FOUR INJURED SEVERELY IN A CAR WRECK

Four residents of Morton Valley were injured seriously, but not fatally, about 9:30 Tuesday night, when the car in which they were driving was blinded by the lights of an approaching car.

At the West Texas hospital in Ranger, where the four were taken, it was reported today that it was not expected that any of the injuries would prove fatal, unless unforeseen complications set in.

Those injured were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Beck, Odell Graham, a 12-year-old girl and Donald Tow. Mrs. Beck is probably the most seriously injured, having sustained a broken jaw and severe injuries to her nose and face. It was stated at the hospital that her car was badly crushed. Beck's car was broken in two places and sustained cuts and bruises.

Odell Graham received bad cuts about the face and head, and she probably is severely injured. Donald Tow received a bad cut on one hand and severe concussion, the concussion being his most serious injury.

The four were enroute home to Morton Valley from Ranger at the time of the accident.

Collect "Superman," Sent by Co-eds, Is Just Pint Size

CANYON, Tex.—"Superman" was taken to West Texas State Teachers College, but he is only five feet six inches tall and weighs just 135 pounds.

This pocket-sized edition of one of the nation's favorite comic-strip characters is Glen Davis of Amarillo, president of the senior class. He was chosen in an election in which only co-eds voted, and while the girls admitted he was no Hercules they said they chose Davis because he is "a personable brunet of many accomplishments."

To their way of thinking, the co-eds declared, Davis—without a "Superman" physique—has the most "important" attributes of a super man: a nice appearance, pleasant personality, keen mentality, and "ability to rise to most any occasion."

To Superman Davis' credit is his presidency of each of his classes since he entered college four years ago.

President J. A. Hill of West Texas State warmly remarked that he, too, would deem Davis a super man if he could take care of these "few details":

Influence the Texas legislature to grant a major building, duly needed; dig a basement for an annex to Randall Hall, the cooperative home; push aside a few dust storms during important conventions this spring; tear down half a dozen houses on properties recently purchased by the school; bring in around a hundred thousand bricks for the proposed college museum annex.

Hogs Bring a High On Stock Markets

FORT WORTH, Jan. 15.—Hog prices on the Livestock Market today advanced to the highest point since October 1938, when pig butchers reached a peak of $8.45 per hundred, up 30 cents over the high for yesterday.

Citrus Fiesta Will Start at Mission On January 16th

MISSION, Texas — Mission, "Home of the Grapefruit," will present its eighth annual Texas Citrus Fiesta on January 16, 17, 18 and 19 to inaugurate citrus week in Texas.

The most elaborate program in the history of the celebration has been arranged for the four days.

Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel has proclaimed Texas Citrus Week from January 17 to 25, inclusive, and the annual fiesta, which has attracted thousands of visitors from all of Texas as well as the valley since its inception in 1932, has become the feature of the week.

The celebration program opens Thursday night with coronation of Queen Citeranna VIII, Miss Jane Weiner of Donna. Not until the queen is seated on her throne will the identity of King Citrus VIII be revealed. His coronation will follow hers.

The coronation pageant this year will depict the widespread shipment of the Texas citrus crop to all parts of the nation. In addition to representing some produce in the kingdom of citrus, duchesses of the various valley cities will also represent some important American citrus market.

Citrus, commercial, flower, antique and hobby shows and exhibits will be open throughout the four-day period. There will be an encampment of 400 United States army cavalrymen from Fort Ringgold throughout the celebration period at the Mission high school athletic field. Their complete mechanized equipment will be on display.

Two Dallas Hunters Hit the Same Mark

DALLAS, Tex.—E. T. (Ted) Dealey and Donald Bennet on a recent hunting trip both shot a wild boar. Only one bullet hole was found in its skin and the shots were fired at so nearly the same time that neither hunter knew the other had fired.

Dealey and Bennet were about 25 yards apart when two javalinas ran from a thicket. One of them stopped in a grassy glade about 15 yards from the hunters.

"When the javalina stepped out into the grassy glade, Bennet and I fired simultaneously," Dealey said. "I didn't know he had shot and he didn't know I had."

When they got him to camp and the Mexican guides started skinning him, we found there was only one hole in the skin where both bullets had entered. However, there were two bullet courses right through the carcass, approximately a half-inch apart. You could have covered both of them with a silver dollar."

DEFENSE OF PHILIPPINES TO BE LINKED

MANILA.—Coincident with the reinforcement of U. S. military and naval forces in the Philippines, the American and island armies are synchronizing their plans for Philippine defense with a view to achieving the maximum possible degree of preparedness, reliable sources here revealed.

United States and Philippine Commonwealth military chiefs, it is understood, are taking into consideration the tremendous pace of national defense activity in the United States in working out plans for the defense of the islands.

U. S. army officers were reported to have conducted an inspection of Philippine army training cadres, mobilization centers and depots to determine equipment needs and other defense requirements of the scantily armed Filipino militia.

It is understood the inspections were made for the specific purpose of estimating the appropriations necessary for financing a mobilization of Filipino manpower in an emergency.

There are 12 divisions of trained Filipino regulars and reserves. Combined with the 10,000 U. S. army regulars in the country, including the Philippine Scouts, these divisions comprise the first-line land force of the Philippines.

Washington reports indicating the possibility of $50,000,000 appropriation for Philippine defense were enthusiastically received in defense circles here. U. S. army authorities as well as the Commonwealth government are understood to be in favor of this contemplated procedure. The sum, if it should be made available, probably would be used to procure armaments for the Philippine Army.

The amount would not be sufficient to cover all Philippine defense requirements, but it would immensely strengthen the defense capacity. The Commonwealth normally appropriates $8,000,000 yearly for defense, but for 1940 the outlay was said to be only $3,500,000. The reduction was attributed to the official belief there was not much logic in training more men while there was not enough armaments with which to equip them.

While an impressive number of young Filipinos have undergone military training since the advent of the Commonwealth government in 1935, there has been little progress in acquiring armaments necessary to a modern military force.

The Philippines' air defenses recently were bolstered considerably by the U. S. army's dispatch of two full pursuit squadrons to the islands. The U. S. army here now has a known first-line strength of 80 planes, while the navy has at least 26 long-range naval patrol bombers.

Naval forces in Philippine waters at present are stronger than at any time since the American occupation. The Asiatic fleet includes three cruisers, the Cincinnati, Houston, and Marblehead, three divisions of destroyers, an aircraft carrier, six S-boats, and 18 large submarines, 12 of which arrived here recently.

The Commonwealth has no navy, but the Philippine army operates an offshore patrol consisting of two fast motor-torpedo boats called Q-boats.

This patrol reserve has been created to absorb merchant marine officers and sailors into the national defense structure. Creation of the patrol and the reserve constitutes the first step toward the organization of Philippine sea-going forces.

Major-Gen. Basilio J. Valdez, chief-of-staff of the army, has announced the appointment of about 200 merchant marine officers and sailors to various grades in the reserve.

JAPAN FACES NEW PROBLEM AS WAR LULLS

European military operations hit a lull today as America considered new methods for aiding Great Britain in her war with the axis powers.

The interlude was believed by some to foreshadow the new German air and sea operations around Britain's battered shores and an all-out test of air power over sea power as Germany's challenge to the British Royal Navy's domination in the vital Mediterranean Sea.

In the Far East Japan's leaders grappled with an "unprecedented crisis" at home and abroad. The crisis arises from Japan's deep involvement in China, her commitments to the axis powers and the prospect for the scope of the European war widening.

It seemed likely that the chief problem confronting Japan are the ticklish question of switching her military drive against China to the South Pacific, and what to do if the United States finally comes to Britain's side and to actual participation in the European war.

There was no hint as to what solutions to these problems were being urged to the Tokyo conferences.

Other fronts were comparatively quiet today, with no important changes being noted.

Lead Gets Role In U. S. History

IOWA CITY, Ia.—Nearly 250 years ago, tales of the fabulous El Dorado somewhere in what is now the Middle West had French, British and Spaniards scrambling for riches inland.

The "land of gold" was never discovered. Instead, early explorers found rich deposits of lead in the vicinity of Dubuque, Ia.

Dr. William J. Peterson of the University of Iowa history department has outlined the history of the mines since the expedition of Marquette and Joliet in 1673.

It was in 1690, Dr. Peterson found, that Nicholas Perrot came to teach the Miami Indians how to mine lead. In 1717, John Law established his "Company of the West," but when his "Mississippi Bubble" burst, France was shaken to its foundations, he said.

British military forces were sent in 1780 to drive out the Spaniards and stop a supply of lead from reaching Washington's armies.

Julian Dubuque began to dig lead in 1788, the year George Washington was elected President, and eight years later he staked out his "Mines of Spain" as the largest land grant in the Iowa country.

When settlers swarmed into Iowa in 1833, they increased the total valuation of lead received at St. Louis was double the combined value of the St. Louis fur trade and commerce over the Santa Fe trail, the university historian declared.

Workers Pass the Number of Troops At Fort Bragg

FORT BRAGG, N. C.—Fort Bragg is the largest military reservation in the United States, but up until six months ago it was considered a "military suburb" of Fayetteville, a town of approximately 20,000.

Then came conscription. Fort Bragg's population of 5,000 increased 1,200 per cent. There are now 22,000 troops and 24,000 workmen, and by June the population will have increased to 67,000.

In the words of one army man, the tail has begun to wag the dog, and is wagging harder every day.

Troops come first in the army, so at present quarters for enlisted and drafted men are getting all the attention. Officers live where they can until the construction quartermaster can find time to build their homes.

At Pinehurst, Southern Pines and other resort towns within a 50-mile radius, army officers and their families have moved in by the hundreds. And there is no sympathy for the privates who must answer reveille—the officers have to get up in time to drive 50 miles for the same formation.

There are 2,478 buildings either completed or under construction, and soldiers are coming in by the thousands. Building figures are by no means official—they change so rapidly that the army itself is hard-pressed to keep track of what is going on.

The 24,000 workmen live in tourist camps and every available room for miles around.

What is an undisturbed stretch of pinewoods one day will have a wide road through it the next. A week later a hundred or more buildings—each housing between 60 and 70 men—will be half-completed on the site of the pine trees.

The 10-mile road between the reservation and Fayetteville is a noisy, nerve wracking bedlam each afternoon. Workmen drive to and from work and many of them get through at the same hour of the day. A new road is contemplated between Fayetteville and Fort Bragg to alleviate the situation.

And, although confusion seems rampant, contractors and army builders know what they're doing—the construction program is days ahead of schedule. The military police also keep abreast of each day's development for old timers easily get lost.

In Fayetteville meanwhile there are soldiers by the thousand on leave. They stand in line for seats at restaurants, movies, drug stores. They remain friendly, however, they are used to standing in line—they line up for mess at the post for one thing.

The carpenters make plenty of noise as they work at high speed. And the noise is mingled with that of pneumatic drills, the booming of heavy field artillery, anti-aircraft fire, machine guns, rifle and target practice and the drone of planes. Meanwhile thousands and thousands of recruits ignore the noise and are learning to be soldiers.

WHY OF BARKING LIZARDS CANBERRA, Australia—Herpetologists have ascertained that Australia's barking lizards won't bark if they are not disturbed.

BRITISH BUYING OF U. S. FOOD MAY INCREASE

WASHINGTON—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics believes that Great Britain's shipping losses in the war will shorten British trade routes, turning them from far-flung colonies to large stores of surplus agricultural products in the United States and Canada.

In the monthly Commodity Review the bureau predicted that war-faltering U. S. agricultural exports would be raised by "such an increase in British shipping losses as to make it impracticable for Great Britain to purchase its meat and other products from more distant surplus-producing nations."

The bureau pointed out that a similar situation swung trade to the United States during the World War although credit extensions by this country contributed to British export trade. Canada, however, it was said, might be called on to supply many needed supplies should the German and Italian sea warfare diminish the empire's trade lanes.

Turning to the domestic market, the bureau reported a "noticeable" trend in consumer demand for surplus farm commodities.

The sharp rise of industrial production, employment, and factory payrolls since last spring has been accompanied by a smaller yet noticeable improvement in consumer demand for farm products," the bureau said.

The bureau cited six reasons for the increased domestic demand. They were:

- 1—Business men have been buying farther ahead, in fear of later price increases and difficulty in obtaining deliveries.
- 2—Many industries have been spending large sums to increase production facilities opening new markets.
- 3—Large-scale manufacture of some defense equipment has stimulated old markets.
- 4—The general increase in business activity has stimulated sales and production of consumers' goods—such as automobiles and furniture.
- 5—Textile output has been at a high rate for some time.
- 6—Export of products to be used in war has assumed considerable proportions.

The bureau said that seasonally corrected indexes of industrial activity will level off or decline slightly some time during the first half of 1941.

"Please Show Us," Is Navy Request To Isle Designer

BOSTON—Designs for construction of floating man-made islands, to be anchored in mid-ocean for use as air bases and emergency harbors, have been submitted to congressional and naval authorities by Capt. Lars Mikkelsen of Boston, a retired sea captain.

The islands, to cost $12,000,000 each, would be equipped with airplane landing fields, specially planned harbors for large ships and living quarters for the crew and visitors. A system of large docks, similar to canal locks, would provide passage between the harbor and the ocean.

Navy officials told Capt. Mikkelsen they would consider the invention only after a demonstration at his own expense. He has requested an opportunity to explain his idea to President Roosevelt in an interview.

The islands would be one-half mile long and 800 feet wide, and would be held in place by anchors. Mikkelsen says the floating bases would be valuable not only for hemisphere defense but as permanent bases for refueling in trans-Atlantic air travel.

Abilene Has Plenty Of Drinking Water

ABILENE, Tex.—Thirsty? Come to Abilene and drink your fill. This city has water a plenty.

Abilene's water supply, as the year began, was 10,500,000 gallons, according to L. A. Grimes, superintendent of the municipal water department.

This is enough for the city under normal conditions—for 19 years.

The new reservoir at Fort Phantom Hill now contains about 3,000,000,000 gallons of water. When filled, it will have 22,800,000,000 gallons.

Conscience Speaks To An Erring Scout

WESTBROOK, Me.—The proprietor of the Vallee drug store, operated by the father of Rudy Vallee, rang up an unexpected nickel the other day.

Through the mail the druggist received this note:

"Dear Sir: I am a Boy Scout and have decided a Boy Scout should not steal. While in your store this afternoon, I stole a candy bar. I am sorry, yours truly,

"P. S. I am sending along the 5 cents."

The letter was unsigned but the money was enclosed.

Saved—In the Nick of Time

Driven by roaring flames from his room in a Brooklyn apartment house, Patrick Dillon straddled the window-sill, prepared to leap. Firemen on roof persuaded him to hang on until a ladder was raised and he was safely rescued. One man was burned to death in the blaze.

Former Eastland Man Dies Sunday

DALHART, Jan. 15.—Funeral services for George Phillips, 54, prominent stockman, who died at his home of a heart attack, were held here Sunday afternoon.

Miss Clara Stuer, reader for the Dalhart Christian Science Society, officiated and burial was in Dalhart Cemetery.

Mr. Phillips, who had been suffering from a heart ailment for some time, fell from his horse Wednesday on his ranch 23 miles north of here. He suffered a shoulder injury, but apparently had recovered from the fall when he suffered the heart attack.

He came here in 1930 from Eastland where he had been a pipeline and highway contractor. He raised Hereford cattle.

Born at Jacksboro, Mr. Phillips married the former Miss Florence Schell of Dalhart and Amarillo on March 7, 1936, at Post.

He also is survived by two sons, Hal and Harwood Phillips of San Diego, Cal., who were here for the funeral.

280 New Boats For U. S. Navy Asked By a Naval Chief

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Rear Admiral Samuel Robinson, chief of the United States Navy Bureau of Ships, said today the navy department is asking congress for money and authority to build 280 "urgently needed" submarine chasers, minesweepers and motor torpedo boats.

He said the majority of these boats could be built on the Great Lakes this year.

Admiral Robinson made the announcement before the House Naval Affairs Committee, which had earlier approved a $3,000,000 measure to provide warships with better anti-aircraft defenses.

State Buys Manor Of William Penn

HARRISBURG, Pa.—The original manor house farm of William Penn at Pennsylvania along the Delaware river in Bucks county has been purchased by the state.

Eight acres of the tract, including the site of the rebuilt Pennsylvania Manor were given to the state in 1934 by Charles Warner, Philadelphia. The rest was purchased from the Garner Grav-Camp Company. Penn originally owned 7,000 acres between Philadelphia and Trenton.

HULL URGES BRITISH AID AS SAFEGUARD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that "were Britain defeated Germans could easily cross the Atlantic Ocean, especially the South Atlantic, to South America."

He warned that it was now a question of sea power as to who would dominate the world. He warned that Germany would not try any direct invasion of the United States, but would strike at South America, where subversive agents were already busy in those countries, as a prelude to a war in this hemisphere.

The secretary of state said the president's bill was the most effective way in which our resources could be used for our own needs, as well as Britain's needs in helping to save the democracies of the world.

To hold on to our resources and supplies, Hull pointed out, would not mean peace.

He lashed out at Japan for using force of arms in trying to master one half of the world and said that Japan must be prevented from dominating the Pacific Ocean. Germany, Italy and Japan, he said, must be defeated in order that democracy might be safeguarded against the attacks of the dictators.

Secretary Hull is expected to be followed as a witness before the committee hearing, which is being conducted in the caucus room of the House Office Building, by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., secretary of treasury; Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war; Harry Knox, secretary of the navy and William S. Knudsen, defense coordinator.

Is the 'Golden Door' Forever Closed?

Back 50 years or more ago, a colossal statue, gift of the Republic of France, rose at New York's ocean gateway.

The Republic of France is no more, having only recently officially become the French State. The statue still stands. Liberty, they called her, "Liberty Enlightening the World," with a brave torch raised against darkness.

For that dedication a poem was read. Its words had been inscribed on the monument. They were by Emma Lazarus, and the last lines read:

"Send these, the homeless, tempest-tossed, to me:
"I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

They came freely, for many years, those men and women disillusioned and disheartened with the Old World, to seek new homes and a better life in the New. They were for decades new blood that freshened and invigorated the life of the growing Republic. Times changed. The stream was regulated, reduced. Then came evil times even to the New World, and the steam dropped to a trickle.

War convulsed Europe, and certain minorities of race and politics have now become homeless wanderers in Europe, wanted at home only as fodder for revengeful rifles, unwanted and burdensome in temporary haven abroad. Their state becomes progressively more desperate as country after country falls before the invaders. Many earnest efforts have been made to bring them to the New World. Mexico has taken many, especially those closely tied to her speech and culture. The Dominican Republic, Cuba, and other western countries have humanely helped. The United States has not done what its great resources, population and traditions might suggest.

One of the reasons may be that most of the efforts to bring in refugees have been privately backed by political, social, or racial groups whose interest is presumed by many to be special rather than general. Naturally, the United States does not want immigrants selected by groups and sub-groups with special interests in mind. It wants immigrants selected by its own government with national interests only in mind.

The government has just rejected a plea from France that thousands of refugees there from Luxembourg, Belgium and Germany be received here. The government, probably quite properly, suggested that France first release 3500 refugees who already have American visas, but who in the tangle between France and Germany, cannot get exit permits. Between indifference and red tape, people are perishing.

Signs of Life?

Central Utah Is The Scene Of New Tin Mining Boom

HUNTINGTON, Emery County, Utah.—A miniature mining rush has been started in central Utah with discovery of deposits of tin—a metal rarely found in the United States and extremely valuable to national defense industries.

Nearly 150 new claims have been staked out in this area, almost in the exact geographical center of Utah, since the first discovery of tin-bearing ore was reported.

The tin deposits were located by Ernest Derwent and A. G. Riach in the Cedar Mountains near Huntington. A test hole was rapidly sunk and an experimental laboratory established here by the two men.

Preliminary tests indicate the ore contains considerable tin, but samples have been sent to government chemists in Washington for complete analysis.

Succeeding Holmgreen in the AAA will be B. F. Vance, assistant administrative officer. His appointment was made by the state AAA committee and is subject to the approval of the Washington office.

Holmgreen will be the first business manager of the college, a position created by the board of directors.

NTSTC Director Of Choir Named By Music Group

DENTON, Tex.—The selection of Dr. Wilfred C. Bain, head of the music staff at the North Texas State Teachers College, as national vice-president and a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Schools of Music at the seventeenth annual meeting of the association in Cleveland, Ohio, has been announced in Denton.

Bain, who was added to the permanent music staff of the Denton Teachers College in the fall of 1928 as professor of music and head of the department, has directed a remarkably rapid growth in the music department at NTSTC. A graduate of the Choir School at Princeton, N. J., and a former member of the famous Westminster Choir, Bain was conductor of the Houghton College Choir before coming to Texas. At the Denton Teachers College he organized and directed the Denton A Cappella Choir of 45 singers which has appeared throughout the Southwest in annual tours. He holds both the master's and doctor's degrees from New York University and has studied with John Finley Williamson, Father Finn, leader of the Westminster Choir, and Percy Grainger. He is listed in "Who's Who in Music."

Composed of 120 leading professional schools of music in the United States, the National Association of Schools of Music is the only national accrediting agency in music in the nation. As in other national accrediting agencies, membership in the association is by examination only. The organization devotes itself to curriculum research and an evaluation of music teaching techniques with the stated purpose of raising standards in American music education. In 1933 it was selected by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as its official accrediting agency in music.

Seven Texas schools are members of the association—Southern Methodist University, Baylor University, Hardin Simmons University, North Texas State Teachers College, Mary Hardin Baylor, Our Lady of the Lake College, and Incarnate Word.

YOUR TELEPHONE STILL PIONEERS

twice as many telephones as in 1920 ...

twice as many calls ...

faster, more dependable service

The past 20 years in telephone history are marked by constant progress. Bell System workers... 300,000 strong... still pioneer.

Today, America has more than twice as many Bell telephones as 20 years ago. More than twice as many calls flash through the lines each day.

Your service now is faster, clearer, more dependable. In the territory this company serves, for example, your local calls go through in only three-fourths the time it took just two decades ago... long distance calls in one-seventh the time. Coast-to-coast calls often are connected in one-twentieth the time and cost one-fifth as much.

Today, America's telephone system is better armed to meet the fury of disasters. Storms that once silenced hundreds of telephones now disrupt service only slightly... and often not at all. Damage from major catastrophes is repaired in hours and days... instead of weeks and months.

Today, America's telephone force is better than ever able to furnish fast, accurate, and dependable telephone service to the nation.

Film Producer Is Also An Usher

By United Press SAN FRANCISCO — Joseph Sann, part time usher at a theatre in San Francisco's Chinatown, probably is the best paid usher in the United States. When he is not escorting patrons to their seats, Sann busies himself with the management of the theatre which he owns and with producing and directing for the Grandview Film Company which he heads as president. Sann, who was born 36 years ago in Canton, is a self-taught movie producer. His only Hollywood experience was during several months in 1926 when he served as art director for a silent film made by a Chinese studio. Big Success in 1933 In 1933, he produced a Chinese talkie of "Blossom Time," which was so well received by international Chinese audiences that he won financial support to establish his studios in Hongkong. It took in a lot of people and a lot of money," Sann said. The Grandview studio produces 18 features yearly for distribution in America, Cuba, Mexico, the Philippines, South Africa, Hawaii, Panama, Australia and Madagascar. Six of the films are "super" and 12 are "quickness." The super ones are not quite "colossal in the Hollywood sense, but they're big enough, I guess," Sann said. $60,000 Top Cost The super ones are budgeted at from $40,000 to $60,000 and are turned out in three to six months. The quickies are rushed through the studios in three weeks at a cost of $15,000 to $20,000. Salaries of Grandview's 20 stars—modest in comparison with Hollywood standards—range from $6,000 to $36,000 a year, Sann said. The Hongkong studio, using American equipment, and sound-proof stages, films every kind of story—detective stories, comedies and historical dramas. The historical dramas, rewritten from the classic drama in which traditional symbolism is eliminated, are popular with Chinese audiences.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

FOR CONSIDERED RENEWAL OF 1918 WAR LABOR BOARD TO PREVENT STRIKES IN DEFENSE WORK

WASHINGTON.—The President is thinking seriously about issuing a proclamation setting up a labor board to prevent strikes in defense industries when conciliation won't settle the disputes. This would bring into operation a modified version of the 1918 War Labor Board, which functioned effectively in strike prevention. Today's idea comes, naturally enough, from Jett Lauck, who was secretary of the 1918 board and who is now consulting economist for the C. I. O., United Mine Workers, and other labor groups. Lauck argues the President now has ample legal authority to set up such a board and give it power to act. Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman recently asked for a copy of Lauck's proposal to the President and is now giving it study. Edward F. McGrady, former secretary of labor now serving as trouble shooter for the War Department on labor problems, has privately endorsed the plan.

Catton

By proclamation just one year after war had been declared, was the result. This board operated on these principles: 1.—That there should be no strikes or lockouts in defense industries. 2.—That labor should have the right to organize and bargain collectively. 3.—That minimum wages should be high enough to enable the worker to support his family in reasonable health and comfort. 4.—That the eight-hour day be recognized as basic. 5.—That labor would not seek to organize plants not already organized.

FIVE PRINCIPLES GUIDED BOARD LAUCK argues today's problem is much like that of World War days, and that there is no sense duplicating the whole year which elapsed in the World War before a fair method of preventing work stoppages was worked out. In the last war both the War and Navy Departments maintained conciliation services, in addition to the one which operates under the Labor Department. None proved able to keep production going. At President Wilson's request, leaders of labor and industry met in January, 1918, to work out a new plan. The War Labor Board, which Wilson established

THE PAY-OFF

By Gordon Williams Reading, Pa., Times Sports Editor

HE'S admired by every person who knows the difference between a brassie and a niblick. Fellow pros call him the greatest golfer alive. Newspapers write about his competitive spirit, his powers of concentration on the course. Yet, he is a "stranger" to all. Your observer refers to Byron Nelson, 1939 National Open champion, 1940 P. G. A. titleholder, and recent winner of the Miami $10,000 Open tournament. Nelson, for three years professional at the Reading Country Club, now is located at Inverness Country Club, Toledo, O.

Nelson probably is the most misunderstood professional in the big time circuit. They say he is unshy, they say he lacks color, they say he makes a bad impression on the gallery. THE lanky Texan is anything but unshy. In a small city like Reading, where Nelson really got his start, a sports writer gets to know the golf professional. He plays a couple of rounds with them every month. Members of the Reading club saw him develop from a promising young golfer to the National Open champion in that period. When he left Reading, he was the same Byron Nelson who came to the city in 1937, flushed with his first important victory, the Augusta Masters. There's a good story back of Nelson's rapid rise to fame. Four years ago they used to say the angular youth lacked moxie down the home stretch. Stanley Giles, chairman of the greens committee at the Reading club, took Byron aside one day in 1937 in the pro shop. "I've seen every leading pro in the country play and right now I think you're the best shotmaker in the game," Giles told Byron. GILES kept drumming that in Nelson week after week until he had Nelson believing it himself. No longer was he a flash in the pan. The payoff came in the 1939 National Open at Spring Mill, Philadelphia. It was during the second round of the 72 holes. Nelson had been having trouble with his iron... was closing the blade just a fraction of a second too soon. Work on the practice tee disclosed the fault. Following Nelson, Ed Dudley and Henry Picard that afternoon, we spoke with the big boy at the seventh tee.

CONSCRIPT'S WIFE

BY BETTY WALLACE

YESTERDAY, Martha's evasive Paul, makes preparations to visit Bill. Paul suddenly turns up at the apartment, apparently intending to go along. When Martha finally tells him she doesn't want him to go, he asks what is wrong. She has been avoiding him. He had promised Bill to look after her. She finally tells him that before Bill left there were three of them... PAUL ANSWERS QUESTIONS CHAPTER X PAUL ELLIOTT stared down at Martha, speechlessly, as she the clo of her wings hung in the stillness. "The three of us," she said cried. And the implications of those words were suddenly filling the room—suddenly so plain, so clear, so hurting—that she wanted to run away from him. He could not bear the look in his eyes, the way a muscle in his lean cheek was twitching. "Oh, I didn't want to hurt him," Martha thought in dismay. "He's so fine, so worthwhile. Maybe I'm destroying something I'll never find again. I hurt him once, when I married Bill. He forgave that." She thought of the clean, unselfish friendship—the strong arm, always ready to help her—and she experienced a sinking sense of loss. "I didn't mean to say that, Paul," she cried quickly. "I—I didn't mean it—the way it sounded." "Sit down, Martha," Paul said gently. "Sit down here and let's talk this over." "But—but there's nothing to talk over." Again the panic and the uncertainty—as if her feet were set on a bit of earth that kept sliding out from under her. "The whole thing's silly, really. I—I didn't mean to put it that way—!" Her fingers smoothed the maroon housecoat, played with the ornaments on the zipper pull. PAUL pushed her gently down on the sofa. He sat beside her. "Martha, we must be honest with each other. Since this thing has come up—since we've already started discussing it—let's drag it out into the light and examine it. "You have been avoiding me. Definitely, I couldn't understand why. What you just told me makes it very clear. It's because Bill is not here." Almost, his voice was like the voice of the Paul who sat in the private office at Air Transport, discussing with the chief engineer the stresses, strains, and examining the evidence to explain the crumbling of a wing in the wind tunnel. "You said 'the three of us.' Meaning, now that there are just two, you and I"—he smiled, but his eyes weren't smiling—"The situation has changed. Either you haven't ever really wanted me about, since you and Bill were married..." She gasped. "Paul! That's not so! I don't see how you can think that." "Then, Martha, your remark must mean that you—that you're afraid of me. Or of how our being together with Bill away looks. It doesn't look proper, is that it?" She stirred uncomfortably. "No, that's not it." "I don't believe you, Martha. Once there was a time when I would have sworn that gossip—other people's incorrect opinions—meant nothing to you. But now, especially after what Suzanne was foolish enough to get excited about—" Martha's little start, the unguarded gasp that escaped her, was enough to betray the fact that Suzanne had had a finger in this, too. Paul said, sadly, "So she came to you, too?" "She—she only wanted to warn me," Martha said miserably. "She knew there was nothing in it, but—" The memory of her neighbors' whispers, the remark that even the cleaning woman had made, burned in her mind. "She was right, Paul. Besides, it wasn't fair to her, that when you took her out, I should always be there, like a fifth wheel." "Suzanne is intensely emotional. She has an imagination that sees a roaring blaze where other people see not even a wisp of smoke," said Paul, choosing his words very carefully. "I'm fond of Suzanne, sorry that she—she spoiled things." No words came to Martha. She could only sit there, picking at that foolish little zipper ornament. "You'll break it," Paul said. And now he was in absolute control of himself. He stood up. "Look here, Martha. Let's be honest to the very end of the thing. We used to be engaged. I—I thought I was in love with you, and you thought you were in love with me, and it's that knowledge which makes our friendship now look queer while your husband's away." Martha's lips parted. A great tight band seemed to be closing around her chest. It hurt to breathe. Paul said quietly, "But people are wrong. I'm not in love with you now. You're only my best friend's wife, and I want to make his absence less difficult." YET, even as the words left his lips, Martha saw that tell-tale muscle, twitching there in the hollow of his lean cheek. "I'm not in

Women Are Urged To Aid In Work For the Red Cross

It is hoped that the garments, which complete the Ranger quota, and which have already been made, with the exception of sewing on the buttons, might be finished this week. The shipment of all garments made in the Red Cross Stations throughout the country is expected to be shipped later than Jan. 31.

Mrs. J. J. Kelly, chairman of the Ranger Red Cross Station, called attention again today to the meeting to be held all day Thursday at the high school, at which time an effort is to be made to complete the garments being made for the Red Cross.

Mrs. Kelly stated that the meeting would open at 9:30 and that work would continue until 4 o'clock that afternoon, but stated that anyone who could work could come at any time, work as long as they could and could leave at any time.

All who report were requested to bring thimbles and needles. The buttons and thread will be furnished, and all buttonholes on the garments have already been worked by Mrs. John Eaves.

It was pointed out that this is not the work of any one group or club, but that anyone who could work, even if for just a short time, would be welcomed and their services would be appreciated.

4. Judging metal in knives.

Visitors at the club today were Rotarian Ray Newnam of Longview, Miss. Dene Thompson of Scranton representing the Girl's NYA school and Joe Richards of Gordon, of the Boy's NYA.
