AM RUSSELL MEETS FISHER COUNTY FOLKS

500 Hear Him At Robin,
500 Gather for Roby
Talk.

Russell was introduced by Col. Fisher as a man of splendid ability and experience and one whom the folks of this district could send to represent them in congress and assured that they would be well represented.

Judge Russell spoke only a few minutes. His address was well received and he was accorded much applause at frequent intervals during his address.

FISHER, Aug. 17.—Heavy rains for this section Thursday night defeated with the Veterans of Foreign Wars Jamboree program Saturday morning. The speech by Judge Sam Russell of Stephenville, was scheduled to take from 10:30 to 11:15 was canceled on this account. Judge Russell stopped here enroute to Stephenville where he spoke this afternoon to his home folks.

ROBY, Aug. 17.—Sam Russell of Stephenville, candidate for congress from the 17th district, spoke to an audience of 500 people here last night in the interest of his candidacy. He was accorded an attentive hearing.

Judge Edward Yates of Abilene, many years a resident of Roby, introduced the speaker, praising his ability and qualifications. He had known Judge Russell 12 or 15 years, had acted in his courts and could conscientiously recommend him to his friends as a good man to send to Washington to represent them in Congress.

Little Miss Laverne Roland, 7 years of age, sang "God Bless America."

Judge Russell discussed his form. He stated that he would take any part in a mud-slinging campaign, and made no reference to his opponent by name.

McCauley Judge Russell spoke at 4:00 p. m. to a crowd of 50 or more people. He made only a short talk, discussing as much as his platform as he had time for.

Anti-Conscription Bloc Claims Eight Vote Margin Today

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Members of the Senate Anti-Conscription bloc claimed an eight-vote margin of victory today in their drive to modify the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill. Foes of the measure, which would require 12,000,000 Americans between 21 and 31 years of age to register for a year's army training, said they gained four votes during the 48 hours in behalf of the amendment of Sen. Francis T. T. Donnelly, D., Conn., which would defer the draft until Jan. 1.

Many Veterans At Cisco Jamboree

CISCO, Aug. 17.—More than 500 veterans of foreign wars were to take Cisco today for their annual statewide jamboree. Communist political speeches, and a "derby" were on the day's program.

Daddy Died a Hero

When eight-month-old Carol Nichols grows up, she will look with mingled pride and sadness at this picture. For, seated on her mother's lap, she wears the Victoria Cross, posthumously awarded to her father for "most conspicuous gallantry" with Britain's Grenadier Guards during the evacuation of Dunkirk. King George made the presentation at a private audience granted the widow.

Hunt Means Of Defense Against Mechanized Units

The Ninety-Fourth Anti-Tank Battalion.

Tanks and other mechanized units, combining mobility, protection for troops employing them, and firepower, have demonstrated the vital part they play in modern warfare. While tanks may be employed to hamper the operations of enemy tank units, experimentation is being made with other means of defense against mechanized weapons.

On January 1, 1940, the 4th Antitank Battalion was organized at Fort Benning, Georgia, pursuant to War Department orders and instructions. Recently this unit was redesignated as the Ninety-Fourth Antitank Battalion, and two other battalions were organized, the Ninety-Third Battalion stationed at Fort Meade, Maryland, and the Ninety-Ninth Battalion at Fort Lewis, Washington.

The Ninety-Fourth Antitank Battalion is equipped with 36 new 37mm antitank guns, which are towed by prime movers (1 1-2 Ton Trucks). It has a peace strength of 22 officers and 388 enlisted men. The 29th Infantry provided an enlisted cadre of 208 men, including many non-commissioned officers for key positions. The personnel has found the unit an interesting one, and have readily adapted themselves to the tempo of stream-lined warfare.

This battalion, in short time it has been in existence, has already participated in the Spring Corps Maneuvers at Fort Benning, Ga., and the Third Army Maneuvers at Camp Beaufort, fully equipped with new trucks, guns, and modernized in every way, has already participated in the present maneuvers. This battalion is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Leven C. Allen, Infantry.

Bullock 4-H Club Met Last Tuesday

The Bullock 4-H club met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Wilson with Margaret Blount, assistant county home demonstration agent present.

Miss Blount told of the plans for the 4-H club encampment the 4th and 5th of Sept. The group also decided on subjects for study for the coming year.

Following the meeting those present visited Lillian Ruth Suddeth and Helen Dempsey's homes and saw their demonstrations.

British Lose 6 Fliers, Nazi 100

LONDON, Aug. 17.—In the massive air battles raging over Britain the Royal Air Force has had one advantage over the Nazi Luftwaffe, considered highly important by military experts. Britain is said to be losing only six fliers to every 100 lost by the Germans.

RAF pilots who bail out of crippled planes live to fight in other battles, but German pilots who make safe landings are lost to the Luftwaffe "for the duration." It's intendment for them if they survive their wounds.

In the last nine days of air fights over Britain, 131 British planes have been brought down but 45 pilots have been saved, according to official communiques. Fourteen pilots were reported safe Friday when the British acknowledged loss of 22 planes.

The usually well-informed Press Association said 92 of the British pilots whose planes were shot down this week landed safely.

The Germans have lost 623 planes in nine days, according to the official British count. There has been no announcement as to how many Nazi airmen have been captured, but it is obvious German personnel losses are far greater because the attacking bombers require larger crews than the single-seater fighter planes used in defense.

The personnel required for a German attacking force probably averages three men per plane, counting five for the large bombers and ranging down to one for the escort fighters.

This would mean the Germans have lost approximately 1,350 airmen, either killed or captured, in the last nine days. The British personnel loss figures out to only about 6 per cent of the Nazi total.

Harold Ickes To Reply To Willkie
NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes, former Republican and an opponent of machine politics, will make the first new deal reply to the acceptance speech today at Elwood, Ind., of Republican Nominee Wendell L. Willkie, a former democrat, the democratic national committee announced today.

STUDY PLANNED OF INDIAN LIFE IN 2 AMERICAS

By ANGEL VINIEGRA
United Press Staff Correspondent
MEXICO, D. F.—Projects drafted at the first Inter-American Indian Congress, recently held in Mexico, are beginning to take permanent form to improve the study of Indian life and affairs throughout the Americas.

A special executive committee has begun the study of a proposal adopted by the congress, which met in the picturesque Indian town of Patzcuaro, state of Michoacan, to found a permanent Inter-American Indian Institute.

The Mexican government will propose this project formally to the other governments of the Americas and invite them to support it, on the basis of the congress and the committee's recommendations. The latter's studies are expected to be finished within a short time.

Prof. Orozco Leader
The executive committee is headed by Prof. Luis Chavez Orozco, Mexican minister of Indian affairs, and includes Prof. Moises Saez, designated director of the institute; Pierre de L. Boal, counselor of the American embassy in Mexico; Carlos Giron Cerna, Guatemalan engineer, and Federico Avila of Bolivia.

At the committee's first meeting, Prof. Moises Saez reported on progress of organization work since the congress closed. He revealed President Cardenas had placed at the institute's disposal indispensable funds for the publication of the memorial of the congress and for the continuation of preliminary organization work of the institute.

Saez also mentioned the possible formation of an Indian directory of the Americas and outlined arrangements for a trip to New Mexico of a group of Mexican Indians as the guests of several Indian groups in that state. The Mexican Indians will make a tour lasting about a month, visiting various American Indian communities in the southwest.

Studies to Be Made
One of the most important things Saez's statement revealed was a project for studies and scientific investigations under the auspices of the institute. Bronislaw Malinowski, a Polish doctor and professor at London and Yale universities, has accepted the task of carrying on these investigations, once they are approved.

Saez said he probably would give his work in the Mexican state of Oaxaca.

The Mexican ministry of Indian affairs has designated Prof. Julio de la Fuente, now attached to the department of public education and the Mexican Institute of Anthropology and History, to assist Malinowski.

The Indian Institute executive committee, in a formal message, expressed its thanks to President Cardenas for his help in carrying out the work of the Indian congress.

Four Killed and 10 Injured In Mine Collapse
By United Press
EL PASO, Aug. 17.—At least four miners were killed and 10 others injured when a level of an American-owned mine collapsed yesterday near Santa Barbara, Chihuahua, 260 miles south of El Paso, it was reported here today.

Three other persons were said to have been caught in the cave-in, which was believed to have resulted from a weakening of supporting pillars in the tunnels after prospectors had extracted samples of ore near them.

The mine, owned by the American Mining and Smelting Company, was being worked for gold and silver.

Ranger Jr. College and High School To Open Sept. 9

At a recent meeting of the Ranger School Board a resolution was adopted authorizing its schools to open on Monday, September 9th. In the high school registration will begin on Wednesday of the previous week.

J. T. Krattiger of Denison, who holds the B. A. degree from Austin College and M. A. from Southern Methodist University was elected Coach and head of the Mathematics department in the Junior College.

Miss Odessa Reid of Waco, a graduate of Texas State College for Women and Miss Pearl Doherty of Dothan, a graduate of Abilene Christian College were named Primary teachers to fill vacancies caused by the resignations of Mrs. Anne Anderson and Miss Ruth Ritchey.

Due to the financial emergency forced on the Ranger Schools by reductions in both the number of scholastics and property values the Board announced that only grades one through four would be taught in Cooper Ward. Grades 5, 6, 7, will be taught in Hodges and Young Wards with U. S. Highway 80 and the T.P. railroad forming the dividing line for the pupils in these upper grades.

Suit Designed As Unsinkable Lets Him Down

By United Press
DETROIT.—Arthur Scott's dream of 26 years to flop about on the surface of the water, "just like a peacock" was expelled by a broken pop bottle.

The bottle's jagged edge punctured his black rubber "pelican suit" equipped with wings, webbed feet, headlights for "finding your way when you're lost at sea" and a couple of spare pockets for chocolate bars.

Scott demonstrated his one-piece rubber combination zipper suit and rubber boots in the Detroit river. As he donned the garb and waded out, speculation was rife. Then the word went around that "he's going to walk on the water."

When he got out into water up to his chest the pop bottle appeared, and "swoosh" went the suit.

"It was a dream of a lifetime," he said.

Schooner of Past Puts Out to Sea

By United Press
ABERLEEN, Wash.—The famous five-masted schooner Vigilant has obtained a new lease on life through the shortage of Canadian shipping space.

The Seattle vessel was sold to British Columbia interests and is now "somewhere at sea," her destination unknown. In former days the Vigilant—now the City of Albern—used to race the schooner Commodore from Puget Sound to Honolulu. Those were the days when sailing masters took exceptional pride in competitive honors, and the Seattle waterfront at one time found the Vigilant-Commodore rivalry a prime topic of discussion.

Garrett Gives Report Of His Work In House

ABILENE, Aug. 17.—Denying asserted claims of those opposing him that he has been a "do-nothing congressman," and that he is a communist, Clyde L. Garrett, member of congress from Eastland, last night gave a report of his three and a half years' service at a Garrett rally on the federal lawn. A large crowd sat attentively as the congressman spoke for more than an hour.

"I have represented my district to the best of my ability. I went to congress for action and not showmanship. I do not boast of being a great statesman but I have diligently looked after the interests of my district," Garrett said.

"What have they wanted me to do that I have not done? They haven't named a thing, only that I have done nothing," the congressman added.

He then reviewed his accomplishments and asked that the voters be their own judges.

The congressman listed programs he has supported, as follows:

- 1.—The farm bill reducing interest on federal land bank notes.
- 2.—The Farm security administration, that he declared, has saved farms, teams and implements for hundreds of the district.
- 3.—The Jones-Bankhead farm tenant purchase program.
- 4.—All amendments to the federal farm act aimed at correcting ills of the act.
- 5.—The rural electrification program.
- 6.—National neutrality act.
- 7.—All relief appropriations.
- 8.—Tireless work on behalf of world war veterans.

"And they say I am a communist. You be the judge. Would a communist support legislation that I have worked for? A communist wouldn't have voted to create the Dies committee. A communist would have voted against the act requiring fingerprinting of all aliens. A communist would not have favored increasing the number of FBI men. Nor would a communist have voted to deport Harry Bridges. I have never supported any legislation that was communistic in any way."

The congressman then gave his views on current international affairs with emphasis on the national defense act every part of which he said he had supported. "I have long favored a two-ocean navy and a national defense that will forever protect our shores from any invader."

Garrett also favored the military conscription bill now before congress.

It is the most democratic method of military service. It assures that my boy and your boy will share equally in the defense of our nation. The volunteer system will not work," he declared.

Roosevelt Did Not Listen To Willkie Speak

By Tom F. Reynolds
United Press White House

ABOVE PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO NORWOOD, N. Y., Aug. 17.—President Roosevelt meets the Canadian Prime Minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, tonight for a conference which may result in an understanding on problems of defending the western hemisphere.

Mr. Roosevelt had already announced that conversations are in progress with Canada on defense of the western hemisphere and negotiations are proceeding with Great Britain for western hemisphere defenses against aggression from overseas.

King will board Mr. Roosevelt's train about 6 p. m. at Ogdensburg, N. Y., after the president has inspected the war games of the first army in progress there. In approximately 100 square miles in the Ogdensburg region bordering on the Canadian border, 91,000 regulars and national guardsmen are simulating the conditions of actual warfare.

In Mr. Roosevelt's private car, the president and King will have dinner together and spend the evening talking. The prime minister will spend the night aboard Mr. Roosevelt's train and Sunday morning will accompany the president to military religious services conducted in the field for the troops.

J. Pierrepoint Moffett, American minister to Canada, accompanied King from Ottawa.

Sometime around noon Sunday, King will go back to Canada and Mr. Roosevelt will leave for his home at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Mr. Roosevelt will not be part of the radio audience listening to the acceptance speech of Wendell L. Willkie, republican presidential nominee, this afternoon. He will be in a motor car near the St. Lawrence river, checking up on men, ordnance and material gathered for the war games.

Mr. Roosevelt was accompanied by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Chairman Andrew J. May, D., Ky., of the house military affairs committee. Others in the official party were his military and naval aides, Brig. Gen. Edwin M. Watson and Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan, and Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general of the navy. He arrives at Ogdensburg, early this afternoon.

Bridge East of Ranger Washed Out Due to Rains

Eastbound traffic from Ranger was being routed through Caddo, Saturday due to a washout at Russell creek bridge about five miles east of Ranger on highway 80.

Work for widening of the bridge was in progress and a detour around the structure had been built. This was destroyed by waters from the heavy rains early Saturday. Restoration of the detour was in progress, yesterday, and it was believed that the temporary bridge would be ready for Sunday traffic.

R. A. F. BLASTS OIL PLANTS IN GERMANY

A thundering swarm of German bombers struck at Britain in pre-dawn raids, Saturday, blasting a wide area of Wales. Southeastern towns and the southeast coast suffered the full force of the raid, Saturday afternoon.

Many already were homeless as the Nazis went into their seventh successive day of intensive mass attacks on harbors, airports, factories and warehouses.

Even as funds were being collected for the relief of the homeless, other homes were destroyed by delayed action bombs exploding Saturday morning.

While British pursuit planes fought new swarms of invading warplanes, the air ministry revealed the British bombers raiding Germany Friday night, had struck heavily at the Nazi-air-fuel supply, wrecking "very large damage" on a great synthetic fuel plant at Leuna, near Liepsig, where coal is transformed into gasoline.

The air ministry said a hundred bombs dropped on the Leuna plant, which "normally produces 400,000 metric tons of synthetic oil annually," set off a chain of fires marking almost the entire area of the main plant.

Dogfights Begin Early
Two bombers failed to find their mark, the statement said. One returned home with its bombs; the other lost a salvo at a large Nazi anti-aircraft battery.

"These are samples of the extreme care the RAF takes to identify its targets and thus avoid all danger of bombing nonmilitary objectives," the ministry explained.

At the same time the ministry revised upward its figures of German planes destroyed, reporting 75—not 71—Nazi raiders had been shot down during Friday's "very much smaller" scale attacks and insisting that a new check of Thursday's air battles showed 180 invading aircraft "certainly destroyed." The previous figure for Thursday was 169. British losses Friday were 22 planes, but 14 pilots were saved.

Saturday's daylight raids began with dogfights over an inland town in the southeast, where British fighters shot down one Messerschmitt and captured its pilot.

The new squadrons were sighted shortly after the surprise explosion in a southwestern London suburb of delayed-action German bombs, which the British said were dropped Friday night by Nazi warplanes in their smashing attack at both sides of the Thames estuary.

A dozen persons visiting the scene of the bombardment narrowly escaped injury and others were sent scurrying to air raid shelters by the explosions. They had moved away from the site a bare minute before the bombs went off.

Casualties in Wales
There were two more bomb explosions later in the day. One damaged several houses and the other exploded near a factory.

Night operations by the Nazi air force—following up Friday's large-scale mass daylight attacks on widespread areas—were concentrated mainly on Wales, where a large number of casualties and at least one death were reported.

The air ministry meanwhile scaled down its estimate of the number of German planes engaged in Friday's operations, saying there were not as many as the reported 1,000 which took part in Thursday's mass assaults. Earlier unofficial reports had indicated that as many as 2,500 might have taken part.

Two women and a man were taken to a hospital Friday night when two bombs struck in the main square of a Welsh town. Houses were damaged, the windows of three hotels were shattered, and a fire brigade turned out to keep in check a blaze which broke out in the center of the town.

Two whistling bombs crashed in the middle of another town, damaging property and causing several casualties. One woman said:

"It is remarkable that some people weren't killed. One woman fell from her bedroom into the room below. She was not seriously injured."

German planes also were reported over Southwest and Southeast England during the night, while a single raider dropped nine bombs on a southwest coast town. Searchlights failed to pick up the plane in the moonlight.

New Technique Required
The bombs fell in a residential district, the shattering explosions shaking the town out of its sleep.

How to Conquer Courteously

Even conquest is not what it was in the old days. The world isn't getting any more decent or any more moral, but it is getting a darned sight slicker.

Observe the difference between conquest, 1940 model, and conquest in the old bad days.

In the O. B. D. the invading army marched in, beat the defenders, massacred everybody in sight, stole everything removable, and went home, leaving behind a suitable garrison and an iron-fisted governor.

These matters have been improved upon in our enlightened age. Follow the modern procedure:

The invading army marches in, beats the defenders. So far it is all the same. But now it changes. Nobody is massacred. Nothing is stolen. The occupying troops are polite, not to say courtly. They pay for everything.

Now follow closely. They pay with special money, all printed up in the home country for the occasion. The shopkeeper who sells a pair of silk stockings to a trooper is paid in this special money—let's call 'em blitz-dollars.

But the invaded country is still using its old traditional money. People will take blitz-dollars from the invaders, but not from each other. So the merchant takes his accumulated blitz-dollars to the national bank of his country, and says, here, I want old-fashioned money for these. The bank obligates because it must, at a rate of exchange set by the conquerors.

Now watch more closely. The silk stockings, which are goods and therefore valuable, have gone off to the country of the invader. All that the invaded country has to show for them is certain printed slips, fast accumulating in the national bank. If the invaded country is to get anything valuable back for the silk stockings, these blitz-dollars must be capable of being exchanged for other goods.

But they aren't, except in the invading country. So, to get anything back at all for the goods bought and shipped away for blitz-dollars, the invaded country must buy something from the invader with them.

The invader then offers to take back his blitz-dollars for exactly whatever goods he chooses to dump on the invaded country at exactly whatever prices he chooses to charge. The invaded victim has no choice.

It isn't business. It isn't quite stealing in the manner of old-time conquerors riding off with loot at the saddle-bow. Just what it is we scarcely know. But France, and Norway, and Belgium, and Poland are finding out.

It is a noted chiropractor that advises sufferers from uncerated teeth to wade in six inches of cold water in the bathtub. The cure is simple. Merely slip, fall, and knock out the offending molars.

After putting his horse through jumps, Il Duce asks, "Am I sick? Am I tired?" The rest of the stanza probably goes, "Oh, I am! OK, you're fired."

R. A. F. Blasts—

but while a number of houses were damaged there were no casualties. Britain, against whom Germany is directing the greatest air attack in history, claimed continued mastery of her skies for her fighter pilots and her defense gunners on the ground.

She declared her resistance was so fierce it had compelled the German air force to resort to a new technique in its daily assaults.

The Nazi air force has lost almost 80 planes a day since the six successive days of major attacks began last Sunday, the British said. That toll has been so damaging, they added, that the raiders, once past the coast, no longer can concentrate their bombardments on specific objectives but must disperse over a wide area.

The Germans Friday bombed many places in many counties, with two of the chief attacks directed at the Thames Estuary. Both were turned back before the raiders could strike at London itself, although the second wave dropped explosives in the southwestern suburbs.

An official statement said first reports indicated the number of persons killed was small, despite widespread damage. The casualties included some of the personnel at RAF airbases, it was acknowledged.

British censorship banned publication of any total of casualties, which the government now releases only monthly. However, an Associated Press correspondent who toured the bombed southwestern area told of seeing 13 bodies himself. He saw a factory, two saloons, a railway station ticket office, a church and a mission hall, several stores and a number of houses that were wrecked or burned to the ground.

"Deliberate" Attack on Homes. The government charged the Germans for the first time with staging a "deliberate attack" on a nonmilitary objective.

The communiqué said "several persons were fatally injured" in an attack on the "residential town of Eastbourne," a peace-time resort on the south coast. "Residential" means Eastbourne is considered to be without military objectives, though it is in the defense area from which children have been removed and where travel is restricted.

The Nazi warplanes dive-bombed the town Friday night. RAF fighters tangled with the Germans in dogfights obscured by clouds from watchers were believed to have been shot down, while the body of a German pilot was found on the roof of an empty schoolhouse and another Nazi airman who bailed out of his plane was drowned in the sea.

The first attack on the London area came at lunch time. The massive Nazi flying column, met by British fighters and anti-aircraft fire, was split in two. Part of the raiding force was turned back before it reached the outskirts of the city, while the others battled their way up the Thames estuary, bombing the Tilbury docks, Northfleet and Barking.

Then they skirted around the southeast portion of London without dropping any bombs in this area, the air ministry said.

New squadrons came roaring up the estuary at tea time. This time they tossed their cargoes over the southwestern suburbs. (Berlin claimed the bombs started explosions in London's East End, and that the raiders also struck at the northern and western suburbs).

Croydon Raiders Destroyed. Meanwhile the British counter-attacking Nazis claimed to have lost 32 planes Thursday, issued a special communiqué declaring that, although most of Thursday's air battles took place over the sea, "it is now known that 49 enemy aircraft were brought down on land."

"The German high command will find it difficult," the air ministry declared, "to explain how the wreckage of 49 of their aircraft came so strewn over the British countryside if their total losses for the day were only 32."

The air ministry also claimed complete destruction of the Nazi squadrons which launched a dive-bombing attack on Croydon Thursday. "Not a single one of the enemy formations returned to tell the tale," the ministry reported.

Twenty to 30 Junker bombers were said to have been used in that attack.

Comments On Garretts Race

In view of the disturbed political and economical conditions of the world at this time, it is my opinion that both the legislative and executive departments of our National government be reinstated or left undisturbed and that since they have been on the job for the past few years, and are now thoroughly familiar with all pending legislation, more especially pertaining to preparation for our national defense, they can carry this program forward without the loss of time, and I therefore favor the re-election of our congressman, Hon. Clyde Garrett. His record is not perfect, neither will it be during his next term, but he has been faithful, courageous and honest, and ever mindful of the best interests of the people of the 17th congressional district.

J. J. KELLY.

Testimony of Honor and Integrity.

For the past 35 years, it has been my joy and pleasure to know personally and intimately, Congressman Clyde L. Garrett. I knew his father before him, I knew him as a banker, as county clerk and as county judge.

During this long acquaintance, I have ever found him honest, and honorable, a clean upright christian gentleman, fair and just, in all his decisions. I have had occasion to acquaint myself with his official record, for the past four years, and in my opinion, it would be a grave mistake on the part of the voters of this seventeenth congressional district to deprive ourselves of the knowledge, wisdom and efficiency of this capable man in the crisis that confronts us at this time.

A. K. WIER, Md.

One Man's Opinion.

Since it appears that there is a well-organized publicity campaign against our present congressman, Hon. Clyde L. Garrett, and because Congressman Garrett's opponent is using expensive radio musicians in his efforts to gain support, we deem it to be altogether proper that we give you one man's opinion why it is not only advisable—but necessary—that the 17th Congressional District return Clyde Garrett to Congress.

Congressman Garrett is qualified and competent to handle the duties of our congressman. Clyde Garrett is acquainted with the demands of Washington and knows the men there and how to get the job done. Clyde Garrett is running on a record that is second to none in Congress, and Clyde Garrett does not need to hire expensive radio orchestras nor make extravagant and impossible promises to secure political support.

Without even conducting a campaign, Clyde Garrett led the ticket in the first primary by over 4000 votes—this in the face of one of the bitterest and best organized political attempts to discredit a public official ever seen in Texas. In plain words, the people had such confidence in the good service—in the honesty and efficiency of Clyde Garrett that more of them wanted him in congress than voted for any other man.

It would be unwise to change congressmen under the present circumstances and we believe that the voters of the district are satisfied with Clyde Garrett's services and are individually capable of seeing and analyzing the present propaganda campaign against him.

JUDGE LATTIMORE LED FIRST PRIMARY 52,000 VOTES OVER FIVE OPPONENTS!

(Pol. Adv.)

Harris County: "I am voting for Judge H. S. Lattimore because as a man, a lawyer and a jurist I believe him to be the better equipped man in the race for the high position of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court."

Hidalgo County: "There are four particular reasons which determine my course in supporting Judge Lattimore." (The first three deal with Judge Lattimore's opponent). Fourth: "Your vote came primarily from the intelligent, responsible, uncontrolled, independent voters of the State. I find upon investigation among a great many of the men and women who voted for me, that most of them favor you over your opponent."

Travis County: "The State Supreme Court needs a lawyer with democratic ideals, naturally endowed to be Chief Justice, and H. S. Lattimore is that in full."

SERIAL STORY MURDER INCOGNITO

BY NORMAN KAHL

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Everyone in the house is under suspicion. Rhoda Saylor's chauffeur, is brought in for questioning. Later O'Leary joins the two guests in the drawing room. Suddenly, there is a shot.

CHAPTER VI

It seemed hours after the shot before anyone moved. Dale Appleby, his face pallid, was the first to leap to his feet. "My God—! Another one," he said in a hoarse whisper. He started toward the study, and Mardell and Barbour rose to follow him. O'Leary barred the way. "Never mind, gentlemen," he said. "It's all right."

Barbour, the red tint missing from his fleshy cheeks, seemed genuinely frightened. "But that shot—" "I ordered, that shot fired," O'Leary said calmly. "It was fired from the den out of the window and into the air—harmlessly. No one was hurt this time."

"But why?" Dale demanded. "Just to satisfy my curiosity," said the lieutenant. "Saylor was shot to death. We know that, but no one heard the shot. Yet everyone heard this one. So Saylor couldn't have been shot with an ordinary gun. Whoever did the job used a silencer. With a silencer, a gun could be shot off in the den and you wouldn't be able to hear anything. It's too far away from this room, and Saylor had the door closed."

Slowly the men ambled back to their chairs. They were still a little angry. O'Leary turned to Mardell. "May I see you in the study for a few minutes?"

The lieutenant motioned Mardell to a chair. "What were you doing here tonight, Mardell?" he asked bluntly.

Suave and self-composed, Winslow Mardell leaned back in his chair and propped his head gracefully against the cushioned support. "Just a social visit, Lieutenant. Saylor asked me for dinner along with the others."

From his pocket, O'Leary extracted a sheaf of papers, clipped together. "You wouldn't know anything about these?"

Mardell tilted his head slightly and glanced at the papers. Then he smiled. "So you found them."

O'Leary went on. "A lot of dough is represented here—$35,000. Not exactly chicken feed. These I. O. U.'s are yours, aren't they? You signed them."

Mardell looked bored. "Sure they're mine. So what?" "How come?"

"A little business—between Saylor and me."

"Gambling debts, aren't they?" Mardell said evenly. "Maybe."

"Were you going to pay them?" The man's eyes flashed. "Certainly. Do you think—" "Tonight?"

For the first time, Mardell seemed ill at ease. "Well, no. I didn't have that much cash on me." He leaned forward angrily. "But Saylor knew that. He knew I was going to settle up. He didn't need the money right away."

O'Leary folded his arms and breathed deeply. "All right, Mardell. That's all for the time being. Tell Miss Waters and Mr. Appleby I want to see them."

"THERE'S something about that mug I don't like," Sergeant Carroll commented after Mardell had gone.

O'Leary nodded. "He'll bear a little checking."

Carroll had slouched back in a chair along the inner wall. He didn't bother to get up when Dale and Rhoda entered the room.

"Sit down," O'Leary invited. "Mr. Appleby, I want to know where your stepfather's will might be found."

"I don't know," Dale replied. "He never confided in me."

"You don't know who'll get his money? There must be quite a lot of it."

"No, I can't say."

"Do you expect any?" Dale exchanged a swift glance with Rhoda. "I'll get my mother's money. That's written into her will. He couldn't have changed that."

"Will that be very much?" "Yes."

"I may as well," the young man decided. "Most of my mother's money was left to me, you see—but in a trust fund over which Saylor had almost unlimited power. He didn't need to give the money to me, even when I reached 21. If he didn't feel like it—and he didn't feel like it—"

"Did you ever ask your stepfather for the money, Mr. Appleby?"

"Yes—but he refused."

"Why?" Dale flushed. "I don't think that—"

"I'll tell you why," Rhoda exploded. Her delicate features were tense. Her pretty fists were tightly clenched. "Martin Saylor hated me. He told Dale he wouldn't release the money until I was out of the picture."

Sergeant Carroll leaned forward. "You didn't like him very well?"

Dale answered for her. "Frankly, we didn't."

O'Leary glanced at his wrist watch. "Twelve-thirty. It's too late to do very much more tonight. Mr. Appleby, I'm going to ask a favor of you. I'd like everyone to stay here tonight. Can you arrange it?"

Dale looked startled. "Of course, but—" "Thank you," said O'Leary.

"FORTY-FIVE minutes later, the two officers were still sitting in the study. All the lights had been turned out.

"Chief, this case has me stumped," said Carroll.

"Yeah," O'Leary responded, noncommittally.

"I don't get it at all. A murder couldn't have been committed—and yet it was. All the suspects were in the other room, and the window wasn't opened, and—"

He stopped suddenly. From somewhere just outside the door that led into the library, they heard the sounds of shuffling feet.

O'Leary stole quietly behind the divan in which the two men had been sitting and whispered curt orders for the sergeant to stand in the recess next to the fireplace.

The door opened, and a sharp beam of light from an electric torch cut across the room. O'Leary held his breath as the beam passed the sofa behind which he was huddled.

It was impossible, in the darkness, to tell who the man was. His light was turned toward the books in the built-in cases on the east wall, and he seemed to be studying the titles. Finally, he selected two large books and pulled them out of place. He reached his hand in the space where the books had been.

Suddenly O'Leary realized what the man was doing. Behind those books, secreted by a panel, was Saylor's safe. In a few minutes, the man pulled aside a small, steel door and reached his hand into the chamber.

O'Leary lifted himself to his feet. "All right, buddy," he said. "Drop it." He spoke quietly, but in the stillness of the night his voice boomed across the room.

The figure at the bookcase wheeled around. He swung his beam swiftly over the room and caught O'Leary square in the face. In the next instant, there was darkness as the torch was switched off, and then... a flash of flame and a crashing sound as he fired a shot at the detective's head.

John Lee Smith OF THROCKMORTON FOR STATE SENATOR

I am making this race on my own merits and at my own expense, supplemented by the small contributions of friends, ranging from 50c to $10.00. I am not obligated to any special interest, corporation or group. My hands and my heart are free and unfettered to represent and serve the great common people of this district. I have but one allegiance—that is to my fellow-citizens and their welfare.

I URGE:

1. Full payment of pensions by performance, not promises.
2. Fair and equal tax levies on all forms of wealth—(no sales tax).
3. Favoritism and special privileges to none.
4. Raise truck load limit to not less than 12,000 pounds.
5. Reduction of state salaries not less than 10%, and abolition of all unnecessary boards, bureaus and commissions.
6. Honest co-operation with the governor to solve the state's perplexing problems in these critical times.

School Children Required To Be Vaccinated

Several years ago the Ranger school board passed a perpetual resolution requiring all school children to be vaccinated as a condition of eligibility to attend school. This ruling is in keeping with the regulations of the State Department of Health and the State Department of Education and is enforced for the protection of every child.

The Ranger board is asking the cooperation of parents whose children have not been vaccinated and requests them to attend to this matter at once. If vaccination is postponed until after school opens it might be necessary for some of the children to miss school and thus get behind with their instruction and it is hoped that each parent will avoid this possibility.
