The Road Must Be Kept Open for Youth

Repeatedly it has been said, but it can not be said too often: The war in Europe must not be allowed to distract the United States completely from its own internal problems. They are just as important in spite of the war situation—perhaps more important.

The American Youth Commission has done a service in calling attention to the fact that the United States must "put its house in order at all costs," and that immediate objectives must be "the improvement of the health, education, and employment opportunities of our young people, to the end that they may have a sense of quickening life and power in this nation."

The Youth Commission, which is not a governmental organization and associations. It has a distinguished non-political board.

It believes that the first duty the United States owes to its youths is to take care that it is not involved in the European war unless its territories are actually invaded, or its vital interests attacked. For it is youth which is sent out to die, which bears the brunt of the sacrifice, the loss, the tragedy.

Look at the pictures of the young men being called to the colors in Europe—French, German, British. They are bright-eyed, beardless kids, many of them looking as though they would fit better into a Boy Scout uniform than into the shapely dungarees which are today's war kit. This is no reflection on these boys. They will fight bravely enough, and die bravely enough, just as their fathers did. Look at your own picture, World War veteran, as you were when you put on khaki in 1917. These kids are no younger than you were then.

So the best service we can render our youth is not to sacrifice them. But the Youth Commission looks even farther ahead. "By remaining at peace," it insists, "all the countries of this hemisphere can be of inestimable value to the other nations of the world when the present struggle is over. With their youth vigorous and unimpaired, they may become for a time the only repository of sound government throughout the world."

Go back to 1919. Hitler, a demobilized corporal, finds a civil life awaiting him which offers no place, no opportunity, no hope. He turns to political agitation. A million other veterans, equally frustrated, are eager listeners. Younger men, reared amid the privations and looming horror of the war and its aftermath, are equally eager for something that promises — that offers hope. Directly from the seedbeds fertilized by the World War, there springs up Hitler, and 1939 is on the way.

Its youth is any country's greatest asset; in a sense, its only asset. It must be guarded jealously by remedying deficiencies in employment, in education, in health. The promise of useful employment must be realized. Only by thus keeping the avenues of hope open to the coming generation can the American future be kept bright.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt may not care to accept the German hint that he act as mediator to help restore peace to Europe—but in two previous communications to Hitler he is on record as favoring mediation in international disputes, "however difficult of peaceful settlement they may be," and less than six months ago he offered to serve as a mediator himself.

These two communications were, first, the message sent to Hitler in September of 1938, when the Munich agreement was in the making, and, second, the appeal he dispatched last April.

In the April appeal, President Roosevelt told Hitler:

"It is still clear to me that international problems can be solved at the council table.

"It is therefore no answer to the plea for peaceful discussion for one side to plead that unless they receive assurances beforehand that the victor will be theirs they will not lay aside their arms. In conference rooms, as in courts, it is necessary that both sides enter upon the discussion in good faith, assuming that substantial justice will accrue to both."

That paragraph has been pointed upon by the organized peace societies, which have been urging ever since the first of September that America try to mediate the war.

Frederick J. Libby, head of the National Council for the Prevention of War, declaring that it is "a message from Roosevelt to Roosevelt," calls on the President to accept the German hint and offer mediation; and he asserts that it is a "timely answer to the claim that the British and French cannot negotiate unless they are first as-

School Safety Week, Diphtheria Takes Heavy Death Toll Throughout State

AUSTIN, Tex.—Almed at a re-evaluation of the traffic fatality and injury toll among the 1,565,000 public school children and 60,000 college students of Texas, over a score of state and civic agencies and organizations were completing plans today for the observance of School Safety Week, October 30-November 4.

Citing the fact that in Texas the "bumper" is more deadly than the bayonet," George Clarke, executive secretary of the Texas Safety Association, declared that during the first eight months of this year a total of 283 of the school and college age group had been killed in traffic accidents while an additional 2819 had received hospitalization.

"Leaders of safety and education, realizing that this is one of the major problems confronting the state today, have coordinated their efforts in awakening the public to the necessity of immediate action through a state-wide educational program.

"The press, radio, an army of speakers, the State Departments of Education and Public Safety, the American Legion, Congress of Parents and Teachers, Junior Chambers of Commerce, 1109 city and 254 county school superintendents, and many other civic groups have notified the Association of their full fledged cooperation in the program," Clarke said.

Increased education of the general public on the importance of diphtheria inoculation has resulted in decreased death rates from diphtheria. Year by year mortality from diphtheria is decreasing, as witness the fact that in Texas 457 children died from diphtheria in 1935; 351 in 1936; 238 in 1937; and 233 in 1938.

You can help the Texas State Department of Health attain a goal of not one death a year from diphtheria, and protect your loved ones by seeing that they are immunized at once.

Prevention of diphtheria in children is a simple matter of inoculation with toxoid. If your child is six months old or more, take him to your family physician and have toxoid administered. The technique of inoculation causes the child no discomfort. In approximately 90 per cent of children receiving toxoid, there will be established a lifetime immunity to the disease.

To be sure that this immunity has been established in your child, six months after the first dose of toxoid, he should be taken to the physician to be Schick tested to determine his positive immunity against diphtheria. The test consists of injecting a few drops of diphtheria toxin between the layers of the skin. If the child is immune no reaction will be noted. If not, there will appear some redness at the site of injection in three or four days.

Compresses Show Employment Growth During Season

AUSTIN, Tex.—Cotton compresses led the state's industrial procession during September by seasonally doubling the number of workers employed and much more than doubling payrolls, University of Texas business research officials report.

These plants employed 97.5 per cent more workers than in August and a fraction of one per cent more than in September last year. Their weekly payrolls were 149.5 per cent higher than in August and 13.3 per cent above September, 1938.

Manufacturing industries raised their payroll level 3.6 per cent and number of workers 3.4 per cent above September last year. Little change was noted from the August, 1939, figures. Total estimated weekly payrolls were $2,615,693, and number of employed workers 130,247.

Non-manufacturing industries kept employment and payrolls at approximately the same as in August and in September, last year.

Ennis Team Makes 5.1 Yards Per Play

By United Press
ENNIS, Tex.—During their first five games this year, the Ennis High School football team averaged 5.1 yards for each time it carried the ball, more than a first down every two thrusts an opponents line.

Ennis backs tried 219 running plays in the five games, and the net gain was 1,120 yards. Alphone Mock, Vernon Muirhead and Fred Crews gained most of the ground. Mock's 5.9-yard average was the best.

The Cut is Casual-But It's Ermine

In a season of elegance, casually cut jackets of precious and semi-precious furs are eye-catching. This smart evening model—as casually cut as a campus cardigan—is worn by Hollywood's top-flight actress, Bette Davis. It's of snowy white Russian ermine with three-quarter length sleeves and flanged shoulder treatment which forms a Peter Pan shaped collar at the front.

Flax, a New Texas Crop, Enters Gulf Coast Farm Belt

HOUSTON, Tex.—Travelers through the farm lands of the Gulf Coast of Texas have this year noted a new crop growing along with the traditional cotton, corn and feed-stuffs of Gulf Coast agriculture. Inquiry elicited the information that the new crop is flax, and to the wondering questions, "why flax?" the answer is "Linseed oil," an essential oil in a good many industries, and particularly in the manufacture of paint.

The crop season of 1938-39 saw 16,000 Gulf coast acres planted to flax, and the prospect for 1939-40 is between one and two hundred thousand acres planted to the crop.

Behind this profitable addition to the coastal farmer's crops is the idea of an industrialist that Texas can produce what Texans use. The industrialist is H. K. Kuhn, president of the Kuhn Paint & Varnish Works of Houston, where he practices the theory of Texas production for Texas use which he preaches. Indeed, the paint he manufactures—Kuhn's Climatized Paint—is specially made for the climate of the Southwest, and in it he utilizes, insofar as it is at all possible, products of the region in which it is sold.

With this basic policy for his business, Mr. Kuhn has for years been endeavoring to interest agricultural interests on the Texas coast in the production of crops from which the oils needed in paint manufacture are derived.

In the face of the conviction of many that flax was not a crop which could be raised in Texas, Mr. Kuhn brought in parcels of flax seed from Argentina and distributed them among farming friends throughout the State. The results of these private experimental plots was so encouraging that the A&M College of Texas became interested in them, and eventually undertook to do some experimental work at the various Gulf Coast Experiment Stations. These experiments, carried out with scientific precision, were so successful that flax was established as a most desirable winter crop for Gulf Coast planting. As a cash crop, it replaced farm income reduced by restriction of acreage, and it provided diversification.

Today, a large cotton has two of its mills to flaxseed, and the oil produced said to be of better quality more abundant than the seed from the flaxseed of the West, formerly the chief American source of supply.

So, now, if you please, farmers have another crop on their farms, one that has broadened its market processing the new crop, the Texas industry is with one of its manufacturing sources from a supply at home.

Tobacco

...opens Doors to Fields where People Live, Work & Achieve

Today there are about 1,000,000 cigar stores, drug stores, country and grocery stores where you can buy cigarettes in the United States. These retailers, and the jobbers who serve them, have built up a service of courtesy and convenience unmatched by any other industry catering to the American public's pleasure.

THERE ARE ANOTHER MILLION people who are engaged directly or indirectly in the transportation of cigarettes to every town, hamlet and crossroads.

IT IS ESTIMATED that there are 1,602,000 tobacco farmers raising tobacco in 20 out of the 48 states. Good tobacco is one of the hardest crops to raise and bring to market, requiring great skill and patience from seed-bed planting to harvesting and curing. The modern tobacco farmer has done well the job of constantly improving the quality of his product.

THE AVERAGE LENGTH of service of the 13,230 people working in the Chesterfield factories, storage houses, leaf-handling and redrying plants is over 10 years. This means that every step in the making of Chesterfields, regardless of how small, is handled by people who have had 10 years of experience and ability in knowing their jobs.

TRULY TOBACCO OPENS DOORS to fields where people live, work and achieve, and Chesterfield takes pride in its ever increasing part in this great industry that is devoted entirely to the pleasure of the American public.

TO SMOKERS, Chesterfield Cigarettes have always said, and now repeat, that in no other cigarette made can you find the same degree of real mildness and good taste, or the same high quality of properly cured and aged tobaccos. Chesterfield Cigarettes are made with one purpose only... to give smokers everywhere the MILD, BETTER-TASTING SMOKING PLEASURE they want. You can't buy a better cigarette.

Records Reveal A Coach Penalized His Team For Coaching

PHILADELPHIA—The University of Pennsylvania football handbook reveals an unusual incident in which a coach penalized his own team in the 1904 game against Franklin and Marshall. William Morice, a Penn. coach, was umpiring the game. He forgot himself when one of his players made a high tackle and took time to lecture and demonstrate to his man the proper technique. F. & M. protested and Morice stepped off a five-yard penalty against Penn for coaching.

Cabin Dweller Is Lolling In Riches

By United Press FITTSTOWN, Okla. - Uncle Andy Harden, 85, views with concern the approach of cool weather. Autumn temperatures will prevent him from using his 3-ton air conditioning unit, just installed in his log cabin this summer, until next June rolls around.

Uncle Andy, who became wealthy several years ago when oil in the famed Pitts pool was struck on his land, has lived in the log cabin for 57 years.

He had scorned all but a few modern conveniences, until he succumbed to last July's heat and the persuasiveness of a salesman, and bought the air conditioning unit.

He was a little skeptical at first, friends say, but now admits he likes the "contraption."

Its greatest convenience, Uncle Andy asserts, is that it allows him to stay at home on hot summer days. Staying at home has become almost a fetish with Uncle Andy.

In 1934, when his 285-acre farm was in the midst of the spectacular Pitts pool oil play, lease-brokers hunted his little cabin.

Uncle Andy permitted the oil companies to drill on most of his land, but when they insisted on offering him $100,000 for the 10 acres on which his cabin stood, the old pioneer balked.

"They ain't going to drill on this 10 acres and I ain't going to move off," he declared. "They ain't and I ain't."

Uncle Andy has been a millwright by trade all his life, and takes pride in the things he has built with his own hands. That's why, he says, he loves his cabin.

He built the structure in 1882, cutting his own logs from the nearby forests and shaping the native stone for the huge rock fireplace and chimney at one end of the cabin.

When oil made him one of the richest men in oil-rich Pontotoc county, Uncle Andy still refused to bow to modern devices or to leave his little cabin. His only concessions were mechanical refrigeration and an automobile.
