We Still Have To Win

Military strategists agreed months ago that if Hitler were to win this war he must do so by this autumn. The Nazis have not won yet, and it is inconceivable that they can achieve the elements of victory between now and win-

So it seems reasonable to believe that Hitler has lost his chance of winning. But on the other hand he has not yet lost the war. On the contrary, as of today the United Nations still are losing that.

By the successful ferocity of their initial attacks, Germany and Japan both won huge preliminary victories. We, the United Nations, have not even begun to recapture what the axis has conquered.

Thanks first to Britain's and China's dogged endurance, and next to Russia's heroic resistance, we have slowed! the pace of Japanazi progress. We have forced the axis to waste so much manpower and mateliar that-in all probability-Hitler and Hirohito can not possibly grind the Unted Nations into submission.

Nazi spokesmen now admit this by clear inference. Hitler's latest speech was a clear declaration that from now on he plans to play for stalemate.

If we permit Hitler to achieve his stalemate, then he will not have won his major goal-world conquest-but he will have gone far toward it. The best terms on which we could obtain peace in such a stalemate would leave Germany and Japan masters of the world, with Britain and the United States as economic vassals of the fascist New Order and Continental Europe submissive cogs in the Nazi machine.,

Hitler cannot win everything. But we can. We can destroy fascism as a militant world force. Bue we have not done this yet. We have not even started to do this yet. We have not so much as halted the military advance of Naz-
