O'DANIEL CONDEMNED IN THE HOUSE FOR HIS SUNDAY MORNING TALK

AUSTIN, April 3.—A barrage of condemnation of Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's Sunday morning radio talk from the executive mansion, was loosed today in the Texas House of Representatives.

Rep. Abe Sayers of Atlanta, who had supported the governor earlier, charged that O'Daniel's radio broadcast yesterday "would have made Hitler blush with shame." Rep. W. J. Galbreath, the Wharton blacksmith, who has consistently opposed the governor, said that he should be "blasted out of office."

Galbreath said that O'Daniel "has repudiated in every detail" the platform upon which he was elected.

"When a man is disloyal, unstable and unbound he is dangerous and has no place in the public affairs of this state," Galbreath said.

The old people and poor people of this state have no one to blame but yourselves and your governor. If you people had kept your mouths shut and listened to your friends you would have had your pension money by this time.

Mays once considered a possible appointee by O'Daniel as secretary of state, said he was restrained by the governor from introducing O'Daniel's transactions tax plan as an amendment to the resolution for a sales tax which the house defeated last week.

CITY ELECTION TOMORROW MAY DRAW BIG VOTE

Pre-election indications were, today, that a large vote would be cast in the Ranger city election, to be held Tuesday, when a mayor and four city commissioners are to be elected. Only two of the five positions are uncontested.

Most of the candidates were making their last appeals to the voters today, in the hope that some who have been undecided as to their choice for some of the positions might be swung into line in the last minutes of the campaign, which has been one of the most active in years, but one which has been carried on along conservative lines.

Ballots have already been printed and delivered for the election, and only one voting box will be open, all voters using the City Hall box.

C. E. May is to have charge of the election, with Ray Campbell and R. S. Balch as election judges and Mrs. Ken Ambrose and Mrs. Martha Davenport as clerks.

The order in which the names appear on the ballot is as follows: For Mayor: Hall Walker.

One Type of Peaceful War Preparedness

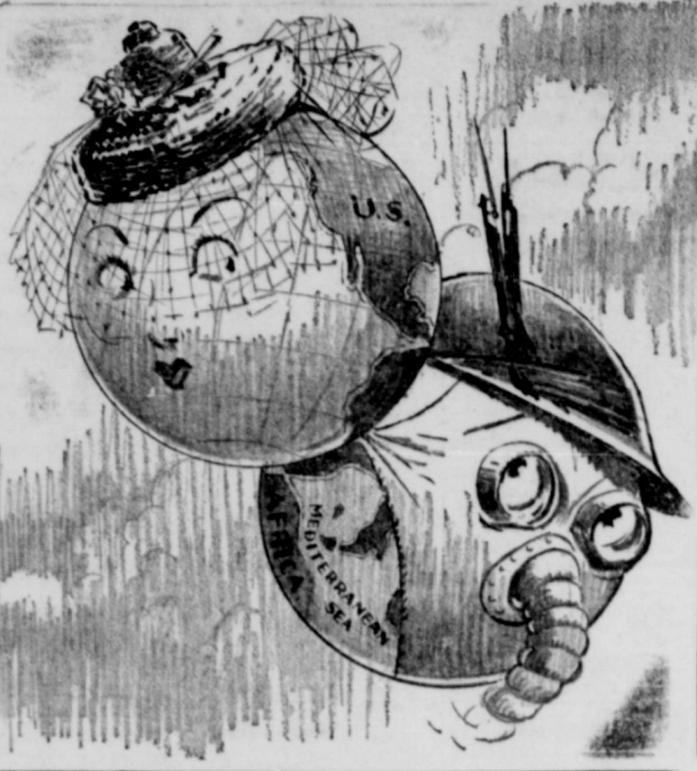

Most war preparation is economic lost motion. It results in unproductive production—that is, the production of things which are of no value in themselves to men, and which are not productive of other valuable things. Guns, bombs, and bayonets are like that. But the Senate is now embarked on a preparedness program that is less on the unproductive side than almost any other. It is the buying up in advance of certain materials which might be hard or impossible to get in time of war. All are useful in peace as well as in war. Not only a war in which the United States was involved, but any war, might make it dangerous or impossible to get the things in question. So the buying and stocking of quantities of them might well make it possible to stay out of another war in which the United States was not concerned. For it could then laugh at naval blockades, cornering of markets, or other steps that warring countries might take.

At the rate of $25,000,000 a year, it is now proposed to buy $100,000,000 worth of certain basic materials. Most of these materials are not produced in the United States, or produced in quantities that do not fill potential war-time demands. They are in general non-perishable. They could be stocked against an emergency without competing in domestic markets. Purchase of these things will further provide American dollars for countries, most of them in South America, which now find it hard to buy American goods because the United States does not buy enough of their products to provide needed exchange.

Perhaps even greater benefits could come from the plan if the deals for these materials were made in gold. Thus they would not increase the national debt, and surplus gold not needed for monetary coverage would be furnished to countries which desperately need to keep their currencies on some kind of par with our own. In any event, the plan is one of the more farsighted means of preparedness against any possible emergency. It may well bring benefits both to the United States and to the countries whose products are bought, and if properly engineered might make at least a partial blessing out of part of the curse of the armament burden.

Mayor Walker Issues Statement Regard Election

The following statement was issued today by Mayor Hall Walker, candidate for re-election, on the election to be held tomorrow: Tomorrow is election day. Two years ago, you sit fit to elect me to the office of Mayor of Ranger, all of which I appreciate very much. I have attempted to show my appreciation by doing everything I thought best to do for the City in order to make it a better town for the future, and give local people all the work that could possibly be had. If I have accomplished anything along with the other boys on the City Commission, I contribute this accomplishment to the fact I have had their co-operation and the co-operation of the citizens of Ranger in every manner. I do not believe it is possible for a member of the City Commission, or the Commission as a whole, to accomplish very much unless harmony prevails, and you have to have the co-operation of the people. I have always been a believer we should put our tax renditions at a value where the property owners will receive something from his investment. Unless you give the property owner something from his investment, you cannot expect him to improve his property; you cannot expect him to pay his taxes promptly, or be very much interested in it. Our equalization boards have been unusually considerate along this line. They have tried to work with the City Commission to accomplish this end. I am sure we have made our errors and we will be subject to errors in the future, however, it is my plans to work to the best interest of the citizens of Ranger and all interested in Ranger. I am a believer that we should have cheaper water rates, all the City could afford to give and with the others on the commission, work out a summer rate which I believe has accomplished a great deal towards getting people more interested in using water for beautification and domestic use. To further substantiate this, two years ago, we had 896 water meters. Today we have a few over 1,000. I contribute this increase to summer rates, plus elimination of tapping fees through summer months. The reduction of summer rates has brought the City approximately $2,500 in less cash each year and the consumer has received benefit of this reduction. Yet, I believe it is good business for the City to give this rate, and I promised this in my campaign two years ago. I also stated that we should work to get our indebtedness reduced and in the past two years, we have been successful in purchasing from the bond holders and warrant holders $67,204.37 of coupons and warrants which we paid $47,767.48. I am very proud of this accomplishment. This is along the line of my pledge to you when elected. At this time, we have contacted our bond holders; have sent each a registered letter outlining the City's financial affairs and what they may expect in the future. We are now in the process of reducing our bonded indebtedness more than $100,000.00 and should have this completed within the very near future.

J. J. Kelly Makes A Last Statement To City's Voters

J. J. Kelly, city water commissioner, today issued the following statement concerning his campaign: TO THE CITIZENS OF RANGER: As a member of the City Commission I wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of Ranger for the whole hearted co-operation which they have given us the past two years. To you is due the credit for whatever of good the commission may have accomplished during the past two years, and whatever may be accomplished in the next two years will in the last analysis depend upon the support and co-operation you lend to those charged with the responsibility of your city government. Due to the fact that a large portion of the operating expense of the city is derived from the water receipts we have not been able to reduce the base rate but we have kept the city on a cash basis paying all current bills when due, and intend to so continue, if possible. I have tried to be very conservative in my department with the expenditure of your money. When I took over your Water Department two years ago, we were faced with the extremely questionable task of cleaning the main line from the plant to the city, in order to reduce pumping expense, which was piling up higher and higher each month, in the face of dwindling receipts. We took bids from contractors which ran as high as $1,500.00 for supervision of the job, which would have made the job cost the city $2,500.00 to $3,000.00, which was prohibitive. So we took "Ferdinand" by the horns and with the co-operation of the entire city force, we purchased the necessary equipment, and did the job at a cost of about $750.00, thereby reducing our pumping costs materially. It is our hope that this city shall some day have a water supply of their own, own their own lines to the city, and furnish water to our people at a cost basis, and to that end we are now working. Under our WPA project, which is in the process of Governmental approval at this time, we can build a lake and a main line to the City, build and equip a modern plant, furnish the city with a wholesome supply of water, furnish work for almost two years to a large group of unemployed people, who need it badly, and liquidate the entire debt for same in twenty years, without any additional taxes being placed upon an already overburdened citizen. Since we have acquired the names of our bond holders and in the process of contacting them, I am also of the opinion that we will get our indebtedness worked out in a very satisfactory manner in the very near future. My plan is to get all information possible to the bond holders of the City's ability to pay and the present condition of the City's financial affairs and then call the Ranger citizens who are interested in the bond holders. Satisfactory to Ranger's citizens, I could name numerous other things accomplished, but feel the above more important. I wish to thank all citizens for their continued support. HALL WALKER.

CANNERS SHUT DOWN

SAN JOSE, Cal.—It is presumed that a cry of joy will go from American youngsters as great as the groan of woe that came out of Santa Clara Valley when spinach farmers were formed by several canning concerns that there will be no canning of spinach this year. This is the height of the season for canning spinach, but the crop over from last year is sufficient for the coming year.

BONE SETTING STUDY OPENS

The course is free of charge and is being completed and the bonded obligation for same is paid off, which can be supplied to the people at a greatly reduced cost.

I have tried to conduct the affairs of your City, coming under my supervision, with fairness to everyone, and special concessions to none and on policies which considered economically sound. If my efforts appear to you merit your continued confidence, I think I have been faithful to your trust, if you think I have worked at the job, and for the benefit of the people as a whole, I am grateful, and shall appreciate most highly your continued support in the future. J. J. KELLY.

AUSTIN, Tex.—Livestock shipments to Fort Worth stockyards and interstate points during February jumped to 4,298 cars, an increase of 33.6 per cent over February of last year. The increase was due largely to increased shipments to feeding areas in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Iowa and Illinois, Bureau statisticians said. Cattle shipments totaled 2,681 cars, up 39.4 per cent over last year; calves, 597 cars, gained 28.4 per cent; hogs, 689 cars, increased 27.1 per cent, and sheep, 331 cars, gained 16.1 per cent.

2 Members Of U.T. Staff Get Awards

AUSTIN, Tex.—Two University of Texas staff members, both women, have received $2,500 awards for study abroad in their respective fields of work from the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation. Miss Hilda Rosene, holder of a doctor of philosophy degree from the University and assistant professor of zoology, will delve into the "secret" of the "living water pump" that supplies water to the leaves of trees hundreds of feet high and to the body tissues of the human body. Her laboratory experiments, carried on at present and for the past several years, with the roots of the onion, have already won her national recognition through papers presented before the American Association for the Advancement of Science and contributed to professional journals on physiology. Miss Fannie Ratheford, librarian of the University's rare book collections, will undertake a study of purported forgeries of famous rare books. She will spend much of her time conferring with eminent European collectors in London. This is the second Guggenheim grant Miss Ratheford has received, the first being in 1929 to enable her to study early writing of Charlotte Bronte.

SERIAL STORY

'MRS. DOC' BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

The characters and situations in this story are wholly fictional.

CHAPTER XXIII

ALAN turned from her. Emily saw the light of the elevator moving upward as she reached the door.

"Nothing is going to happen to Angela, Billy," Emily spoke as if to a child.

"If it will calm you down any, I'll go," Emily answered. The superintendent or the floor nurse might order her to leave.

Second floor. Surgical, the sign read. The clean odor of disinfectant and medicines and sterile cleanliness. The sound of a childish laugh. Whispered conversations. Signs on doors—"No visitors."

Third floor. Medical. The faint sound of a dietitian's cart as it rolled along the corridor. How different this was from the bustle of the St. Louis hospitals she had known.

Fourth floor. Maternity. So strangely still. The faint sound of a radio. She could see young Billy Bower pacing up and down in front of the glass doors of the sun porch.

"How's Angela? The baby?" he asked anxiously. "Angela is all right," Emily reassured him.

"You're sure Angela's all right, Mrs. Doc?" he asked. "See if anything happened to her—she's all I've got."

They were able to comfort and cheer. No wonder their words brought peace when all others failed.

A faint—exceedingly faint—cry brought her back to the present. She heard Farrell saying—"It's a girl, a fine girl."

Then Alan—"Oxygen" Nurses moving rapidly. Farrell hurrying past the door. Then the regular measured clicks of the inhalator.

AFTER a long wait, Emily heard Angela's voice, bewildered and wondering. "My baby, my baby!"

"I've been here for years," said softly, "but I still get a thrill hearing that first cry."

"The nurse started to refuse, and hurry on, but the floor superintendent's glance stopped her.

"Here, here, Emily, none of that. You've just saved that baby's life. Then everything went black."

WASHINGTON LETTER

By ART KRENZ NEA Service Staff Writer

PINEHURST, N. C.—Professional golf is very much out of the red. The pros who are now on the final legs of the winter tour are sure of making expenses or better—which is more than many of them can say for seasons past.

No 72-hole tournament was played for less than $5000 this winter.

The touring pros will have split a meager $115,000 for the winter circuit which started last November and winds up early in April. They will have competed in 21 tournaments averaging close to $5500 per event, which is the highest total ever knocked down for a winter tour.

Not only are the touring professionals competing for larger purses but their traveling expenses are being cut down by elimination of long jumps. The 21 winter tours were spread over a period of four months, which meant a tournament a week, cutting out long hops.

AVERAGE expense for a winter tour golfer is $1500, but by doubling up, sharing automobile expenses and so on, it can be done for $600 apiece.

Biggest expense is neither transportation, food or lodging. The pros claim caddy fees are the biggest expense, amounting to about one-third of the total.

Forty-two professionals have won $250 or better. The top 16 have shared $40,000. With five tournaments to go, Dutch Harrison, star of the winter circuit from Oak Park, Ill., was leading with $4189, followed closely by Dick Metz, Henry Picard, Sam Snead, and Byron Nelson, all over $3000.

"There is more money in professional golf than there is in baseball," claims Fred Corcoran, P. G. A. tournament manager. "Sam Snead, who set a record for money won in one year, made more in 1938 than did Joe DiMaggio."

Snead cashed checks which totaled $35,000 in his second year of pro golf.

"The top-notchers make $10,000 a year or better," Corcoran continues. "Didn't Sam Byrd top up a $7500 baseball contract with the Yankees to devote his time to golf?"

The upswing in golf also is shown by the increased size of galleries. The New Orleans Open made free to the public, attracted 32,000 people in four days, setting a winter tournament record when 14,000 were present the final day.

COMPETITORS also have done much to end the depression in golf. One would have to look mighty far for a better-conditioned group of athletes. (By Cobb says golf is the best conditioner for any athlete.)

Continuous practice by professionals guarantees spectators the best brand of golf possible, whether the pro plays in a $3000 tournament or the richest event in the sport.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

ALTHOUGH this column urges large quantities of fruits and vegetables, both raw and cooked, in the daily diet, it must not be assumed that meat is not also favored.

Meat is recognized as an excellent source of high quality protein. The nutritive value of any protein depends upon the number and amount of amino-acids present.

The superiority of animal proteins is an accepted fact. Meat proteins have an excellent supplementary value, which means they make up the amino-acid deficiencies of the cereal grain proteins.

Experiments conducted at the University of Missouri showed that dripping from meat which has been braised contained more protein than drippings from roasted meat. A greater degree of "doneness" increased the loss of protein in beef cooked by both methods.

Fat Meats Energy Rich

Meat, especially fat meat, such as bacon, is a rich source of energy. The actual caloric value of a serving of meat depends upon the amount of fat it contains and also upon the amount of fat eaten.

For this reason, meat may be fitted into the reducing diet, in which high quality protein is essential but where the caloric value must be decreased. Cooking causes loss of fat, this loss increasing with oven temperature and cooking period.

Iron and phosphorus are the two minerals of which meat is a rich source. The availability of iron in foodstuffs has been the subject of investigation because the measure of the value of any nutrient is the extent to which it is utilized by the body.

Studies on the availability of iron in certain foodstuffs were conducted by Sherman, Elvehjem and Hart at the University of Wisconsin.

Iron Content High

These workers found that there is a decided difference in the availability of iron from various foods. The meat products studied, including pork and beef livers, serving of meat depends upon the amount of fat it contains and also upon the amount of fat eaten.
