LaFollette and 11 others introduced a constitutional amendment at the last session of congress, providing for a national referendum on war.

COMPLAINT IS FILED AGAINST U. S. RAILWAYS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The justice department today filed a complaint in District of Columbia federal court charging the Association of American Railroads, its officers and 236 member railroads with violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The complaint charged that the member roads sought to restrain trade by refusing to extend to motor carriers the cooperation in carrying freight and passengers which the roads customarily extend to each other.

The department charged the railroads tried to eliminate motor carrier competition by "refusing to establish rates on loaded trucks, trailers and truck bodies."

The justice department announced it discovered resolutions passed by the association in alleged violation of the anti-trust laws some time ago, but that "due to limitations of personnel it has been impossible for the departments to investigate."

The defendants cooperated in the investigation by furnishing complete information and thus made criminal action inappropriate.

The statement said the network of railways constituted "potentially one great railway system" and was held together by through rates and other transportation practices.

NAZI PAPERS IN BARRAGE UPON ENGLAND

Germany loosed a sensational newspaper barrage today warning Great Britain the hour had come for merciless war "with a sharp sword."

The speech of von Ribbentrop foreign minister, charging England with plotting the European conflict to destroy Germany was described by Nazi newspapers as a declaration of "war to the death," and a probable prelude to big-scale bombardment of the British Isles.

Weapons alone will count from now on, the inspired newspapers said, and there will be no Nazi move toward peace because the British Empire's "world domination" is now at stake.

The outburst followed intensification of Nazi marine attacks on the allied blockade and persistent British reports the Germans plan a major thrust on the Rhine land front.

The Nazis were careful to emphasize—on the eve of a senate vote on United States neutrality bill—their friendship for the Americans and that they were fighting only because "England is threatening our country."

It was disclosed in Berlin Germany has negotiated with Russia regarding the City of Flint, captured by a Nazi warship and taken to the Russian Arctic coast. The whereabouts of the American crew remained a mystery.

Both British and French reaction to the German foreign minister's speech was it was a futile attempt to cause dissent in Allied ranks. British Royal Air planes reportedly made scout raids deep into Germany during the speech. "Thousands of persons" were reported by British sources to have stopped listening to their foreign minister's radio address to run for air-raid shelters.

With three Baltic states already signed up, Russia's biggest trouble at the moment continued to center around negotiations with Finland. The Finnish delegation returned home with demands from the Soviets, presumably for bases in the Gulf of Finland and a share in control of the Aland Islands. It was believed that these demands offered a basis for agreement. There was no certainty the danger of a break had passed.

To Do Hard Trick, First Step Is to Realize Difficulty

Attorney General Frank Murphy has assigned himself one of the most difficult of all tasks. The best hope for carrying it through lies in the fact that he cognizes in advance the difficulties, is preparing for them, and is determined to see them through.

He has assured the National Conference on Civil Liberties in the Present Emergency that "we can prevent and punish the abuse of liberty by sabotage, disorder, and violence without destroying liberty itself." Murphy left no doubt that he intends to squelch at the outset any illegal activities which violate or abuse American neutrality or tend to drag the United States into war via the internal outrage route.

He is certainly right about that. The United States proposes to have its laws obeyed, by citizens and alien. Any repetition of the plottings and sabotage, the reign of terror attempted by alien influences in 1916, must be rigorously prevented. Not only are such incidents violations of law and internal peace in themselves, but they rouse war passions and destroy the chance of sane appraisal of war issues and events.

Nevertheless, that is no license for engaging in an indiscriminate witch-hunt, creating a panic furor of deportations and persecutions instead of prosecutions. In wartime, and this is wartime in the world generally, even if not in the United States, many bitter injustices can be done in such a campaign. So Murphy is right in promising and preparing to avoid the mistakes and "wrongs against liberty" that were done in the name of "patriotism" in the World War.

Murphy was a Detroit lawyer during the first part of the World War era, until he enlisted to go to officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan and later overseas and into the army of occupation. He undoubtedly has a clear personal recollection of some of the things done by misguided and overenthusiastic patriots. This time, enforcement will be carried on "not by overzealous, inexperienced laymen, but by men who have been equipped for their work by careful training."

"I do not believe that a democracy must necessarily become something other than a democracy in order to protect its national interests," he said, promising prompt action against all subversive activities. But, he emphasized that such action would be within the law, carried out by trained and properly authorized law officers, and not by vigilante groups, amateurs, or industrial organizations which might be tempted to use such a situation to strike against labor leaders who seem to them personally troublesome.

To start right is no guarantee of finishing right. But it's the best possible augury of a good finish.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The real story back of the Clark resolution for a Senate investigation of foreign propaganda efforts in this country is that it represents an effort by the isolationists to find out whether the American government has secretly given "assurances" of aid to England or France.

On the face of it, the resolution introduced by Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri—simply calls for the appointment of a committee of seven to investigate what, if anything, foreign powers or their agents have done to influence America's action on the arms embargo.

It is worded broadly enough, however, to empower such a committee to go into the whole subject of transatlantic communications both ways.

It is an open secret that the isolationists are deeply suspicious that some representative of the administration has given the allies far broader commitments than are a matter of public record. The isolationists hope that through the Clark resolution that entire question can be examined right to the bottom. And when, as and if the resolution comes to the floor for debate—look for fireworks of all the colors in the spectrum.

A CERTAIN prominent New Deal senator, who has been active in the fight to get the arms embargo repealed, recently bet $10 that the European war would be over by Oct. 21, 1935.

He argues like this: Neither Russia, Turkey nor Italy really wants to see Hitler expand any more in eastern or south-eastern Europe. Russia has got him stopped in the east right now, and is hemming him in along the shores of the Baltic; all of the reports from Europe protests was conversations to check German expansion in the Balkans are now going on. So—

When this peace offer was made, isn't it logical to suppose that a sub-surface communication went with it to London and Paris, suggesting that since Hitler was now tied up in the east and southeast and since the Maginot line in the west is practically impassable, the war might as well be called off? With such a suggestion, this senator believes, there may well have gone the further statement that if England and France wanted to keep on fighting in the face of all this it would be strictly their war, after that, and the Russians, Turks et al. would supply Hitler with enough raw materials to make the blockade relatively ineffective.

The senator admits he asked for, and got, two to one odds. But he figured the thing was worth risking a ten-spot on, anyway.

DOROTHY DETZER is head of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, and as such is one of the most effective and determined of the peace lobbyists here.

One of her efforts has been to demonstrate that a war boom is likely to develop if we sell war supplies to England and France. So it was rather funny that a Wall Street investment house should accidentally send her its most recent brochure—which was an appeal to customers to buy now and take advantage of the coming war boom. One paragraph in it announced that of 60 low-priced stocks now being offered, "at least 26 are war babies."

Miss Detzer promptly took the brochure up on Capitol Hill, to plant it where it would do the most good.

War or Peace? It's Hard For Village To Find Its Status

BELFAST, Ireland.—A village which is half at war and half at peace is situated on the border of County Donegal and County Fermanagh, Ireland. This is the village of Tattige, half of which lies in neutral Eire and the other half in belligerent Northern Ireland. It is divided by a river spanned by a bridge. Residents on the Ulster side must observe the black-out, while those on the other side may have curtainless windows blazing light.

Stranger still is a house in Toonmore, on the Cavan-Fermanagh county border. It has one room in Eire and the other in Northern Ireland, so that when the occupants go to bed at night they are neutral, but during the daytime they are technically belligerent.

Jack Stanley, who is recovering from a knee injury, may see service in this game for a time, running from the fullback position.

Beer Bottle May Be Battle Instrument

MONTERE, Cal.—The common beer bottle, often a wicked weapon in the hands of belligerent citizens, may be elevated soon to a most important instrument of national defense.

That possibility was foreseen by cavalry officers at the Monterey Presidio after anti-tank combat experiments at Camp Ord. Officers said experiments showed that a gasoline-filled beer bottle hurled at a tank and then ignited can frustrate a tank attack.

When the bottle is smashed against the tank, the gasoline spills over the armor. The liquid is then ignited by a Very pistol or a tractor bullet and the tank is disabled. The bottle method of fighting tanks was used effectively by Moroccan cavalry in Spain.

Gaining Battle Is Waged On Disease

By United Press

CLEVELAND, O.—The eventual eradication of tuberculosis—now seems assured, believes Dr. Henry D. Chadwick of Waltham, Mass., here preparing for the spring meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association.

"There has been an average annual decline of 4.3 tuberculosis deaths per 100,000 population since the association was founded in 1904," he said. "I see no reason why the decline shouldn't persist until the disease is eradicated. The improvement continued right through the depression, too."

Dr. Chadwick, who is president of the association, said that he took this to indicate that living conditions in this country have been kept up.

"Meanwhile, medicine is looking hopefully to chemistry for a specific tuberculosis cure. We have no specific cure. Most of the progress has been through understanding of the disease and the treatment of it."

Manganese Ore Is A New Pay Crop

By United Press

ANNISTON, Ala.—Farmers in this section of Alabama soon will have a new "money crop" in manganese, with establishment of a company here to buy the ore.

Numerous deposits of manganese ore are found within a 100-mile radius of Anniston, and the new company estimated farmers would average $7 a ton for manganese delivered at the plant. The ore ranges in value from $2.50 to $22.50 a ton.

The company plans to blend the ore to use in making steel, dry-cell batteries, paints and glass. Manganese sulphate, extensively used as a fertilizer in the Carolinas and Florida, will be a by-product.

The company announced any farmer who has manganese on his land can dig it in off seasons, haul it to the plant and get cash for it. In western Etowah county a manganese pocket has yielded 194 tons of ore in the last 50 years, and the new plant will employ 35 to 50 persons, it was announced.

Troopships Like Ferries Carry BE Across To France

By United Press

NEW YORK.—Travelers carrying British ports these days likely to see more grim scenes of the war in a few minutes they had seen previously in month.

At one port troop trains have been rolling in on regular schedules for weeks, feeding a stream of soldiers onto troops that are operating almost a "ry" service across the Channel.

Three ships, loaded to capacity were seen leaving in one day, they swung out of the harbor decks were jammed with men, khaki, all wearing life preservers that fitted like bulky armor. Looming behind their vessel anchor was a big hospital painted green and white, two huge red crosses.

As the troopships pulled at the soldiers raised three "R" flags, "Ray! Ray!" which were faintly over the tops of the dock sheds. There was no demonstration.

Passengers about to sail neutral countries watched troopships disappear toward horizon. At the same time could see another long train riving, crowded with more khaki men in full war-kit, to loading another boat.

At the pier alongside the senger ship was a well-known British luxury liner, her painted a dirty black and ports and windows blacked. No one seemed to know when had arrived. Some had heard was preparing to sail, but no knew when, or where she was to go.

Examination of travelers ing Britain is a long, tedious cess. Exit permits and money mits are carefully checked, police identity cards and masks are taken up. Under the fense Regulations, authorities also take away any printed written matter which the man may have. This is not done strictly but in a few cases, cases are opened and all papers and correspondence therein fully scrutinized.

Similar demonstrations started about 1450 A.D., but lost favor, the savant declared.

JOAN OF ARKANSAS SERIAL STORY BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

YESTERDAY, Webber's stellar defense blocks. Tommie's attempt to spoil Tech's perfect record, and Keith and Dan pace Tech to a 2-0 victory.

CHAPTER XIII ELECTION day was a hectic one. Hardly anyone at the Alpha Nu house went to classes.

Keith, Tommy Peters, Joan, and a gay little redhead, Ellen Thompson, descended on the offices of the university Daily at 9:30.

Every time a telephone rang they jumped. Bob McAllister, managing editor and a good friend of Tommie's, joined them when they went outside for some air.

Another 15 minutes should do it, he figured. "We've heard unofficially that Kay Granger and Kennedy are running neck and neck.

Keith whopped and climbed to his feet. "Just the right idea. They serve the best hamburgers in the state over there. Let's go get 'em."

time, until Joan happened to look at her watch. "Keith," she gasped. "Look at this—1:30. If anyone finds out, you'll be in an awful mess with Sloocum."

AS he was getting undressed back at the house later on, Dan Webber walked in from the sleeping dormitory.

"Thought it was you," Dan said quietly. "What's the matter—your watch stop or don't you just give a damn about playing on a winning ball club? Jeppers, Keith, I thought you had more sense than this."

Keith dropped a shoe heavily. "Look, boy scout, what're you trying to do—turn policeman?" There was marked irritation in his voice.

"I want to talk to you a minute," he said simply, and he looked up in surprise at the tone of his voice.

There was a time I thought you'd begin to develop some good sense, but I see I was wrong," Dan continued. "Maybe a little celebration was in order last night, but that was a long stunt on your part—keeping Keith out to 2:30."

New Instrument For Eye Surgery Speeds Up Work

ST. LOUIS, — A new instrument, which is expected to enable surgeons to transplant a clear cornea to an injured or sightless one in about one-fifth the time it now takes for the delicate operation, has been developed by Dr. Meyer Weiner, retired St. Louis eye surgeon.

Formerly the operation required about an hour and a half and its chances for success were limited. With the new instrument the operation can be completed in 15 minutes and its chances for success greatly increased, it is believed.

Cornea operations have been performed for 45 years, but only in the past 10 or 15 years were they relatively successful. Cutting out the cornea segment for transplantation had to be done with ordinary surgical instruments and making the segment fit into the eye in which it was transplanted was difficult.

Instead of cutting and fitting by hand, Dr. Weiner's instrument enables the surgeon to cut and fit the segment by a precision instrument. It also enables the surgeon to obtain a segment with a beveled edge which must remain in place after transplantation.

The instrument, under Dr. Weiner's supervision, was used in the successful operation on the eye of a blind woman in a Los Angeles hospital last summer.

Uncensored Film On British Fleet Has Much Interest

The latest issue of The March of Time, entitled "The Battle Fleets of England," starts today at the Arcadia Theatre, a complete and uncensored film that shows clearly the British Navy's important role in the defense of England and in the plans of the Allies to win victory over Nazi Germany.

With strict censorship of news, pictures, and motion picture film now in effect throughout Europe, the editors of The March of Time gave a real "beat" in being able to present exclusively a comprehensive "inside" story of the British Navy at this time.

The film shows the life of the British blue-jackets; how young cadets at the Dartmouth Royal Naval College are trained to become officers in the ships that have for centuries been so much a part of British traditions and the important role Britain's Home, Mediterranean, and China fleets are playing today in the determined fight of the British people and their government to preserve their empire and gain for themselves a lasting peace.

Women: "Build-Up" To Relieve Pain
A weak, run-down, undernourished condition calls for attention! Such a condition often enables functional dysmenorrhea to get its foothold. That's one thing which leads to much of women's suffering from headaches, nervousness, those cramp-like pains. A good way to relieve such pains, women by thousands have found, is by the proper use of CARDUI. It stimulates a lagging appetite, assists digestion and assimilation; thus helps build physical resistance to periodic pain. Taken just before and during "the time," many women also report that CARDUI lessens the pain and discomfort of the period.

Schottische Gains Classroom Victory

AUSTIN, Tex.—Boys and girls dancing the schottische today in a University of Texas classroom gained another victory for co-education.

This new class has a two-fold social significance. It reflects the return-to-the-soil for arts that has made folklore, folk songs, and folk dancing merit educational consideration. It forecasts that boys and girls are being educated toward wholesome social living.

Sixty boys and girls have enrolled for the limited experimental class. Combining recreation and background education the course will teach American square dance, contra dances, play party games, and folk dances of Sweden, Russia, Mexico, Ireland, Scotland, and others.
