France Sues for Peace; Britain to Fight On

HUGE NAVAL BILL OFFERED IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 17.—A new naval expansion bill, calling for another 23 per cent increase in the United States Navy, was introduced in the house today.

The new bill, which was introduced by Rep. Carl Vinson, who had also introduced a previous naval expansion bill, was presented to the house shortly after President Roosevelt had signed his previous bill, calling for an 11 per cent increase in the navy.

The new naval expansion bill calls for addition of 84 warships to the United States Navy, at a cost of $1,000,000,000.

Work on the new naval construction program is expected to get underway immediately, now that the bill has been signed, and work will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

Mid-Air Crashes Of Planes Kills At Least Fifteen

NEW YORK, June 17.—Eleven army pilots were killed today when two United States Army bombers, on practice maneuvers, with student pilots aboard, crashed in mid-air over Queensborough, Long Island, this morning.

Bodies of the eleven airmen were found, after the collision, on the streets of Queens. One of the planes crashed into a house, setting it afire, and seriously burning a woman occupant. A civilian, who was believed to have been caught under the wreckage of one plane as it fell to the street, was also killed.

A Texas Private Given A Citation For Flag's Rescue

DALLAS, Tex.—James Raymon Perdue has received a citation of commendation for upholding the dignity of the United States flag at Manila, his mother, Mrs. Vera Ruff, was notified.

Perdue went to the rescue of the flag which was left flapping in the wind after ropes for hoisting it had broken. The accident occurred just before nightfall, and Perdue, who had entered the army only last September, volunteered to scale the pole and bring the flag down. Regulations stipulate that no United States flag may fly at night.

Perdue is a private in the service company, 31st Infantry.

Safety Hints of Oil Belt Safety Council Officers

Day driving accidents have been reduced 20 per cent in recent years—But night driving hazards have increased 18 per cent and this increase is attributed mainly to three things: (1) driving too fast for conditions at night referred to as out-driving your headlights, (2) drunk driving, and (3) fatigue.

It Couldn't Happen To Paris — But It Did!

Horsedrawn Nazi artillery rumbles across the Place de la Concorde in Paris as Nazi troops completed the occupation of Paris without resistance from the French army or Parisians. French troops are fighting desperately but retreating constantly as the German war machine smashes on in the face of their stiff resistance.

Latest Advice To Young Men Is To Move To Alaska

By United Press
SEATTLE, Wash.—Want to go north, young man? If so, youthful Mayor Leslie Nerland of Fairbanks, Alaska, says that opportunities in the central Alaskan towns are better than "anywhere else under the American flag"—but, he warns, the days of a quick bonanza are over.

"We want settlers," he said, "but they must come equipped with more than ambition and courage. No one should think of going to Alaska without taking enough money along to keep him until he gets established."

The 38-year-old mayor, a University of Washington graduate, pointed out that Fairbanks residents fly more miles per capita than any other people, and the town itself constitutes one of the most important aviation crossroads in the northern hemisphere.

"Planes carrying prospectors and mining supplies have opened many creeks that would be inaccessible otherwise," Nerland said.

The U. S. army is building a $4,000,000 cold-weather experimental station about three miles from the city, training pilots to fly in Arctic weather conditions.

Two Young Gangs Of Burglars Are Found In Ranger

Chief of Police Guy Pledger of Ranger stated today that, after several days of investigation, he had cleaned up two gangs of youthful burglars, who had been operating in Ranger for the past few weeks. Pledger stated that due to the youth of most of the members of the two gangs he was going to turn his information over to the grand jury and let that body decide what should be done.

One of the "gangs" which the Ranger police rounded up, consisted of seven boys, the other was composed of six boys, and the ages of all ranged from nine to 16 years, Pledger said.

One of the young boys was apprehended, the chief of police said, and he made a complete confession, implicating other boys who had been guilty. After the confession was secured and more arrests were made, more confessions implicated more boys, until at last the two young gangs were uncovered.

4-H Clubbers Hold Banquet Friday Night

Two hundred 4-H boys, girls, their parents, and guests attended the 4-H banquet in the basement of the Methodist church in Eastland Friday night, June 14. A very interesting program featuring Joanna Drake, Norma Jean Huntington, Louise Eaves, and the Morton Valley girls in special music, Mrs. A. C. Pratt in a chalk talk, and Dr. Z. T. Huff, Dean of Howard Payne College in an inspirational talk, made the banquet a very pleasant occasion.

Veda Ramsower, Morton Valley 4-H girl acted as Toast Mistress in a beautiful manner.

This is the first time the 4-H boys and girls have attempted to have a banquet, stated A. C. Pratt, asst. county agent, but the large attendance, and the fine spirit of cooperation shown by the 4-H members and their parents indicate that it was a success.

Dr. Thomas H. Taylor, President of Howard Payne College was engaged to speak to the group, but he was unable to attend and sent Z. T. Huff to represent him. Dr. Huff using "Loyalty" for his subject, made a very interesting talk, and through his talk and associations while here, he has won many friends.

OPENING FOR POOL WILL BE PLANNED SOON

Plans for opening of the Ranger swimming pool, which is now rapidly nearing completion, will be formulated at the regular meeting of the Ranger City Commission Tuesday night, when committees from the Lions Club, Rotary Club, Chamber of Commerce and American Legion have been requested to meet with the commission for a discussion of the plans.

Committeemen who have been named by each organization to meet with the city commission are: Lions—A. N. Larson, chairman; C. L. Crews and A. J. Ratliff. Rotary—L. R. Pearson, chairman, C. E. May and John Kiddle. Chamber of Commerce—Floyd Killingsworth, chairman; A. N. Larson and John Kiddle. American Legion—Amos Rice, chairman, and M. M. Dutton.

Work on completion of the pool has been rushed the past week, in spite of four days of rain weather. When the weather was bad interior work, including plastering in the dressing rooms, was being done. Saturday, when showers fell intermittently most of the day, pouring of concrete continued in an effort to rush that part of the work.

It is expected that the pool will be ready for use by July 1, though the work on completing the park and the lake above the swimming pool would continue after the pool itself was ready for use.

Lions-Rotary Game Finally To Be Played

The Rotary-Lion softball game, which has been talked as fluently as any game Dizzy Dean ever talked, and which has been delayed once because of wet grounds, will be played tonight at the Ranger Softball Field, it was decided today after a look at the weather report.

Players on both teams, who will be recruited from a certified roster from each club, with no one who is not a bona fide member of the club being eligible, will be dressed in Mother Hubbards for the game, provided large enough garments can be found for some of the players.

The Rotary club, which originally issued the challenge to the Lions club, have been met by the losing club is to stand treat to the winners at a dinner, and there is also a ticket selling challenge, with no definite penalty being specified for the losers.

Game time tonight has been set for 8 o'clock, and those who have not secured tickets may obtain them at the gate. A large crowd is expected.

Both teams, and their captains, L. W. Meador for the Rotarians and Elton Jennings for the Lions, have made many boasts of what their teams will do when they meet on the field tonight.

The Ranger High School Band will be out in full force to furnish music for the occasion. All band members have been asked to meet at the band hall this evening at 7:15 to be ready for the game.

All members of both teams will meet tonight at the Chamber of Commerce office at 7:45 before the game starts, and go from there to the playing field.

FLYING INSTRUCTIONS FOR 30 STUDENTS WILL START SOON AT RANGER AIRPORT

Russell Miller, head of the Ranger Flying Service, which is offering free primary flying instructions, with the cooperation of the United States Government and Ranger Junior College, announced today that a unit of 30 youths would begin flight instructions soon, as many applications had been received from Eastland, Ranger, Gorman and other towns in this part of the country.

Miller stated that by Monday morning 47 applications for the 30 training openings had been received, and that at noon Saturday 24 had passed the physical examinations. Those who pass the physical examinations and meet the college training requirements will be taken into the flying unit in the order in which their applications are received, Miller stated, and the remainder will be kept on the waiting list to enter the next flying unit of 30 students.

At present there are four planes at the Ranger airport which are being used in the instructions, and this number will be increased to eight by the latter part of the week, Miller stated, as four have been ordered for delivery either Friday or Saturday of this week.

Two new instructors have arrived to take part in teaching the young fliers. They are Robert G. Meyer, from Wisconsin, who has been instructor of a successful flying course at Southern Louisiana Normal at Lafayette, La., and Norman Redgood, instructor from Tyler.

Miller also stated this morning that there was a possibility that an advanced training school might be established, and that should such a school be installed there was already one plane available for this training. One of the new planes received in the past few days is a three-passenger biplane, Miller said.

Ranger Junior College is offering, free of charge to those who can qualify by previous college training, the related sciences that are a part of the flying course. These include history of aviation, meteorology, theory of flight and aircraft, parachutes, aircraft power plants, aircraft instruments, airport traffic control procedure and phraseology.

A cleanup-paintup campaign is being carried on at the Ranger Flying Service headquarters at the airport, with a pilots' lounge being added to the facilities at the field.

In commenting on the requirements for flight students, Miller stated today that the ratio of those who pass the physical requirements in this part of the country is much higher than the average over the United States.

"That is one reason flying courses are being offered in Texas at this time," Miller stated, "because there are so many more young men who can meet the rigid physical requirements."

Miller stated that in some of the sections of the country the ratio of those who pass is as low as one out of three applicants, but that approximately 95 per cent of the applicants thus far have been able to pass the physical examination.

FRENCH NAVY MAY BE GIVEN TO HER ALLY

Observers Say Peace Will Be Capitulation Rather Than Negotiations Over Any Peace Terms.

France sued for an honorable peace with Nazi Germany tonight, but Great Britain reiterated that she would fight on until Hitlerism is crushed, even if it takes until the end of the world.

Henri Petain, the new premier of France, who was elected when Premier Paul Reynaud resigned Sunday, early today asked Hitler for an honorable peace, and shortly afterwards Great Britain pledged to continue to wage the war against Germany, alone.

Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy will meet, it was said tonight, to discuss terms on which peace would be offered, in addition to discussing the next phase of the war.

An invasion of England and her African possessions was forecast in most quarters.

As Petain, with heavy heart, asked cessation of hostilities, the German armies overrun France to historic Orleans, 70 miles south of Paris.

The Nazis, with a powerful army as a lever, indicated a settlement would be a matter of capitulation, rather than negotiations for terms of peace.

The big question mark in Europe today was the outcome of the French war materials. A British spokesman said that France's navy would be transferred to Great Britain and the country would set up a refugee government in London, as other invaded countries had done.

In the Baltics Russia was said to have marched into Estonia and Latvia, in puzzling moves. It was also rumored that the Soviet was expected to make further demands upon Finland. Sweden felt safe, and said it expected no invasion or demands.

The Egyptian premier said that Egypt would not engage in war on Italy over the frontier clashes, which he said were capable of diplomatic adjustment.

Spain has been invited to join in the peace negotiations, while Turkey remained quiet, pending a Soviet move into the near east.

Roosevelt Moves To Join Americas; Congress To Stay

WASHINGTON, June 17.—President Roosevelt moved today to unite the 22 nations of the Americas into a tight economic union, in an attempt to avert the economic upheavals that are expected to result from the European war.

Meanwhile congressional leaders gave up all hope of adjourning congress and announced that France's action in recapitulating makes for a greater effort to complete the national defenses of the United States.

Word was received here this morning that the State Railroad Commission had called a special emergency oil proration hearing to be held Tuesday morning in the state capitol at Austin.

Let Congress Stay and Saw Wood

Just at the time when everybody else is being urged to work harder and to slug away all the more earnestly at important business, Congress proposes to pack up and go home.

Month after month of work is tiresome for congressmen, it is said. So it is for all of us. Congressmen have campaigned to do this folk, they protest. The country isn't interested in that.

The country is interested in getting its work done. The country is interested in seeing that the armament program is actually followed through and results shown.

The country is interested in seeing that arrangements are made to pay for armament. It is ready to be taxed for security.

For Congress merely to appropriate any requested number of billions of dollars and then go gaily home is not good enough.

Congress may have its faults. But they are the faults of the people. Congress is the people in action. To argue that its presence in Washington would somehow hamper and handicap the preparedness effort seems foolish. We have not yet reached the point which England reached when it turned everything over to Churchill.

Congress is highly valuable in times like these as a sort of national listening-post and broadcasting station in Washington. Its presence should have a steady influence on the President, a constant reminder that he is responsible to the people, a constant source of strength in the thought that the "other half of the defense team" is still pulling.

A tax bill to take care of increased military expenditures should be passed before Congress adjourns. The old political belief always was that to levy taxes in an election year was unpopular. This year things are different. The nation is aroused. It may be more unpopular not to levy taxes than to levy them.

The European situation cannot be predicted 24 hours in advance. The rise of any morning's sun may look upon some completely unforeseen situation. Congress, direct representative of the people, should be on hand, not at the discretion of the President to recall it, but because, like everybody else these days, it is sticking to its job.

It being the political season, we can expect to see straws in the wind, with small boys chasing them and expecting a dime for retrieval.

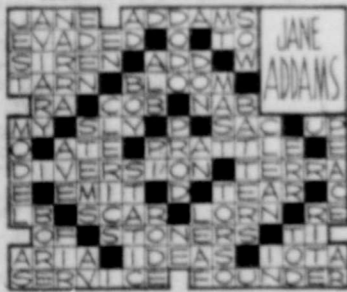

Now we have venetian blinds introduced in automobiles to prevent glare through the rear windshield. Lace curtains and a picket fence around the running board can be expected momentarily.

Texas Cycle In American Sports Creates Comment

FORT WORTH, Tex.—This "Texas cycle" in American sports is getting so great that people are wondering what the Lone Star State has that gives an extra something to its athletes.

They're calling the Texas golfers the "bonfire boys" of the big league tournaments. Sweetwater's Lew Jenkins drove almost unopposed to the lightweight boxing championship. Carl Hubbel, the Fort Worth oil man, Tex Carleton and even "Texas Teddy" Lyons are giving the younger pitchers in the major circuits something to emulate.

The Texas Aggies, undefeated a year ago, look like the football team that must be beaten next fall before any national championships can be awarded. Rice Institute at Houston has at least three national champions among its athletes—Fred Wolcott, collegiate hurdles champion; Frank Gaussey, intercollegiate tennis champ, and Bob Curtis, national junior tennis title.

They say that the soil of Kentucky imbues that state's blue grass with a quality that makes race horses run just a little faster. What it is that is putting Texans to the forefront nobody can answer specifically, but whatever it is, the men of sports in other states would like to pour some in their drinking water.

One important factor is Texas' weather, warm enough for outdoor sports the year around. The Texas League is studded with old pitchers past 35 who get their arms thawed out and can win in this league. The newest addition to the ranks of those seeking the Texas League rejuvenation treatment is the once-great Dizzy Dean, now with Tulsa. Dean started his spectacular rise to baseball fame in the Texas League. Schoolboy Rowe, another famous pitcher whose arm "went dead" in the majors, is back in the big leagues now after a return to Texas for a summer's work.

The Texas cycle has extended to several sports. The main field, of course, is golf, where Ben Hogan, Jimmy Demaret, Byron Nelson and Ralph Guldahl head the list of money-winners in professional meetings since last fall. The rise of Lone Star stagers has surprised even some of the natives, but Texans have been prominent in smaller numbers in sport world since Jack Johnson, the Galveston negro, was heavyweight boxing champion 40 years ago.

Tris Speaker and Rogers Hornsby are two baseball immortals from Texas. The Chicago White Sox "Sunday pitcher" still is Ted Lyon, who went from the Baylor campus to Chicago in 1923 and has won more than 200 major league games.

Wilmer Allison, still playing in regional tennis tournaments, set the goal for ambitious youngsters in that sport, but Berkeley Bell, Bruce Barnes and many other Texans have been prominent nationally.

Texas track stars have been in the limelight for a decade, and besides Wolcott, the names of North Texas Teachers' Rideout ## twins, Texas' Beefus Bryan, pole vaulter, and others have been spread across the nation's sport pages.

The 1930's saw Southwest Conference teams reach the pinnacle in football, topped by the great undefeated Texas Christian University eleven of 1938 and the Texas Aggies of last year. Before that for half-a-dozen years, Texans always were represented on the All-America lists and their use of the forward pass had an important bearing on the changing tactics of that national pastime.

The sports-lovers, which includes just about everybody in Texas, now are wondering what youngster will be next to rise from obscurity to national fame. This summer's best bidder so far is 18-year-old Howard Pollet, left-handed pitcher for the Houston Texas League baseball team. Pollet won 12 games and lost none during the first one-third of the season, and the Houston fans are wondering every day whether the youngster won't appear in a St. Louis Cardinal uniform before the season gets much older. Houston is a St. Louis "farm."

Beginner's Luck Is Now Permanent

ORANGE, Tex.—Beginner's luck was extended to perpetual luck when Mrs. C. G. Kellis recovered the lost diamond from her engagement ring for the third time.

In 1924, the diamond was lost but was discovered under the dining table the same day. The stone was again lost in 1930 when the owner had been taking care of a hen and her chicks. The mother hen pecked at the stone and Mrs. Kellis thought that the fowl had swallowed it. Six months later, however, the stone was found in a crack in the floor.

Again in 1937, the diamond disappeared but was recently found cached in a safe. Now it is securely back on the owner's finger.

Best way to combat parachute troops, as now practiced in the U. S. and abroad, is to get the drop on them before they drop on you.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, Jr. means a really fine performance, and that's why you'll enjoy seeing him in SAFARI, Paramount's current production.

CHAPTER I GUSTY GAIR skidded his roadster to a stop in the cinder driveway outside of Maw's Airport Rendezvous. Music boomed through the open door, the kind of solid, hot music that put a shine in Gusty's eyes. Seizing Francis Weston's hand, he dragged her and his trumpet out of the car. "Come on, Sugar! That's the new record the fellows were raving about in study hall today." Gathered around the nickelodeon, a dozen youngsters cocked watchful ears to the latest Bunny Berigan release. A few "jitter-bugs"; others sat in booths sipping cokes, stomping out the beat. It was Friday night and under Maw's scrupulous but benevolent eye the Elpheth City Jam Club was in roaring session. Everyone turned to greet Gusty and Francis, the high priest and priestess of their rhythmic cult. "Hi-yah, Gusty! D'ja bring your old horn?" "Hey, Francis, gonna swing out on a hot vocal?" Gusty clamped his hands together, shook them over his head. Francis's response to her public was more refined. She smiled graciously and nodded. "Were they not professionals? Wasn't Gusty the only boy in high school who paid $3 for sitting in with Duke Meyer's Kampus Wildcats? And, when the dance passed her father's rigid inspection, didn't Duke often beg her to sing a chorus? Of course, he never really paid her, but he bought Francis loads of cokes and that was almost the same, wasn't it?" SOMEONE yelled, "Hey, Gusty, make like Harry James." With a grin, Gusty opened his battered trumpet case and gazed over to the piano. "Fat!" he called impudently to a stubby-fingered youth in green slacks, "give me some ompahs in Cheri-Bell." At the first note a change came over Gusty. He hunched his big shoulders forward. A dreamy expression softened his dark eyes, his rugged face lost its brashness and became sensitive. Gusty's soul, as he played, belonged to the trumpet. He had done the solo many times, but when he finished everyone whistled and shouted for more. Gusty shook his head. "I ain't in the mood now," he said. "I'll drink a coke while Francis gives out."

Illustrated by G. P. Whitford

Francis's voice caught fire, her shoulder dipped in rhythm. Eyes shining, she gave her listeners all her swing. When she finished the crowd roared.

Francis moved to the piano. She closed her eyes and suddenly she started with shining sequins. She looked across footlights. Not at boys in loud slacks and polo shirts. Not at high school girls in short skirts and anklets. She looked out over a dazzling audience in evening dress, and there was a moment of dramatic silence as a big white spotlight picked her up. With these dreams in her eyes, Francis sang. She tilted her head sideways, the glossy sweep of her amber hair falling over one slim shoulder. Her young voice stabbed the place with an anguished sweetness and made it still. "Give the last one hot," Fat begged. Francis's voice caught fire; her shoulder dipped in rhythm. Eyes shining, she gave her listeners all she had. The beat was taken up on spoons, glasses and table tops. As she finished, the members of the Elpheth City Jam Club sat back and roared their approval. "Pretty fair," Gusty said. "I'll buy you a coke." Someone stepped up behind them and took their arms. "Have this one on me, Gusty." FRANCIS and Gusty whirled. Behind them sat a wiry, little man in a wrinkled green suit. He wore a straw hat with a loud band. His tiny eyes danced excitedly above a long, sharp nose. "Over here, kids," he said, gesturing toward an empty booth. Gusty scowled. "Say, who does he think he is, anyway?" "Please don't be horrid, Gusty," Francis begged. "Let's see what he wants." She dragged him to the booth. "Did—did you mean us?" "Better life, honey," the man said in rapid, staccato tones. "You kids are good, terrific. Lotsa old ompah, too. Ever broadcast? No, of course not. Wanta couple of cokes? Nothing stronger, I suppose." Gusty said, "Say, who you trying to kid, mister?" "Kid? Me?" He stared at Francis. "You get me right here, honey, right in the old heart. Used to have a vaudeville partner like you. Swell kid, Aggie, lotsa talent." He sighed. "Spitting image, you are." "This guy's nuts," Gusty observed with characteristic finesse. "Come on, Francis." "No, no, don't go," the little man pleaded. "Look, I'm Natie Koon, special representative for I. B. C. and Pegasus Pictures. Been dashing all over the old U. S. A. picking up talent, and you kids are tops." Gusty's laugh drowned out Koon. "Think we're dumb enough to swallow that gag?" "Here, looka this," Koon flipped a business card on the table. "Flying back to the old glamour city right now. Plane got hung up half an hour. Heard the music and came over." Francis said weakly, "I—I don't understand." "Look, kids," Koon said, "I ain't got much time. Gotta catch that plane. Pegasus is making a super-colossal called 'Parade of American Youth.' Nightly she compared them and tried to make herself believe that Gusty was like Jerry Finney. It was awfully hard. Two deep furrows ridged Francis's brow. "You—you mean that we..." "Just one of you," Koon interrupted. "You're both good; I don't care which. See, I'm in a kinda spot. I got to be in Hollywood by morning and I ain't found anyone from this state." He fumbled in his pocket, brought out a square of pasteboard. "The last one—and am I glad! Take a look."

Heading for the White House? This is the fifth of a series presenting the Republican families that may occupy the White House after next January. Democratic presidential possibilities and their wives will be carried later. Because Pennsylvania is a key political state and its present governor a typical American success story there is talk today of Arthur H. James for President. With 1800 years of Welsh ancestry, James literally was "born to the mines" at Plymouth, Pa., almost 57 years ago. He was a "breaker boy" at 12, then a mule driver at 75 cents a day. Once asked when he decided to get out of the mines, he replied, "The first time I went into them." Saving every penny above family expenses, James early began to make good that decision. He quit the mines in winter, went to school. At 18 he graduated from high school and four years later he had worked his way through Dickinson law school. He hung up his shingle at Plymouth, Pa., in 1905. The breaker boy became politician in 1919 with election as district attorney. Seven years later he was elected Pennsylvania's lieutenant governor and in 1932 he was chosen for a 10-year term as superior court judge at $18,000 a year. He resigned to become Republican candidate for governor. James is a states' rights man, believes the only issue is centralization of power. He likes to ring, swim, row and hunt. Mrs. James died in 1935. James has a son, Arthur, and dark-haired daughter, Dorothy, 25, who likes dramatics, dancing and swing, dislikes cooking and housework. NEXT: The Landons.

THE PAY OFF BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor CLEVELAND—Covering the National Open is a breeze. All you have to do is wait until Walter Hagen and Tommy Armour come in, and get in the early rush for their table. Hagen and Armour are the high court of golf. Wee Bobby Cruickshank is the court jester. Each entrant at Canterbury stops and comments on his game. Hagen and Armour pick it to pieces. Armour takes either side of any argument, and usually wins his point. Armour, the professionals' professional, claims tournaments are lost, not won. Roland Hancock lost the championship at Olympia Fields in 1928. He needed only 5-5, one above par. . . . took a pair of sixes. Ralph Guldahl lost the title at North Shore in 1933 by missing a four-foot putt. Sam Snead lost the crown at Spring Mill a year ago. . . . with that frightful eight on the last hole. A poor choice of clubs got him into the difficulty. HAGEN and Armour dish out sound advice. A refreshing slant on the money players is that paradoxically they are always willing to help one another. It was this as much as anything else that put America on top of the golf world. Sooner or later locker room talk drifts to Johnny McDermott. McDermott was just 21 years old when in 1911 he beat Mike Brady and George Simpson in a playoff to become the first homegrown to win the National Open. He repeated the following June. He finished in a triple tie with Alec and Macdonald Smith in 1910, Alec prevailing in the playoff. So for three successive years, and before striking his full stride, he was as good as any player in the field over the regulation distance, and twice, successively, he was better. McDermott has been in a Philadelphia mental institution since shortly after his meteoric rise. . . . his trouble traced to his being kicked on the head by a horse when he was a child. Jack Burke, oldest player in this year's Open, recalls their taking McDermott out for a round with Cyril Walker and himself at Shawnee-on-Deleware in 1924, and his outdriving them with an old woods shaft. They took McDermott out again to let him see Bobby Jones complete his grand slam at the Merion Cricket Club in 1930. McDermott played a round. . . . broke the course record. McDermott, the most spectacular player of his time, weighed only 135 pounds, but patted the ball like Sam Snead. It was tragic to lose Johnny McDermott. Little wonder that when old-timers gather at the 19th hole the usually wind up discussing him.

are likely to wind up believing your way is the best. And a teacher can be wrong, you know. Every year I learn I have long been taking money under false pretenses." Jimmy Demaret served under Burke for two years. Burke considers the Brae Burn fashion plate the finest player he ever saw. Burke had a hand in the development of Harry Cooper, and it was the old-timer who advised Dick Metz to try his luck in California winter tournaments. "Metz had to borrow $1000 to make the trip, and got $900 of it back in his first tournament," beams the veteran. IMPROVED conditions and equipment have helped, of course, but practice and greater opportunity to get into stern competition is the principal reason for the phenomenal scores of today, according to Burke. "We didn't get into more than two or three tournaments a year in the old days," he explains. "Now many of these boys play in 30." Even this late in his life, Jack Burke would like to play in 30 tournaments a year, but he knows golf is now a young man's game, and he's too busy turning out young men. With instructors and inspiring figures like Jack Burke, there is little wonder why Texas produces the world's most skillful shot-makers—Jimmy Demaret, Dick Metz, Harry Cooper, Byron Nelson, Ralph Guldahl, Ben Hogan and the Mangrum. . . . to name a few.

Albany To Present Another Big Show

The gay life of old Fort Griffin, the most colorful of all the West Texas pioneer towns, will be pictured in pageantry and symbolized in dance in the Third Annual "FORT GRIFFIN FANDANGLE" which will be produced in Albany, Friday, June 21st, at 8:30 P. M. in the High School Stadium.
Robert Nail, well known playwright who is both author and director of this stupendous dramatic production, reports that a cast of about 200 actors will take part.
A new Hammond electric organ will provide music for the show and for the dance on the outdoor oak floor immediately following the show, to which all ticket holders are invited. Billy Muth, well known Texas theatre and radio organist will play for the Fandangle Dance.
New and striking costumes of the period depicted in the show have been designed by John Nicholson, for two years assistant costume designer for the Goodman Theatre in Chicago, also designer for the Bolshoi and Katz Circuit of Chicago.
An exact duplicate of the old Concord Stagecoach that once made regular trips between Fort Worth and Fort Griffin has been built from blue prints of the original now housed in the Santa Fe, New Mexico, Museum.
Above are some of the actors and actresses who will take part in this colossal production which is to be presented by the Albany Chamber of Commerce. One ticket admits to both the show and the dance.

Connally-Smith Anti-Alien Bill Speeds To Passage
WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Connally-Smith anti-alien bill rapidly sped toward passage by the Senate and House, in meeting with acclaim throughout the United States as a measure expected to aid materially in the control of "fifth column" activities in America.
Offered by Senator Tom Connally of Texas on behalf of the Senate Judiciary Committee, the measure requires deportation of certain classes of aliens and the fingerprinting of aliens seeking to enter the United States.
"In addition," states Senator Connally, "the bill forbids tampering with military or naval forces of the country, or advocating overthrowing or destroying the government by force or violence."
"Aliens subject to deportation include those aiding any other alien to enter the United States in violation of law, any carrying a gun designed to shoot more than one shot without reloading, and those violating the Alien Registration Act," Senator Connally explained.
"No visas are allowed any alien entering the United States who has not been registered and fingerprinted and all those without visa, re-entry permit or registration card shall be excluded, Senator Connally continued, adding:
"Every alien in the United States over 14 years of age must be fingerprinted and registered. Applications for registration are to be made at designated post-offices, and aliens are required to give notification of change of residence within five days."
