AN UNTRADITIONAL APPOINTMENT

The President's appointment of Gen. George C. Marshall to succeed Mr. Byrnes as Secretary of State must have astounded a large segment of the American public. It just isn't traditional to name professional soldiers to civilian posts in government.

There are sound reasons for this prejudice, even though it is probably more instinctive than reasonable with most people. The professional soldier's life is shut off from that of his civilian fellows.

These are some of the common objections to the military professional as a non-military public servant. Yet they do not exactly fit General Marshall's case.

One cannot predict how this experience will serve him as the No. 1 Cabinet officer. There is no background which is a required necessity for the State Department's chief.

There are, however, many known qualities which General Marshall brings to his new post. He has proved himself a man of distinguished ability in organizing our strength and planning some of the greatest victories of history's greatest war.

As for Mr. Byrnes, we can repeat the President's "Well done." The retiring Secretary has been a handy man to have around.

The country owes James F. Byrnes a large debt for his long, arduous, devoted years of service. We wish him good luck, good health, and a well-deserved rest.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—The way Harry Truman can fall into a puddle of mud and crawl out garlanded with roses bears everything.

Edson gets all splattered with Ed Pusley—and emerges with "Cap" Krug as Secretary of the Interior, in place of Harold Ickes.

He dives in over his head to support Henry Wallace and comes up without Wallace but with Averell Harriman.

Pat Hurler throws a lot of mud at Truman on Chinese policy. He rubs the mud off on Hurler and comes out clean with Gen. George C. Marshall as ambassador to China.

Last month Truman issued a long, pointless and apparently unnecessary statement of policy on China. There was some difference of opinion in the State Department, where it was drafted, as to what should be included.

So now, in the most polite language in the world, General Marshall supplements this statement with impressions gained at first hand. Normally, this would have reflected discredit on the President. But at this precise moment, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes had resigned because of ill health.

And Truman, crawling out of the hole, emerges a hero. The riddle still to be answered, however, is just where U. S. China policy now stands.

What General Marshall's magnificently frank "personal statement" on the Chinese situation boils down to is a confirmation of everything General "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell and ex-Ambassador Clarence Gauss knew about China four years ago.

Now before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is a new, five-year Treaty of Friendship, Commerce and Navigation with China. It offers a glorious chance for militant Republicans to blast Democratic Administration policies in China, going into use and misuse of Lend-Lease, disposal of surplus property and loans to the Nationalists.

SPORTS

BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Babe Ruth lay in French Hospital for weeks without anybody but his family and closest friends giving him much of a tumble.

When the old home-run king had a cartilage removed from the side of his knee in June, 1944, only one former ballplayer visited him in the hospital—Al Schacht. There has been no baseball job for this man who did more for the game than any other individual—not even showing the major leagues' moving pictures in and around New York.

Baseball could have no more natural good-will ambassador than the ex-Sultan of Swat, yet it continually brings in outsiders for positions he would fill so nicely. It took the serious operation on his neck the other day suddenly to awaken the baseball world to what it has in Ruth.

Ruth is coming along nicely, as we were sure he would and always has.

DESTRUCTION had Babe Ruth, the Baltimore street-urchin, marked at birth. It got him into a reform industrial school at the age of six. There to remain until he was 19. After he became a national figure, it threatened again, twice, but essential honesty pulled him through.

Ruth will draw $15,000 a year from annuities as long as he lives. For the past few summers he has had a 13-week national boys' baseball program that pays him more than the game could pay him.

The Bam would like to be back in baseball, but it also will be quite all right if he isn't. Certainly, he isn't going to worry about it. Everybody has always worried about the Bam but the Bam himself.

Ruth's greatest sermon to his beloved kids of America is his own triumph. That perhaps is the principal reason why Babe Ruth should not be Baseball's Forgotten Man.

SCIENCE AT WORK

By Paul F. Ellis United Press Science Writer NEW YORK (UP)—Scientists believe that in the years to come there will be enough food for everyone in the world.

There are a few new undeveloped sources of food in the sea, and Dr. Charles F. Kettering of the General Motors Corp., research laboratories, recently reported that this source alone could produce enough food for the 500,000,000 persons now suffering malnutrition.

Another expert, H. R. Tolley of the Food and Agricultural Organization, Washington, believes that the answer may also be found in the increased use of fertilizers, insecticides, machinery and improved crop varieties.

During the war, according to Tolley's figures, the United Kingdom increased its food production by 70 per cent, and the gain was 30 per cent in the United States. Many tens of thousands of acres of tillable land are idle now, he pointed out, and could be put to work.

It appears likely that science will continue to take seven-league strides in the years ahead," he said. "Millions of hungry people all over the world know that it offers them a new chance to enjoy the opportunities of life."

Recent reports from Washington agencies said that two of every three of the world's population normally are undernourished. The most critical spots are India and China.

Harvard's gigantic "mechanical brain" has a new home. It is a modern, two-story structure—the first new building of the university's proposed "Science City," and houses the complex calculating machine which can solve the most intricate mathematical problems in a matter of seconds.

The machine was given to Harvard in August, 1944, by the International Business Machines Corp., and has operated since that time under a naval contract. The machine is operated 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Some experts believe such machines may be an aid to making more accurate weather forecasts.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of Carnegie Institution of Washington and wartime director of the Office of Scientific Research and Development, has been named 1946 winner of the Hoover medal, jointly awarded by four national engineering societies.

The award will be conferred on Dr. Bush Jan. 30 in New York during the winter meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

CORN COB TREATMENT MAKES BEARINGS ROLL
 PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The lowly corn cob, once a worthless farm by-product that couldn't even be fed to a hog, is now a valuable industrial material.
 So important are corn cobs to the manufacture of precision ball and roller bearing that SKF Industries uses more than 48,000 pounds of them a year.
 The reason is that corn cobs, when finely ground, have high absorbent qualities and are virtually free of acids that cause rust on highly polished steel. Balls, rollers and components of bearings are dropped into revolving barrels full of ground corn cobs for drying, cleaning and polishing.

 Large quantities of sulfa drugs have been sold by WAA in the past and have been offered previously to priority groups. However, 10 per cent of the present offering is being reserved to fulfill further needs of priority claimants.
 Brochure listings of quantities and fixed prices for the various drugs are being mailed to eligible buyers and copies may be obtained from all WAA regional offices.
 All orders should be mailed to the Director, Drugs and Medical Sales Division, War Assets Administration, Railroad and Returnment Bldg., 3rd and C Sts., Washington, 25, D. C. Largest quantities of the drugs are located in the New York, Boston, Denver, Louisville, San Francisco and St. Louis regions. Smaller quantities are in stock in several other regions and shipments will be made to buyers from the nearest regions with inventories.
 The offerings include a special listing of sulfanilamide and tablets, sulfaguanidine tablets and sulfadiazine tablets for sale only to export buyers who are required to sign certificates that the drugs will be distributed in this country. The exclusive export listing is necessary because these drugs are labeled for the armed forces and so do not conform with the pure food and drug act, WAA explained.

 The driver of the truck was none other than Mrs. Simms' husband. What Mrs. Simms said to Mr. Simms was not reported by police.

Moutray Ranch To Put Herefords Up for Auction
 ABILENE, Tex.—Seventy picked Herefords of the illustrious Anxiety 4th lineage will go through the auction ring straw at Moutray Hereford Ranch two and one-half miles northeast of Baird, February 1, as one of the highlight cattle events of the late-winter season.
 Due to attract a gathering of buyers from a widespread region of the Southwest, the sale offers only straight-bred Anxiety 4th cattle. Pedigrees of the auction offering trace back to the noted English bull that was imported to America in 1881 by the two men who made Hereford history, Guggell and Simpson of Missouri. The sire, Anxiety 4th, today is recognized as the "father and improver" of American Herefords.
 The Moutrays have concentrated the blood of the descendants of the early-day beef pattern sire in building their herd. Two outstanding herd bulls at the Moutray Ranch, Beau Sensation
