers in each individual cord, the cords in each ply and the plies themselves are all securely locked together by a new and advanced Firestone process of Gum-Dipping, which provides amazingly greater strength—and greater strength means greater safety.

The new Safety-Lock cord construction gives added strength that makes possible the use of the new, thicker, tougher, deeper Firestone Gear-Grip Tread, which provides remarkably longer non-skid mileage. This sensational new tread is called "Gear-Grip" because of its unique design which has more than three thousand sharp-edged angles that grip the road with a sure-footed hold to protect against skidding and to assure a safe stop.

In good weather or bad, in winter or summer, you need all of this extra protection—and you need it NOW! Let us equip your car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires—the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

San Antonio Ball Club Is Unknown Quantity of League

By United Press
BROWNSVILLE, Texas—There's little honor in the prophet business nowadays, especially in the Texas league, where most baseball teams aren't just baseball teams any more, but primarily adjuncts to the major clubs.

It's impossible to speak of the San Antonio Missions, for example, without mentioning their connection with the St. Louis Browns. The Missions simply offer one of the way stations for their trip up to the Big Time, with the Browns, of course, buying the tickets and controlling the itinerary. For that reason, anyone trying to figure out in the spring how the Missions are going to shape up when the season opens is working with unknown quantities.

Here in Brownsville, where the Missions are training, the crop prospects don't look so good this year for the San Antonio farm. The seedlings sent down from Springfield, Ill., Palestine, Texas, Meridian, Miss., and Johnston, Pa., aren't taking root as vigorously as could be hoped.

Of course there's a nucleus of

SUCCESS FOR CAMPAIGN IS IN EVIDENCE

Saturday marked beginning of Eastland's annual clean-up, paint-up and fix-up campaign with indications pointing to success. The Civic League and Garden Club is sponsor of the event.

Already housewives were cleaning out their homes of needless items and were placing them in cans for city employes to haul away.

Officials of the city are to use their trucks during the campaign which closes April 9, Easter Sunday.

League officials stated that more organizations and individuals were cooperating this year than ever before. Saturday workmen were preparing to clean off large vacant lots near the square so that they might be used for parking space.

Among the lots being cleaned off were those behind the chamber of commerce office, behind Walter's grocery and A. & P. Grocery.

JACKSONVILLE, Vt.—C. A. Murdock has completed 61 years of tapping maple trees.

Daily during early spring, Murdock hitches his team of horses to a low-runner sled carrying huge hogheads into which the sap, collected in some 3,000 metal buckets that hang from spigots on the ancient trees, is poured.

The hogheads filled, the horses with a pingling of bells plod to a ramshackle wooden processing shed near his white painted house.

Lines of white smoke billow from a sheet metal stack as helpers oak logs on the fires under the huge evaporators into which amber colored sap is poured.

Occasionally after the "garing off" process, Murdock scoops out a steaming ladle of sap and tosses it on the clean snow piled high outside. The snow cools instantly and Murdock is able to tell by its consistency whether it has boiled enough.

SERIAL STORY

'MRS. DOC' BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

The characters and situations in this story are wholly fictional.

Yesterday, Eric says goodbye to Emily when she tells him she is going to stay with Alan. See-see later, a man rushes up to Alan's porch and calls, "Mrs. Doc!" He explains that he needs help that his wife is dying.

CHAPTER XXII

"DR. WARREN isn't here now," Emily said, her calm in sharp contrast to the man's excited pleading. "I don't know where he is."

"You've got to find him. Send him, right away. He knows me. Bill Bower. He said he'd come when we needed him."

"Quiet hysterical parents," Farrell's words came to Emily as if he were speaking them at her side. That must include husbands, she thought.

"I'll get Dr. Warren, send him as soon as possible." The man's relief was immediately evident. Something prompted Emily to find out more.

"Your wife, what's the matter?" "She's going to have a baby. She's all alone. She's in terrible pain. Oh, Mrs. Doc, can't you do something?"

Could she do something? This half-hysterical youth was appealing to her. Could she really merit the title "Mrs. Doc." This was the test.

"I'll come with you," Emily decided swiftly. "Just a minute, while I call the hospital, and have them find Dr. Warren or Dr. Farrell."

A FEW seconds later, they were in Alan's car, speeding toward the Bower home. The man was calmer, quieter. He has confidence in me, he expects me to be able to do something for him and for his wife, Emily thought. Grimly, she determined she would do just that.

"My wife, my Angela, she is so young to have a baby," the man was saying. "But Doc said it would be all right. Nothing to worry about."

Emily nodded, intent on her driving. "Nothing to worry about," she repeated, trying to make her words sound convincing.

Bower directed her along streets that led into Sumner's slum district. "Past squalor Emily had never known existed. At last they reached a row of tiny, tumble-down shacks, unpainted and dingy."

"This is it," he said, indicating the corner house. Emily stopped, followed him into the house. Even before she stepped through the doorway, Emily could hear the girl's agonized moans, punctuated by sharper cries.

The cleanliness of the little place impressed Emily. There were only two rooms—a combination kitchen and living room, and the bedroom. The girl, Angela, was in the bedroom. Bower dropped to his knees beside the bed, his arms around his wife.

"It's all right now, honey, it's all right. Here's Mrs. Doc. And Doc will be here in a minute." The girl looked up at Emily with wide, brown eyes, tried to smile. She was, as her husband had said, quite young. Hardly more than 18, Emily judged, and trying, trying so hard to be brave.

"Don't worry, now, Mrs. Bower," Emily said, hoping to keep her own excitement out of her voice, trying to sound reassuring, like Alan. "Dr. Warren is coming right down. He'll be here any minute."

"I'm not so worried—now," the girl said. "Now that you're here. But I was so scared—all alone. Oh!" She clutched at Emily's soft hand, her nails digging into the flesh.

"Billy was scared, too," the girl went on. "We just moved here last month. We didn't know anyone, only Dr. Warren. He's been so nice to us. He'll be here soon, won't he?"

"He's probably on his way now," Emily answered.

EMILY talked on, quieting and comforting this girl and her husband. Her heart went out to them, so alone, so terrified at this great mystery of life.

Her thoughts raced ahead. What would Alan's mother have done? What would Alan need? Lots of boiling water, to sterilize instruments, gloves, she remembered, and sent Bower to the kitchen to fill pans and start them heating. Fresh, clean sheets, a table near the bed.

Emily glanced around. The light from the solitary window was far from adequate, and the single bulb, hanging from the ceiling, failed to dispel much of the gloom. Suddenly Emily knew what she should do.

"We'll take your wife to the hospital, immediately," she called to Bower. She placed her own fur coat around the girl's shoulders.

"At once," Emily's order without question, Bower hurriedly wrapped his wife in a blanket, lifted her to the car. Emily followed.

Not too fast—not too slow, she remembered as she turned the car around, headed back toward the hospital. "Oh God, make Alan be there . . . and let us get there in time," she prayed.

It seemed like it would take hours to reach the hospital. Emily drove as fast as she dared, trying to hurry, yet trying to avoid all unnecessary jerks and bumps. Angela sat, light in her husband's arms, biting her lips to keep from crying out.

An attendant met them at the ambulance entrance.

"Obstetrical case. Dr. Warren or Dr. Farrell. Mrs. William Bower." Emily said tersely. The attendant lifted the girl from the car, carried her inside and on to a waiting elevator. Bower followed. Emily parked her car, then hurried up the stairs to the office.

"Is Dr. Warren here?" she asked the girl on duty there. "Were you able to find him? If you can't get Alan find Dr. Farrell, I'm sure it will be all right. I'm Mrs. Warren," she added.

"We're unable to locate either Dr. Warren or Dr. Farrell, just now," the girl replied. "We'll keep trying. Will you wait, Mrs. Warren? Right in the next room, please."

"Thanks. You'd better have someone examine Mrs. Bower. I just brought her in. She may need a doctor right away."

EMILY paced the floor of the waiting room. She could not sit still. If anything should happen to Mrs. Bower, to her baby, Emily knew she would always feel that it had been her fault. If she had never had any such crazy notion of divorcing Alan, he would have been at home when Bower came for him. Oh, why can't they find him!

"We've located Dr. Warren and Dr. Farrell," the office girl said from the doorway. "They are on their way here now."

It seemed like hours, but it was only a few minutes later when she heard the big door open, and then the sound of Alan's feet on the steps. She would recognize that footstep anywhere, day or night. And Farrell's soft, low whistle as he trotted on up the steps to the obstetrical ward. Alan paused at the desk.

"Mrs. Bower is in, Doctor," she heard the girl say. "And Mrs. Warren is in the waiting room."

"Mrs. Warren?" Alan asked sharply.

Then he was at the door, looking at her, incredulously.

"Emily, what are you doing here?" "I brought Mrs. Bower. Her husband came for you. I went with him. I thought she had better be here."

"Emily!" Admiration echoed in the word.

"Dr. Warren, Dr. Warren," the office girl's voice broke in. "You're wanted in delivery room B. Dr. Farrell says for you to hurry."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

Sunday school, 9:45 a. m. Morning worship, 11 a. m. Wednesday, testimonial service 8 p. m.

Public cordially invited. "Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 2.

The Golden Text is: "Remove far from me vanity and lies; give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me" (Proverbs 30:8).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And he answered, Fear not: for they that be with us are more than they that be with them. And Elisha prayed, and said, Lord, I pray thee, open his eyes, that he may see. And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man; and he saw, and behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha" (II Kings 6:16, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "All the evidence of physical sense and all the knowledge obtained from physical sense must yield to Science, to the immortal truth of all things" (page 493).

Dogwood Tours to Start At Palestine

By United Press PALESTINE, Texas—This East Texas city of 15,000, and the farm homes that surround it, have thrown open the doors to the sightseeing residents of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas whose fancies turn to a tour through pine-clad hills and flowered timberlands when the dogwoods are in bloom.

Designated tours have been mapped out for the visitors to the second annual Texas Dogwood

Trails, and to make it unnecessary for the motorist to stop and ask directions, markers have been put on each route.

Four trails, ranging in length from eight miles to 27, have been arranged for the drivers. On all of them he will find the dogwoods in bloom, and among them he also will find redbud trees and wild verbena and other spring flowers. During the dogwood trails season, which extends to April 9, visitors will be welcome at clubs, lodges, and picnic grounds thrown open to them.

Started last year as an event designed to help people enjoy the natural beauty of the section, the Texas Dogwood Trails have been made completely non-commercial. There are no souvenirs to buy, no quest books to sign, and maps are provided just for the asking. Last year it was estimated that 5,000 persons went over the trails during the two-week scheduled season, and this year invitation booklets and cards have been sent to nearly 30,000 persons.

Paul Preaches the Risen Christ

Text: Acts 13:16, 23-31, 38, 39; I Cor. 15:19-22

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

THIS is the lesson for Easter, and from no part of the Bible—unless it be the story of the resurrection itself—could one find a more appropriate lesson for Easter than in the writings of Paul.

Paul's whole faith and purpose centered around the strong conviction that Jesus, the Lord of love and the Master of his life, was not dead but living. He claimed that, in addition to those who had seen the risen Lord, he himself had beheld Him "as one born out of the season."

Why was this fact of the resurrection so important to Paul? Why should the love of Christ, from which Paul said nothing could separate him, not have been for Paul a sufficient motive, apart altogether from the question of the resurrection?

Without the resurrection there was no assurance that these forces of love and truth would win. The fact and symbol of the conquest of life over death, of love over hate, of right over wrong, were the first fruits of the resurrection.

It is not easy to fight in a losing cause, especially if one has the assurance of permanent defeat. One may lose a battle or give his life bravely and willingly in battle, if he knows that his is the cause that will ultimately triumph. Paul's faith in the eternal power of love and in the eternal right of justice would probably have been asked if he had not believed that these things were stronger than evil and that they would prevail. The resurrection of Jesus was the symbol and the proof of this triumph of right.

It was this that Paul meant when he said, "If we have only hoped in Christ in this life, we are of all men most pitiable." What is noble about suffering and sacrifice if it is all to no avail? It was not at all a matter of living a right life and doing good in the hope of a certain reward. It was rather a question of the power of right itself.

Has Paul's faith in the resurrection been vindicated in history? Would it have been possible for the Church to have lived and achieved what it has accomplished if there had not been plain assurance that the Christ, in whom men have placed their faith, is living and not dead?

It is this conviction that has been the power and strength of the Church, as it was the power and strength of Paul. Christians are not following a Christ who is dead and gone, but a Christ of the living present who is still leading on.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—One of the sharpest blows yet leveled at the New Deal's relief system is being swung by a man who, ironically enough, is in a position to swing it because of the one success which the presidential "purge" of last autumn had.

Congressman Edward Eugene Cox of Georgia is the gentleman in question. He has put forward a resolution to investigate WPA from top to bottom, and his ultimate aim is nothing less than complete abolition of WPA and retirement of the federal government from the work relief field.

A Democrat, Congressman Cox is a vehement anti-New Dealer. The "purge" was not openly aimed at him last year, although he says that undercover attempts were made to defeat him. But the one man who was licked by the purge was Congressman John O'Connor of New York, who as chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee was in a position to obstruct the New Deal legislative program.

O'Connor's defeat was the bright spot of the campaign, as far as the New Deal was concerned. His departure meant that chairmanship of the rules committee passed to Congressman Adolph Sabath of Illinois, a New Dealer himself. It looked as if things would be better.

But Sabath has been unable to control the rules committee. He lacks the force to take the committee over the hurdles, and before long virtual control of the committee had pretty much passed to Edward Eugene Cox, who is his ranking Democratic member next to Sabath.

Congressman Clifton Woodrum of Virginia is known as a leader of the "conservative bloc" in the House. He has resisted efforts to restore to the WPA deficiency bill the $150,000,000 which was cut from it by Congress a month ago. Just the other day he charged that hundreds of millions of dollars appropriated by Congress for relief had not been spent for relief at all, and demanded that WPA render an accounting.

And Cox's resolution for a WPA investigation specifies that the investigation be performed by the House Appropriations subcommittee which is run by Woodrum. Woodrum, says Cox, is well-balanced, able, industrious and courageous; perhaps it is only coincidence that he is almost the last man the White House would enjoy seeing in charge of a probe of WPA.

Cox's resolution provides that a report on this investigation be made at this session of Congress—presumably, for the guidance of Congress in its determination whether or not to restore that pruned $150,000,000. In reality, however, Cox foresees a continuing investigation which will have to go on after this session ends. He points out that the subcommittee which his resolution names already has the machinery of investigation at its disposal, so that it could swing into action as soon as the resolution was adopted.

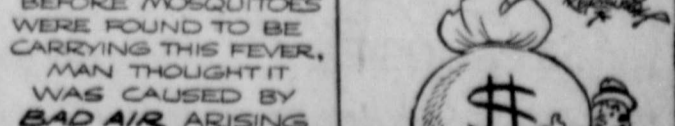

He expects that the subcommittee will "subpoena everybody who knows anything about WPA," from Colonel Harrington on down. As a matter of fact, the ultimate goal in Cox's mind is abolition of WPA. He thinks the government ought to get out of the work relief business; thinks that a year, probably, will be ample time to taper off and liquidate the whole thing.
