Truman Urges Price Cuts, Aid To Hungry

Well... G. Dunno, But...
Practically every week in the calendar is designated as a special week for some cause and while some of them may be more or less passive, next week has been designated for two worthy causes—National Employ the Physically Handicapped week and Fire Prevention week.

Some of the world's greatest geniuses have been handicapped people and their contributions in the fields of education, science, literature and the fine arts are still our most treasured assets. Among such people can be listed Charles Steinmetz, Ludwig Von Beethoven, Thomas A. Edison, Sarah Bernhardt, John Milton, Helen Keller, Lord Nelson, Lord Halifax and Robert Louis Stevenson.

These people are proof of the productive ability of handicapped persons. In our own experiences, each of us has seen some physically handicapped person that was a success and an inspiration to those about them.

So if the opportunity to employ a handicapped person comes your way, remember you may be facing a genius and an opportunity to realize great results by employing him or her.

According to surveys the following facts have been brought out, handicapped workers are good producers, safe workers, they stand on the job and are not handicapped when placed in the right jobs.

As for Fire Prevention week, the public is pretty well aware of the education of the public that has been brought about by material distributed during this week. Insurance statistics show the favorable results of educating the people on matters of fire prevention and it's to our own interests to give attention to efforts in this direction.

Incidentally, speaking of worthwhile causes, the Band Parents Club is sponsoring a campaign to develop self confidence in band members and at the same time earn funds with which to build up the band's equipment.

They are putting on a magazine selling campaign and have designated band members as salesmen. So if a boy or girl knocks at your door to offer you the best magazines of the day on the subscription plan, don't say no until you've heard his story out.

The buttons were flying this morning. The reason, the Jaycees got a real nice write-up in RANCH ROMANCES, a magazine dealing with western stories and news of the rodeo and ranching world.

In a section called "Out of the Chutes" there's an article about the Jaycees and their rodeos. The author refers to the Jaycees in Ranger, Texas as an "up-and-coming outfit" and told about how in five months they built the $30,000 rodeo arena and two full-time shows that they have staged here.

Winners of this year's rodeo were also listed.

No sir, we don't blame those Jaycees for having swelled chests.

We ain't predicting who's gonna win the ball games this weekend, but our fingers will sure be crossed for the Bulldogs and the Rangers. They may not need that effort, but we have a feeling that the future of the two teams might, more or less, be predicted on the outcome of these two games.

Another win for the Bulldogs would make their position a little stronger and a third straight victory for the Rangers will put them away up there in our book.

The Bulldogs will play Overton here on Friday night and the Rangers will play Texas Military College at Terrell on Thursday night.

U. S., RUSSIA HOLD OUT FOR OWN NOMINEES

UNITED NATIONS HALL, Flushing, N. Y.—The United States and the Soviet Union today maintained a bitter deadlock over election of a successor to Poland on the United Nations Security Council and the Assembly failed in an eighth and ninth try to choose between India and the Soviet.

The assembly members, locked in the all-out struggle between the UN's greatest powers, disclosed in the first ballot after an overnight recess that they had been no break on either side.

The eighth ballot gave the Soviet Ukraine 31 votes and India 23—virtually the same division which prevailed throughout seven inconclusive ballots yesterday.

The ninth ballot was about the same—Ukraine 32 votes, India 24 votes.

The issue is—what nation shall succeed pro-Russian Poland which has represented Eastern Europe and the Slav bloc on the Security Council for two years and has been Russia's sole supporter in innumerable 9 to 2 votes.

The Russians want the Ukraine. It is an integral part of the Soviet Union but has a separate UN delegation with a vote of its own.

The Americans, although split on the issue, oppose the Ukraine and would have accepted only Czechoslovakia from Eastern Europe.

The Czechs were eliminated on the first ballot and the U. S. now is supporting India to take what the Soviets consider an Eastern European seat.

Forest fires threaten gas recycling plant.

CONROE, Tex.—Fire fighters battling the raging forest blazes in four Southeast Texas counties today faced a new threat as a sudden fire swept as close as 100 yards to a huge petroleum installation in the rich Conroe oil field.

Scouters Pow Wow To Be In Eastland Mon.

A Scouters Pow Wow will be held in Eastland Park next Monday night October 6th. The meeting will start with a supper at 7:15 p. m. Scouters of Eastland and Stephens counties will be in attendance. Major Mayall, Air Scout Liaison Officer for Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico will be present and give talks.

G. N. Quiri Scout Executive from Brownwood will direct a discussion on Fall and Winter programs as they relate to the various units in Scouting. Local Scouters will be in attendance headed by H. C. Henderson District Commissioner for Ranger.

Well Digger Expects Almost Anything

BOULDER CITY, Nev. (UP)—If you're digging an oil well, you might as well keep your eyes open while you're at it.

That's the philosophy of Ark Klinger, a veteran driller who has just started sinking a well in the railroad pass south of here.

Geologists have told him that the land on which he is drilling lies on a fault and there is a good possibility of oil being somewhere underneath.

However, Klinger is taking no chances.

"If I don't get oil," says he, "I might get water, and I intend to pan the drillings and look for minerals, including gold."

Demonstration Too Vivid
BOSTON (UP)—A neighbor's boy was showing 11-year-old Joan Rose of Roxbury how Ted Williams swings when he hits a home run. Joan, watching too closely, was struck by the bat and suffered a broken nose.

ED MAHER TO HONOR SONS ON OCTOBER 6

Ed Maher of Dallas, formerly of Ranger, has issued invitations to an all day program of entertainment honoring his two sons who have recently become authorized Ford dealers. Mr. Maher was formerly associated with Morris Leveille in the Ford business in Ranger and Mr. Leveille is among those invited to attend the celebration which will be on October 6.

The new Ford firm is known as Maher Brothers and Thomas H. Maher is president and Louis J. Maher vice-president. Thomas H. Maher is the first graduate of a recent Ford Motor Company school for dealers' sons to get a dealership of his own. His classmates will come from all over the country to be present at the celebration in honor of him and his brother.

In addition to all the Ford dealers in this territory, Ed Maher has invited Ford Factory officials, regional and branch managers to attend. Also, authorized Ford motor rebuilders from all over America have been invited to come and see Maher's new motor rebuilding division.

Josh Lee, vice-chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board and nationally-known speaker, will be the principle speaker at a banquet which will climax the all-day program. Other events on the agenda include a breakfast, inspection of the Maher motor rebuilding plant, a buffet luncheon and cocktail party.

Rustic Carmel Decides To Put Down Sidewalks

CARMEL, Cal. (UP)—Carmel-by-the-Sea, which has preserved its reputation as a "quaint village" despite the inroads of thousands of tourists, artists and servicemen, is considering—with misgivings—improving walking conditions for its citizens and visitors.

Members of the Carmel planning commission have agreed that unpaved, narrow streets are not a good place for persons on foot. But they shied at the ugly word "sidewalks."

Now the commission has suggested tactfully to the city council that "footpaths" might be installed, provided "every effort be made to retain the rustic atmosphere" of the community.

Back In Form
NEW CUMBERLAND, Pa. (UP)—Maj. Harry Rothbauer, in his first round of golf after he returned from army of occupation duty, scored a 190 yard hole-in-one. It was the second such shot in the history of the West Shore Country Club.

CITY ORDERS ELECTION ON OCTOBER 18

An election to fill the vacancy on the city commission created by the resignation of L. L. Bruce as finance commissioner, has been called for Saturday, October 18, and Dr. Bob Hodges has been named plection judge.

The election was called at the meeting of the commission Tuesday night and at the same meeting it was announced that the application for federal aid for improving Ranger's airport has been signed and mailed the proper authorities.

The city secretary will accept and file the name of any person wishing to run for the place of finance commissioner and all names must be filed six days before the election. This gives 12 days in which to file for the election, the deadline falling on Saturday, October 11.

Following is the resolution calling for the election:

A RESOLUTION ORDERING AN ELECTION BE HELD WITHIN THE CITY OF RANGER, TEXAS, FOR THE PURPOSE OF FILLING A VACANCY IN THE CITY COMMISSION.

WHEREAS, by reason of the resignation of Commissioner L. L. Bruce, there is now a vacancy in the board of Commissioners of the City of Ranger, which vacancy must, according to the provisions of the City Charter, be filled by a special election to be held within the said City of Ranger, on the 18th day of October 1947, at which election there shall be elected a Commissioner to fill said vacancy, and to serve throughout the unexpired portion of the term.

SAID election shall be held at the City Hall, and the following named person is hereby appointed Judge of said election:

Presiding Judge, Dr. Bob Hodges.

Said election shall be under, and in the manner provided by the Laws of the State of Texas regulating General City Elections, as provided by Section 9, Article 5, of the Charter of the City of Ranger, Texas, adopted April 3rd, 1919.

No person shall vote at said election unless he or she is a qualified voter under the Constitution and Laws of the State of Texas, and a resident of the City of Ranger for the length of time required by law.

Notice of said election shall be posted in the place designated for holding said election, and at three public places in the City of Ranger, fifteen days prior to date of said election, and notice of said election shall be published in the Ranger Daily Times once each week until date of said election.

WITNESS my hand in my official capacity as Mayor of the City of Ranger, Texas this 30th day of September 1947.

Lee Dockery, Mayor

Johnny Puts Out To Sea But His Voyage Is Brief

NEW YORK (UP)—John Lehman, 3, built a red rubber raft on the beach near his Staten Island home and set out for the Atlantic Ocean.

As the raft was swept out by a strong ebb tide for more than a mile in lower New York Bay, bathers on nearby beaches set up an alarm. Within a half hour, two police launches, a police seaplane and three Coast Guard cutters were on the scene.

Band Club Asks Cooperation In Funds Campaign

Members of the Parents Band Club have launched a campaign designed to develop the students in the band and also to raise funds with which to buy needed equipment for the band.

With reference to the campaign the band club has issued the following statement:

To The Parents And Friends of Our School—

"As you well know, all educational opportunities are not presented in the classroom. And since the school wishes to fit the students as well as possible for a successful career, arrangements have been made with Curtis Circulation Company for the Ranger Band to put on a magazine subscription campaign. In this way, the students will meet many of the problems in today's business world. In meeting and talking to you, they will improve their self-confidence.

This type of progress has been decided upon since, after graduation, the greater part of a person's life is tied up in selling, either selling his ability to work, or in selling a product.

Any profits received from this campaign will be used to purchase needed equipment for the Band students.

Your co-operation in making this plan a success will be appreciated."

New York Police Maintain Own Gambling Den

NEW YORK (UP)—The New York Police Academy maintains what perhaps is the only police-sponsored gambling den in the world.

It has a roulette wheel, an expensive craps table, a quarter slot machine, "bird cage", a bingo table, a wheel of fortune, and just about every other known device used for separating suckers from their money.

But the policemen do not use it for gambling. The devices are employed in given instructions to rookie police men on obtaining evidence against gamblers.

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UP)—Labeled "conscience money", a package of $4,000 in bills arrived by mail at the office of City Treasurer H. Edward Hayn. There was no further explanation for the donation.

Mrs. Roosevelt Offers To Debate Russian Minister

NEW YORK—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has challenged Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky to debate his war-mongering charges against the United States on a nation-wide radio broadcast Sunday, it was disclosed today.

The former first lady, who will answer Vishinsky's charges in the impending UN General Assembly debate, also invited Yugoslav Foreign Minister Stanoje Simic to take part. Neither has replied as yet, Miss Malvina Thompson, Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary, said.

The broadcast will be the first in a series being staged by American Broadcasting company, with Mrs. Roosevelt as moderator, to acquaint Americans with the UN. Each Sunday at 11:30 a. m., CST, Mrs. Roosevelt will discuss UN problems with two UN guests of honor.

Vishinsky has asked the assembly to indict the United States for war mongering and to recommend that all libelous and slanderous attacks affecting international relations be halted under pain of criminal punishment. Mrs. Roosevelt was picked by Secretary of State George C. Marshall to answer him in the UN debate.

Morton Valley met the Eastland B team at Eastland recently, the result being 33-0. Last week the Mustangs played Strawn at Eastland, their first conference game, Strawn winning by 26-0 score.

The probable line-up for the Hornets for Thursday night's game will be as follows:

ASKS COUNTRY TO CUT WASTE AND BUY MORE CAREFULLY

WASHINGTON—President Truman, calling on the nation to save at least 100,000,000 (M) bushels of grain by wasting less, said today "we must get prices down and help hungry people in other countries at the same time."

He spoke to the first session of the citizens food committee which met at the White House to plan voluntary food conservation measures.

Mr. Truman pointed out that the saving asked of each individual was actually very small.

"One bushel of grain saved by every American in the next few months will do the job," he said. Mr. Truman was critical of the continuing effects of increasing prices, saying—

"Failure to check price increases promptly will not only lower the American living standard, but could impair the confidence of business, and thus jeopardize the splendid record we have achieved in the maintenance of high employment, high production and general prosperity."

Mr. Truman estimated that 10 per cent of the food purchased by Americans is wasted.

"Clearly, by wasting less, American families can help significantly in feeding hungry families abroad," he said. "In addition to cutting down waste, Americans can save by being more selective in the foods they buy."

The President said that under present conditions about 470,000,000 (M) bushels of grain are the most this nation can expect to export to hungry Europe this winter.

Mr. Truman met with the citizens food committee whose chairman, Soap Manufacturer Charles Luckman, promised to announce later in the day a specific program for saving food in order to combat high prices and to main relief shipments abroad.

Expect Rent Controls To Be Extended

WASHINGTON—Extension of rent controls beyond next March 1, was considered likely today by some senators of both parties.

Sens. C. Douglass Park, R., Del., and John J. Sparkman, D., Ala., said they did not think the housing shortage would be eased enough to warrant end of rent controls on the scheduled date.

Both conceded another extension would be complicated by the provision of the present law which authorizes "voluntary" 15 per cent rent increases in leases running through 1948.

Buck said it would be necessary to make some provision to equalize the situation.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—The thing to do with Big Steel's prediction that the American shortage of steel products will be all over in a couple of years, is to file it away for just that long. Then along about Labor Day, 1949, dig it up and see how right or how wrong it was.

Edson

This prediction is worth remembering because it is so like the predictions that were heard around Washington from the same source in 1940, '41 and '42. Some of the long-haired boys, visionaries and planners, were then predicting there was going to be a steel shortage and something had better be done about upping production.

But the industry fought it off. It had reached a record monthly production of six and a half million tons in October, 1940. At the end of the year, Ernest T. Weir, was saying, "There is no need to expand plant facilities." Next year (1941) we will have a capacity of 83 million tons.

Average consumption in the depression decade, 1939-40, had been 26 million tons. In 1940 it was 66 million tons. U. S. preparedness was going to take three million tons and foreign orders not more than 10 million tons additional. Weir, and others, "couldn't possibly see any shortage."

YET by September, 1941, there was a government program to increase capacity to 99 million tons a year. By June of 1942, War Production Board Boss Don Nelson was bemoaning a shortage. By February, 1943, the Senate Truman committee reported, "We will barely be able to produce sufficient steel in 1943."

The committee blamed the steel companies, WPB and the armed services for underestimating requirements and resisting expansion. The fighting stopped two years ago and the steel industry hasn't caught up with shortages yet. The steel industry leaders still say there is no need to expand capacity, because they hope to catch up in two years more.

The scene in Washington at which this doctrine of non-expansion was revealed is one to remember. Seated around a table before Pennsylvania Republican Sen. Edward A. Martin's Small Business sub-committee to investigate the steel shortage were 13 of the nation's biggest steel makers.

Senator Martin made a speech about how he was all for free enterprise. He repeated that idea half a dozen times. None of the steel masters differed with him on that. An observer might have expected that, in this great showing of the benefits of free enterprise, there would be some manifestation of intense business rivalry, of the cut-throat competition that is supposed to, beat down prices and give the consumer what he wants. But all was brotherly love and 100 per cent agreement on everything. Just leave it to "business as usual" and everything would be all right.

SENATORS and other ordinary citizens have no business disputing the word of these experts, however. Maybe they're right. But Henry J. Kaiser has been in Washington, preaching an entirely different doctrine. His line is that America doesn't have enough iron and steel producing capacity; that the country is still growing; that the shortage of steel isn't going to be met for four or five years; that U. S. steel production capacity has increased an average of 1,600,000 tons a year ever since 1900 and it should keep on growing. Instead, of 95 million tons capacity—with four million tons capacity abandoned after the war—American steel production today, says Kaiser, should be 120 million tons!

The doctrine that Kaiser preaches is the doctrine of a still-growing America with a constantly expanding economy under full employment. The doctrine that the other 13 steel masters preached in the Senate was the doctrine of fear—fear of a depression, fear of over-expansion, the economics of scarcity, of high prices, of selling America short.

It will be interesting to dig up this subject again—come 1949—to see who was right. Bull Henry Kaiser or the 13 Big Bears.

SPORTS

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Ernie Zaleski is lost to Notre Dame for the season. Some doubt that young Zaleski, considered one of the finest back-field prospects the Irish have ever had, will ever get an opportunity to live up to his high school reputation.

Zaleski injured his knee while attracting college scouts to prep games, as he performed for South Bend's Washington High, but missed only one game because of it.

Zaleski underwent an operation on the knee at the Mayo Clinic last January, took more special exercises throughout the summer in hope of strengthening it, but final examination revealed there would be danger of permanent injury if he played this fall.

SCOUTS assigned to Notre Dame games in South Bend used to get there the night before to see high schooler Zaleski.

Frank Leahy planned to use South Bend's west sider as his number one offensive running threat.

Sports editor Jim Costin of South Bend recalls that in missing an entire season of play because of a knee injury, Zaleski, by an unusual coincidence, is following in the footsteps of his coach. Leahy injured a knee shortly before the opening of the 1930 season, did not appear all fall. He had been a regular tackle on the unbeaten 1929 team.

"Observers now believe Terry Brennan will start at left half," he reports. "Bob Livingstone, regular left half on the 1942 team before he was called by the Army, may regain his old form."

"The head coach said he would probably use Terry Brennan in a trial at that spot, too."

The Art of Finding Oil

DAN KRALIS
Lone Star Gas Company
(One of a series)

In the Eastland, Texas area, most of the commercial oil and gas pools were formed during Pennsylvanian time 250 million years ago. The animal and plant fossils indicate the climate was warm and damp. The area was a swampy, coastline with considerable fluctuation in sea level, ever changing river deltas, lagoons, and other shallow water features.

Fast growing spore-bearing trees, many types of ferns, scouring rushes, and tangled undergrowth spread over the land.

Insects ruled the world during Pennsylvanian time. Dragon flies with wing spreads of 30 inches, cockroaches four inches long, centipedes a foot long, and other insects of great size such as scorpions, spiders, and beetles were in prolific abundance.

In the sea close to shore lived marine animals such as fusulines, sea-urchins, corals, pelecypods, bryozoa, cephalopods, and brachiopods.

In the Pennsylvanian time the first known reptiles appeared, here eyed animals existed, and insects appeared. It is the greatest coal bearing period and an important oil and gas period.

Heartsease

Reverie At Eventide
There comes a time to each of us when we must stop our daily tasks, our everyday existence, and to the routine of our lives to commune with ourselves.

We do this unexpectedly, a mood perhaps brought on by the stress of things too great for us to bear without rest. The touch of hidden sadness in all of us must have its way sometimes and at such times, it is good to pause voluntarily and taste the infinite blessings of those spiritual qualities aroused in us by the knowledge that we need help from some higher source than we, as human beings, possess.

That help may come from a few quiet moments in one of God's temples built by man; the church, or it may come from a walk in the woods, where birds, beasts, flowers, and trees speak eloquently of God. It may be that some dear memory may sustain us at this time, or if we are fortunate, perhaps someone we have learned to call our friend may send the benediction needed in our hearts.

Each person is comforted by what he is himself, or by what he hopes to be, or what he might have been, or by events and incidents that slip into his being almost before he is aware. We are all seeking the touch of a human hand, and a word of kindness, before we catch our breath and go on our respective ways. And how good it is, as we pick up our trials and tribulations, our heartaches and our joys, to have burned into our hearts and minds the memory of these words:

"Your friendship is a candle burning here. It glows upon my books, it sheds a light. Upon familiar walls that I hold dear, It makes my darkness bright.

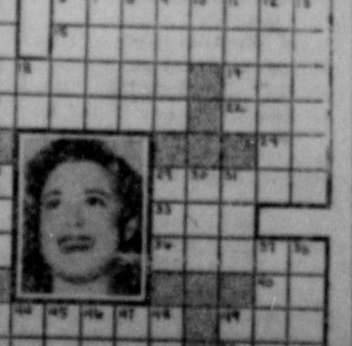

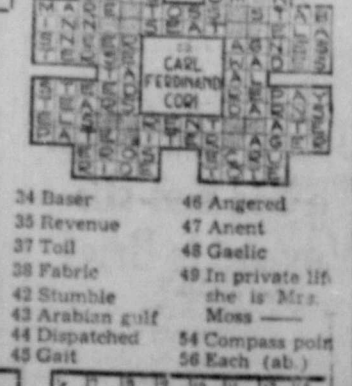

"Your friendship is alive within my room, A constant flame that burns away all doubt, know my world will never yield

Answer to Previous Puzzle

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION By Elizabeth Seifert

THE STORY: Andrew takes Susan dancing, tries to kiss her good night. When she refuses, he accuses her of being in love with Malcolm Glenn. Susan desires this but doesn't tell Andrew she's engaged to Martin.

ANDREW was falling in love with Susan Perry, a fact which somewhat obscured his usual clear judgment. Had this not been the case, he would not have hoped ever that she took his attentions seriously because of the way she remained calm before the gossip she must have heard about his favors to Huppert.

Andrew was the sort of man to speak flatteringly to any woman. He had much to gain from a friendly attitude on Huppert's part. It was second nature for him to polish the apple whenever the chance occurred. So he said outrageous things to Huppert, called her Sweetheart most of the time, gave her small gifts—a pair of red gloves to match a red hat he made fun of, a box of hoarhound the day she was speechless with laryngitis, a bouquet of dandelions picked from the terrace of the Hospital lawn. He flattered her boldly, and beyond all reason, Huppert lapped up his extravagant praise as a kitten laps cream.

The week after his rebuff from Susan, Andrew invited Miss Huppert to have dinner with him at Angelotti's. "It must be good. It's out of bounds for the students."

"It's good," Huppert assured him. They discovered that the place was crowded with students. "We're the blindest people you ever knew," she warned Andrew.

"I hope they're blind, too," he grinned. "It won't help my reputation any to have it told I was here with you."

"What's the matter with me?" she demanded.

"Nothing but your hat," he retorted. "Huppert, why do you wear coy hats?"

SHE leaned toward him; she had had a few drinks. Her full bosom bulged above the sequin yoke of her black dress. Her face was carefully made up, the lips arched into a perfect cupid's bow; her hair was curled intricately.

"Susan," she said carefully, "when a girl spends her days in a uniform and a little starched cap, she blossoms any time and anywhere she gets a chance."

The lighting was dim; closely twined figures danced to the music of a small orchestra enthroned at the end of the room. The food was good, and drink plentiful. Huppert talked happily to Andrew about hospital gossip, completely covering both sides of the question of whether they'd take a girl intern in O.B. next year.

"A woman really should not try to be a doctor," Huppert said solemnly. "Plenty of other fields for her in the profession. Nothing wrong with nursing, is there?" Her round blue eyes challenged him.

"Not the way you do it, Sweetheart," he murmured. "Not the way anybody does it!" she declared. "I don't hear any complaints from you about Susan Perry. Look, Doc, you don't like her better in you do me, do you?"

"I'm here tonight with you," Andrew pointed out.

"Yeah, I know. I coulda told you you wouldn't get anywhere with her."

"You mean I'm not attractive?" "You're wonderful, Doc. But Susan—didn't you know she is engaged?"

"Well, she doesn't wear a ring, but I guess you would say she and Martin Glenn have an understanding."

Andrew's Adam's apple slid up his throat, and down. Again he felt that hot resentment against Martin. The devil, he'd not guessed. What a thing for him to miss what a chance—And he'd been searching for Glenn's vulnerable spot. Of all the bungling... So that was why he'd got nowhere with Susan?

"I'd have said her yes for Martin's brother," said Andrew, carefully. He watched Huppert over the rim of his glass. "In fact, I did say that to Susan."

Miss Huppert giggled. "Oh, you didn't!"

"I did. I really thought she was in love with him."

"What did she say?" "Oh, something about worshipping the ground he walked on, but in a pure sort of way."

Huppert chuckled. "She is—devoted to Dr. Malcolm. I'll grant that. In fact, it's pretty scandalous, that devotion. When he spends the night at the Hospital, as he does sometimes—he has a bedroom in his office suite—only Miss Perry can go to his room. I'm sure, but she faces me down on that point."

"I thought you were smarter than that, Huppert," Andrew drawled, watching her face.

His remark angered her. An ugly flush spread over her cheeks. "I'll show 'em who's smart," she muttered.

"You want to be careful," Andrew counseled. "The Acting Chief can always get a new Supa. Better wait till the new Chief is appointed—"

"Why wait, if they appoint Glenn?" "But—they might not appoint him."

She narrowed her eyes, seeking to read his meaning.

"If he were going to be Chief, I'd think he'd be that already, wouldn't you?"

"Well—Pop's still alive." "Just?"

"He's smarter than you think, Doc. He stays in his room, but he knows everything that goes on in the Lair. You'd better count on that," Huppert warned him.

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION

By Elizabeth Seifert. Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Andrew takes out Miss Huggert, the head nurse. She tells him that in exchange for having Andrew in his house, she will not have to resign (his belief).

Doc is just about the right guy. Dr. Woodward's face was intent and interested. "He is the right guy, Jerry. You're admiring a man who richly deserves admiration. But, good heavens, idealism isn't enough to make a man go through the hell of studying medicine—if his heart isn't in the thing." He shook his head ruefully. "I know darned well I'd not go through it all again."

XVI
NANCY had once told Andrew that Sunday afternoon was, by custom, open house in the Glenn walk and steps which led to the Glenn front door and rang the bell. Jerry, whose leg was almost all right again, opened the door for him, yelling at Mac to get down. "How are you, Jerry?" Andrew said cordially, going in, laying a flat package upon the table, hugging his top coat upon the rack, and smoothing his hair with his big hand. Jerry led the way to the fire-lit living room where he seemed to be alone. Books were open about a deep white chair. "Histology," he explained warily. Andrew sank into the cushions of the soft couch. He reached for one of Jerry's thick books, turned the pages curiously. He lifted a quizzical eyebrow, drew down his flaccid mouth in mock dismay. "I'm glad I'm not boring this stuff," he told the young man. Jerry ran a distracted hand through his light hair. "Boring is just what I have to do," he admitted. "There are times when I'm pretty sure I'll never turn into a born doctor."

What are you studying medicine for, if you've that notion? Jerry shrugged. "Oh-h, I've had medicine ahead of me ever since I can remember. I suppose it is because Doc's a surgeon, and—this may sound soft—but to me

"That, my dear, is what I mean. You're too open, too frank, in your adoration of him. Ask your brother; he'll tell you it isn't clever for a girl to let a man be too sure of her."

"Jerry!" said Nikki scornfully. "What does he know about girls?" Then she turned troubled, wide eyes again to Andrew. "Are you serious?" she asked softly.

"Quite serious," he assured young Lieutenant, and as great a matrimonial catch as he must be, you should be more subtle, my dear." Andrew chuckled. "You may not be a jilt yourself, but you must know how deadly a jilt can be."

Nikki drew back in horror. "I wouldn't be one!" she cried. "You don't need to be one. All that's necessary is to be a probable one. The sort of woman a man can't be sure of, an exciting sort of girl who must be courted, won and kept, one always in danger of slipping away from the man. Try to be subtle with your Brian, Nikki. He'll be a lot happier—take my word for it!"

She hit at the end of a red-tipped finger. "Subtle," she repeated. Then she looked up brightly. "I'm sort of dumb," she confessed gaily.

"Who's calling my child dumb?" Nancy's voice preceded her through the dining room and study. She had come into the house from the back door.

Andrew got swiftly to his feet, went to meet her, both hands outstretched. "Ah," he cried, "the lady of the house!"

"Are you selling vacuum cleaners?" Nancy laughed, dragging down upon the flowered love-seat, Andrew sitting beside her.

"No," he said deeply, "but I did come to see you."

"Haven't the children done right by you?"

"Very right. You're still the lady of the house, and I'm glad you've come home."

Nancy's cheeks were pink. It was flattering to have him turn his attention so obviously from Nikki to her, to be so very glad to see her.

Gives Up Needle He Sawallowed 30 Years Ago

FORT WORTH, Tex., (UP)—Edward Moroney, 38-year-old Ft. Worth man, may not be a sword swallower, but he did a good imitation on a small scale.

And there wasn't any trick to it, like the saber-quilters you see in a circus side show. He really swallowed it—a needle, that is—and it stayed down. Something like 30 years.

A thorn in the flesh it was, too. At least that's what physicians tool kit for when they were performing an appendectomy on Moroney recently.

But when they pulled it out, they discovered it was the same needle which had caused Moroney a lot of misery when, as a youth, he had swallowed it.

He had recovered from the ill effects, however, and doctors had deemed it unnecessary to operate at the time.

Combines are used to harvest 80 per cent of the wheat, 40 per cent of the oats, 65 per cent of the barley and 50 per cent of the rye in the United States.

The Rev. Dr. A. Boylan Fitz-Gerald, right, didn't like the high cost of living and decided to do something about it. So he opened a church family market in his paragonage garage in South Orange, N. Iron Ore Shipments Near Record Peak

ST. PAUL, Minn., (UP)—The United States is apparently heading towards a record peace time use of steel this year.

Ray D. Nolan, state director of the division of lands and minerals reported that at the present rate of shipment, Minnesota may exceed the 64,000,000 tons of iron ore shipped to eastern plants from the famous Mesabi range in 1941. That was the peace-time high.

So far this year, Nolan said, ore shipments from Lake Superior docks have totalled 31,094,431 tons—compared with 19,725,233 tons shipped in a corresponding period last year.

If the present rate is maintained, he estimated that tonnage might hit 65,000,000 tons—barring unforeseen weather changes this fall which could close off the shipping season earlier than usual.

The all time peak in ore shipments came during 1942 when the nation was at war and steel plants were working overtime to take care of demands. That year the staggering total of 755,300,000 tons was mined from the Mesabi.

Dash Through Glass He Thought Wasn't There Costs

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Sixteen-year-old Charles Stasny figures now he will look twice before he mistakes a plate glass window for an open door again.

And P. M. Bush, office manager for A. C. Burton Motor Co., is pondering over ways and means to keep plate glass windows from getting walked through.

Young Stasny had deep cuts on his arms and legs, and one severed artery after making a dash through a 3 by 12 foot pane of glass that looked like it wasn't there.

But Bush said Stasny wasn't the first person to make that mistake. Several other persons before him had done the same thing.

"I guess we'll have to do something about that window," Bush said. "Put up some kind of a guard or something."
