By EDWARD C. EISENHART

United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)-Reconersion is now well beyond the blueprint stage for the Veterans' Administration, which is putting discharged servicemen and women in line for the banefits provided in the so-called "G. I. Bill of explaining what its gigantic program actually is.

The overall World War II veteran bill was enacted into law June 22, after months of Congressional committee hearings, floor debate and joint Senate-House conferences, Although given widest publicity, it was revised and amended so many times that few people - let alone the prospec tive veterans serving overseas knew what finally went on the statute books. And yet more than 1,250,000 veterans are non-eligible for its benefits. Most interest to date has been shown in the educational benefits made available to veterans who served in the armed forces on or after Sept. 16, 1940, and were discharged or released "under conlitions other than dishonorable. ALEXANDRIA, La. (UP)-The first Australian wife of an Ameris Mrs. William Carl Henson, for merly of Melbourne.

She likes America particularly ecause of the length of the skirts, the added make-up and the won-derful stockings. "I haven't seen such sheer hose in years."

Mrs. Henson is here with her year-old daughter to be near her husband, who is a sergeant station ed at Ealer Field. She first met her husband while riding horseback on her father's farm near Melbourne.

Three months later she had broken her engagement with her Australian fiance and had mar-

NURSE SAYS BRITTANY IS DIFFERENT TODAY

McCloskey General Hospital Texas, (UP) - The Brittany of today, scene of a bloody conflict, is much different from the quie Brittany of the last war, said Col Florence Blanchfield, superintendent of the army nursing corps.

In the last war, she said our men embarked in Brittany only to go to the French artillery camps to learn French methods of shooting, while today they go full trained and equipped from this

DRIVE NEARS OLD WAR SCENES

CHOSTS OF ANOTHER WORLD WAR stalk the French areas which now lie in the path of major drives in the current Battle for France and it may well be that many a son will fight close to the grave of his father. As the drive turns northward from below Paris, the Marne River again is in the dimelight and, pushing north and eastward, U. S. troops move toward. World War I battlefields (indicated by circles) such as Soissons, Amieng, Ypres, St. Quentin and Cambral. At Abbeville lies one goal which may be of vital importance in wiping out the Rocket Coast, already harrassed by the successful push to the Seine.
