ADVICE, NOT NEGATION

The venerable William L. Green, 74, next month and AFL president for 22 years, told a familiar story to the Senate Labor Committee the other day.

Mr. Green said he opposed all "restrictive" labor legislation. He warned that an attempt to outlaw the closed shop, jurisdictional strikes, and secondary boycotts would create "such great industrial confusion and undermine the present world position of the United States."

This performance has been notably successful in the past. Any threat of change in labor's status quo—what Mr. Green calls restrictive legislation—has been countered by a threat of a wave of strikes.

But Mr. Green's audience was different on this visit. One new face belonged to Sen. Irving Lites, whose record in the New York State Legislature had shown him consistently sympathetic toward labor's viewpoint.

"Bear in mind," he said, "that the public is demanding that something be done, and in all probability something will be done before this Congress gets through. The problem is what to do. You can't just sit there and say 'this won't work and that won't work.' Don't you agree something has to be done?"

Now, congressmen don't usually talk like that to Mr. Green or to Mr. Murray of CIO either. They have customarily heard one side of the story from business and industry, the other from union officials, and then accepted the fact that never the twain would meet.

This time, though, another voice was being listened to. It was the voice of that public which Mr. Lites referred to, a classless majority which obviously wants to see things done a little differently, and so change the complexion of Congress.

Mr. Green, then, was up against a stronger political force than his own. He faced a fact which Senator Ellender of Louisiana put to him rather bluntly: "We want your help. We don't want a negative attitude."

Help is needed from both sides in dealing justly with a situation that has to be dealt with. Mr. Green may talk about the constitutional right of protection against forced labor. But there are other rights involved too.

Members of some of Mr. Green's rival trade unions have no constitutional right to throw hundreds or thousands out of work while they squabble over who shall do some small job of carpentry or plumbing or furniture moving.

BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The major leagues should engage Ray Dumont as an idea man. The president of the National Semi-Pro Congress gets a bit crackpottery here and there with baserunning in reverse, women umpires and such, but he has a brain whirled every 15 minutes, and the bulk of them are entertaining to say the least.

With his progressiveness and stunts, Dumont built the Congress into a far-flung organization and its national tournament in Wichita, on the Kansas plain, into a big thing.

Dumont now will have the semi-pro fans pick the No. 1 member of their clan. He will be given a lifetime pass to the semi-pro national tournament and get an all-expense trip to the World Series, there to be paraded before the customers.

Players are put in the Hall of Fame. There are plaques and whatnot for owners, officials and others, but no one has taken the time and trouble to pick the older-eyed of those who make it all possible. The fans outnumber the players from here to there and back again and are even more important to the dodge.

With anyone eligible, the fan will be selected during the national tournament, Aug. 13-27. Under rules which will prove that

The Bear That Never Hibernates

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—A little staff of 10 people headed by Maurice Pate is now embarked on the job of trying to find ways to feed one 700-calory meal a day to 20 million children and nursing mothers in war-ravaged Europe and Asia.

Seven hundred calories is one piece of bread, a potato, a pint of milk, a bowl of soup with meat. Six-foot, white-haired, blue-eyed Maurice Pate worked with Herbert Hoover in the feeding of 15 million children after World War I. In World War II he worked on Red Cross prisoner-of-war relief.

Last year he made the survey on children's needs for Hoover's food mission. Now he is director of International Children's Emergency Fund—a United Nations organization, set up last July. All 55 nations approved it but only 29 are members. ICEF will inherit whatever UNRRA has left after it goes out of business. How much that will be won't be known till the end of 1947. It won't be much, for UNRRA will spend every cent it can to do as much good as it can.

The figure of 20 million children needing aid represents only part of Mr. Pate's problem. There are 40 million children under 18 years of age, including 11 million orphans and half-orphans in continental European cities.

Country children are better off. But an estimated 30 million children outside the Scandinavian countries have deficient diet. The need in India, China, the Pacific islands, is considered equally as great, though there is no possibility and no thought of raising Oriental food standards to European levels.

Cost of the International Children's Emergency Fund program is estimated at six cents a day or roughly $20 a year for each child. To feed 20 million children would cost $400 million.

POR the time being ICEF is soft-pedaling all efforts to raise money by voluntary contributions. An effort is being made to get governments to contribute instead. Half of the $400 million is expected to come in the form of supplies from countries receiving the aid. The other half would come from donor countries with food surpluses and charitable inclinations.

Some time in the near future President Truman is expected to send Congress a request for specific appropriations to support the Children's Fund, the International Refugee Organization, the UNRRA windup and other international relief activities. If and when he does, there will be complications.

To UNRRA the U. S. will contribute about 75 per cent of the $4 billion relief effort. For IRO the U. S. quota is 47 per cent of a $150 million budget, or $71 million. For the $200 million Children's Fund the U. S. quota may be between these percentages, or from $94 to $144 million. Whether Congress will appropriate any such sum is open to question in view of the new Budget Committee cuts.

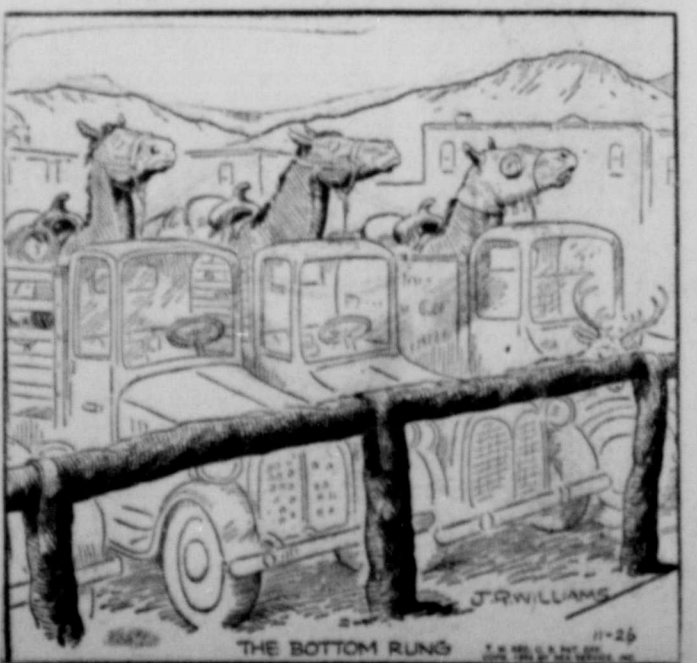

Also, the U. S. government is on record as opposed to any general international relief programs. The policy is that future relief programs shall be carried on in individual country programs.

ICEF does not plan to exclude any country from receiving its aid. Germany and Japan and Korea may be excluded because the armies of occupation are feeding the people there. But aside from those areas, any country—enemy, allied or neutral—would be entitled to ask the United Nations for aid. And certain elements in Congress do not approve the idea of furnishing more aid to Poland or other Russian satellite countries—even if they starve.

Unless the United States leads the way on official government grants for this world child-feeding, there is slight prospect that other governments will contribute heavily. The United Nations has sent invitations to all its 55 member nations asking for aid. But it may be several months before any governments can act.

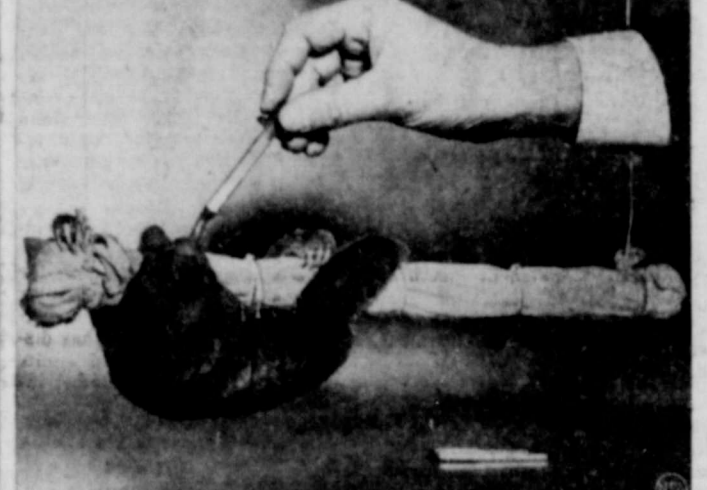

In spite of these obstacles Maurice Pate and his little staff, aided by aid from UNRRA, hope to get going in May.

THE STORY: Sherry and Mona get a cottage together in one of Hollywood's big new courts. Mona is sick and sophisticated. She works in an insurance office and is making a play for her married boss, George Brothers. Sherry begs home, wants to write, worries about Mona's interest in Brothers. She becomes friendly with the three boys who live at the end of the court. Sandro, who is French, wants to get in the movies. Antonio Tony wants to direct and Danish Kris hopes to become a producer.

HALLOWEEN night Mona was dressing to go out to a party with George Brothers when the telephone rang.

Sherry answered. It was Tony. "Are you busy?" he wanted to know. "Kris and Sandro are out and I've got the car. Would you like to do something?"

"I'd love to," Sherry told him. "Come over in about 20 minutes." And she hung up.

"I'm going to dress," she said to Mona. "We'll probably only go to a movie but I feel like dressing. Tony has the car."

Mona laughed. She said, "You hadn't better go out of walking distance in that jalopy."

George Brothers came while Sherry was changing her dress. Mona shut the bedroom door and called, "Good night, darling; have a good time."

Sherry put on a well-worn black velvet, but it had been a good dress and she always felt comfortable in it. Then she slipped on her squirrel jacket that she kept for very best.

When Tony came to the door he looked surprised and a little worried.

He said, "I just thought we might take a ride," very quickly. Sherry nodded.

"That's why I dressed so warmly," she told him.

Tony seemed relieved. He said, "You look lovely."

mustache and swear at the boy who polished his boots and laugh with lovely gay ladies and drink champagne out of satin slippers. But the war had come and Tony had been sent to school in Switzerland.

He had returned home to Vienna in the snow to find that his brothers had been killed and his father had died. The tenants on their estate were taking care of his mother. His beautiful, proud mother had been grateful for their charity.

After a while his mother had sent him to Italy. She was Italian and had relatives there. He had never seen her again. She had died a few months later.

SUDDENLY Tony stopped talking and for a moment he was still with embarrassment.

"I don't know why I told you all that!" he said angrily. "I never told anybody before. It was an awful bore. I'm sorry."

Something warm and happy flooded over Sherry. He had never told anybody before!

"I'm glad you told me!" she said.

They were at the beach now and had a hot dog. Then they sat and watched the dark water.

Sherry said, "When you're a great director, you'll know how to make people feel the things you've felt."

Tony said, "And you will write my stories!"

They made a lot of plans. Now it all seemed so easy to do, so simple to achieve. Sherry sighed a long sigh that stuck now and then in her stomach.

Tony said, "Happy?"

Sherry smiled.

She said, "I never was so happy in my life."

For a minute Tony looked as if he was going to say something. Sherry hoped that he would kiss her, but he said, "It's pretty late. I'd better take you back."

They did not talk much on the way home. Sherry had a lot of time to think. Love would be like this, she thought. That's what had happened to her! She was in love!

CITY-COUNTY UNIONS ARE GAINING FAVOR

CHICAGO (UP)— Ways to streamline government by merging city and county functions are being studied in an increasing number of localities, the American Municipal Association reports.

Miami, Fla., city commissioners have adopted a resolution asking the state legislature to take steps to consolidate the city of Miami and Dade County under a single government.

City officials in Milwaukee, Wis., Atlanta, Ga., and many other cities are calling for consolidation, not only to increase efficiency of government services, but to annex adjacent and unincorporated territory, and thus equalize tax burdens.

The Milwaukee common council has referred three consolidation proposals to the city attorney's office for study. Atlanta commissioners, meanwhile, are studying plans for similar city-county consolidation as a means of providing better and cheaper police, utilities and public works services.

Ogden, Utah, officials and business men also are studying advisability of a single government for Ogden and Weber County. Similar action is under study in Birmingham, Ala., where a survey has disclosed that in one county, 28 units of government operate almost independently.

Many partial city-county consolidations already have been effected, the association said. Beltingham, Wash., has approved formation of a joint health agency with the county. Louisville, Ky., and Jefferson County have a unified sewer district, and Wing County, Minn., is building a city-county airport.

City-county consolidation has been completed by Philadelphia and New Orleans. Partial consolidation has been accomplished in Boston, New York City, Baltimore, Denver, San Francisco and St. Louis.

Plumps for Hard Money

F. E. Gimlett, 62-year-old prospector known in Colorado's mining districts as "The Hermit," is pictured on his 1947 visit to Washington, D. C., where he goes annually to talk "hard money" to Congress. This year he is upset over inflation and says the dollar that was worth 100 cents in 1880 is now worth only eight cents. He wants a return to the use of gold and silver currency.

Movie Made Of Heirens For Crime Lecture

CHICAGO (UP)— Warden Frank J. Sain of the Cook County jail has disclosed that he had 100 feet of motion pictures taken of William Heirens, 18-year-old triple slayer, while Heirens was in jail awaiting trial.

Sain disclosed he has a practice of shooting movies of other young prisoners to supplement lectures he gives at churches and high schools to forestall crime. The warden said he did not get paid for his lectures.

Heirens consented to have the pictures taken. The film shows Heirens in his cell working crossword puzzles, telling his rosary, making his bed and loafing behind the bars. Floodlights were used for clarity.

The former University of Chicago student pleaded guilty to the murder of six-year-old Suzanne Degnan and two women.

Chart Tells Gas Man Which Dogs Bite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Louisville Gas and Electric Co. meter readers aren't taking any chances with the dog-bites-man routine.
 They have taken great pains to keep up-to-date records on the type of dogs, and their viciousness if any, at the 45,000 homes which they visit.
 The gas and electric consump-tion sheet not only carries a memo on the amount of each used, but also a detailed discussion of the dog owned by the customer.
 Special markings indicate a nervous pooch, one who barks, or one that quietly takes a bite out of the trousers.
 Meter readers say the chart method has worked well, for in 1946 only 13 bites were reported.

Your Red Cross Carries On!

The one emblem that commands respect and honor the world over is the revered Red Cross—symbol of humanity and the banner under which people of every race, religion and nationality may work together in creating international goodwill and universal peace.

The Red Cross has always faced two responsibilities—one of serving our armed forces, both at home and abroad, and the other in providing aid for stricken and unfortunate civilians. Now a third responsibility has been added—assistance, advice and counsel for returned veterans.

The American Red Cross has faithfully and efficiently carried on its work since its inception in 1864. No organization ever faced a greater task than did the Red Cross during World War II. The chapter to which you subscribe assumed its full share of this burden and covered itself with glory in carrying out its assignments.

Now, in peacetime, that work goes on. The need for aid for servicemen, veterans and civilians alike never ceases. The need for funds to continue this great work never ends. Give gladly to your Red Cross.

GIVE — so your RED CROSS can carry on!

Call Meeting Of Gold Star Mothers Monday

The Gold Star Mothers Club met at the home of Mrs. Julia McCleskey Monday, March 3, for a call business meeting in which the following officers were installed: first vice-president, Mrs. J. I. m Young; second vice-president, Mrs. Julia McCleskey; Chaplain, Mrs. Clyde Bond; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Gertrude Mitchell, historian, Elsie Fousville; reporter, Mrs. J. F. Sharp; publicity, Mrs. Henson, parliamentarian, Hattie Simpson. The state motto, "Live, love, and work together", the state colors, blue, white, and gold, and the state flower, the white carnation were adopted by the local club. After the close of business, poems were read in a candle-light ceremony by Meses. Frona Ames, W. E. Norwood and Con Hazard. On the refreshment plate were star shaped sandwiches and miniature flags were used as plate favors.

Following adjournment of the meeting, all members went to the cemetery to visit the crosses of their sons.

Says Traveling Salesmen Are Safest Drivers

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., (UP)—Traveling salesmen are San Antonio's safest drivers, a report of the police department traffic bureau says.

The report adds that the most dangerous day of the week for driving is Saturday and the most perilous time is from 5 to 6 p. m., any day. Drivers in the 25 to 34 age bracket are involved in most accidents, with more men killed than women.

New Pig Latin Breaking Out

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP)—A new tone of "Pig Latin" called op-Latin is sweeping the younger set at San Antonio. In "Pig Latin," as anyone can plainly see, you simply put the first letter last and add an "a".

Mule Whip Of Long Ago Big Cottonwood Now

TYLER, Tex. (UP)—This is a short tale of how a whip for a scaldrant mule became a large tree.

Fifty years ago, the mule owner pulled a young cottonwood sprout to work over his mule. When he got home, he tossed the sprout, roots and all, away and forgot about it.

Today, the owner of the land where the sprout first fell is having trouble. The tree has grown so large that recently it had to be topped to prevent a windstorm blowing it down on nearby tourist cabins.

That isn't all, however. What used to be one tree now is two.

Diphtheria Germ Killer Is Made More Effective

CLEVELAND (UP)—Pure diphtheria toxoid, an ounce of which will protect 400,000 persons against diphtheria without "side reaction," has been isolated at the institute of pathology at Western Reserve University.

This is the second bacterial toxoid isolated in recent months at the institute—under the direction of Dr. Louis Pillemer, associate professor of immunochemistry. The toxin of tetanus also was isolated recently and crystallized at the university, and that of botulism (food poisoning) by U. S. Army chemists at Camp Detrick, Md.

Senate Hearing On Lilienthal Is Concluded

WASHINGTON — The Senate atomic energy committee today concluded its long hearings on the nomination of David E. Lilienthal to head the Federal Atomic Energy Commission.

Sen. William F. Knowland, R., Cal., acting committee chairman, said the committee would meet in closed session later today with Lilienthal and his four fellow nominees. The committee may vote on confirmation tomorrow, Knowland said.

Committee approval of all five nominees was expected. But a long and bitter fight on the Senate floor was anticipated, however, on Lilienthal's nomination.

Truman Places Wreath on Graves

MEXICO CITY — President Truman, departing from schedule at his own request, laid a wreath today on the monument to the Ninco heroes—heroic boys—a monument to the Mexican cadet corps which died to the last man in defending Chapultepec castle against an American attack in 1847.

BUT .. it isn't a joke!

If 500 cars were to hit your car at the same time ... or if you were to drive off a cliff thousands of feet high ... the impact would be equivalent to what happens when a passenger train going 60 miles an hour hits a car—and freight trains are worse!
