AMERICANS, BRITISH RUSH TO CLOSE TRAP UPON GERMAN FORCES

An American and British force rolled East today to come to grips with the Axis threat in Tunisia amid indications that a strong group of French officers may ally themselves in North Africa with the Allies.

The American-British force moved toward Tunisia as the opposing aid elements drew first blood. British bombers from Malta smashed at Adolf Hitler's air force—on the ground at a Tunis airfield Tuesday.

Behind the advancing Allied ground, air and sea forces lay 1400-miles of French African coast lines, now firmly in Allied grip.

From Spanish Rio De Oro northward around the northwest corner of Africa and east to the Tunisia line the coast was assured except for the small slice of Spanish Morocco which lies directly opposite the great Allied base of Gibraltar.

For the moment, however, allied military attention was directed toward Tunisia where a small Nazi force estimated at hardly more than 1000 and a French force of possibly 100,000 men of uncertain sympathies are awaiting the allied advance.

The advancing British and American troops appeared to have two main goals. One was Bizerte, powerful French naval base at the straits of Sicily. The other was a drive across the waist of Tunisia straight for Tripoli.

The exact location of allied forward elements was uncertain, but reports placed them 50 to 100 miles from the border.

Powerful British reinforcements, it was indicated, were coming ashore at Algiers and possibly other debarkation ports.

The case will be tried before Judge E. W. Patterson of the 88th district court.

SCHOOLS TO CLOSE ON NEXT THURSDAY FOR GASOLINE RATIONING

Ranger schools will be dismissed for one day, Thursday, Nov. 19, for gasoline ration registration, it has been announced by Dr. G. C. Boswell, superintendent of the schools. Registration will continue on Friday and Saturday, but school will not be dismissed Friday, Dr. Boswell stated.

The registration office will be opened in the Recreation Building next week, at which time the registration period will open throughout the state. Everyone should obtain one of the application blanks for each car he operates, and have it properly filled out before applying for the ration books. It was pointed out, in order to prevent delay, information about rationing may be obtained at any filling station, or from members of the Eastland County War Price and Ration Board, or the gasoline panel of the board.

Gasoline rationing in the 31 states not now under the ration control will be postponed from Nov. 22 to Dec. 1.

The postponement of rationing in the West and mid-West from November 22 is necessary because of hitches in the distribution of coupon books and forms over the country, OPA said. Ickes issued an extraordinary appeal to Eastern motorists, saying that unless civilian consumption is cut voluntarily to the irreducible minimum, he could "see no way in which we can supply enough gasoline to maintain the present value of coupons."

Oil requirements of the American expeditionary force in North Africa will be "enormous," Ickes said in his capacity as Petroleum coordinator for war, the country's ability to keep supplies flowing to that war front and to Great Britain is "largely dependent upon cutting down our consumption here."

In addition to the postponement of actual rationing in the West and mid-West, some states have announced delay in the dates of registration at public school houses. OPA Regional Offices were authorized to order delays from Nov. 12-14 inclusive to Nov. 18-20 in areas where books and forms were not being received in time to meet the earlier registration dates.

BULLDOGS DOWN LOBOES BY 13 TO 0 SCORE IN ANNUAL CONTEST HERE

Over 2 Million Already Paid To Peanut Growers

The Gorman Progress had the following to say about the peanut crop in its issue of November 5th. With well over $2,000,000 already paid to the producers, the Southwest for peanuts already placed on the markets and with approximately $23,000,000 more to be spent for this farm commodity, the Southwestern Peanut Growers' Association is preparing to handle the largest crop ever produced in the history of the Southwest.

The South Texas area, where the crop is 75 per cent harvested, has received the bulk of the money expended so far, but with the harvesting and buying season rapidly gaining in volume in the Northern part of the state, the farmers of this section are surely in line for their share of the money this crop will bring in this year.

Texas alone has nearly a million and a half acres of peanuts this year and another million acres are scattered over Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico, giving the Southwest approximately two and a half million acres of this valuable and profitable crop. The larger portion of this crop will be sold for oil purposes and used in war effort.

Up to the time we go to press there has been 55,200,608 pounds of peanuts sold to the SWPGA with a cash outlay of $2,398,720.97 being paid to the producers. 9,318,323 pounds of quota peanuts have been purchased bringing in $595,596.62, while producers of oil peanuts have sold $45,881,972 pounds with a total of $1,799,130.35 being paid for these.

Big 4-year-old son of Goldstream did not race as 2-year-old, earned only 180 last season, but won 11 of 17 this year to collect $34,176 for Harold A. Clark. Conn McCreary is jockey.

Two offensive stars, Billie Ray Elder of Ranger and Mosley of the Cisco Lobos, matched their individual skill in the annual Armistice Day football game between the Lobos and the Bulldogs here Wednesday afternoon, and the Bulldogs came out victors by the score of 13 to 0.

It was Elders ground gaining ability that spelled the difference in the two teams, while Mosley's passing attack shined brightly, in spite of the fact that he had no receivers for the ball. At that Cisco completed 11 passes for a total of 126 yards, and their scoring threat was more serious than the score would indicate.

Elder started his workhorse duties with the first play of the game and carried the ball on all but seven of the Bulldogs ground play. And, at that he had to make one touchdown twice before it counted, because of a Ranger penalty.

The Bulldogs scored the second quarter when the Bulldogs got too anxious, drawing a penalty. Cisco 10 A had snatched from the Cisco 27 was sailed back to the 10 where Ranger recovered. Elder went over for the touchdown, but the Ranger line was too anxious to take advantage of the opportunity, and jumped the gun to get a five-yard penalty, putting the ball back on the 15. Three plays netted 11 yards, and then it was the Cisco line that got so anxious, drawing a penalty that put the ball on the one-yard line. Elder carried over on the first attempt, but Mitchell's attempt to kick goal was blocked.

Cisco opened up with a passing attack trying to even the score, but the only passes that would click for them were short ones over the center of the line for an average of less than five yards each. Even their passing looked dangerous, and three long passes netted 25, 25 and 25 yards respectively.

The second Ranger score came after Cisco had advanced to the Ranger 45 and Elder intercepted a Cisco pass and galloped back to the Cisco 25 before being stopped. He stepped off 14 yards, and Ranger got another five-yard set back before Elder galloped over his right tackle, the hole he kept pounding all afternoon, to score from the 15. This time Mitchell's kick for the extra point was good.

Statistics on the game showed that Ranger made 16 first downs to 8 for Cisco; the Bulldogs gained a net of 199 yards to Cisco's 45; Cisco completed 11 of 26 passes for 126 yards and had two intercepted; Ranger completed two of 11 for a total of 42 yards and had two intercepted. The Bulldogs were penalized 11 times for 55 yards and the Lobos received four penalties for 30 yards. The average was even, with Ranger punting 8 times for a total of 253 yards, or an average of 31.6 yards with Cisco punting 6 times for 190 yards and the same average for the extra point was good.

The Ranger line played much better than it did in the Brownwood game, opening up nice holes for the backfield, and holding well on defense. Cisco's main threat came in the second quarter when they advanced the ball to the Ranger four-yard line on a 15-yard fair catch penalty that put the ball on the Ranger 15. Two ground plays picked up 11 yards to give the Lobos a first down on the four, but the defense stiffened and they were unable to advance, Ranger taking over on the three.

The Bulldogs got another break when the punt from behind the goal line was blocked and Cisco got an off-side penalty, after Ranger had been penalized to the one-yard line. Cisco surged right back to the Ranger 17, but a pass in interception again gave Ranger the ball and a new lease on life when Elder galloped out to the 20 and Houghton was run out of bounds after a 10-yard gain just before the half ended.

At the beginning of the second half Cisco again threatened on a mixture of pass and ground plays that went to the Ranger six before, the Bulldogs took over on down.

Mitchell, Ranger end, was the hard luck player of the Bulldogs dropping all over the field at the half gone for touchdowns had not the sun blinded him, but even though he played in hard luck his end play was excellent throughout the game.

The entire Ranger forward wall played a hard game and, assisted by the line backers, kept the Cisco running game bottled up to a net gain of but 45 yards all afternoon. Most of Ranger's long gains were nullified by penalties, with red flags of the officials dropping all over the field as the plays progressed.

Ladies Invited To A Football Banquet Tuesday

The football banquet, planned by the Ranger Bulldogs, and which will be held at the Ghobson Hotel Tuesday evening, will be open to both men and women guests, it was announced today by Dr. G. C. Boswell, superintendent of schools.

A number of tickets were sold early in the week, when it was planned to have the banquet on Armistice Day, it was stated today.

A large number of women have inquired about attending the banquet," Dr. Boswell said in announcing that women would be welcome "and because of their interest, not only in the banquet but in the football team, it was decided to invite any of them who wish to do so to attend."

Present indications are that a large crowd will be on hand, especially since the Bulldogs defeated the Cisco Lobos Wednesday for the first time in seven seasons.

Teachers To Aid In War Effort

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The nation's teachers have inaugurated action to implement the suggestion of President Roosevelt in his recent radio address that high school students be mobilized for service to war industries and for assistance to farmers in raising and harvesting their crops.

Willard E. Givens, Executive Secretary of the National Education Association, has written to the President to assure him that the profession will do everything possible to carry out his suggestions with due regard to the health and safety of youths, the efficiency of the educational services, and the emergency needs for manpower. Secretary Givens is also urging chief state school officers to take appropriate action and to report systematically the problems encountered and the plans which are being carried out in the respective states.

Students will give the service requested part-time during the school year and in summer vacations. It is expected that some millions of students will participate in these services after the schools have been able to provide such preliminary training as will contribute to the effectiveness of their contribution. Already in many communities students are actively at work in war duties. The organization of the High School Victory Corps provides the administrative framework for production training for the military forces, land, sea, and air; for community service such as nursing, first aid and civilian defense work and for the general program of morale building.

The response of the educators is made to the request of President Roosevelt in his latest fire-side chat:

"The school authorities in all the states should work out plans to enable our high school students to take some time from their school year, and to use their summer vacations, to help the farmers raise and harvest their crops, or to work in the war industries. This does not mean closing schools and stopping education. It does mean giving older students a better opportunity to contribute to the war effort. Such work will do no harm to the students.

The letter of Secretary Givens to President Roosevelt follows:

"On behalf of the National Education Association and its 220,000 members, may I assure you that your request relating to the use of high school youth as an emergency source of man power in the war effort, contained in your radio address to the nation on October 12, will be faithfully carried out to the best of our ability.

"I have today written to the State Superintendents in each of the states and territories asking for information on their activities and plans with reference to this matter. I have also urged our State Directors and Executive Secretaries of each of our fifty state and territorial affiliated organizations to cooperate fully with the state and territorial school officials in carrying out your request.

WORD comes back from the front and is avidly taken up for repetition in some circles that when this war is over and soldiers return home, they are going to see to it that things are different.

To anyone whose memory goes back to the last war that chant has a familiar ring. In the last war, too, soldiers sat around their bottles of gin and talked freely of how, when they got back home, things would be different.

"Things were different, too, just as things will be different after this war is over. But what part of the difference can be attributed directly to the influence of returned and demobilized soldiers is worth a moment's notice. If the constructive contribution of ex-soldiers to the state of the nation after the war is any criterion, it may give a less as to what the veterans of this war will be able to offer, and what they'll be able to get.

This statement may be challenged, but when you add everything up, the principal contribution of the veterans of the last war to bettering their country has amounted to seeing that the veterans of the last war are well taken care of.

Before you start throwing things at that, stop and think. The formation of a veterans' party as a political organization could never be realized because an Army and Navy are made up of men from both the major parties and the issues they have to back are not of such transcendent importance that they override the platforms of Republicans or Democrats.

The vets of the last war could not even unite in one big organization to promote veterans' affairs. There is the American Legion with a membership of a million, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars with a membership of a quarter million, and several minor outfits besides. But no one big union.

The Constitution of the Legion provides that it shall be non-political, shall not be used for the dissemination of partisan principles, nor for the promotion of the candidacy of any person seeking public office. In spite of that, numerous individuals have tried to ride the coattails of the veterans' organizations for public office with great and small.

Leonard Wood was a soldier candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1920, but couldn't get enough delegates to win the G. O. P. nomination at Chicago, and Harold G. Hamer, Republican Senator of Iowa and Democrat Paul V. McNutt of Indiana are both ex-soldiers who have looked longingly at the possibility of becoming presidential candidates.

In the present Congress there are 133 World War vets in the House and 25 in the Senate. That number has grown from nothing in 1918. It has increased in every Congress, and it will continue to increase.

But even in Congress the ex-soldiers do not form a bloc of any power or influence and do not act together. Even on veterans' legislation, the non-vets are apt to be found pitching just as hard as the old soldiers to gain whatever there is to be gained from catering to the ex-soldier vote.

ON other legislation, the record on the veterans' organizations has not been notable, though the intent was good. Ever since 1921, for instance, the Legion has been trying to put over a universal service law to draft agriculture, industry, capital and labor as well as manpower for the armed forces. Ever since 1921 the Legion has battled for national defense. Those ideas are just now beginning to catch on.

But in remaking the world, after the armistice of 1918, the soldiers of World War I have been pretty generally stymied, and if history repeats, the veterans of World War II will have their troubles too, even though they come back 10 million strong.

Simplification Of Game Laws Is Sought Once More

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The idea has gotten a frigid reception at previous Texas Legislatures, but Will J. Tucker, executive secretary of the Game, Fish & Oyster Commission suggested at the recent meeting here that legislators could save a lot of time and trouble by simplifying the Texas game and fish laws.

"In the near future we shall issue a statement of policy designed to assist the states and localities in the emergency use of high school students as a part of the nation's war man power resource. We believe that all students in our secondary schools should prepare now to render war service to their country. We believe also that the high schools must and will find a way, as you suggested in your address, to guard the health and safety of the students, to keep education moving forward, and to provide the older students with many opportunities to contribute their energies directly to the war effort. We believe that under proper conditions substantial educational values can be derived by the young people from such service.

"The Legislature ordinarily spends about 15 per cent of its time passing local game and fish laws," Tucker commented. "There are more than 700 of them on the books now, and I think it's requiring a good deal of a lay citizen to ask him to remember so many."

Tucker suggested that the state ought to have one set of basic laws, and give discretion to the commission to apply them as needed for conservation.

Although first in size, he said, Texas ranks 23rd among the states in money spent for wildlife conservation. The total spent in Texas during the last 15 years is $10,000,000, which Tucker considered relatively little on the basis of U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates that game and fish are taken in Texas annually are worth $93,000,000.

RESTRICTION of the civilian consumption of dairy products—milk, butter, cheese and the like—is now being mentioned as a likely development for 1943. This is one you can talk about freely in view of any actual shortage and without provoking a scowl for the simple reason that you can't hoard milk and butter—they'll spoil.

Edson

The shortage of milk products, if it comes, will be directly attributable to a shortage of dairy farm labor plus the extra heavy demand for school lunches.

The weatherman and the cows have all done their part nobly, this past year. The pasturage has been wonderful, the supply of feed for the winter is adequate though high in price, and the cows have given like nobody's business. Only man has let down on the job.

The goal set by the Department of Agriculture for 1942 was 125 billion pounds of all dairy products. That goal will be missed by perhaps five billion pounds, and it is doubtful if 1942 production can be surpassed in 1943, considering the labor shortage.

The 10 states leading in dairy production are Wisconsin, Minnesota, New York, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, California and Texas, in that order. These 10 produce about half of the milk of dairy products in the country, and more than half of the exportable surplus. Other states produce mainly for local consumption. Of the 10 leading states, all but perhaps Texas have reported extremely serious labor shortages.

NO one has any idea how many dairy herds have been broken up by this labor shortage. Statistics of that kind just aren't collected, nor are there any approximate figures on how great the dairy farm labor shortage is. But run many areas where those reports and the decreasing receipts at the creameries, plus the increasing sale of cows for slaughter all the story.

Where is all this dairy farm labor going? One thing the agricultural economists are sure of is that war industry is getting more farm labor than the Army and Navy. Draft quotas of farm boys have been heavy in some areas, but the big thing that lures labor away from the farms is the extra wage scale. Fifty dollars a week in an aircraft factory sounds a lot better than $50 a month on a dairy farm, even with board and room thrown in. Also alluring is the fact that the aircraft job is five days—40 hours a week, while the dairy job is seven days—56 to 70 hours.

One idea being mulled over to solve a labor shortage for the

Reporter Rides Last Plane Over Target In Raid On Navarino Bay

By WALT FUNDLE
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—When American B-24 bombers showered tons of destruction on Axis shipping and shore installations at Navarino Bay, in Nazi-held Greece, the by-line of Henry T. Gorrell, United Press correspondent assigned to the Middle East, appeared on the front pages of American newspapers from coast to coast.

Gorrell probably would tell you that "luck and the breaks" account for the frequency with which his by-line appears over such dramatic eye-witness stories from the war fronts. But his colleagues who know "Hank" and who know the difficulties of wartime reporting will tell you another story. Gorrell, they say, has a rare combination of journalistic know-how and guts.

They recall how Gorrell came out of Missouri a dozen years ago with a head full of newspaper experience gained on Midwestern papers, the love of excitement in his and an ambition to be a foreign correspondent.

Gorrell worked hard to achieve his goal and has established a reputation, since winning his first foreign assignment, for disregarding the dangers involved in order to get into the thick of the action.

And Gorrell has seen plenty of action. During the past eight years he has covered news on four continents. He has covered four wars and a South American revolution. He was once expelled from Italy, was imprisoned by Spanish Loyalists as a suspected spy and later was captured under machine-gun fire by General Franco's troops who threatened him with execution by a Spanish firing squad. He followed British forces into Greece, covered their ill-fated attempt to halt the Germans there and again covered the retreating British to the Greek coast and through the evacuation from Greece under a hail of bombs from the German Stukas.

More recently Gorrell was the only American correspondent who accepted an assignment with a British convoy which ran the gauntlet of Axis air, submarine and "E" boat attacks to carry relief to battered and besieged Malta.

He has flown in British planes on bombing missions over Germany-held Tobruk and Benghazi. But frequent exposure to danger in the course of obtaining a story has not slackened Gorrell's zeal for his job.

In October, when American forces landed in the Middle East, many American bombers in a raid on the Bay of Navarino, in German-held Greece, Gorrell jumped at the opportunity.

He deliberately chose to ride in the bomber scheduled to be last over the target, despite warnings that it would face the greatest danger from enemy attack.

"That may be," Gorrell replied "but it'll also be the best one from which to watch the show."

He was right. Gorrell's plane "The Witch" followed "now White" the "Jersey Jinks" and a number of other "Dwarfs" to the target. He watched them unload their bomb loads and kept careful notes on the hits scored on shipping thousands of feet below.

Gorrell watched, too, as German Messerschmitts came up to meet the American attack; saw their machine-guns spit fire at the bomber in which he rode. He saw American blood spilled as German bullets struck home, wounding three members of the bomber's crew, and he assisted with administration of first aid.

A war correspondent's real job begins where the fighting-man's work leaves off. Correll darted from the plane on its return to its base to organize his notes and write his story.

Before he relaxed, his brilliant colorful story of the action had been placed in the hands of the censor.

SPECIALIZING in any job is important. And, it takes only one taste of ice-cold Coca-Cola to tell you that its makers have specialized in refreshment for years. They created this utterly different drink 57 years ago. Today it's still individual—and delightfully so.

Note the difference in taste. You can sense the special blend of flavors. Sip again. Your thirst is gone before you know it, but something else arrives. This is refreshment. And it's refreshment that goes into energy—quickly—pleasantly.

When you've finished, you know you've enjoyed a drink made to a standard of quality, not to a standard of price. Folks the country over feel the same way about it. They appreciate the genuine...the real thing...Coke...Coca-Cola.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called Coke. Coca-Cola and Coke mean the same thing...the real thing...coming from a single source, and well known to the community.

Boy and girl, recreation and refreshment! There's two for company and two more for happiness and satisfaction. You know refreshment's first name, of course. Everybody knows Coke.

The best is always the better buy!

FIRESIDE CONSOLATIONS

"The soul of the world today is yearning for peace! Calm, undisturbed."

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Service Washington Correspondent

"Leave Everything to the Experts" school of thought in Washington has just received a rather rude sock on the jaw which should leave the school adjourned and its thoughts reeling for some time to come.

When the War Production Board announced it was authorizing the Republic Steel Company to operate a sponge iron furnace at Youngstown, O., to make artificial scrap, WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson made a figurative deep bow from the hips and admitted that much of the information which influenced the board in making this decision was based on findings of the Senate Special Committee Investigating National Defense.

This is the group of 10 senators—none of them experts—headed by Sen. Harry S. Truman of Independence, Mo., who gives the body its popular name of the Truman Committee. Not much has been heard from the Truman Committee in the last few months. But the senators and their staff of investigators under Chief Counsel Hugh S. Fulton have been digging quietly into all manner of things, including a three or four-months' investigation of the iron and steel industry and all its ramifications, including the scrap situation and sponge iron.

First get a clear picture of what sponge iron is. The name comes from the fact that the material is porous. It isn't solid metal, like a pig iron ingot, but full of holes, like a sponge. Sponge iron is made by reducing iron ore from the mines to a spongy mass, by heating the ore to temperatures below the fusing point of iron. The oxygen in the iron ore or iron oxides is removed at the same time by mixing the iron ore with pulverized coal, which burns off the oxygen, or by passing through the heated ore a reducing gas which combines with the oxygen.

Now this sponge iron situation has been kicking around for some time. Senator J. C. O'Mahoney was tackled hard by practically every steel "expert" in the country for suggesting the building of sponge iron plants in Wyoming to use the state's low-grade ore. He didn't Judge Gary of United States Steel spent millions of dollars back in the 1930s trying to develop sponge iron, and didn't the big steel corporation

STAMP SALE

Friday has been set aside as Defense Stamp Day for all of Hodges Oak Park pupils. Mr. Crawley, the postmaster here will sell the stamps.

In the past children from various rooms have bought and distributed stamps on their respective stamp sale days.

The present arrangement is much more satisfactory, and we appreciate Mr. Crawley's cooperation and courtesy in this matter.

WE ARE THANKFUL FOR

One of the most inspiring scenes around school at the present time is seen in Mrs. Morris' fifth grade room. These children have grouped under these words—

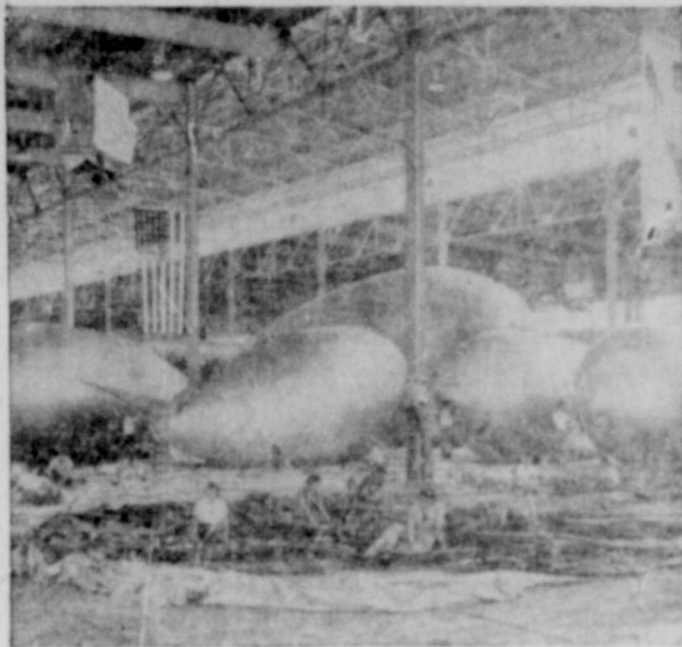

"We are thankful for"—the many things that we Americans have to be thankful for. Among these things are: comfortable homes, beautiful churches, good food, free schools, good books, good boys and girls and many many others.

There is no question about the fact that these boys and girls know what they have to be thankful for.

As I looked at this scene I wondered if the following paragraph from our "Current Events" for this week wouldn't make all of you readers a little more thankful for the American Way of Life:

"The typical Japanese home is a small, unpainted wooden house. There is no foundation. The framework rests upon a few stones pouted into the ground. The walls are of bamboo lattice-work, covered with mud. Over this is a coating of plaster or thin boards. Two or more sides are formed only of sliding screens. This arrangement offers good ventilation and is pleasant in the long hot summers, but it is cold and drafty in winter.

Oiled paper is used in the windows and for sliding doors. There is no heat except the little that comes from an open firepot burning charcoal. Thus the Japanese have learned to endure, cold in their flimsy, unheated houses. That may be one reason they are so active. The only way to keep warm is to keep moving.

A TEXTBOOK'S COMPLAINT

Listening in on a textbook's conversation the other day, I heard this complaint: What a dirty boy has me this year! I am getting to be such a dirty book owner.

I am ashamed to look the other books in the face. I wish he wouldn't mark on me and turn down my pages. Why is nothing done about these marks he puts on me? He tears my pages and chews the pieces. He never takes me home at night; he hardly ever studies me. When he does take me home, he treats me very badly. He throws me under the bed; he tears my cover and writes on it. Maybe next year I'll have a better owner.

ly and with very little warning. These diseases of the respiratory system are more prevalent in winter than in summer and are much more difficult to combat than digestive ailments such as summer complaint.

These diseases of the respiratory system are particularly dangerous to babies and young children," Dr. Cox stated. "Nearly all of them are spread through the secretions from the nose and mouth. Children not in vigorous health are naturally more susceptible to these complaints and the first line of defense," Dr. Cox cautioned, "is to strengthen the powers of resistance against disease; the second is to keep them under medical supervision and the third is to make sure they avoid contact with others who have coughs, colds, or fevers."

Children Need Protection Now From Diseases

AUSTIN, Tex.—In discussing seasonal health hazards for young children today, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, stated that babies and young children need as careful protection now against winter complaints as they do in hot summer weather against "summer complaint."

Influenza, tonsillitis, pneumonia, bronchitis, and asthma, are included among these diseases which may be dangerous winter illnesses among young children since they affect the respiratory or breathing system. Such diseases as pneumonia may develop from a neglected cold, they may follow as an after effect of measles or whooping cough, or they may occur sudden-

All America Knows Budweiser... but Few Know This

THEY'VE PASSED THEIR 'PHYSICAL'-TOO

America's feathered and four-legged armies are very much on their toes these days. Yeast vitamins used in fortifying animal feeds have done wonders in recent years to better the quality and propagation of livestock and poultry. Did you know that the Home of Budweiser is America's biggest single source of these vitamins?

Year after year, we have striven with research and resources to better the methods and facilities for brewing Budweiser. To do this, a laboratory specializing in fermentation and nutrition was necessary. Discoveries made in the laboratory and in the plant have led to the development of products contributing to human necessity and progress. Some of these products would appear to have only a remote relationship to brewing, yet, they are the result of scientific research into many allied fields.

Endless research in making the world's leading beer has led to other products

VITAMINS, B COMPLEX—for manufacturers of pharmaceutical and food products. Our plant is one of the world's largest sources.

VITAMIN D—Anheuser-Busch produces enough of the basic material for Vitamin D to supply the entire American market.

BAKER'S YEAST—We are one of America's biggest suppliers of standard and enriched yeasts and malt syrup used to make bread.

CORN SYRUP—many millions of pounds annually for America's candy industry.

SYRUPS—for food, table and confectionery uses and special syrups for medicinal purposes.

STARCH—for food, textile, paper and other industries—millions of pounds annually.

REFRIGERATING EQUIPMENT—for retailers of frozen foods and ice cream the country over. This division is now working all-out on glider wing and fuselage assemblies for our Armed Forces.

DIESEL ENGINES—Adolphus Busch, founder of Anheuser-Busch, acquired the first rights to manufacture this revolutionary engine in America and thus started our great Diesel industry on its way.

Navy Appealing To Nation's Youth To Enlist Now

An earnest appeal to the youth of America is being made by the United States Navy.

Over 100,000 young men are needed to fill the numerous vacancies which exist in the Navy's numerous trade schools. Because of the increase in Navy personnel, men with specialized training, and qualified candidates for the specialized courses taught in the navy are in great demand at the present time.

Boys, who only a few short months ago were attending high school and who now are anxious to either complete their education or learn some useful trade are especially invited to investigate the advantages offered by the navy, and it is to such boys that the Navy offers the best training available. Forty-nine different trades are taught in the Navy's schools, and each man is trained for a particular job. If the recruit is not sent to trade school immediately, he is furnished with prepared Navy courses, and studies under the able direction of the officers over him, at Naval bases or on board ship.

In the Navy's modern and completely-equipped training schools boys are taught such subjects as radio (operation of special radio equipment), aerography, radio,
