RIP GALLOWAY TAKES OVER C. OF C. JOB

R. V. (Rip) Galloway Saturday took over the duties as manager of the Chamber of Commerce and stated that he intends to frantically work at the job and that so far as he is concerned, there will be no partisanship in the job.

Galloway needs no introduction to the people of Ranger, having made his home here most of the time since 1918, and having served as manager of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce in 1935. He was elected to four terms as county clerk of Eastland county and served all but part of the last term, when he resigned to move to Taylor as enter the printing business. For a number of years he owned and operated the Prompt Printery here and at one time published a weekly newspaper in Ranger.

He has recently been associated with an Eastland printing company. Mrs. Jewel Green who is retiring as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, stated Saturday that she is very grateful to the people for the cooperation given her during her connection with the organization. Mrs. Green's resignation became effective June 1.

SWIMMING POOL TO BE OPENED ON TUESDAY

A. L. Stiles, water and sanitation commissioner of Ranger, announced Saturday that the Municipal swimming pool will be opened Tuesday at 2:00 o'clock.

The pool will be open each day through the summer from 2:00 to 9:00 o'clock. The interior of the pool has been repainted and all equipment checked. Stiles stated that filtration equipment is in first class shape and that the water passes through the filter constantly. So far as the sanitary conditions of the pool are concerned it is one of the best in the state, he said. Stiles also stated that the entire park has been cleaned up and that additional recreational features are being added to the park, including a miniature golf course. Plans are being made to add still other features.

DELAY ACTION ON STRIKE CONTROL BILL

WASHINGTON (UP) — Republican and Democratic leaders today agreed to delay House action until Thursday on the Senate's weakened version of President Truman's emergency strike-control bill.

The decision was in keeping with an earlier agreement not to take up any controversial legislation until the latter part of next week because many members will be preoccupied with primary elections. Administration leaders said that, when the bill is brought to the House floor, they would move to send it to a conference committee to compose differences between the Senate and House versions. The House approved without change the two-fisted measure requested by the President. The Senate modified it drastically. Some leaders said the measure still was strong enough to cope with strikes in government-seized industries. They forecast House acceptance of the Senate version, which does not grant Mr. Truman power to draft workers or to deprive them of their seniority right.

MARITIME LEADERS SAY THREAT HURT NEGOTIATIONS

President Truman's labor policies incurred the criticism of another labor group today, while 75,000 anthracite miners continued their strike.

CIO maritime union leaders charged that Mr. Truman's announcement that he would name ships with Naval personnel in the event of a maritime strike June 15 had "torpedoed" their peaceful negotiations with shipowners. Warning of political reprisals, they said they would continue "efforts to seek a peaceful solution" despite Mr. Truman's "undermining."

The Pennsylvania hard coal pits were deserted for the second day and there seemed little prospect of reaching a week-end settlement of the "no-contract-no-work" strike. John L. Lewis will join in the negotiations as soon as he winds up affairs in Washington, he said.

President A. F. Whitney of the Trainmen's Brotherhood was asked meantime to call a walkout of the Pennsylvania railroad to protest its added service for 230,000 commuters stranded by the Hudson and Manhattan railroad strike. Union leaders charged the Pennsylvania's addition of 50 new trains was a strike-breaking tactic.

The CIO Potash mine workers representing 3,000 miners at Carlsbad, N. M., filed strike notice with the national labor relations board in Washington today. Operators have refused to grant an 18 1/2-cent an hour increase.

Coast Guardsmen 73, Goes Back To Civilian Life

CHICAGO (UP) — A discharged veteran has settled down in Chicago after three-and-a-half years service in the Coast Guard. The unusual thing about this veteran is that he's 73 years old.

He is Benjamin Silverstein, former sheriff of Alameda county, Cal.

He felt he ought to do his part after Pearl Harbor, despite the fact that he was 69.

Coast Guard officials at Silverstein's determination made a decision give him his physical. He was in near-perfect condition, so the Coast Guard waived its maximum enlistment age of 52.

An expert shot, Silverstein was made head of a detachment of guards assigned to San Francisco docks.

Memorial Day Death Toll Is Still Mounting

The death toll for the long Memorial Day holiday weekend mounted today, claiming many victims from among the tangle of prewar automobiles on the nation's highways.

At least 198 persons were killed after the holiday began Thursday morning. Eighty-one died in traffic accidents, 58 were drowned and 59 others died from accidental causes. Pennsylvania, with 30 persons killed, led the nation. California reported 20 deaths.

Approximately 2,500,000 tons of Arkansas coal are marketed annually.

Well...
I Dunno,
But...

Rip Galloway took over the Ranger Chamber of Commerce management Saturday and now that we have a manager let's give him the backing necessary to get the job done.

Facsimile has no place in a progressive organization and nothing was ever accomplished by saying "it can't be done." Anything is possible if it is wanted, and the people work for it.

For years now, we have been hearing the plea for a live-wire man to head the chamber of commerce and now that we have one, why not pull with him and the chamber of commerce and not against. There is plenty to be done for the benefit of all and the job is for the people as well as the manager of the civic body.

With two very active organizations of this nature, Ranger has every opportunity to go forward if the people will help.

This week has seen another series of business changes in Ranger. C. W. Blacklock has purchased the Weaver Aikman Grocery and Market on Blackwell Road and has already assumed management.

W. M. Ramsey has leased the Paramount Coffee Shop and took over the management of that establishment Saturday.

J. L. Latham who with Mrs. Ada Gordon, has been operating the Coffee Shop will be associated with the Paramount Hotel and Saturday assumed his duties at the hotel. Mrs. Gordon stated Saturday that she will take a rest before going into any other business.

Mrs. Jewel Green who has just retired as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce stated Saturday that she, too, will be idle for a while before deciding on what she will do.

A rain that lasted about ten minutes Friday afternoon and was accompanied by hail and some wind, left a total fall of .64. The total for the month of May was 6.75 inches of rain. Though we have no records with which to compare the rainfall for the month with past years, we believe that May had an unusually large amount of rain, at least above the average.

There's good news for the kids in today's Times. The Municipal swimming pool will open Tuesday and will be open each day through the summer from 2:00 to 9:00 o'clock.

For weeks now the opening of the pool has been the main topic of conversation and dozens have asked us when it would open.

Ranger is indeed fortunate to have such a lovely swimming pool and A. L. Stiles, water and sanitation commissioner, stated Saturday that it is one of only five in the state of Texas with the type of filtration equipment installed at the pool. So effective is the system, that Stiles stated that doctors had told him that the water is absolutely pure and could be drunk without any ill effects.

Well we still have rats in town and one of the first acts that Rip Galloway performed after taking over his new job at the Chamber of Commerce, was to outfit a rat down Main street and kill it. According to eye witnesses the rat ran out of the Chamber of Commerce down the street toward the Argadia theatre where Rip overtook and killed it.

Yes, we still have mosquitoes, too, and what a shame to have to be bothered by the things when they could so easily be eliminated. Like we said before, all breeding places must be eliminated, not just those that are the responsibility of the city.

JUDGE WORKS FAST

COLUMBUS, O. (UP) — Of seven members of the Ohio State University student court, only chief justice Joseph Schiavoni appeared.

He heard and judged 75 student traffic cases in one hour.

Do You Know?

That during the period between 1925 and 1928, a major oil company spent more than a million dollars for wild-cat acreage in an adjoining county? The greatest daily production obtained was 15 barrels on a 100-acre tract.

RECRUITS FOR STATE GUARD ARE SOUGHT

Capt. Ernest Latham of Company B of the Texas State Guard, announced Saturday that a campaign is being launched to build up the recruits in the company in an effort to have the organization reactivated as a National Guard Unit.

It was pointed out that Ranger is in an area that has been designated as an artillery area and if the unit is reinstated in the National Guard 15 to 20 motorized units will be allotted to Ranger and $80,000 to $40,000 spent in salaries and maintenance of the company here. Members will be paid for time spent in drill and three caretakers will be employed for the upkeep of the equipment and the headquarters.

Capt. Latham is appealing to veterans to enlist in the company and help Ranger in securing the reactivation of the company in the National Guards.

It was explained that General Walker, former commander of the National Guard and wartime commander of Fort Sam Houston, is now in Washington in the interest of the move generally and if the necessary recruits can be secured, the company can be reactivated.

The construction program for Kerrville, Ky., lists a sewage disposal plant, airport, administration building, new streets and sewage extensions.

TEST TWO WAY RADIO FOR FARM PHONE SERVICE

CHEYENNE WELLS, Col. (UP) — This cattle town of less than 1,000 people on the broad Western plains is the scene of an experiment in radio-telephone communication which may pave the way for a new era in rural communication.

The Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Co. has installed two-way, short-wave radio sets on eight isolated farms to find out if a plan to connect remote areas with the nation's telephone system by wireless will work.

With the sanction of the Federal Communications Commission, MST&T hopes to learn through the Cheyenne Wells experiment if the rural radio-telephone system can be set up on a large scale.

If successful, the way will be opened for economic, convenient communication from farms to the city and between farms without the necessity of long transmission lines and other shortcomings which stand in the way of widespread wire systems in thinly-populated areas.

Four farms in the Cheyenne Wells test district are equipped with a radio transmitter and receiver. Each of the other four is linked to these by a short land line.

The farm farthest from town has a 60-foot pole. Aerial poles at

SOFT BALL SCHEDULES ANNOUNCED

Coach Jimmie Marshall, manager of the Ranger Soft Ball League, Saturday announced the following schedule of games for this week.

Tuesday night the Premier and Lone Star teams will play the first of a double header with the Sportsmen's Club and Prompt Printery playing the second game.

The first will be a seven inning game and the second a five inning game. Thursday night the Prompt Printery will play the Jaycees and Friday night the Sportsmen's Club will play Caraway Paint and Body Company's team.

Saturday night an all-star team from Gorman will play the Sportsmen's Club. Through error the names of Coach Jimmie Marshall and Coach R. M. Warren were omitted from the line-ups for the games Friday night.

$3,600 IN RELIEF REFUNDS
CHICAGO (UP) — Conscience-stricken recipients of state relief in Illinois voluntarily returned a total of $3,600 to the relief fund in 1945, welfare officials announced.

The refunds, not required by law, were made by relatives or, in many cases, by the recipients themselves.

In addition, the relief administration recovered $97,000 which had been paid to others not entitled to relief.

SWIFT BLAMES OPA WITH MEAT SITUATION

CHICAGO (UP) — Swift and Company reported today that its beef business has dropped to the lowest level in the company's 61-year history and charged that the OPA has failed to halt a "ragging black market."

Paul C. Smith, vice president of the meat packing firm, said the black market "not only has affected the ability of consumers to buy meat, but also has dug deep into their pocket-books."

Swift buyers at Fort Worth, he said were able to buy only 200 head last week despite their quota of nearly 3,600.

Meantime the American Meat Institute asserted today that most housewives are paying about 30 per cent more than OPA ceiling prices for round steaks, rib roasts and chuck roasts. The institute said it based this figure upon shopping surveys made in 11 cities by two independent research agencies.

This is evidence, the institute said of the complete failure of the OPA slaughter control program, which was presented as a cure for the black market.

Funeral Service For Mrs. Bishop Held Saturday

Funeral services for Mrs. Nicholas Bishop were conducted Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Morton Valley Baptist church with Rev. Jay Danneberg in charge. Interment was in the Gansight cemetery with Killingsworth's Funeral Home in charge.

Mrs. Bishop who died in Ranger Thursday, May 26, was a resident of the Reagan community on route 2, Eastland. She had resided in the community for the past eight years. She was born June 7, 1883.

She is survived by her husband. Pallbearers were Edgar Huffman, G. E. Lissiter, L. H. Taylor, Bert Duncan, N. O. Hearn and Monroe Baggett.

Pope Says Peace Vanishing In Ungodliness

VATICAN CITY (UP) — Pope Pius warned ominously today that peace is vanishing in international bitterness and ungodliness which may provoke a violent world explosion.

The Pontiff urged Catholics to lead a world crusade against atheism, starting with a defeat of ungodly, materialistic forces in the French and Italian elections, Sunday.

"These peace... is receding... disappearing... vanishing," the pope said in an address broadcast to the world.

More than 100 Dude ranches are now operating in Wyoming.

Booklet On Social Security Now Available

Although most workers know that their social security tax deductions are building up a retirement fund for them, many do not realize that they also may have some very valuable family insurance protection under the old-age and survivors insurance system.

This system, according to a statement made today by Ralph T. Fisher, manager of the Social Security Board in Abilene, provides monthly payments to several classes of dependent survivors. These include minor children up to the age of 18, the young widow with these children in her care, the widow at age 65, and—under certain conditions—the dependent parent at age 65. In many families, particularly in those homes where the children are small, the insurance protection under social security is equal to a $10,000 policy.

The Social Security Board now has available a new booklet which describes the plan, as well as the retirement provisions. A copy of this booklet may be obtained by calling at the Social Security Board Office, 205 Alexander Building, Abilene, Texas; by telephoning that office, dial 6303; or by sending in a postcard request. Ask for booklet number 36.

Rationing Of Meat May Become Necessary Again

WASHINGTON (UP) — A possibility that meat may be rationed again appeared likely today following an agriculture department warning that meat supplies may become increasingly scarce.

Well informed department spokesmen pointed out, however, that even if meat rationing does come it probably will not be before next December or early in 1947. The department said pork would be somewhat more plentiful late this year, and beef, veal and lamb more scarce. But supplies will be about 150 pounds per American—about 15 to 20 pounds less than normal.

Another Polio Death Reported In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (UP) — San Antonio's eighth fatality from the polio-meningitis epidemic was reported today by the city health department.

The death of James Moffitt, 10, was the sixteenth in Texas since the polio outbreak began on May 1.

Rural schools outnumber the urban ones in Wyoming.

Judge Gives Honeybee Clean Bill Of Health

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UP) — The honeybee has attained recognition in Kentucky Law Reports.

"Now a honeybee is one of the most ingenious and scrupulously clean little creatures ever created by the Almighty Hand," Judge Eugene Siler of the Kentucky Court of Appeals wrote in a damage suit in which a party sought recovery because of the presence of a dead bee in a beverage bottle.

"It gathers golden nectar from the clean faces of fragrant flowers, carries this nectar within its own body to the buy hive, and there it makes that delicious and healthful food called honey. It is a spread on brown biscuits at breakfast. We do not sterilize nor pasteurize honey. We eat this product just as it is handed to us by every one."

Reversing a $225 judgement recovered by the purchaser of the beverage, the Court of Appeals held the sum excessive because there was no actual time lost by the complaining party, the taste was not odorous nor the beverage "fouled or polluted" by its presence in the bottle.

Judge Siler wrote that "it was mostly a case of a bee being where it should not be."

The name "Kentucky" was derived from an Indian name meaning land of tomorrow.

Texan Receives Medal Posthumously

Rear Admiral J. J. Clark, USN, Chief of the Naval Air Base Command at Corpus Christi, Texas, offers his best wishes to Mrs. Andrew J. Lummus after presenting her with the Congressional Medal of Honor which was awarded posthumously to her son, 1st Lt. Jack Lummus, USMCR. The presentation was made at Ennis, Texas, home of Lt. Lummus. Lummus was a former football star at Baylor University and later played with the professional New York Giants. (Official U. S. Navy Photo From NEA).

TOO MANY JOBS

With millions facing starvation, it might seem that the directorship of UNRRA would be a full-time job. But Director Fiorello LaGuardia seems to find plenty of time for other activities.

Even this busy schedule did not prevent his appearing before the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization and attempting to ridicule and demolish, in his cozily sarcastic and somewhat manner, the nine-point plan of long-range world food administration which former President Herbert Hoover had proposed the day before.

Mr. LaGuardia has every right to disagree with Mr. Hoover and to express that disagreement. But the petty fault-finding and hair-splitting that he indulged in leave one wondering whether his intention was not to belittle Mr. Hoover.

Herbert Hoover was not the most popular or successful president that this country ever had. But he has a record of sound achievement in food administration.

It was undoubtedly as the former U. S. Food Commissioner and director of Belgian relief in World War I that Mr. Hoover was chosen by President Truman to survey the famine areas and submit a report.

But Mr. LaGuardia did not even credit the former President with good intentions, much less wisdom. Mr. LaGuardia, who has sat in Washington since taking on the UNRRA job, apparently knew all the answers.

Mr. Hoover had suggested that UNRRA be supplanted on Sept. 1 by a world food authority under the United Nations. Mr. LaGuardia's answer to this was: "It is impossible to do this."

Mr. LaGuardia's answer to this was: "It is impossible to do this."

POMPTON LAKES, N. ## WASHINGTON FARMNOTES

By GRANT DILLMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — American farmers have produced record-breaking crops during the past five years with only a fraction of the damage to the nation's soil resources that was caused by the reckless plow-ups during World War I.
The Agriculture Department said despite the heavy wartime demand for food and the present need for famine relief, only between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 acres of land unsuited to long-range cultivation was broken up during World War I.
This compares to the approximately 30,000,000 acres of low-production grazing and grassland which was broken up from 1917 until 1920. A large part of this was great plains grassland unsuited to cultivation which contributed to the disastrous "dust-bowl" of the '30s.
The Department said the World War II record stemmed from good growing weather, improved crop strains, between crop disease and insect control, modern farm machinery and better utilization of available croplands through soil and water conservation methods. One of the most important factors, however, was the fact that improved soil conservation methods enabled American farmers to produce more food per acre. This made it unnecessary for farmers to plow up unproductive land even to meet the huge wartime demands for food.
These methods included contour cultivation, strip cropping, crop rotation, and improved irrigation and drainage.
"This is the tip-off," officials said, "on how maximum needed production can be realized safely on the good land without wasting premium labor, machinery, seed, and fertilizer in trying to 'mine' low-yielding lands that are more productive and profitable in grass or tree crops."
They said that tremendous extra demands on the land during the war and the present famine emergency are best illustrated by the huge expansion of soybean plantings in the Midwest, peanut acreage in the South and the production of cattle in the West.
The average yields of the country's principal crops between 1941 and 1944 were approximately 20 per cent higher than during the previous high period of 1923-29. Since 1941, the average corn yield has been about as high as compared with 23 bushels in the 1930 to 1939 period.
They pointed out that by 1970 farmers would be called on to feed a population between 155,000,000 and 170,000,000. The population now is almost 10,000,000 larger than before the war.
The production of food for this many people would be difficult if farmers would and could take advantage of all the technological advantages of modern farming. Many farmers, however, are unable or don't care to adopt newer methods.
Even assuming full employment and a higher level of spending power, officials said that 300,000,000 acres of actual cropland would be enough to produce all the food this country needs by 1960 if full advantage is taken of all technological improvements.
Actually they estimate there will be a need for about 418,000,000 acres of cropland, or only 8,000,000 acres below the 1935-39 average.

Army Hospital Uses Plexiglass For Body Braces

DAYTON, O. (UP) — Plexiglass, developed as a non-shattering material for airplane windshields and gun turrets, has been adapted to orthopedic braces at the Peterson Field Army hospital.

The transparent material can be formed into braces for the neck and spine fractures, brittle cases, and infantile paralysis victims. The idea was worked out by Capt. Dana Street and two co-workers, Kenneth Sines and Sgt. Malcolm Brahms. Capt. Street said the material had been used before in splints. Plexiglass is much lighter than the leather and metal, or plaster braces now used. It can be individually fitted, and is almost invisible. The part of the body to be braced is first swathed in wet plaster bandages. When these dry to the body contour, they are clipped off. The resulting form is filled with plaster.

'Sell It and Buy a Horse!'

Twenty-two miles from home and just three city blocks from championship competition, this Maxwell beauty, vintage 1908, broke down in Cleveland. While his wife looked on in dismay and neighboring bus passengers guffawed, S. J. Sipple (back to camera) of Lorain, Ohio, worked over the car, with the aid of E. W. Gault, Lorain garage-owner. The Maxwell finally roared its defiance of modern ridicule and was off again for the oldest-car contest held at Cleveland's Mid-America Exposition.

Kids Manage To Swallow Oddest Things

BOSTON (UP) — The world-famous Children's Hospital here could open a curio shop with the collection of items, big and little, they've taken from the throats of naughty kids during the past 28 years.

Under a glass display case are everything from gold rings to tiny sand spurs, not to mention the peanuts, that have been removed from the throats of children by the doctors at the hospital since 1918. Surgery has been performed on larynxes, esophagi, bronchial tubes and throats. Hospital officials say the number of cases has increased 100 per cent in the past three years—mostly because mothers have been working, leaving their children with little or no supervision, to swallow anything and everything they can get. The stuff was put under lock and key when someone began walking off with the nickels, dimes, and quarters that were on display. Among the other items in the odd collection are a doll's eye, a Roosevelt button swallowed by the son of a loyal Republican, pebbles, teeth, Christmas tree decorations, medallions, whistles, tiddly-winks, jackstones, toy celluloid dogs, sardine can, keys, seeds, toothpick swabs, collar buttons, rabbit's feet, toy chicken claws, and pins.

Scripture: Mark 14:3-9; Luke 10:38-42; John 11:1-44; 12:1-3; Galatians 5:13

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

MANY people miss the full significance of the earthly life of Jesus through a failure to grasp with realism the fact of His humanity.

To any such who read these words, I would emphasize that the significance of Christ's divinity is that it was revealed in His human life. As John says, "The Word was made flesh."

Both the human and the divine in Jesus are made very real in the story of His friendship with Martha and Mary, at Bethany, and with their brother Lazarus. We see Jesus in the friendly contacts of that Bethany home, a welcome guest, accepting the kindness and hospitality like any man in need of companionship and comfort, but giving more than He received.

WE see Him entering into the life of the home, observing the rivalry, or the conflict of temperaments, between the two sisters, mildly rebuking Martha for her complaint about Mary's not helping her with the work, overcome with human emotion as He finds the sisters weeping over the death of Lazarus.

What humanity in that shortness of all verses in the Bible, "Jesus wept!" What divinity in the recorded miracle of His restoring Lazarus to life!

General Duty Nurse

By LUCY AGNES HANCOCK Copyright by Lucy Agnes Hancock, Inc. Distributed by NEA SERVICE, I.

CHAPTER I

"APPLE polisher!" The jeering voice reached the girl in the hall of the Nurses' Annex and she paused abruptly. Who was Holden panning this time? She had not long to wait for another voice indignantly refuted the accusation in no uncertain terms.

"She is not! Sally Maynard is the sweetest, most accommodating girl in Linton and you should know it. She certainly has done you plenty of favors."

That was Margaret Adams speaking and the girl outside felt an uprush of affection for her advocate. But just what did Norma Holden have against her? She turned away but before she could pass out of earshot she heard Norma say, angrily:

"She's too smooth—too eager to please for my money. 'Oh yes, Doctor! Certainly, Miss Sunderlin! La-de-da—blah-blah-blah, a Phooey!'"

She heard Norma say, angrily: "She's too smooth—too eager to please for my money. 'Oh yes, Doctor! Certainly, Miss Sunderlin! La-de-da—blah-blah-blah, a Phooey!'" entirely given them up. Sara Elizabeth Maynard had been a rather lonely child, serious beyond her years and somewhat given to introspection. She had early developed a feeling of responsibility toward life—a self-discipline and integrity that amazed and troubled her worthy and socially minded relative. However, Sally was naturally happy though never boisterous and Miss Maynard felt certain that, given her head, her charming girl would in due time come to her senses, which meant, come to her aunt's way of thinking.

But Sally completed her three difficult years of training and instead of retiring to a life of ease and social conquests had listened to the pleadings of Doctor Richards, Linton's chief of staff, to remain at the hospital as a general duty nurse. The hospital had been badly hit by the war. With so many of its doctors and nurses entering the service the sadly depleted staff was but a mere skeleton of its former rather impressive body. It was only then that Miss Maynard became reconciled to the path Sally had elected to follow. She might have done as so many members of her profession had chosen to do—gone into service to unthought-of dangers and unspeakable conditions. So Miss Maynard—Aunt Sally—held her peace.

SALLY MAYNARD had been a general favorite with the faculty since her entrance. She had, until now, supposed that the entire staff liked her. She really hadn't given it a great deal of thought but now as she sat in her room, an open book in her lap, she tried to think back over the years and discover, if she could, just where she had failed. To be sure she had never been arbitrary—it wasn't her nature. She had been willing and docile because those traits were a part of her make-up. It was her nature to like people and to try to get along with them. She supposed she had succeeded, but apparently she had not—if what Norma Holden said was true. Of course she must never reveal to anyone what she had heard. It had not been intended for her ears. She smiled wryly. How true it was that listeners seldom heard anything good about themselves.

The ambulance left the courtyard and Sally went to the window to watch its progress down the hill to the town below. It was a wild night and traveling was hazardous. She hoped the poor soul for whom it had been sent was not suffering too much. Suddenly she felt very tired. It had been a hard day and tomorrow morning at seven she was due to go on a new case. She had heard about this Mrs. Hobbes—heard she was something of a tartar and had twice already demanded a change of nurses.

A light broke. That was it. Holden was being replaced and she didn't like it. Norma had been day nurse in room 249 and was being replaced by Sally. Why, Sally had no idea. She shrugged but felt relieved. She could cope with a thing like that and she didn't intend letting it bother her one bit. Well, it was now too late for a party. She was glad she had left the ginger ale downstairs in the refrigerator until the last minute. She buried the carton of cookies in the bottom drawer of her dresser and prepared for bed. Tomorrow was another day and from all reports it would be a trying one for her.

Kren, former Army captain, was Joe's commanding officer, made such an impression that Sgt. Louis put him on the pay roll.

OHIO WONDERS IF IT'S TAFT OR BRICKER IN 1948

COLUMBUS, O. (UP) — Ohio — mother of Presidents — does not anticipate that two "favorite sons" will do their Alphonse-Gaston act in the 1948 Presidential scramble.

John W. Bricker, three-time Ohio Governor and 1944 GOP Vice-Presidential candidate, will shape his political course this summer along lines calculated to land him the 1948 race for the Republican Presidential nomination.

The white-haired, robust and handsome Bricker is the GOP candidate for U. S. Senator in the November finale. His opponent is the "incumbent" Democratic appointee, Sen. James D. Huffman of Columbus.

Political potentates recognize Bricker as one of the leading aspirants for the Presidential nomination—a distinction shared by a fellow Buckeye, Sen. Robert A. Taft, son of the late William Howard Taft and one of Senate's ablest.

The Bricker-Taft show holds the spotlight even though observers also consider Harold Stassen, former Minnesota governor; Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, as GOP Presidential timber.

Indications already point to Presidential ambitions by both Bricker and Taft although neither has made any official statements—probably because the showdown is almost two years off.

But it probably will not be Alphonse-Gaston in '48. In 1940, Bricker stepped aside to support Taft. In 1944, Taft reciprocated.

What will happen next is the No. 1 question in Ohio GOP circles. Either Bricker or Taft must have the solid support of the Ohio convention delegation to convince national party moguls. To divide the delegation votes would mean one of the non-Ohioans would step in and probably take over.

That, both Bricker and Taft realize.

The former Buckeye governor proved his Ohio popularity when he polled more than 32,000 complimentary votes in the May primaries when he was unopposed for the GOP senatorial nomination.

However, he will find stiff opposition from Huffman, who was appointed by Gov. Frank J. Lausche to fill the current unexpired term of Justice Harold C. Burton, who resigned to accept the Supreme Court assignment.

The CIO-PAC has voiced support of Huffman, whom it could not defeat in the primaries. Huffman was preferred to Bricker.

Organized labor found little to praise in the Bricker administration. Labor's non-partisan league at one time referred to Bricker's leadership as "shockingly anti-social in character."

If Bricker does win a Senate seat, it will mean war in the upper house alongside the brilliant operator, Taft—his Alphonse-Gaston buddy.

Bricker will have to step lively to keep pace with his fellow Ohioan in the august chambers, where—if he chooses—Taft can easily overshadow his junior Ohio partner because of his years of experience.

Automobile Is Here To Stay

Mack Clark Raser, 45 and his 4-year-old daughter Barbara Mack Raser thumbed their nose at the machine age. The state charges, Raser kidnapped Barbara, who had been awarded to her mother in a recent divorce decree and was fleeing with her to New Mexico on two horses he had obtained in a swap for his car. He posted a $500 bond and will be turned over to the grand jury. Raser and Barbara had traveled 38 miles in two days when modern horsepower, driven by Sheriff Ed Hofack of Levelland, Texas, and Sheriff Grady Harris of Lubbock, convinced them that the automobile is here to stay. at the historic Jefferson Barracks parade ground, hard packed by the tramp of such famous men as Ulysses S. Grant and Robert E. Lee.

Scheduled for abandonment as a military installation, the 120-year-old post has been declared surplus and will be turned over to the War Assets Administration.

Already city officials and other interests are scrambling for the wooded acreage on the banks of the Mississippi. Homes some day will spring from its grassy sweeps, but the history and tradition it has made will not be forgotten.

Already a strange quiet has settled over the post, harking back to the days when it was carved out of the wilderness. When a few tiny log buildings housed men who went out to fight such troublesome warriors as Black Hawk.

Named in memory of Thomas Jefferson, who died a few days before the property was bought in July, 1826, the barracks has become one of the major military posts of the nation.

Threaded through its history are such names as Jefferson Davis, William Tecumseh Sherman, Phil Sheridan, Zachary "Old Rough and Ready" Taylor, John C. Fremont, and Grant and Lee.

The young Lt. Grant moved into the post on Sept. 30, 1843. Soon after the shadow of war with Mexico hung over the nation.

Grant moved out with his regiment, but returned when the clouds cleared. He retired from the Army and bought a farm on nearby Gravois Road. There he married Julia Dent and it was from this farm he hauled cordwood to the military post. Later, he re-entered the Army to become the leader of the Union Army in the Civil War.

Ehmerman (of "war is hell" fame) also was a resident of the barracks district. He operated a horse-car line in St. Louis. When he learned crates marked "marble" going down the Mississippi contained guns and ammunition, he re-entered the Army. His military career was climaxed by his "march through Georgia."

A special $100,000 emergency fund has been created by the St. Paul city council for the construction of 21 temporary shelter houses, to be set up on a playground area. The shelters will cost from $600 to $850 each and their erection and management will be supervised by a veterans' organization.
