COUNTY QUOTA OF WAR BONDS NOT PURCHASED COUNTY CHAIRMAN SAYS

Cyrus Frost of Eastland, chairman of the Eastland County War Bond and Stamp Sales Committee, has issued the following statement concerning the July quota, which was not subscribed:

"The quota for Eastland County for July was $99,200.00. Eastland County purchased War Bonds and Stamps for the month of July approximately the sum of $63,000.00. As all committees in the county put in a reasonable amount of labor and effort to secure the quota and having failed to do the same, it was apparent that the quota assigned Eastland County was too high."

"Having this in mind, as your County Chairman, I went to Austin for a conference with the State Administrator Saturday, August 1st. After going over various assignments of quotas to many different counties in the state, the administrator reached the conclusion that our quota had been set too high and he agreed to place the August quota at $50,400.00 and a like quota for the months of September, October, November and December. I told him, knowing Eastland County as I do, its ability to pay and willingness of its people to want to do their full duty, that I felt sure we could reach our quota for the balance of the year on a basis of $50,400.00 per month."

"I have pledged the faith of this county to such quota and I trust that each and every citizen of this county will work with your local committee to keep this pledge."

"For the month of July respective towns sold War Bonds and Stamps as follows:

"Cisco—$26,057.65; Gorman—$6,854.10; Rising Star—$2,685.01; Eastland—$11,378.50; Ranger—$10,223.75; Carbon—$696.25; Pioneer—$39.55; Desdemona—$87.35; Othello—$301.95; Seranton—$5.00; Okra—$6.35; Nimrod—$3.30; Dothan—$5.00; "Total of the above amounts is $58,344.76 but purchases yet to be credited will bring it up to approximately $63,000.00."

"It will be seen from the above list that some towns did more than their proportionate part while others fell considerably under. It is hoped that no town or community will be willing to do less than its part and it is much better that each and every town and community be found in excess above their fair proportion of the monthly quota."

Institute For Public Officials To Be On Sept. 12

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. —The annual Texas government institute for public officials will be held again this year on Thursday and Friday, September 10-11, Stephen F. Austin College, joint sponsor with the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, announced today.

"We have more problems now than ever before, and hence there is greater need for the Institute," was the general consensus of opinion of County Judges who voted unanimously for continuing this annual short course.

A special committee on reorganization of county government out of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas has been called to meet in connection with the Institute on September 10. County Judge Merritt H. Gibson, Gregg county, is chairman of this committee.

Getting counties by on much less money will be a sort of general theme of the Institute.

Curtis Morris, tax director of the East Texas Chamber, will handle the arrangements of the Institute.

Hoarding Insect Poison Is Being Discouraged Now

COLLEGE STATION —Cotton growers were urged by the Texas USDA War Board this week not to hoard supplies of calcium arsenate.

Ample supplies of calcium arsenate, which is used for poisoning cotton insects, are being manufactured, B. F. Vance, chairman of the board, said. According to latest information, approximately 68,000,000 pounds will be available, 10 per cent more than was used last year.

Indications are that some farmers are making purchases before they need the insecticide, while others are making unnecessary purchases or unnecessarily heavy purchases, Vance said. As a result, local shortages are occurring in some areas.

Everything possible is being done to get the calcium arsenate to the places where it is needed at the time it is needed, Vance pointed out. Farmers and dealers can help meet this year's heavy demand by preventing early or unnecessary heavy purchases and by using the materials as sparingly as possible, he continued.

Calcium arsenate is being manufactured at a maximum rate, Vance said, and the material is being distributed principally upon a basis of the normal pattern of use. A considerable portion of the current production, however, is being moved to areas where insect infestation is heaviest and the supply of poison appears inadequate, according to the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine.

Auto Graveyards Can Furnish Scrap For War Industry

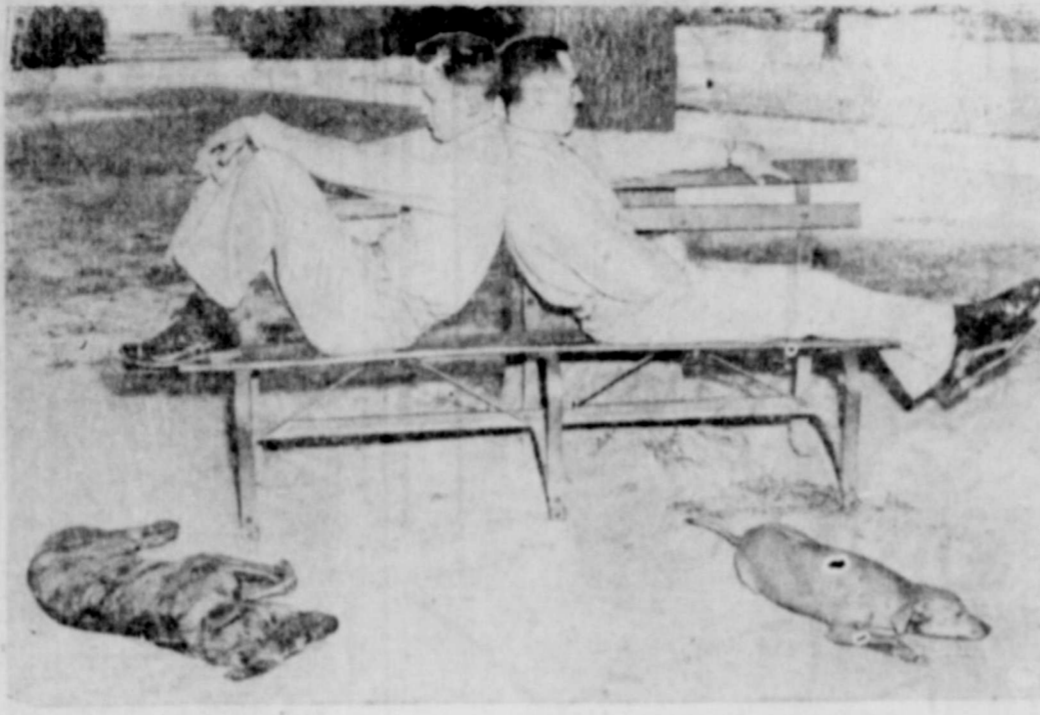

AUSTIN —Tonnage of scrap materials collected from auto graveyards from the region consisting of Texas, Oklahoma, and Louisiana has lessened since the beginning of the program, Governor Coke Stevenson was advised today by George B. Butler, Executive Secretary, Texas Salvage Committee.

Thomas L. Mullican is district chief of the auto graveyard section of WFB.

During May and June, 151,402 tons of auto scrap was shipped from the region, and Texas shipped by far the largest portion of this, the Governor advised.

Each month the auto graveyards of this region are providing sufficient scrap material to make more than 4,000 medium tanks. Mention was also made of the desirability of removing these auto graveyards which have marred the beauty of certain sections of cities.

ARMY ARTISTS STUDY HOW TO FOOL ENEMY

By CHARLES AYDELOTTE
FORT ORD, Cal. (CP)—Hundreds of former artists of all types are studying—and practicing—here the latest means of making the enemy think we are where we aren't and that we aren't where we are.

General McArthur reported from the Philippines that the Japanese were wasting tons of ammunition on dummy installations, while real gun positions, carefully camouflaged, were left to blast away at the invaders.

No rapid advances in camouflage technique that it is impossible to keep a manual up-to-date, local officers explain. As a result, the units here not only follow standard principles but experiment on new methods of fooling the Axis.

Chicken wire, fish net, heavy wood mauls, and paint and spray outfits are the chief tools of camouflage units trained here. When the men are proficient in their work they will be sent to infantry artillery and other units to train more camouflage men and to supervise concealment of installations.

Use Dummy Rocks

Two men who pioneered modern camouflage technique are stationed in this area. Col. John Ohmer is with the Western Defense Command in San Francisco, and Major William Mohr commands a newly activated camouflage engineer battalion at Ord.

Visitors to Major Mohr's outfit find literal proof of the adage, "You can't believe your eyes."

Wearing "zoot" suits, the men given newly perfected sniper suits by the camouflage contingent, soldiers hide in what should be plain sight and then dare observers to find them. They jump from behind dummy rocks and fool photographers—as they have passing aviators—with a dummy bomber.

Pvt. Robert Steenberg, a former lithograph artist; Pvt. Stewart Sprout, former art director of Public Theaters; and Pvt. William Tilton, former background artist at the Walt Disney studios, are among the men in the unit here.

Tilton designed Casey Jones, Jr., the train, and the clown in "Dumbo."

Study Butterflies

Many of the men formerly drew high salaries, but now they are devoting their energies to army work, much of it strenuous physical labor. Many are the chief tools of a camouflage outfit. They resemble a huge croquet mallet.

Razals—a dazle disguise used for camouflage in World War I have been replaced by the soft, blending tones of artistic deception. Sometimes camouflage hideaways are dug right in the middle of the road. The man inside waits until he hears a tank or other vehicle pass overhead, and then heaves his grenade at it.

Half-ton trucks are given papier mache tank-shaped coverings with which to fool the enemy.

Many of the camouflage troops have visited the nearby Pacific Grove museum of natural history, where one of the greatest collections of California butterflies in existence is on display.

Allred Favors A Bill To Put Price Of Cotton At 25c

COLORADO CITY, Aug. 5 —James V. Allred struck militantly into his run-off campaign for the U. S. Senate today, leaving no doubt in any Texan's mind as to where Jamie Allred stands on the war-time and domestic issues of the day.

The man who shattered a political myth by forcing W. Lee O'Daniel into "the run-off that wasn't going to be" followed up his Abilene keynote with talks scheduled today in Colorado City, Snyder, Post and Lubbock, the last the scene of a South Plains rally tonight.

Allred meanwhile was receiving an avalanche of messages commending his forthright discussion at Abilene in which he pledged his efforts, the first day he spoke in the Senate, for 25-cent cotton, called for real parity for all farm and ranch products and declared he will push to passage a bill prohibiting any enforced rationing fee, permit fees or dues in defense industries.

His was a mastery summation of the job that lies ahead, both in attaining victory on the fighting front and in preserving business and industrial economy at home. It was devoid of reference by name to his run-off opponent, Allred pointing out that he will conduct this campaign, as he did the primary phase, simply and strictly on the record.

"Now that the tumult and shouting is over, Texas people have the democratic right to determine by a majority vote who can best serve their needs for the next six years in the United States Senate," he declared. "In the coming days and weeks, reason must supplant prejudice, calm deliberation must replace sentimental appeal and straw man issues. With the choice narrowed to two men now, the people, Allred reminded, must decide which of the two "can best meet the needs of Texas."

As a fighting, positive Texas Senator, Allred pledged himself to support Commander-in-Chief Roosevelt in his war policies until Hitler and the Japs are removed permanently as a menace to freedom, until the peace is written and enforced.

Wheat Growers Falling In Line For Insurance

COLLEGE STATION —Texas wheat growers are falling in line with Federal all-risk wheat crop insurance.

Deadline for taking out insurance on the 1943 crop is August 31, according to Charles L. Thomas, State AAA committeeman and wheat grower from Pampa.

New features of next year's insurance program include three-year contracts and reduced cost plan. Heretofore, insurance has been written on a year-to-year basis but one-year contracts will not be written on the 1943 crop, Thomas said.

Under the reduced cost plan, wheat growers who have built up premium balances in excess of loss will pay less for insurance. Purpose of the reduced cost plan is to distribute the cost of insurance more equitably by recognizing the smaller risk on those farms where few or no losses have occurred.

Insurance applications are being written in local AAA offices throughout the wheat area, Thomas said.

As you may have heard mentioned, the country now has a price control law, which is supposed to hold down the cost of living. Congress, in its infinite wisdom in passing this law, was loath to put many curbs on the prices of agricultural commodities, but finally decided that maximum price schedules could not be applied until the prices paid to farmers were above one of four levels (1) 110 per cent of parity, (2) the price as of Oct. 1, 1941; (3) the price as of Dec. 15, 1941; (4) the average maximum of the 10-year period from July, 1919, through June, 1929.

Now this is only 12 items out of a possible 200, but if these items can go through the ceilings, others can. If they do, where's price control? And where is inflation but right around the corner?
Almost everyone has admitted the difficulty of trying to slap ceilings on hogs and beef cattle owing to the differences in weights and grades and the problem of trying to administer price control on all the farmers taking their animals to market.

OUT ON BAIL

CHAPTER X

HUNTER DENT gaped at Sheriff Anderson. "What do you mean, Sheriff—burn out the seat of my pants? What is all this, anyway?"

Anderson, grinning, unlocked the cell door. "Come along. You'll know all in good time."

Hunter followed the officer a block along the side street to the court house. In a few moments they were with Judge Elkins.

"Young man," Judge Elkins said, "you are free. Go your way."

"Your bond has been posted, and until your case comes up for trial you may come and go as you please."

"But—who went on my bond, Judge Elkins?" Hunter still was dazed.

"Your bondman wishes to remain anonymous. You are dismissed."

"Well, what do you know?" Hunter said wonderingly as he went out into the free, open sunshine. He stared all about, at the sky, the trees, the busy little city.

From the newspaper Hunter had the place where the girl, Sally Kiker, lived. He was remembering something about Sally, too. When he had first read the name it was oddly familiar to him.

been put in jail charged with that murder, Miss Kiker. I'm out on bond now. I had no more to do with that unfortunate matter than you did. I have to find out all I can about it, because my case will come up at the winter session of criminal court, and—well, you can see how it is with me."

"You know, though, there were two?" Hunter said.

"I'm sure," she said. "What did they look like?"

"Well, Mr. Dent!" she smiled. She had read about him in the paper, as he had about her.

"If I tell you who was with me you won't give me away?" she asked.

"I've already guessed it was Sam. Go ahead—I don't know, so you're safe."

"Well, the other night we were coming from the picture show uptown. This is a pretty bad part of town—you know that. We heard somebody coming along. Some pulled me in the door here. He has a milk route and he knows what a wicked spot it is."

"Just as we were about to come out and start off again, here came somebody running like everything. We jerked back in here. This time I saw a good-looking young man all dressed up. Had on a silk hat and tails, and I saw the pistol in his hand."

"Did you go my bail, Red?" he demanded.

—putting down fresh tar and gravel. There was a long plank on barrels across the street, and these kerosene flares. Well, the shooting started and I was so scared I didn't know which way was straight up. All I seem to remember was the dressed-up young man running out the back door here, toward the road.

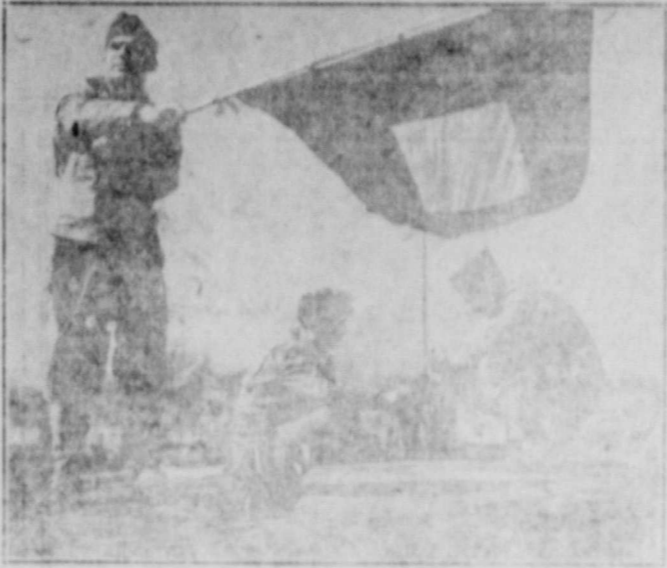

"He must have had a gun down there somewhere. I heard it when it went off with a big roar. And that's all I can remember. Sam and I ran. We saw the man lying in the street, where he had been shot and killed. I lost my purse in the door here, or they'd never have known I was about. Well, that's the way of it."

HUNTER took her home, and went back uptown. He took a taxi to the hospital and was allowed to visit Junior a moment. The boy grinned at him wanly.

"If you must know, and I suppose you must, it was Hank Temple's father, at the bank."

"No, Hunter, Red said. "But I know who did, and who has it now!"

Sweeping Reduction In Statewide Fire Insurance Rates Will Mean A Big Saving For Texas Policy Holders

AUSTIN, Tex.—A sweeping statewide reduction in fire insurance rates, announced today by Marvin Hall, State Fire Insurance Commissioner, will result in an estimated saving of $2,200,000 to Texas policyholders during the next 12 months.

A few classes of property will receive increases in rates due to unusually heavy losses experienced in those classes during the past few years, Hall said.

Woman Collector Of Wild Animals Visits In Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP)—Erika Cook, one of the few women in the world ever to embark upon the hazardous career of collecting wild animals, was here making preparations for a journey to Africa to "bring 'em back alive" after the war.

She is internationally known for her extraordinary specimens of small game captured in Mexico for famous zoos, museums and scientists over the world.

Miss Cook, who speaks of tarantulas and scorpions as ordinary house flies of hand-droppers and flies, already has collected approximately 15,000 rare creatures.

The greatest saving in any class will apply to dwelling fire benefits, estimated to exceed $2,522,700 within the next 12 months. Small risks were included in approximately 60 per cent of the fire insurance business written in Texas.

It was a result of this study, completed with reflections during the past six years, that the Board is recommending the present rates be reduced to the level of the prevailing rates in 1937.

Canada's Young Women Joining The Air Corps

Young women are now taking their place with men in a number of jobs in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Like their sisters in Great Britain, which sent officers to train the Canadians, the members of the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force, are learning to replace men in administrative and clerical work, in transport driving, telephone and radio operators, instrument mechanics, spark plug testers, parachute packers, flight mechanics, armbrers, electricians and balloon operators—in fact to fill nearly every ground job now done by men in the air force.

The August issue of "Flying," authoritative magazine, says that "so many young Canadian women want to get into active service that travelling selection boards have been in operation throughout Canada for some time, interviewing those who have applied for enlistment, sending as representative a number of Canada's young womanhood as possible to the training center at Toronto."

A total of 150 recruits are being taken into the CWAAF each week and in the "first six months it is planned to train a force of 1,000 airwomen for the various jobs in the Canadian air force," Flying says.

Airwomen receive two-thirds of the pay of their corresponding rank in the RCAF, starting at about 90 cents a day. Their uniforms are practically the same as those worn by the men but each woman is individually fitted. It has been found that the average shirt collar size taken by the women's auxiliary is 13 1/2, average bust measure 36 and average cap measure 7 1/2. The women are supplied with their uniform free, except when appointed to officer rank. As officers they are given a uniform allowance and must procure their own outfits.

"The Air Force, however," says "Flying," "stops at issuing underclothing. The British air force had too much trouble meeting the feminine requirements for undies, so the girls are given an initial allowance of $15 and a quarterly allowance of $3 for underclothing. They can pick their own.

Saturday and Sunday night dates will not be frowned upon, officials indicated, and dances might be arranged for the women. Religious services for the WAAC will be conducted by a Catholic chaplain, Lt. Urban J. Baer, formerly of Wilton, Wis., transferred here from Robison, Ark., and a Protestant chaplain, Lt. Col. John McWilliams. Daily mass services will be available, and Sunday services for Protestants will be at 10:45 a. m.

Post theater movies will be open to the women, and a post exchange will be made accessible.

The WAAC will be well-dressed soldiers according to officer's reports. The quartermaster corps will issue to every lady-officer candidate: three pair of anklets, one cotton and one rayon panties (drawn to the regular army) four wool panties, two exercise suits, two girdles, one pair cotton gloves, one pair leather-lined gloves, one pair leather work gloves, six handkerchiefs, two service hats, one necktie, two neckties, one pair overalls, two cotton pajamas, two flannellette pajamas, one raincoat, four dress shields, eight shirts, in addition uniforms, stockings, slippers and toilet essentials will be issued.

And best of all for the women—soldiers—army life on police duty—the curse of soldiers in song and story—probably will be missing. "The women probably will be so busy training that there won't be time for them to do "KP", an officer venture."

S. M. R. L. H. Becomes Official

Credit Group Is Authorized To Sell War Bonds

By recent action of the U. S. Treasury Department, the Stephenville Production Credit Association is authorized to issue "E" War Bonds.

Under the new arrangement, just approved by the association's board of directors, War Bonds will be sold in the central office at Stephenville and in the field offices located at Fort Worth, Decatur, Cleburne, Comanche, and Eastland.

The association, serving over 700 farmers and ranchers in Comanche, Fannin, Erath, Hamilton, Hood, Johnson, Parker, Somerville, Tarrant and Wise counties, has sold a substantial number of War Stamps to members and other farmers in this vicinity the past 13 months.

"Because many farmers in this part of the State," reports Mr. Eubank, Secretary-Treasurer, "have inquired about buying War Bonds through our association, the board of directors has agreed to make this service available. Our members and their neighbors are realizing greater incomes as they increase production of needed farm items. With this excess income, they are purchasing War Stamps and Bonds—actually helping Uncle Sam and helping themselves by building up their own financial strength for the future."

Through monthly reports to the Federal Reserve Bank, each county will receive credit on its quota for bonds bought through the association by members who reside in that county, regardless of the town where the bonds are issued.

A & M Prepares Picture On Wood Going Into War

COLLEGE STATION—Wood goes to war!
"Forests of Freedom," the first all color 16mm sound motion picture to be produced by Texas A. & M. College forest service was released this week for particular use in East Texas but adaptable and of interest to other sections of the state where Texas timber is playing a part in the war effort.

The film deals primarily with the many uses to which wood is being put. Scenes are included of timber operations. Actual forest fires pictured sweeping through timber stands are a highlight to the brief part showing ways to prevent destructive fires from starting. The whole film is given a military and patriotic atmosphere with views of Texas A. & M. College students on training and drill maneuvers.

The picture is primarily intended for use in the two motorized motion picture units operated by the Texas Forest Service in the pineywoods belt and its aim is the prevention of forest fires which are a hindrance to the production of wood material needed in the war. One copy will be kept at Texas A. & M. College for use in special showings.

Naval Recruiting Campaign Underway In Eastland County

Henry Pullman, who owns a building on the southeast of the courthouse square in Eastland, is donating the use of the building to the American Legion for use as headquarters for the campaign to recruit men for the United States navy.

In a campaign inaugurated by the Navy Recruiting Service, Eastland county's quota of new recruits has been set at 26 men for August and 26 men for September.

The American Legion, as an organization, is getting behind the drive, which began Saturday.

FURS ESCAPE WAR HAZARDS

The picture shows an interior view of the world's largest fur coat stockroom in which more than 20,000 fur coats are stacked three decks high. Most of the skins for these coats were included in one of the last fur shipments to reach this country before Pearl Harbor—400,000 Australian Coney skins that slipped through just before the war. This block-square plant, located in New York, is complete with the most modern of facilities, including a special air circulating system to preserve the natural gloss of the furs. Coats from this collection are now being shown at Montgomery Ward.

Easy Test Shows If You Receive Proper Vitamins

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Are you short of vitamins? A simple test devised by Dr. John J. Boehrer, of the University of Minnesota, can give the answer quickly.

"Barring actual disease of the gastro-intestinal tract in which all signs fail," Boehrer says, "six simple questions will supply more information about a man's nutritional status than a complicated laboratory examination."

- The questions:
1. How much milk do you drink? (If the answer is two or more glasses a day you can be pretty sure of an adequate intake of calcium and probably riboflavin, Boehrer said.)
 2. How often do you eat meat? (One normal serving a day, Boehrer said, puts you beyond any danger of a protein deficiency and supplies a sizable fraction of the B factors, such as nicotinic acid, thiamin, and riboflavin.)
 3. How much cheese and how many eggs do you eat? (If you eat cheese once or twice a week and five to seven eggs, he said, you are well supplied with protein, calcium, and iron.)

A Rural Doctor Cancels All Of His Patients Bills

ETNA, O. (AP)—The last wish of Dr. Charles D. Watkins, 78, who died recently after practicing medicine in this country hamlet for 55 years, was that all bills owed to him by his many patients be cancelled.

"Father was like that," said his daughter, Mrs. Irma V. Rector of Columbus. "If he got the money, it was alright. And it was the same when he didn't get it."

The fee for rich and poor alike was 50 cents, that is, providing they could afford to pay at all. Often former patients would return after many years and "pay an old account" to the doctor.

"Pay me if you ever get the money," Dr. Watkins told them. "That is, if you don't need it for something else."

Some Licking County residents said the doctor probably cancelled as many bills as he collected.

He graduated from the old Ohio Medical College in 1896, then practiced a year in Kirkersville before moving to Etta.

In 1905 and 1906 he served as a representative in the Ohio legislature and from 1907 to 1909 was a member of the State senate.

In his early days of practice, he managed the Kirkersville baseball team and was well-known as a "fire-ball" pitcher.

4. What percentage of your flour and cereals is dark or enriched? (If the answer is "at least half" you can be sure of a good supply of Vitamin B fractions.)
5. How many fruits and vegetables do you eat? (Two servings of fruit and four of vegetables daily make it certain you are getting enough Vitamin C, he said.)
6. How much butter do you eat? (No less than six squares a day will do, Boehrer said, unless extra cream, meat and eggs are taken to compensate.)

A Trimmer For Sugar Beets Gets Thorough Test

FORT COLLINS, Colo., (AP)—A mechanical process for trimming sugar beet fields which requires one-fifth of the time needed to perform the job by hand has been announced by an agricultural engineer at the Colorado State College of Education here.

Farm experts hail it as of major importance as a means of overcoming an acute wartime shortage of farm labor in the Rocky Mountain area which has caused some farmers to plow under their beet fields because they could not find men to cut down the tops of the plants which keep the sun from the beets.

E. M. Mervine, agricultural engineer for the Department of Agriculture at the college's experimental station, admits that there will be some loss of yield in the beets thus mechanically thinned but says they very likely will out-yield many fields where thinning has been seriously delayed. And, he says, the machine-cut fields certainly will yield more than those plowed under.

Mervine is now working on a large plot of beets which have been thinned mechanically and will be able to announce the average yield of the beets after the harvest season. His tests this year for the first time are being conducted in a large field on a commercial basis and furnish a concrete illustration of what can be accomplished by mechanical thinning.

Junior College Program Planned For 1942-43 Term

Ranger Junior College is planning a program for 1942-1943 session that coincides with the program that the Army, Navy, Aviation and Coastal Guard are asking all the colleges, which have accepted for this work, to carry out an intensive program for governmental objectives.

This naturally will call for work in the business administration field, for physics, chemistry, economics, psychology, mathematics and a background of American life.

The Board of Education is doing everything it can to select the most capable and qualified teachers to direct these courses and teachers are being hired who have majored both for bachelor and masters degrees in mathematics and other allied subjects.

Every indication points to an unusual enrollment.

Questions For College Students To Answer:

1. Why not go to a college where you can get business courses for only $25.00 a semester, including fees?
 2. Where, if you are a young man, you can get military deferment until you can complete your college degree?
 3. Where you can get reliable vocational guidance?
 4. Where there is a well balanced curriculum and speed-up courses for those needing them?
- Never before in the history of America has formal education played such an important role in the life of our children and ourselves. If young men and young women are prepared, there is a position awaiting for the person who has the preparation. Industry, Armed Forces, Defense, et cetera, are calling for men and women who can deliver "the goods." There are more jobs open today for people than at any time in the history of America, but the best jobs, both in Governmental and private life, are open to people with college education. Therefore, every young person should seek diligently to carry on an educational way by staying in college and finishing their education, in order to be better equipped to serve our country.

Traffic Deaths Involving Men In Service Decreases

AUSTIN, Tex.—Texas traffic deaths involving military personnel decreased 12.2 per cent in the first six months of 1942 compared to the same period last year, State Police Director Homer Garrison said today.

In the 1941 period, 60 members of the armed forces and 14 civilians were killed in accidents which involved military personnel either as drivers, pedestrians or passengers. In the 1942 period the fatalities included 39 military persons and 26 civilians.

The tire situation, intensification of military training and removal of troops from areas within driving distance of their homes were credited by Garrison with holding down the volume of unofficial military and visiting traffic, thus effecting a decrease in fatalities despite an increase in the number of military personnel in training in Texas.

Only 40 per cent of the 50 fatal accidents in the 1942 period could be blamed on "the other driver". Twenty were collisions involving two vehicles; 14 were with pedestrians; seven involved collision with a fixed object; one car overturned in the roadway, and 8 ran off the roadway.

Injuries in the 1942 period increased 10.9 per cent, from 542 to 601.

Thus, in six months, the military forces suffered 298 casualties in killed and "wounded", while the loss to civilian life was 368 casualties, most of them engaged directly in war production.
