Country is now under a state of siege while the ballots are counted in Buenos Aires. A complicated procedure of checking ballots is being used and it will be some time before the final outcome will be known. (NEA Radiophoto)

U. S. Willing To Denounce Franco With Two Powers

LONDON (UP)—The United States has proposed to Britain and France that the three powers join in a denunciation of the Franco regime in Spain and recommended the establishment of a "caretaker" government, to succeed high sources reported today.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Authoritative sources said today that the United States has sent notes to Britain and France expressing disfavor for continuation of the Franco regime in Spain and suggesting that the U. S. would like to see set up there a temporary government.

The United States would like to see such a body hold elections permitting the people to decide what kind of government they want.

The United States would want the caretaker government also to agree to release political prisoners and permit the free entry into Spain of political exiles.

81, HER JELLIES' FAMOUS ROYALTON, VI. (UP)—About 50 years ago, Mrs. Lisle McIntosh preserved some apple jelly for her own use.

But so delicious was it, that neighbors who tasted it wanted more. The same applied to her mince-meat, jams, canned vegetables and pickles. Mrs. McIntosh's fame spread throughout the countryside.

Today the 81-year-old woman is still preserving. But she has her own little business which requires the help of three part-time workers.

Farmers Offered Insurance On '46 Cotton Crops

The Federal Government is offering insurance on the 1946 cotton crop in Eastland County. This insurance protects the producer from loss due to drought, insects, flood, storms or any other unavoidable causes, but it does not cover loss due to poor farming methods or negligence on the part of the producer.

The local community and county A A A committees, after considering the past cotton production, have established insurable yields for each cotton farm in the county. A cotton producer may secure either 75 per cent or 50 per cent insurance of this yield, depending upon the protection desired. Although the yields vary from farm to farm, the county has a flat premium rate of 7 pounds of lint cotton per acre for 75 per cent coverage and 3 pounds of lint cotton for 50 per cent coverage. In other words, a producer will pay 7 pounds of lint cotton to be guaranteed 75 per cent of his insurable yield and pay 3 pounds of lint cotton to guarantee 50 per cent of his insurable yield.

This flat premium rate is based on the theory that the small yield is on the poor farm; therefore, the risk greater. This is the only insurance contract that protects the farmer from all hazards beyond his control.

The personal in the county A A A office will be glad to explain the details of this program and show how a producer may be guaranteed an income from his 1946 cotton crop.

All contracts in the county must be signed by April 10, 1946.

State Health Officer Urges Rat Eradication

AUSTIN, Texas—Inasmuch as typhus fever is even this early in the year, showing an increased incidence over the State, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, today issued an urgent appeal to every Texan to cooperate in rodent control measures.

"The conquest of typhus fever in Texas is far from complete," Dr. Cox declared. "There is still entirely too much of this disabling disease."

"Concentrated effort and close cooperation from every citizen of Texas is urgently needed if typhus fever is to be brought definitely under control," Dr. Cox continued, "and this certainly must be done if our public health in Texas is to be protected."

Inasmuch as typhus is spread by the flea which feeds on typhus infected rats, control measures, according to Dr. Cox, depend on rat extermination through means of starving out and building out rats as well as trapping and poisoning them. He stated that regardless of what a fine garbage collection and disposal system a community maintains, it is practically worthless in rodent control unless garbage is put into (a) a rodent house and (b) a garbage pail and the pail kept covered at all times.

Rat-proofing of all homes and business houses should be undertaken as quickly as possible and the local health departments are usually able to assist in overcoming the obstacle of obtaining materials and labor. They can also assist in trapping and poisoning campaigns and will gladly do so upon request.

UNTAPPED OIL RESERVES OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—Oklahoma's oil wells haven't gone dry yet. In fact, proved and undiscovered reserves in the state will maintain Oklahoma's position as an important oil producer for many years, it was predicted by Hugh D. Miser, chief of the section of fuels of the United States Geological Survey, who visited the city recently.

BOWLES HOPES FOR ONLY FIVE PER CENT RISE

WASHINGTON (UP)—Economic Stabilizer Chester Bowles told Congress today he hoped the government's new wage-price policy would result in no more than a five per cent increase in the cost of living within the next year.

"I think the 10 per cent increase estimated by Mr. Marriner S. Eccles, federal reserve chairman, is rather high," Bowles said. "Certainly I hope it will be no more than half of that."

Eccles made his statement in testimony yesterday before the House banking committee.

Reconversion Director John W. Snyder, testifying before the House banking committee earlier today, urged that Congress extend price controls another year. He said continuation of price controls was necessary to "keep our economic house in order" until production catches up with demand.

Bowles told the House civil service committee that the new policy which permits moderate price increases to accompany certain wage increases, "represents our last chance to do a job" on price control.

"If we go beyond the general pattern set by this policy," he said, "We'll get into trouble."

Bowles testified in favor of a bill to raise the pay of federal employees by 20 per cent. He said that such an increase was necessary to enable the government to compete with private industry in its efforts to recruit competent personnel.

Police Break Up Mass Picketing In Philadelphia

By United Press Mounted police broke up mass picketing at a Philadelphia plant today in a brief flare of violence as the government spread its new wage-price policy to packinghouse and shipbuilding workers.

Philadelphia police, carrying out a court order prohibiting mass picketing outside of the Eastwick General Electric Company plant, charged and dispersed more than 1,000 strikers. Six strikers were held for questioning after scuffles.

The strikers, members of the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, have been idle since Jan. 15. They demanded $2 more a day.

A Happy Mayor Is He . . .

Mayor Otis Massey of Houston, left, and D. W. Maxwell, secretary of the Building Trades Council are in a happy mood after a settlement was reached in the strike of 700 city employes. Strike threatened to shut down the city utilities and the agreement reached will restore jobs to those who struck and the city has promised a study of their pay. (NEA Telephoto)

URGES EARLY FILING OF SHOW ENTRIES

Livestock men as well as 4-H Club and F.F.A. boys who plan to exhibit at the Annual Eastland County Livestock Show at Ranger on March 30 are urged to get their entries in, it was announced at the County Agricultural Agent's office in Eastland recently.

Entry lists and blanks are available at his office as well as from T. G. Canale, Vocational Agricultural teacher in Cisco or from H. C. Wilkinson at the school tax office in Ranger.

Entry lists after being filled out are to be returned to Wilkinson's office by March 23, deadline date for receiving entries.

There are 57 different classes in the five divisions of the show divided into Beef Cattle, Dairy Cattle, Sheep, Goats and Horses. Ribbons are to be awarded the first five winners either in the men's or boy's classes.

Adults will compete for ribbons only except for champion animals which will compete with 4-H, and F.F.A. for cash prizes.

F.F.A. and 4-H Club animals will compete for the $225.00 in prize money.

The show is being sponsored by the Eastland County Livestock Association as well as the Chambers of Commerce in Ranger, Eastland and Cisco. It is an annual affair and is rotated from one of the above towns to the other. The 1945 show was held in Cisco.

Company Ready To Build Houses For Sale Here

Howard Jordan of the Roy Martin Lumber Company stated today that his company is willing and ready to build houses for sale in Ranger if the demand is present. Jordan stated that most materials are available now and the company is definitely in the frame of mind to build houses for the people of Ranger. The company is already buying lots for such building.

Two houses for company employes have been started at the corner of Cypress and Hodges streets. The houses will be four rooms and a bath each.

Do You Know?

That a prominent geologist recently made this statement? "It seems obvious that North Central Texas deserves a continued study of geologists because of the many unsolved problems of stratigraphy and structure. The undeveloped natural resources are, no doubt, of considerable magnitude."

CASE CLOSED AGAINST LAST NAZI LEADERS

NUERNBERG (UP)—The United Nations war crimes prosecutors closed their case against the surviving leaders of Nazi Germany today and court officials indicated the defendants would open their final fight for life on Monday.

Russian Prosecutor Smirnov wound up the United Nations case with a summation of Nazi crimes against humanity in eastern Europe.

His presentation completed an array of evidence which required more than three months to unfold and which the Allied powers were confident would send the 21 surviving Nazi warlords to death on the gallows.

Actually, 22 Nazi leaders and six organizations were on trial, but Deputy Fuehrer Martin Bormann's hearing was being held in absentia and the semi-official view was that he had been killed in the siege of Berlin.

Committee Halts Hearings On Pauley Wrangle

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate naval affairs committee today suddenly canceled its morning hearing on the nomination of Edwin W. Pauley to be undersecretary of the Navy. There were many indications that the prolonged battle over the nomination was reaching a climax.

Pauley told the United Press he would give the committee at 1:30 P. M.—CST—today a prepared statement in answer to suggestions that he withdraw his nomination. If the committee would clear him of all charges of irregularities in his California oil dealings and as treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

Pauley said later it would be "fairly safe to predict" that his statement would not be a withdrawal of his name.

HELL FIRE AND BRIMSTONE

One writer compares the program of the National Committee on Atomic Information with the old-fashioned "hell fire and brimstone" type of religious evangelism.

Atom bombs are so cheap, the Committee says, that "even a small nation may soon possess the means of obliterating a large nation at will."

"It is possible today," we are warned, "to smuggle an atomic bomb into a large city, and detonate it at any time—even decades later—by means of a radio signal from another country."

And don't trouble to try doing anything about this terrible situation either, because the Committee says that there not only is no defense now, but there ain't going to be none, neither.

Goodness, gracious, what's this world coming to? What's the use of trying, if we're predestined to be blown or seared into unrecognized atoms—or maybe molecules or protons or neutrons?

Of course, the Committee could be over-excited, we hope. Let's see, now—

It cost the United States two billion good, hard iron men—two billion, not million, dollars—to develop the atomic bomb. Even when the developmental peak had passed we had 65,000 men and women on the job, including several thousands of the best scientists and engineers in the world.

We had to apply mechanics so exact that most big nations, even, would be incapable of imitating the job if we provided scientists to tell them what to do.

How many small nations are capable of such an effort? Where are they going to get the stupendous quantities of uranium required for even one little atomic bomb?

The United States, Great Britain and Canada are so far in the van in atomic fission that if anybody ever overtakes us it will be our own silly fault. We are never going to start an atomic war, but if anybody else does we should be able to blow the be-ibberg out of them.

And in our opinion the Committee is speaking out of its own ignorance when it says that no defense can be devised against the atomic bomb. Maybe, yes, maybe no. No layman is in position to judge, and that includes the National Farmers Union, the United Steelworkers and the National Association of University Women, sponsors of the Committee.

The atomic bomb, used for destruction, is a frightful thing. Make no mistake. But this earth has survived a lot of frightful things already. Maybe it will this one. Indeed, in our opinion probably it will survive this one.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Best show put on in Washington in months was the appearance of 250-pound, $50,000-a-year George Edward Allen before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Allen mugged for the cameras like Fatty Arbuckle. He tried on his banker's sowl for the first time, and it fit pretty good. He raised his banjo eyes like Eddie Cantor. He dropped gas lines and wisecracks faster than Bob Hope.

All the while he oozed southern charm like a stack of corn cakes and honey. In the end he had even soupsure Senators Bob Taft of Ohio and Gene Millikin of Colorado rolling in their chairs with laughter, happier than a couple of hep cats with double dip chocolate cones.

"That's very nice of you, Senator," he said. "This is the first enthusiasm I've found for me in this job."

Senator Taft went at it a little more seriously. Why had they picked him—Allen—as a director in all these companies? What did he do? Allen thought a long time on that one, gazing at the ceiling. Finally, in deep, serious, looking straight at Taft, he said, "I honestly think they want my opinions. I've been re-elected. That's the remarkable thing."

When he first went to the White House to work on liquidation of war agencies for President Truman, Allen said they didn't have a desk for him. Finally he was moved over to an office in the State Department. That gave him a place to sit down. "I was getting pretty tired about then," Allen said. "I'm really inherently lazy," he confessed to the smiling committee. "But I've always been asked to do things and when I get into them and get interested, I do them."

Allen really wants to be a director of RFC, though, the worst way in the world. Deacon Allen would, in fact, resign all his directorships if that was necessary for his confirmation.

"But I'd hate to give them up," he said. "What if the Democrats lost out in 1947? I'd be in a terrible fix."

ASTORIA, Ore. (UP)—Lt. Charles R. A year later Thompson received the card in the morning mail, along with another also written by Stafford, who is now in business in Seaside, Oregon.

Trailer Campus Accomodates Married Vets

CHENEY, Wash. (UP)—Eastern Washington College of Education believes in the comfort of its veteran students and has provided 50 low-cost trailers for married veterans who are resuming their education.

The trailers rent for a nominal $11 per month, of which one dollar goes for heat, light and service. The "trailer campus" includes two bathrooms, and one laundry trailer for community use. The college says the small rental will enable married veterans to live within their allotments while completing their education.

WHEN Armed made it six straight at Hialeah, talk was resumed about the possibility of Warren Wright keeping up with the times, and flying the 5-year-old gelding to Southern California in a dramatic attempt to sweep the $50,000 Widener and $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap on successive week-ends, March 2 and 9.

A lot of competent judges believe that the winner of the Pimlico Special has only to go to the post.

The late-arriving son of Bull Lea-Armful, by Chance Shot, appears to be one of those rarities which can get up at any distance when he pleases—a sprinter that can go a route.

Ben Jones has Armed, of course, and someone recalled asking the famous Calumet trainer how he happened to become a horseman.

"Well, when I was a boy," replied Plain Ben Jones, "I was crazy about Holstein cows and horses, couldn't decide which I liked better."

"When I got big enough to help with the milking, I made up my mind, or rather the hours and work made it up for me."

SAN VICENTE, musical old Spanish name given the $25,000 handicap for 3-year-olds at Santa Anita, has a most historic and interesting background.

El Rancho San Vicente comprised 30,000 of the fairest Southern California acres, extending from the boundaries of the Pueblo of Los Angeles to the Pacific shore, from El Governor's Real to Santa Monica Canyon.

Yet in all this vast domain, which now represents the thriving cities of Santa Monica, West Los Angeles, Venice, etc., there was just one small spot that caused a vigorous dispute leading to a lawsuit.

BIRD CLUB CELEBRATES

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—The Greater Indianapolis Bird Club recently celebrated its first anniversary. Club members have extended breeding of canaries to colors ranging from snow white to deep orange, including cinnamon and green. They have bred love birds in shades of blue, greens, mauve, yellow and white and have taught many of them to talk. They also have taught gray cockatoos to sing and whistle. The club was organized to interest the public in a wide variety of birds that may be bred in the home. It is open to all interested cage bird breeders.

HE was not a good patient those first days. He was still shamed remembering how he had tried to push away the tending hands, how he had cursed when too weak to oppose them. Until a haggard-faced doctor had outcursed him into silence. "You're my job, don't make it any harder."

Cold sobering fact. He was sane after that and numb with despair. That was when he turned in upon himself, his an aloneness none could share.

There was one nurse with level brows and deep dark eyes like Thayer's. He watched her a great deal and once he said, "There is nothing about me worth all this trouble you're taking." Not knowing what he wanted her to answer, yet somehow teased, waiting.

With her too-long laugh all resemblance to Thayer vanished. She said, "Fishing for compliments, Captain?" and he felt heat pour into his face and a sort of sick shape surge through him. It was that night, lying sleepless in the dark, that the horror of coming home to Thayer like this first gripped him. "He longed for her unutterably, yet the thought of returning to her a cripple seemed beyond his strength to face. Every recollection of their hours together was sweet because of their joy in life and movement. I love to walk with you, Brock; I love that way you stride along."

Once he tried in desperation to talk to the chaplain. To the chaplain it was an old story. He told Brock, "My boy, a woman's love is an enduring thing. She'll stand by, never fear." It gave Brock a chill feeling. That night he dreamed of Thayer. She stood straight, unflinching, her hands clenched tightly at her sides. He tried to walk to her and could not; he was falling. . . . A nurse awakened him when he cried out. The months passed, teaching him endurance if nothing else. The stump of his leg was not yet healed enough to bear an artificial limb but that he had any leg at all was considered a minor miracle. At last he came home.

HE would never forget his first sight of her at the airport, for she was standing straight and tall as in his dream. It made every- thing go giddy. If her hands were clenching. . . . But he never knew, for they had all reached him by then. Nothing kept him going but necessity.

The sight of the little room his mother had fixed up nearly broke him with relief, for his heart had seemed to stop at the foot of that long staircase. To have Thayer see. . . . But when Thayer had come into the room with him and they were alone, he had felt his whole body string taut with longing for her. He was afraid to look at her, afraid to touch her, for first—he had promised himself this—he must know how she felt. Only— how to put it into words.

It seemed he must hurt her, good her into expression of the real feeling that lay so deeply guarded behind her dark eyes. Yet it was his undoing, because hurting her had hurt him so much more. She had struck through every defense when she said, "Brock, have you forgotten Drumhead Hill?" Because he had forgotten, and remembrance smote him, sharp and poignant.

She was standing there so close and suddenly his arms went about her waist without volition, his face was against her and he was crying, who in all these months had shed no tears. He felt the warmth of her body through her clothing; he felt her hands on his hair, against his cheeks. He wanted to seize them, press his face into them, cling to them.

She could not remember when she hadn't been in love with Brock. He was simply part of her life's plan; no other boy interested at times but she had entertained no fear of real rivalry. Between their two families their ultimate marriage was an accepted fact.

His meeting with Thayer and its consequence had rocked to its foundations the security Moya had looked upon as fact.

She had seen, though vaguely understood, how change in Brock. At first he had seemed hard, then she noticed his eager reaching toward the old, the familiar; like a child seeking the sure safety of the commonplace. Slowly it became clear. Thayer—his winning of her and his brief marriage—represented a pinnaac Brock had reached. It was somehow apart from the ordered life of Daverton to which he now returned. That old life could claim him again; Moya felt sure of it. Thayer was an outsider; only those who loved him best could rebuild life for Brock again. Mrs. Kittridge knew this. More than once she and Moya had looked at each other wordlessly over Brock's head. It's my turn now, Moya thought. Yes, my turn.

Finders Are Keepers In Texas - Legally

SAN ANTONIO (UP) — Finders are keepers in Texas—legally.

In search of a feature story, a San Antonio reporter wanted to learn what the procedure would be if someone found, say $50,000. The reporter discovered that under Texas law money or valuables, if unclaimed, revert to the finder.

As an example, two carpenters tearing down an old house found a large sum of money which apparently had been hidden for years. The owner was notified but, under the law, the carpenters got the money.

A woman who purchased a piece of antique furniture found out about the law when her maid discovered a secret drawer full of valuables. The maid got the valuables because no one else could prove ownership. Likewise, treasure found concealed in the ground goes to the finder. In fact, articles found in a theater need not be turned over to the theater manager. The finder should tell the manager he found some money or valuables—and leave it to the owner to identify it by saying if it was in a purse, how much, and where he was sitting in the theater. If the description is wrong, the finder may keep the loot.

Dr. Cox Warns Against Exposing Babies To TB

AUSTIN, Tex. — Speaking of children and their susceptibility to tuberculosis, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, said, "Few people realize that babies and young children are very likely to catch tuberculosis if they are kept in the rooms with persons who have the disease in an infectious stage, or use the same dishes, sleep in the same beds, or are handled and kissed by people who have tuberculosis.

"Babies and young children pick up the germs of tuberculosis just as readily as they pick up the germs of measles, whooping cough or any of the so-called children's diseases. But tuberculosis is different in certain particulars. Unlike most diseases, it has more than one form. Babies who get tuberculosis may not show the symptoms we associate with the disease in older people. But the disease in most cases develops rapidly and is likely to end fatally. Tuberculosis in babies and young children is a very serious matter, but recent studies have shown that if young children are moved promptly from contact with the disease and given the necessary care, many lives can be saved.

"A great deal can be accomplished whenever tuberculosis develops, whether young or old, if the presence of the disease is recognized when it is in its early stages and if medical attention is secured promptly.

"Tuberculosis does not just simply happen. Nobody is born with the disease. Everybody who develops tuberculosis gets it from some other source. Children and young people who have been in contact with persons ill with tuberculosis are especially likely to contract the disease."

200 Pittsburgh Veterans Study For Art Careers

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Two hundred Pittsburgh Jews have dropped their guns and picked up paint brushes, thanks to the GI Bill of Rights.

The Art Institute of Pittsburgh says that most of the veterans would have turned art aside as "impractical" if Uncle Sam were not financing their education.

But the Bill of Rights and the trip abroad—where they saw the art galleries of Europe, the artists on the left bank of the Seine in Paris, and the sketchers in Rome and Naples—combined to bring out their latent artistic desire.

One of the students, Robert McCormick of Akron, O., says "a glimpse of the world broke down my inhibitions," and another, Henry Cook of Pittsburgh, became interested when he began painting signs for his squadron overseas.

Signal intentions clearly. When turning or stopping, remember that others may be unable to do likewise quickly.

Denton, Texas Dog Watches Drain Hole for 38th Day

Without a doubt this is the most persistent dog we have ever seen. He is still watching a drain hole on the campus of the North Texas State College. In fact, this is the 38th day he has been watching. His vigil was kept so closely that he began to lose weight and looked bad, so Burl Stiff, a Beta Alpha Rho Beta pledge from Denton, offers his assistance. Pledge Stiff receives instructions from the dog in the top photo and intently and faithfully takes his place before the hole to keep up the vigil while the dog roams about for food. This dog has not yet been identified as any pet by the people of Denton and no student at the college can remember seeing him before he started his fruitless watch beside this drain. (NEA Photo)

Old Clock Runs Without Winding For 400 Days

OMAHA, Neb. (UP) — On New Year's Day, Paul Bustard, long-time watchmaker, winds his gold-plated German clock and puts it back on the shelf without planning to wind it for another year.

The clock only needs to be wound every 400 days, Bustard says.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Westfall visited Mrs. Westfall's brother in Mineral Wells last Sunday.

Mrs. J. B. Harbin and Charlie Jones attended funeral services for their brother-in-law, Jack Brown, in Lubbock last week.

says. "The ordinary watch ticks 18,000 times an hour," Bustard said. "This old German clock ticks 720 times because the pendulum takes five seconds to complete its half-rotation."

Bustard is a watchmaker certified with the Horological Institute of America. He began his apprenticeship in 1883 at Joy, Ill. Since then he has had shops at New Boston, Ill., Joy Ill., Wayland, Ind., Frederick, Weatherford and Cherokee, Okla. He left his last shop at Iola, Kan., after retirement to live with a son here.
