28TH YEAR

PRICE FIVE CENTS No. 234

U. S. Britain For Federalized Germany

Well...
I Dunno,
But...

The coronation ceremonies for the queen of Ranger Junior College were very beautifully executed Thursday night and the precision and dignity with which students conducted themselves was a credit to them and to those who directed the performance.

It seems that each year the ceremony grows in size and charm.

Now the girls were all lovely in their coronation dresses and made a lovely sight when all grouped together at the throne. But, we will have to give the young men their full share of credit, too. They were as proper as a fried chicken for Sunday dinner and my, how nice they all looked all dressed up in their Sunday best.

It was an occasion that justifies pride on the part of the whole town and certainly will be an outstanding memory for those that participated.

Another resident calls us to say that their dog has been poisoned and that it happened on the same day that another, about which we told you yesterday, was poisoned.

We're telling you, you better keep your prize pets out of reach. They tell us that a neighboring town recently had a serious epidemic of dog poisoning. We'd like to call your attention to the nice big papers we have had the last few days. Ten pages Thursday and eighteen pages today.

Furthermore we commend to your reading the ads in both papers. Yes, sir, you won't find a better shopping town anywhere around and the merchants that advertise in the Times have the wares, the best that can be bought.

Too, they got a right nice newspaper in which to advertise their wares.

Now, now, no chiding. You know it's the truth and we've got a right to brag a little.

Ranger man speaking here Thursday sure hit the nail on the head when he complained at the violation of city ordinances with reference to keeping livestock within the city limits and the violations of the sewage connections ordinances.

A man interested in the improvement of health and beautification programs in Ranger, recently took us on a tour to point out some of the unsightly cow and horse lots in Ranger and the places where houses have been moved in and no sewage connections set up.

We're for the people buying homes where they can and moving them in here but not to the sacrifice of the health and cleanliness of the community.

Too, we can't blame citizens for being irate about livestock pens in town. At the best, if kept as clean as possible, they're unpleasant and unsightly to have within a city and persons who make an effort to keep their area of town clean and attractive, have a right to complain at flagrant violations of their efforts.

Dr. P. M. Kuykendall, in speaking at a recent clean-up meeting, stressed the necessity of the elimination of flies and other pests and insects as a health measure.

While he didn't specifically mention what draws the flies, etc., it's common knowledge that a cow or horse lot is a prime breeding spot for the pests and insects that carry disease.

It's time to act and not until the horse is out to lock...

Waiting For Mickey

Peggy Edmister, 3, of South Lancaster, Mass., aided by one of her tame white mice attempts to lure from hiding, "Mickey", the fabulous singing mouse, which according to Peggy's mother, Mrs. Ruel M. Edmister, serenades the family quite often. The mouse supposedly sings in a canary like trill and a musician who has heard him claims he has a range of three to five notes. "Mickey" is also quite tame, and often follows the children about from room to room. (NEA Telephoto).

Lighting effects were managed by Jermoe Ready and Noble Robertson. The hospitality committee for the occasion was composed of Dean and Mrs. G. B. Rusk and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lovelace.

COVINGTON WITHDRAWS FROM RACE

Glynn Covington who had announced his candidacy for the position of street commissioner of Ranger, today issued the following notice of his withdrawal from the race.

"Due to the fact that I was not completely aware of the laws covered in State Statutes Section 432 to 435 inclusive when I announced for the office of City Street Commissioner, and after a thorough check into the above mentioned laws, I consider it to the best interest of myself and my family to withdraw from the City Election.

I sincerely appreciate the interest and support that I have been given by the people of Ranger, and consider that it has been well worth my time and effort to have met and talked with the people that I have. I will make an effort to talk with all of you and further explain why I do not consider it advisable to continue as a candidate for Street Commissioner at this time."

Reads His Own Paper And Gets His Coat Back

HOLDREDGE, Neb. (UP)—Lamonte Lundstrom publisher of the Holdrege Daily Citizen, has been convinced that he should read the classified ads in his paper more carefully.

Lundstrom had scanned the paper as usual, but a certain ad didn't strike a responsive chord until he noticed the coat he had been wearing for three days was tight around the shoulders.

Lundstrom read the paper again. He found the ad in which Don Leasked the person who changed coats with him by mistake at the Hotel Dale please to get in touch with him.

Lundstrom, a bit-red-faced, exchanged coats and repaid Lee for the cost of the ad.

Howard Oliver Speaks On Civic Pride, Safety

Howard Oliver was in charge of the program at the regular meeting of the Lions Club at noon Thursday and spoke on traffic safety and civic pride.

Oliver stressed the need for leadership and cooperation in both fields. He advocated a change in the parking system in Ranger to forbid unusually long vehicles, such as trucks, on Main street as a safety measure. Furthermore he pointed out that Highway 80 is only 80 feet wide and that buildings placed too close to the highway line obstruct the view of motorists and advocated the building of structures farther back from the line. He stated that the condition of drainage ditches along the highways is unsightly and should be attended to during the clean-up campaign. In speaking of the clean-up campaign he stated that people can be classed in two classes, those that use alibis and those that get things done. He urged that all of Ranger be in the latter class during the campaign.

The next meeting of the club will be the joint meeting next week with the Rotary Club and the next week, J. Floyd Killingsworth will be in charge of the program.

House Committee Passes Income Tax Cut Bill

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House ways and means committee today approved legislation providing for 20 to 30 per cent income tax cuts for almost 50,000,000 taxpayers in this calendar year.

The vote was 16 to 9. One Democrat joined with the 15 Republicans on the committee in voting for the bill.

The bill provides for a cut of 30 per cent for persons with a taxable income of $1,000 or less. The cut is 20 per cent for persons with a taxable income from $1,000 to $302,000. Above $302,000 it ranges from 10.5 to 19 per cent. There are only a few thousand persons in the last category.

Department Asks Big Business To Cut Prices

WASHINGTON — The commerce department's high command is urging big business to take a vigorous lead in cutting prices, it was learned today.

Secretary W. Averell Harriman and Undersecretary William G. Foster, who regard the department as a "general staff" for American business, are warning industrialists that the nation's present price structure is "distorted" and are calling for "price moderation."

PLAN IS IN OPPOSITION TO RUSSIAN SUGGESTIONS

MOSCOW—The United States and Britain presented to the Big Four today a plan for a federalized Germany, patterned somewhat after the American constitutional plan, in direct opposition to Russia's demands for a strongly centralized Reich.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin sharply attacked Soviet proposals for a centralized Germany, asserting that centralization might lay the foundation for some future Adolf Hitler once again to seize control of the German state.

Marshall told the council of ministers bluntly that the United States would insist upon a German governmental structure which would provide "effective guarantees for the safeguarding of fundamental freedoms in all parts of Germany."

The Anglo-American plan for a federated Germany, headed by a president and with a bicameral legislature and supreme court, roughly on the American plan, was submitted to the Big Four by Bevin.

Marshall immediately supported the Bevin plan but Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov who wants a strong central government with a minimum of power left to the states did not speak. He said he would reserve his presentation for a couple of days.

Marshall demanded that the process of establishing a German government get underway "immediately" so that a German state which could carry out the peace treaty now being drafted could be brought into being.

The Ministers unanimously agreed to invite representatives of Austria to Moscow so, as Marshall said, "the council can make every effort to complete the Austrian treaty here."

NATIONAL ADMIRATION POLL

One of the most interesting questions in Dr. George Gallup's whole bag of quizzes is: "What person living today in any part of the world do you admire most?" And American public opinion, always unpredictable, is never more baffling than when it provides the answer.

This is not meant as any reflection on Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who has been the winner in the last two years. It is simply that most of us, if asked to give a guess as to America's No. 1 pin-up boy without Doctor Gallup's aid, would probably come up with a different answer.

General MacArthur's popularity assets are not hard to find. His role in the war was unmatched for sustained drama. The long struggle back from defeat, accomplished with consummate skill against tremendous odds, was something to fire the imagination. And certainly the general's colorful personality and handsome presence do not detract.

Yet General MacArthur has not set foot on continental American soil in many years.

So it must be that Americans' gratitude and admiration are less fickle than we might sometimes suppose. This conclusion is borne out by the fact that for the second straight year Gen. Dwight Eisenhower took second place in the poll.

But what of the other names in the top ten on the Gallup list? They are Winston Churchill, Harry S. Truman, George C. Marshall, Eleanor Roosevelt, James Byrnes, Pope Pius XII, Sister Kenny, and Thomas E. Dewey, in that order.

Last year Mr. Churchill was in fifth place, behind President Truman and Mrs. Roosevelt. Now, a year farther removed from Britain's highest office and the object of increased criticism at home, his American popularity has increased.

Last year Henry A. Wallace and Harold Stassen were among the top ten. Have Americans grown more conservative in the past 12 months? Before an answer is made it should also be noted that Herbert Hoover, who held sixth place on last year's list, is now missing.

There are other items of interest. Last year Mr. Byrnes, as Secretary of State, was in tenth place. Now retired, he is in seventh, ahead of Pope Pius.

The current appearance of General Marshall's name is not hard to explain. But why Sister Kenny? She did nothing so new and spectacular in 1946 as to account for this sudden notice. Maybe she should thank Rosalind Russell and Hollywood for her present eminence in the public esteem.

We don't know what all this proves. About the only thing we're sure of is that we made a mistake above in speaking about "popularity." Popularity and admiration aren't the same thing. General MacArthur might have trouble in outdrawing Bob Hope in the same town on the same night.

Perhaps the chief difference is that the popular heroes get rich, while the admired heroes get to paste Gallup Poll clippings in their scrapbooks.

SPORTS

MIAMI, Fla.—(NEA)—Armed should have run from Florida to southern California.

The golden gelding would have gotten there faster than the airplane, and the gallop would amount to just about the sort of handicap to which his opponents in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap were entitled.

Armed didn't wait until they put him in the plane to fly. The iron horse flew, clipping a fifth of a second from the Hialeah mile-and-a-quarter track record five-stood for 11 years in winning his second consecutive $50,000 Widener in 2:01 3/5. Had he been the least bit pressed the brown six-year-old son of Bull Lea-Armful easily would have cut two-fifths of a second more off the old mark in prevailing for the fourth straight time this year.

What made the race and time even more remarkable was that Armed was under Doug Dodson's double wrap all the way. The Calumet Farm's average-sized charger took the lead at the five-eighths pole despite the fact that he was under firm restraint. Dodson looked back at the head of the stretch and approaching the finish. Although the gray Argentinian, Taton, was attempting to make a run at Armed, there was no danger, so the jockey merely sat still winning by three lengths.

It is Armed virtually loafing off with big purses while so favorably weighted that prompted the introduction in the California legislature of a bill that if passed would prohibit the flight of horses into the Golden State in quest of stakes.

Miami-owned Lets Dance flew from Hialeah to Santa Anita, won two races, one of which was the $50,000 San Pasquel, and flew right back again.

And now Armed.

There is no question, however, but that Armed is one of the all-time greats. Veteran observers now say "best since Count Fleet."

Only owner Warren Wright and general manager Ben Jones profess to not agree that he is superior to Whirlaway, which made mistakes and had to be in the hood.

Winning 28 out of 44 and being out of the money only five times, Armed, gelded at two so he would fill out, has done everything asked of him outside of demonstrating his worth over distances longer than a mile-and-a-quarter, something everybody knows he could do. All he requires is the opportunity. He is a sprinter that can go a route on any kind of a track, and you get his best every trip.

Although Mrs. Wright's inspiration for the name was The Dam Armful, Armed gives World War II a great horse, just as Man of War associated World War I with one.
