Ukrainian Lays Greek Crisis To Greek Leader

LINKS MINISTER WITH U. S., BRITAIN IN "PLOT"

It Can't Be Done

No matter how you try, you can't throw money away at Blowing Rock, N. C. A peculiar wind, blowing up the face of the precipice, returns to your hands any light object tossed over the cliff.

By United Press
LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. — Ukrainian Foreign Minister Dmitri Manuilsky, directly confronting Greek Foreign Minister Constantinos Tsaladaris, accused him today of being the "real culprit" in the Greek crisis.

Manuilsky, the heavy-mustached old-time Soviet revolutionist, linked Tsaladaris with a "plot" by the United States and Britain to place the blame for the civil war in Greece on Yugoslavia, Albania and Greece through "casualty" and "lying testimony."

Tsaladaris sat impassively as Manuilsky, pointing to him shouted—"Mr. Tsaladaris is one of the real culprits of this situation and bears great responsibility for conditions in Greece."

He followed the main theme of the Soviet attack, charging that the United States and Great Britain were trying to "cover up" their own "illegal" intervention in Greece by blaming other countries.

Referring to recent negotiations between American and British officials in Athens and Greek officials on charges in the Greek government, Manuilsky said—"The U. S. and British intervention in Greek affairs is becoming more flagrant. They are now creating puppet Greek governments in their embassies in Athens and the American press reports such activities."

The United Nations General Assembly was paralyzed by the U. S. Soviet deadlock and long lists of nations wanting to use assembly committee meetings for propaganda statements.

Delay in getting down to real work threatened to prolong this assembly meeting long past the estimated two months duration unless drastic measures are taken quickly to limit debate and break the statements which prevent the work from proceeding on schedule.

This is the third week of this assembly and as yet not one major issue has been disposed of.

First Lady To Aid Food Saving At White House

By United Press
WASHINGTON — Mrs. Harry S. Truman is expected to take a personal hand in making White House menus conform to the President's waste-less food campaign.

White House spokesmen said they expected the first lady to have some definite ideas of the subject when she returns from her Missouri visit in two or three weeks.

For the time being, there's not much activity in the White House kitchen. With both Mrs. Truman and daughter Margaret out of town, the President is the only one eating at home.

Shoe Explodes; Asks Damages

LONDON — George Timmes charged a shoe company in a $400 damage suit today with selling him a pair of shoes with a built-in hot foot.

His lawyer explained to the court that Timmes was sitting before a pleasant coal fire when suddenly one shoe exploded. The shoe company's attorney admitted that the shoe had a celluloid lining.

The court heard the arguments and took the case under consideration.

The states of Washington, New York, Virginia and Pennsylvania grow more than half of the apples produced in the country.

Boy Questioned In Chicago Slaying

James Hartmann, 15-year-old son of a Chicago bartender, points over hedge to spot where knife attack took place in a parking lot as he re-enacts the killing of Mrs. Gracelyn Bush. James, reportedly confessed to police that he was also responsible for an attack on Mrs. Mary Clausen who was attacked in her apartment near the parking lot. (NEA Telephoto).

AIR RESCUE SERVICE SUGGESTS DISASTERS CAN BE LESSENER

By Ted Morelo
MECHORD FIELD, Wash. (U. I.) — Aircraft tracing, search and rescue officials responsible for the Pacific Northwest, "ruggedest flying territory in the United States" have appealed to private pilots to file flight plans with the Civil Aeronautics Authority for their own protection.

Capt. Robert H. Masonheimer, air rescue service squadron commander here, termed a flight plan "the best insurance if anything goes wrong." The unit engages in dozens of search and rescue missions annually for civilian planes which crash in the jagged, towering mountain ranges of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and British Columbia.

It was Col. Richard T. Knight, national commander of Army air rescue service, who called the Mechord Field area of responsibility "the toughest of any in the continental United States" because of prolonged bad weather, broken terrain and sparse population.

CLAIM EAST TEXAS FIRE SITUATION IS CONTROLLED

By United Press
CONROE, Tex. — State foresters who left their regular stations to join forces at Conroe to fight hundreds of forest fires over five East Texas counties will leave the area this weekend, barring any sudden new outbreaks.

"We plan to leave a few foresters in Hardin, Polk and Taylor counties where a few fires have broken out, but the situation is under control," said J. O. Burnside, chief of fire control for the Texas Forestry Service.

Most of the 40 fires in five counties last night were out today as rapid mopping up operations were pushed to completion over the 2,000,000 acre area of lush pine land.

The fires, mostly of incendiary origin, started Sept. 22, since over the vast expanse of forest.

Officer Faces Last Straw In Housing Troubles

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP) — It's one housing problem after another for First Lt. James Gallagher.

He was faced with a new one recently, after he thought he had solved all problems by finding a "home sweet home" for his wife, his child and his pets.

But Nixie, his pet female Cocker Spaniel, had multiplied the problem fivefold, and apartment rules are against having pets on the immediate premises.

Gallagher built a doghouse about 100 yards from the apartment building, but Nixie came scratching on his door at 2 o'clock in the morning. She refused to return to her allotted quarters and her five progeny.

Approaching the doghouse, he determined the cause of the commotion. Three skunks—the stinkers—were trying to move in and evict the pups.

The skunks fled in the darkness, leaving the pups physically unharmed—but what had happened to them shouldn't have happened to a dog.

Gallagher's problem now is getting Nixie to return to the doghouse with her five pups.

Woman Wrangler Bosses Dude Ranch Cowhands

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP) — Rodeo queen Norine Scruggs shrugged off the guffaws of southern Nevada cowpokes to take on a man-sized job bossing the cowhands at a resort hotel here.

She bosses a hardbitten crew of cowhands, but doesn't try to sidestep any of the hard work.

Her daily routine includes saddling horses for the dudes, hitching teams to old-time rigs for Easterners to ride about in, and teaching local riders how to rope calves.

Surprisingly enough, she started riding only two years ago and admits that she fell and was thrown "in every direction possible" before she applied for the wrangling job.

Baby's Orange Juice Delays Bandits' Holdup

NEW YORK (UP) — Two bandits who strode into a Central Park West apartment and held up the occupants looked perplexed when an 11-month-old baby began to cry.

"It's time for her orange juice," her mother, Mrs. Marketa Fayle, explained. "May I get it for her?"

"No," the bandit said. He conferred with his companion, then went into the kitchen and squeezed a glass of the juice. He carefully fed it to the baby, while Mrs. Fayle, her husband and mother-in-law looked on.

Then the bandits took jewelry and $125 in cash from the Fayles, locked them in a closet and left.

Boy's Love For His Dog Ends Runaway Trip

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Ten year old Edwin Metelits' runaway trip ended abruptly when he began to worry about the four month old puppy he left behind.

He walked off after a seedling and got as far as Camden, N. J., when he began to think of Skipper. He telephoned his mother to take care of the animal.

She kept him talking and his father notified police, who returned the boy to his parents.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

Cattle 1100. Steady. And yearlings scarce. 17.50-19.50. Stockers scarce.

Hogs 300. Butcher hogs mostly 50 lower, top 29. Sows steady, top 25-26.50.

Lions Club To Entertain Both Football Squads

At the regular meeting of the Lions Club held Thursday at noon at the Gholson Hotel, members voted to entertain both the college and high school football squads at the luncheon next week.

Pete Brasher was instructed to extend the invitation to the squads.

Howard Oliver, second vice-president, presided in the absence of the president and vice-president, and presented R. B. Thomas who told the club what the boys in the agriculture class are doing, including the fact they have two calves in the show at the State Fair of Texas opening tomorrow in Dallas.

One of the calves belongs to J. N. Carpenter and the other to the class.

S. A. Hightower was taken into the club by transfer from Graham, and Howard Douglas of Dallas was the guest of Price Crawley.

State To Restore Quaint Cloisters

EPHRATA, Pa. (UP) — The home of an unusual religious community is being restored here by the state.

The community, known as the Ephrata Cloisters, was an experiment in communal living by Seventh Day Baptists. Founded in 1732 by Conrad Beissel, a German who emigrated to Pennsylvania in search of religious freedom, the cloisters reached their high point just before the American Revolution.

The cloisters housed three semi-independent orders living in close cooperation. The brotherhood was composed of unmarried men, the sisterhood of unmarried women, and the householders of married couples.

The Saron, a dormitory for the sisterhood, still stands. The Bethania, the brotherhood, burned recently. Householders lived in small cottages.

Life in the cloisters was austere with the day divided between labor, meditation and prayer. Halls of the buildings are narrow to remind one of the straight and narrow path. The doorways are low to teach humility. Residents slept on board benches, with wooden blocks for pillows. Their diet was meager.

Although the members spent most of their time in the fields or attending to domestic duties, their culture reached a high level in music, printing and writing.

Beissel's death in 1768, a typhus fever epidemic and the fading enthusiasm of the founders, together with the practice of celibacy led to the decline of the cloisters.

92, Boasts Of Digging Twenty Bushels Of Spuds

KENDALLVILLE, Ind. (UP) — Mrs. August Haas got tired of hearing some 80-year-old and 90-year-old fellow townsters boast of going fishing at their ages.

"If these old people want to go fishing, that's their business. I planted a garden last spring, tended it and recently dug 20 bushels of potatoes from it, unassisted," she said.

Mrs. Haas is 92.

Garage Solves Problem Of Blocked Driveway

ST. LOUIS (UP) — Another parking problem has appeared to harass St. Louis motorists.

A brief warning painted on the door of a midtown garage tells of the problem confronting an automobile owner when he tries to drive from the garage only to find a stranger's car at the curb blocking his path.

The sign states simply, "If anyone blocks this driveway, the air will be let from his tires."

Some Prices Lower

Butter, egg and grain prices appeared to be starting a downward trend today but the cost of meat on-the-hoof continued to climb at the nation's big food markets.

Five Executed Today In North Carolina Prison

By United Press
RALEIGH, N. C. — A surly mountaineer who delayed his execution briefly by jamming his "death row" cell lock died with his murder companion in the North Carolina prison gas chamber today as the state executed four murderers and a rapist.

The fifth man to die was Willie Cherry, 26-year-old Negro convicted of first degree burglary and who confessed to raping a white woman near Rich Square, N. C. Cherry was pronounced dead at 11:27 A. M.

Earl O'Dear, 23, and his companion, Robert Messer, 23, died less than hour after O'Dear's last minute effort to thwart the gasings by jamming his cell lock with a wooden chunk from an ice cream spoon.

The two white men originally were scheduled to go first. But O'Dear's trick forced Warden Hugh Wilson to execute two young Negro murderers, Jethro Lampkin, 20, and Chard McCain, 21, first.

O'Dear told Wilson he jammed his cell lock in a last minute spasm of fear because "I just didn't want the guards to get me out."

Lt. Gen. Lee Is Obsolved In Abuse Charges

By United Press
WASHINGTON — The Army's high command today acknowledged some mistakes in the treatment of GI's in the Mediterranean theater—as charged by Scripps-Howard columnist Robert C. Ruark—but absolved Lt. Gen. John C. H. Lee of any "wrong intent."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, in a statement endorsed by Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall, took no disciplinary action against Lee, former Mediterranean commander who has applied for retirement.

Eisenhower's statement was based on the findings of Maj. Gen. Ira T. Wyche, Army inspector general.

Thieves Loot Plane Of Golf Equipment

WAUKESHA, Wis. (UP) — Police here had something new on their books when Maurice F. Holahan, Kankakee, Ill., reported that someone had stolen $132 in golfing equipment from his parked airplane.

He said thieves forced open a window to get into the monoplane bent the air speed indicator, damaged the radio and stole 11 golf clubs, a golf bag and 10 golf balls.

Up For Discharge

Michael Di Bartolo, the Army's most celebrated AWOL, hugs his father and mother, who came from Roxbury, Mass., to New York to take him home as soon as he gets his release from the Army. Di Bartolo, who disappeared at Cassino, then showed up two years later, claiming amnesia is being processed for discharge because it is impossible to hold a new trial on desertion charges in Italy before the December 14 deadline for the withdrawal of U. S. troops. (NEA Telephoto).

Well... I Dunno, But...

They've done it again. Those college Rangers, we mean. And the town was wreathed in smiles this morning. The good part about it is the way that ground play was clicking. Heretofore, the boys have been using their passing machine to win.

Now we know that they can do it either way.

That makes three victories to one game lost and points in the three victories total 71 to the opposing team's 32. Too, the Rangers have scored in every game even though Henderson took the best end of the deal. Also, the local boys have held two of the teams to scoreless games.

All together, the chances of the Rangers looks pretty good. Somebody said this morning that Hillsboro is pushing Henderson for conference championship. Now if we can defeat Hillsboro when that game comes up, we might finish second at least. That's pretty good for the first year of football in many years.

Little Jimmie Full, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Full, is starting his travel by air rather young but admits he likes it. Only three years old he recently flew to Chicago with his father and was a regular trooper until the last ten minutes of the trip when air sickness overtook him. However, he's still a trooper, because he'll tell you about getting sick without hesitating.

Somebody sent us word that the peewee, that is the boys, had a fairly godmother the same as the girls in the squad. When they were disappointed because they couldn't get their shirts made for the game, Mrs. J. C. McKinney volunteered her services and the boys now have their shirts.

All of the leaders will be macked out for tonight's game and going their stuff to help the Bulldogs win.

If wishing and hoping could have anything to do with it, those Bulldogs will win tonight. That's just about the foremost thing in the minds of Ranger today.

We know though that they're gonna have a struggle, because they're going up against a very strong team. Bi-district champions last year, they have the reputation of having AA teams over in their neck of the woods, scared to play 'em. Must be pretty good.

Any, win or lose, a good crowd always puts pep into a team and your presence at the game will be just one more there to cheer the boys on.

Somebody said today that we ought to make out weather report read "dry and" getting drier, Well, that's the truth.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—"Listen... Listen... This is New York... You are listening to today's FIRST broadcast of 'The Voice of the United States of America.'"

With this announcement the U. S. State Department's Office of Information opens its three half-hour daily shows of news and music beamed at Soviet Russia.

In many ways, the Voice still cries in the Russian wilderness. The programs are monitored by the U. S. embassy in Moscow, which reports on how well the signal comes in.

On Sept. 2nd, anniversary of the Japanese surrender, it was pointed out that Japan was now on the way to becoming a peaceful democratic state, and the task now was to write a peace treaty.

PRAYER
He prayeth best who loveth best,
All things, both great and small,
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loveth all."

So many people believe that to pray, one must form words. I often pray when I look into a face I love, and when I see a green tree weeping in the rain, when I hear the gentle murmur of a stream, when I touch the dog I love.

Prayer is nothing more than the heart of a human being speaking to his God.

Among thousands of refugees fleeing the terror in India, where Moslems, Hindus and Sikhs are slaughtering each other in religious riots, was the group of Hindu Jain monks pictured above. They're arriving at Wellington Airport, Delhi, after being flown to safety from Gujranwala, Pakistan.

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION

By Elizabeth Siefert

THE STORY After Andrew... have been a greater one to refuse one surgeon's aid, and ask for another's.

"Help him, Miss Perry," he said in a muffled tone, turned and walked out of the theater.

MARTIN watchful behind him, Andrew completed the section as, of course he was well able to do.

When he came out of that cheerless room, his name was rattling from the hitch box. "Dr. Andrew Woodward, Dr. Woodward report to the office, please."

His face puckish, Andrew went directly up to the Acting Chief's suite. Malcolm sat behind his desk, his head back against the chair, his face pale and drawn, his eyes half-closed as if the light hurt them.

Andrew shrugged. "He was badly cracked up an hour ago."

"Yes, but not because he is old. His hand never fumbled in his life. He was blind with migraine—though I've no doubt he could have operated blind. If you would look at today's surgery record, and discover the work Malcolm has done, you'd not dare speak of age and fumbling hands!"

Andrew leaned against the wall, his hands in his pockets, a quizzical smile upon his lips, listening to what Martin had to say.

"I don't blame you for talking as you do, Glenn," he said reasonably. "Anyone would admire you for your loyalty to your brother. But don't lose sight of the fact that I am a doctor; I know about migraine, and its associated illnesses; I saw the condition your brother was in this afternoon—lax wrists, thickened fingers, a cloudy brain—"

Martin's hands clenched against his sides, his mouth stretched into a hard-bitten line. "You're a doctor," he said tightly, "but I'm afraid you're a man out to kill, not to cure."

TYLER, Tex. (UP)—It was almost a nine-hour movie session for 10-year-old Dorothy Nell Robertson.

She entered the theater at 5 p.m., fell asleep and did not awaken till 1:45 a.m. the next morning.

The theater was dark, deserted and locked up; but the spooky atmosphere didn't get the best of her.

She calmly went into the ticket office, picked up the telephone and called police for assistance.

A few moments later, officers and the manager of the theater came and unlocked the door and took her home.

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION

By Elizabeth Seibert

THE STORY: Malcolm suffers an attack of malaria during an expedition and Andrew takes his place before Martin has a chance to. Later, Andrew comments on Malcolm's ambition, suggests he be taking his skill. "You're a doctor," Martin tells Andrew, "but you're not a hill, not to care."

WHEN Andrew first met Nancy, he had suggested that she might be interested in attending one of his clinics. Malcolm had never encouraged her visiting the hospital, believing that a doctor should keep his family life strictly apart from his professional life. So it was a natural curiosity that prompted Nancy to accept Andrew's invitation.

Gradually she fell into almost a routine of attendance at Andrew's clinics. This particular morning, when Andrew came back to his office he was visibly startled to find Nancy seated at Miss Dyson's desk. A little brown sailor hat, circled with pansies, was tilted over one eye, her flannel suit was the color of tarnished gold. She smiled at him mischievously. "You have a new office nurse?" she said gaily.

"No, I see. And quite an improvement, too." "Do you mind my coming here, Andrew?" she asked seriously. He glanced down, furtively, at his wrist-watch. "I never mind anything you do, Nancy," he said gallantly. "You please me in all you say and do—a completely satisfactory friend."

She shook her head. "Don't call me friend," she said. "I feel that I have become much more than that to you."

"What could be more than a friend?" He moved toward his desk, glanced toward his blackly filled-in schedule.

"If that's the 864 question," said

Nancy, "I know the answer. I can be more than a friend. I—Andrew, I decided last night that the time had come for me to make a move, to acknowledge to you that I'd fallen in love with you. It may not be the thing to say—it may not have been the thing to do. But there it is. I love you—for all the things you have done for me."

"What," he said, a little breathlessly, "have I done for you, Nancy?"

SHE got up, went over to him, put her hand upon his arm. "I'll love to tell you," she said softly. "Listen! You've taught me to know myself, to be brave, to be honest. You've made me a real person again, not—" She stopped, looked up at him, misty-eyed.

He patted her hand, put his arm about her shoulder, thinking that this was a fine thing to happen on a busy day. A fine thing to happen at any time! He'd not expected Nancy to pounce on him so. Though he might have looked for her to do so. Women were never content to let these pleasant little flirtations drift along. They wanted things so completely final. "If you love me, you must marry me," Judas, a man couldn't marry them all.

He smiled quizzically at Nancy. "I hope you haven't spoiled things for us," he said plaintively. "The balance is very delicate."

"I know," she said eagerly. "I know it has been—but I really love you, Andrew, and—"

"Love can be a very delightful end in itself, my sweet," he said deeply. "This," he was thinking ever more impatiently, "is certainly a swell time for a Nancy Glenn to prostrate herself." The Board meeting was on top of them, and he wanted every argument to be on his side when he presented Gregor's name. Certainly

It would be bad to have some important staff member side against Woodward because he had been playing around dishonorably with Glenn's wife. It was just such inconsequential things that advanced a doctor on a Staff, or held him back.

HIS fingers stroked Nancy's soft cheek. "You've always been very sweet to me, Nancy," he murmured, "never seeming to remember that you are the Chief's wife, and I only—"

"Oh, Andrew—"

His smile was whimsical. "But I am your husband's junior," he said ruefully, "and not in any position to defy my boss by—"

Nancy clung to his arm, her up-lifted face intent. "I know it's not going to be easy to tell Malcolm, to make the break—but I'd go through fire for you, Andrew."

He smiled gently down into her eyes. "Would you be willing to lose me, my darling?"

She stared at him. "Never!" "Well, then, we must be careful—for a while." He bent his head to kiss her, his mouth hard upon hers, insistent. He released her. "There! We can't have even that much if we are not careful. One must use a little delicacy about these things, my Nancy. It would hardly do for me to get in wrong here at the Hospital. For a time, at least, we must be discreet. Believe me, I am thinking about you—and the future for both of us."

She nodded, looking down to hide the tears in her eyes. "Yes, Andrew, you're right. I was being selfish—I shouldn't have come to your office, should I?"

"No, I'm afraid not, Miss Dyson is apt to barge in here any minute."

"I'll not come any more," she said softly. "If people should begin to talk, I can see how it would spoil things for us, Andrew."

He kissed her again, lightly, and opened the door for her. He watched her go along the hall until she turned into the lobby, then he came back and kicked the leg of Miss Dyson's desk. "You would have to turn up missing!" he cried furiously.

Slur On Neighborhood Causes Girl Riot

NEW YORK (UP)—Two hundred teen-age girls engaged in a swirling brawl, pulling hair, blackening eyes, tearing clothes and punching each other, until a swarm of police squad cars arrived to break it up.

It was not until a few days later that a close investigation revealed the trouble between the groups. A newspaper had referred to the 78th Street block at York Avenue as a "slum neighborhood," two weeks before. The girls on 81st Street kept taunting the girls on 78th Street with the phrase until it came to a head.

One woman school official, however, blamed lack of recreation.

"This isn't a tough neighborhood," she said. "But there isn't a single place for these kids to congregate at nights, and when they don't have anything to do, you can see the results."

Men in the above picture are J. B. Hawn and Mack Fisher. This is 126 acre field of Madrid Clover planted March 3, 1945—picture taken in May of same year.

Fascist Muzzled

In January, 1941, Mr. Paul Dunkel in charge of the Denton County Experiment Station gave Mr. John Elliott of the Frisco Community enough Madrid Clover seed to plant five acres. This is a bi-annual plant.

In his first year Mr. Elliott not only grazed 20 heads of cattle, but had a hay harvest on this five acres of Madrid clover of 5 1/2 tons. In his second year Mr. Elliott grazed it with 20 heads of cattle up to March 10th, and then allowed it to seed. (The second year of this Madrid clover is its seed year). It produced 1784 pounds of seed which Mr. Elliott sold for 40 cents a pound or a return of $142.00 per acre. From this modest start Mr. Elliott is harvesting seed from 130 acres while the neighborhood farmers are harvesting seed from 864 acres in 1947 with the yield being about 500 pounds Madrid Clover seed per acre. It is estimated that in the Frisco Community that an excess of 2500 acres will be planted in the spring of 1948.

Madrid Clover has been certified as the clover legume of all the clovers, not alone in the value of this crop its seed yield, but it has been proven that any follow-up crop, whether wheat, oats, corn, cotton, or any small grain, it produces from 25 to 40% more yield after the clover crop.

Here in the Frisco Community, Madrid Clover has been planted on all types of soil, white rock, poor eroded land, sandy soil, and deep black land. The plant has thrived and has improved the land wherever it has been planted.

There has been an association formed of Denton and Collin County growers, named Certified Madrid Clover Growers, who headquarters at Frisco, Texas. The association will make to anyone desiring it a pamphlet about Madrid Clover, and anyone interested in soil conservation and improvement of his land will do well to investigate this profitable and beneficial crop.

The information in this report has been brought to the attention of this paper by Mr. Larry O'Bannon, manager of the Frisco Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. O'Bannon states that this is not a seed selling proposition, but an effort to help farmers or a good neighbor possess

EXPEDITION DIGS UP RARE TOMB RELICS NEAR PYRAMIDS

By Sam Souki
 United Press Staff Correspondent
CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—An extensive burial ground, stretching from east to west for some two miles and dating between the 26th and 30th dynasties, or between 600 and 300 B. C., has yielded some remarkable relics as a result of excavations by the Farouk el Awal University Archaeological Association.

Some of the relics unearthed on this site, which is about two miles from the Great Pyramids of Giza are of a type hitherto unknown. Four distinct patterns of tombs have been classified.

The first type has an entrance opening on to a short stairway leading down to a spacious vaulted chamber. Generally, the lower

2. Do the people of Abilene think he would make a good president?
 Abilene is a Republican stronghold. The democrats seldom bother to offer candidates for county offices. It has answered the first question with "Republican," the second with "yes."

Some commentators have sought to show that Eisenhower before he became an army man spoke at several Democratic rallies and that his father was a registered Democrat.

Charles M. Harger, Abilene editor and close personal friend of the entire family, disputed the stories. He pointed out that Eisenhower made one talk before a Democratic group during his pre-army life.

That was as valetictorian of his class, when he gave what Kansans call a "reading." It carried no taint of the political.

Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of the general and president of Kansas State College, is a Republican. He is understood to favor a close-lipped policy, somewhat along the line of the former soldier who said here:

"What Ike ought to do is take a four or five month inspection trip that would take him out of the country and keep him in the clear until the proper time comes."

Rangers Strut Ground Play To Win From TMC Thursday

The New Sultan of Swat

Baseball men agree that if Babe Ruth's major-league home-run record of 60 is broken, the feat will be performed by Ralph McPherran Kiner, who established a new mark by manufacturing eight in four consecutive games enroute to his second National League and the 1947 big league championship. Here you see the finish of the young Pittsburgh outfielder's swing, his grip, stance and the position of the feet as he belts the ball out of sight.

27 TO 0 SCORE EARNED WITH 212 YARDS RUSHING

Proving that their ground play is as good as their passing machine, the Ranger Junior College Rangers, rushed and bucked their way to a 27 to 0 victory over the strong Texas Military College eleven at Terrell Thursday night, and stacked up 213 yards rushing against TMC's 61 yards rushing.

The first touchdown was set up when J. Roye recovered a Bulldog fumble on the 10 yard line. A pass to Sullivan and one to Blitch failed to gain any ground. Boyd carried through to the three yard line and Arterburn went over center for the score. Cox failed to kick the extra point.

In the second quarter, Ready intercepted a Bulldog pass on the 50 yard line and the drive for the second score was on. Cox took the ball to his own 45 yard line and heaved a pass to Blitch who was stopped on the 3 yard line. Two plays later Cox went off tackle for the touchdown. Cox converted for the extra point to make the score 13 to 0.

Late in the second quarter, after reaching the 10 yard line by one ground play after another, Norwood took a short pass from Arterburn for another marker. McClendon kicked the extra point, ending the half with a score of 20 to 0.

The Rangers' defense was like a solid wall during the entire game and on several occasions a white shirt was spotted playing in the offensive backfield. Boyd, running behind good blocking, stacked up considerable yardage on ground gains.

At the start of the second half Ranger kicked to TMC and the Bulldogs started off with a drive making two nice gains before they fumbled and Boyd of Ranger recovered. Ranger's passing machine failing to click, the team took to ground play, that would make yardage against any line, with the way the Rangers blocked and opened up holes. The last touch down was started on Ranger's own 30 yard line and Cox, Boyd, and Norwood drove to the Bulldog's 5 yard line. From this point, Norwood went over tackle standing up. McClendon kicked the extra point making the score 27 to 0.

The final tally would seem to indicate that TMC wasn't very strong but sparked by such players as Shipley and two others that played in the Southwest conference last year, the Bulldogs gave all they had.

Ranger's line and backs were playing heads-up football, keeping the Bulldogs putting and most of the game deep in their own territory. All of the Ranger squad saw service in the game.

Charley Jungmichael, a guard on the 1947 University of Texas football squad, is the older brother of one of his own coaches. Brother Buddy Jungmichael, a star guard on the 1941 Longhorn eleven, is a new addition to the Texas coaching staff.

Of the 39 members of the Texas Longhorn varsity squad that played against Oregon, only one is from outside the state of Texas. He is Dale Schwartzkopf, who came to the Longhorns as a naval trainee and remained. North Carolina, on the other hand, lists 33 out-of-state stars on the roster it will bring to Austin for Saturday's inter-sectional game with the Steers.

BULLDOGS' FOES TONITE '46 CHAMPS

When the Ranger Bulldogs meet the Overton team tonight at the Bulldog stadium at 8 o'clock they will be facing a 1946 champion team.

In 1946 the Overton boys won nine games and lost two coming out of the season as bi-district champions of districts 23A and 24A. This year they lost one game to the regional champions of last year by a score of 25 to 6 and won their second game by a score of 19 to 0.

The Bulldogs have played three games, losing two and winning one but with such a record they still have Overton bested on points, having scored 26 points in their one victory to outdo Overton's 19 points.

Coach Onis Warden's eleven will be handicapped by the absence of Munnerlyn, first string punter and may lack the services of Balch and Wilson, both of whom are nursing injuries. J. M. Bush will replace Munnerlyn in the start tonight.

Average weight of Overton's team is 157 pounds and average weight of the Bulldogs is 138 pounds.

Starting line-up for Overton will be, LE, Charley McGinty, No. 11; LT, Sammy Bingham, No. 16; LG, Ralph Ramsey, No. 35; C, Howard Hardy, No. 30; RG, Bobby Collins, No. 44; RT, Lem Jones, No. 41; RE, S. E. Broom, No. 40; Charley Darden, No. 13; LH, Dwan Gregory, No. 10; RH, Steve Hughes, No. 22 and FB, Dan Page, No. 33.

If Balch and Wilson get to start tonight, Ranger's starters will be Deaton, Wilson, Langley, Heinlen, Balch, Gray, Wright, Williams, Townsen, Lanier and Bush.

Ranger Student At Sam Houston Teachers College

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (Sp.)—William H. Getts, of Ranger, has enrolled for the fall term in Sam Houston State Teachers College at Huntsville.

This fall's enrollment of 2,136 students exceeds any in the 69-year history of the college, breaking last September's record of 1,725 by 411 students. Although most of the students are from parts of Texas, other sections of the United States are well represented. One man, Frank Yusan Ling, is from Nanking, China.

The Freshman class includes nearly half the total enrollment, with men outnumbering the women students about 2 to 1.

Several new courses are being taught, including earth moving, photo-engraving and bio-chemistry. Although all classes have previously been held on the main campus, 21 classes in 12 courses are now being held at the Country campus. Formerly a prisoner of war camp 12 miles north of Huntsville, the Country campus was converted by the college after the war into a housing project for students and faculty. It now has a population of about 650 faculty members, students and their families.

On the University of Texas "playing" squad this fall, only eight members are seniors. There are 15 juniors, 13 sophomores and three freshmen included among the top 29 Longhorns.

No Cigars To Tell Of These Births

ABILENE, Tex., (UP)—There were no fathers passing out cigars; the mothers weren't selecting any names.

But nine babies were born at the West Texas fairgrounds here—nine baby rabbits, that is.

Without jumping to any conclusions, fair officials pointed out that the blessed events occurred less than 24 hours after some prankster had opened all the rabbit hatches at the fair.

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION

By Elizabeth Seifert

THE STORY: Nancy confesses to Andrew that she is in love with him. Andrew is doubtful that she should take their casual flirtation seriously. He fears a scandal that will ruin his chances of advancement at the hospital. He warns Nancy to be "reticent."

NANCY took a taxi from the hospital into town, and did her marketing, thinking how odd it was to go from a tender love scene to such a domestic task. But Andrew was right—life must go on, and as decently as two mature, conscientious people could make it seem.

That afternoon she got out the trunk which contained her mother's wedding gown that Nikki was hoping to wear at her own wedding. She and Nikki and a couple of Nikki's friends spent a delightful afternoon examining the gowns.

The gown was yellowed to a not golden tint which Nancy at first decided they could not use. But when Nikki tried the dress on, all the color was so right with her brown eyes, and amber hair, they decided that the white wedding could be worked out in tones of ivory and gold.

It was interesting to do this sort of planning, to make their lists, and to buy funny little sketches, and to laugh hilariously at the little hat Nikki found in the bottom of the trunk, mashed so flat she said it was in the latest styles.

The young people finally scattered to dress for the Cadet Festival at the nearby Naval Air school that night, and Nancy, putting the clutter away, agreed that Andrew had been right to counsel her to caution. There were things to be put out of the way—Nikki's wedding list for one. Nancy could not spoil things for Nikki; a month or two was not long to hold her own because in shyance.

you, why shouldn't she go with him?"

"But he— Does she like him?"

"She must, though she says she doesn't, especially. He asked her, and she could find no reason to refuse to go."

NANCY caught enough of her control to choose her words. "Martin," she said firmly, "I don't think you should let Susan go places with Dr. Woodward."

He laughed. "I tried to persuade her not to do this—but he's a much more persuasive man than I am, Nancy."

"I didn't know she went with him."

"I don't think she does, much."

"Martin, why don't you marry Susan?"

He got up from the deep chair, strolled around the room, a tall, slim-waisted man in brown trousers and white shirt. His black hair was rouged upon his head as if his fingers had ploughed through it many times. "Susan thinks she could not leave Malcolm just now."

"That isn't any reason for refusing to marry you, if she loves you."

"Then maybe she doesn't." "Oh, but she does!" He shook his head. "I hope she does. But she brings up the argument of Malcolm needing her, which doesn't seem to me to be an adequate reason. And she does accept dates with Andrew Woodward—who, I'll admit, is much too attractive for my peace of mind. Though I do fool myself into thinking he may be using Susan to get to Doc. He's a very ambitious career doctor. Woodward is."

Fearing that Martin's keen eyes would read her thoughts, Nancy leaned forward to pick up one of the magazines on the low marble table before the couch. Could it be that Andrew had cultivated Nancy to get to Malcolm? Looking back to that morning, she realized that he had not received her offer in a truly lover-like fashion—and tonight he was dancing with Susan Perry. Nancy had never been jealous of Susan as Malcolm's nurse, but as a girl Andrew dated—

Airport Activities

Speedy scy--

First officially observed flight of an airplane using butane as fuel was made in Oklahoma City on Sept. 17. Landrum L. Hughes, who developed the airplane motor conversion process, said its main significance was in the saving of money. Aviation gasoline costs 30c a gallon and butane costs 9c per gallon.

Two business men in a small monoplane were circling over the fog-shrouded Newark airport with fuel for only seven minutes more of flying when the Newark tower solved their problem the other day. The tower directed Capt. Paul J. ... of Great Neck, N. Y., piloting an Eastern Airlines airplane, to lead the smaller craft to LaGuardia Field, using its low approach landing equipment which the monoplane lacked. Both planes landed safely.
