U.S. Asks Year-Round UN Assembly

Well... I Dunno, But...

If the beginning of a day is any indication of the trend of the whole day, the Lord help us this day. Right now at 9:45 A.M. nothing we've done is right and while we recognize that fact, it don't help none to be reminded of it. At least it don't help the disposition.

You know, it's a funny thing, but we guess that such a condition must be our own fault. We get off on the wrong foot and somehow it's hard to get back to the right one. It usually takes an explosion to blast us out of the rut.

But then maybe an explosion has its good points. Maybe after the smoke has cleared we can see better. Too, letting off steam relieves the pressure.

Anyway, we're keeping our fingers crossed for the rest of this day.

Our carriers are right happy little boys. The reason is that they got free tickets to the circus Saturday. The tickets are the gift of Homer Perry who operates the Gulf station near the intersection of Main Street and Highway 80. All the boys have to do is go to the station and get their tickets. Homer says that this is just a sample of the same kind of service he gives at his station. Of course, that don't mean that he gives away free gasoline and oil.

We were handed a copy of something this morning that we had never read and it sure sounds all right to us.

Did you know that the Jaycees of the country have defined a Fifth Freedom? And here's the way they put it.

"We believe that in addition to the Four Freedoms we have a Fifth Freedom... the opportunity of Enterprise... by which America has grown great and through which we can insure her future greatness.

"We believe this Freedom requires:

The right of an unfettered start in the race of life with no artificial handicaps.

The right to work as hard as we like and enjoy the fruits of that work as our own.

The right to go as far as we can, developing according to our capacities as individual American men and women.

We recognize that the Fifth Freedom... Opportunity of Enterprise... is limited by the similar right of others and that there is an obligation to extend these opportunities to all people who are willing and able to work."

They go on to emphasize the fact that this principle is "diametrically" opposed to foreign firms. And we as Americans sure ought to stick to that opposition. Too, John Ben Shepperd, national president of the Jaycees is carrying the above message to 25 states in what he calls the Fifth Freedom Flight.

Speaking of the Jaycees, they're hunting ways and means again and one of the dads has come forth with an idea that they think is pretty sound.

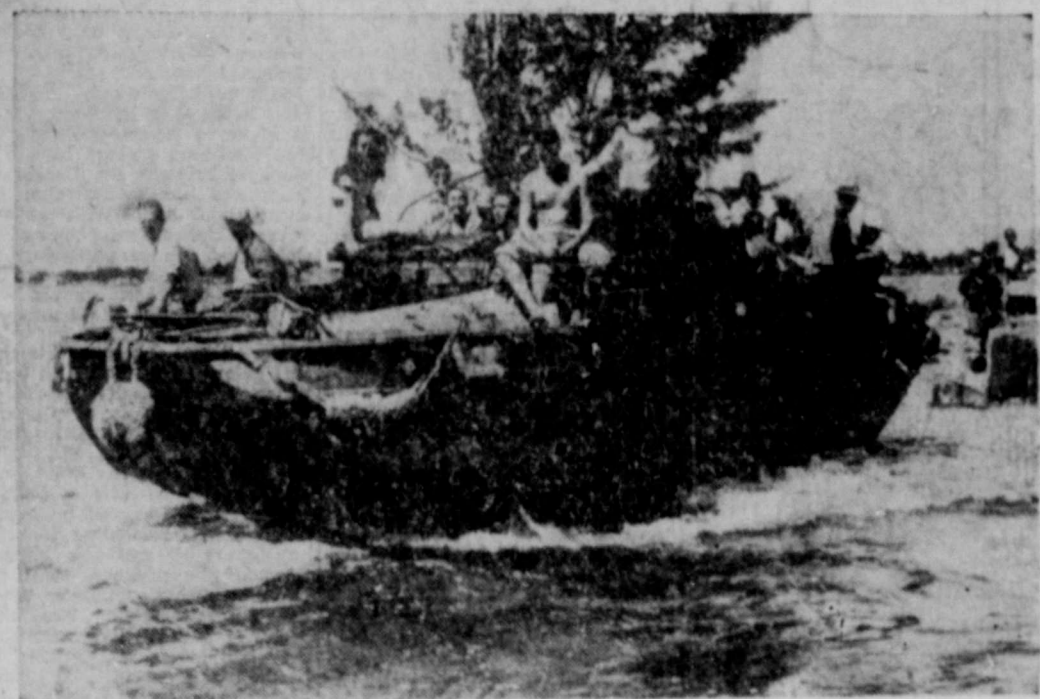

This time the Jaycees are looking for a way to get their livestock barn-roofed without spending $600 to do it. So the suggestion has been made that every business man that has in his employ Jaycees, give them two days off, and all Jaycees that are in business for themselves, take two days off to go out to the arena and put that roof on. They would, in such a case, be supervised by a representative from the factory that made the roof. The material for the aluminum roof is here and it costs $100 squares of it—and now to get it on.

That's a pretty good idea and a sure way to get the barn-roofed because we know that those Jaycees will work. Too, that's an exceptionally modest request from the Jaycees that are known for their taking ways.

Anyway, if you approve of the idea and want to cooperate with the boys just call Jim Morris and let him know about it.

Ducks To The Rescue

Ducks, used to a great advantage during landing operations during the war, are now being used in Miami, Florida, to rescue persons stranded in their flooded homes after a hurricane and tornado left most of the city under water. (NEA Telephoto).

$700,000,000 FIXED AS COST OF FIRES IN 1947

NEW YORK (UP)—Each of the 60,000,000 wage earners in the United States will have to dig into his pocketbook for $11.66 to pay America's 1947 fire loss, expected to set a new high record this year of more than $700,000,000.

That is what destructive fires, estimated at $30,000 this year, is expected to cost the average wage earner in direct losses alone. But that is only the beginning of what fire costs the nation the National Board of Fire Underwriters said today in a Fire Prevention Week statement.

In addition, the average city dweller pays $3.69 per capita for his fire protection—that money goes to main fire departments, water supply, alarm systems and to fight fires. But probably of even greater import is the hidden or indirect costs of fire destruction.

Even a small fire can cause losses far out of proportion to its actual physical damage. In one industrial plant a small fire did only $13 physical. However, the plant owners had to pay a $6.50 medical bill for a worker's injured hand $90 in wages for the time he was off duty $90 for a substitute worker, and $45 for time lost by other workers in the excitement of the fire. Total costs to the firm, nearly $250.

In general, the board said, indirect fire losses this year will cost the nation two to three times the estimated direct loss of $700,000,000.

President Truman took heed of that when he told his conference on fire prevention in Washington recently: "A single fire in one factory can result in lost wages, and lost jobs for hundreds of workmen, reduced savings and reduced volume of trade."

A Change Of Titles

Governor James Strom Thurmond, right, of North Carolina will wed Miss Jean Crouch, left, whom he crowned Miss South Carolina at a flower show and who was a secretary in his office last summer. Miss Crouch will change her title from Miss North Carolina to the first lady of North Carolina. (NEA Telephoto).

COMMUNISTS, SOCIALISTS WIN IN ROME

ROME — Final results from all but three precincts showed today that the Communists and left-wing Socialists, whose leaders advocate an alliance with the Communists, won Sunday's municipal council, which will elect Rome's mayor. Because of a council deadlock, Rome has not had a mayor since last November. And the leftist margin was so small this time it appeared that the 30 seats would be about equally divided between right and left, raising the same situation.

Actually, it was more than a city election. It was a contest between Communism and the Catholic Church for control of the city. It was the first test of political thinking in Italy since the Communists of nine nations, including Italy, set up their "information bureau" to coordinate the fight against American influence.

Pups, Dogies Play In Ranger Tonite

The Ranger Junior High School Pups will meet the Eastland Junior High School Dogies in a football game at the Bulldog stadium tonight beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Admission to the game will be 25 cents for adults and .09 cents for students.

Red Heads Dying Out Barbers Suspect

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UP)—Local barbers are wondering what's become of the red-head. Not many years ago, say Vancouver's tonsorial artists, they clipped and trimmed one red-head a week. Now they think they're seeing double if they lay shears to one red-haired pate a month.

In particular, they're worried about the red-headed women. They fear she's nearly extinct.

Some of the city's barbers claim modern diet is causing the red-heads' decline. Whatever the cause, the men behind the shears are convinced the day of the red-head is about done.

SAYS FARBEN HAD COMPANY IN NEW YORK

By United Press
NUERNBERG — An American war crimes tribunal received evidence today that a U. S. Corporation was set up by I. G. Farben in midtown New York as an intelligence agency and served the German government successfully for 11 pre-war years.

U. S. Prosecutors read into the records of the trial of Farben directors the evidence about Chemnyco, Inc., which was established by Farben in 1930 in swanky offices at 521 Fifth Avenue, New York.

The story of Chemnyco was told in a Department of Justice report dated Aug. 10, 1944. The report concluded that the corporation's success "may have resulted from the fact that our country did not see fit to erect defenses."

The report pointed out that if Germany ever had invaded the United States, its army would have had maps of oil fields, power circuits, shore lines, harbors, and even one entitled "Approaches to the Panama Canal."

Through the services of Chemnyco, according to the evidence, American industries, chambers of commerce, and even government agencies unwittingly supplied the Germans with facts and figures about the United States.

Mayor Gives Up Office For Home For Vet

BRIDGETON, N. J. — Mayor Bertram R. B. Aitken gave up his city hall office today to help ease the housing shortage.

Two weeks ago Aitken, irritated over the growing number of evictions, said he would give up his office in the city's $500,000 office building for use as a home to the next family evicted.

Fred Goy, Jr., 25, his wife and 9-month-old son, were the first housing hardship case to come to the mayor's attention. When Aitken learned that Goy was a veteran of five years army service, and that he had been refused housing because of the child, the Mayor made good on his promise.

The veteran and his family have moved a cot and crib into the office and have set up an electric hot plate on the mayor's conference table.

Union's Store Combats Rising Food Prices

CAMDEN, N. J. (UP) — A shipbuilding union has set out to help its members beat inflation by establishing a grocery store in a hot dog stand on the union's old ball field.

The store soon will expand to larger quarters and become a general store "including everything a union man needs," a spokesman said.

Another Queen Bee Known To Ranger People

Another "Queen Bee" has been named for the game between the Frog and Aggie B teams in Fort Worth Wednesday and she, too, has a connection with Ranger. She used to make her home here, and is Miss Lula Leverett. The Queen Bee named by the Aggies is Miss Nancy Chambers of Dallas, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colonel Brashier.

Miss Leverett is a recent graduate of Gaston High School at Joinerville, where she was salutatorian. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Leverett of Overton. She is 18, is 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 103 pounds. She is cashier at Colonial Cafeteria, 3062 University Drive.

J. W. (Red) Brothers, newly elected student body president at TCU, will escort Miss Leverett. Bill Thompson of Saginaw, Aggie freshman, will be Miss Chambers' escort. Both will be presented roses while the TCU Horned Frog Band presents a halftime program.

The game officially will open A&M Week in Fort Worth. Many fans who can not get tickets to the varsity struggle Saturday between A&M and TCU are expected to witness the "B" game.

Sponsors are the TCU ex-Lettermen's Association and the Frog Club, which will use all proceeds for the improvement of the TCU athletic program. Fourteen Fort Worth high school players of 1946 are slated to appear with the two teams.

Chair Shifting Was Clue To Temper Of Meet

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — (UP)—Sir Alfred Zimmern, founder of the Geneva School of International Studies, revealed that he determined the success of secret League of Nations committee meetings by inspecting the position of chairs after proceedings were closed.

"If they were all neatly arranged along the table, it had been a useful meeting," Sir Alfred said. "But if they were turned this way and that, facing the table anywhere but toward the table with a tendency to coalesce into groups, then the verdict, in the words of Milton, was no light but rather darkness visible."

Now in the United States on an indefinite stay as visiting professor at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., the British statesman spoke at the inauguration of Dr. Colgate W. Darden as president of the University of Virginia.

NEW YORK—A flying boat with 69 persons aboard made a forced landing in the North Atlantic today, taxied three miles to a coast guard weather ship and was riding out a rough sea and gale winds which made transfer of the passengers to the ship impossible, the Coast Guard reported here.

The Coast Guard said messages received from the scene at 8:17 A. M. EST indicated the flying boat, believed to be a charter flight of the American International Airways, was undamaged in its sea landing and was "riding well" on the stormy seas 820 miles east of Newfoundland.

At Shannon, Eire, British air officials said the plane was a giant Boeing flying boat which had taken off from Poole, England, Sunday, spent the night at Foynes, Eire, and taken off for the United States yesterday. Indications were that the plane had exhausted its gasoline supply bucking head winds and had been forced to land on the sea by lack of fuel.

Service Is Where You Find It, Court Rules

ATLANTA, Ga. (UP)—Georgia has no law on the books to compel prompt service—or any service at all in a restaurant or cafe, the State Court of Appeals ruled.

Charles W. Anderson filed suit for $5,000 damages against a Deatur, Ga., restaurateur who he said had refused to serve him breakfast.

Anderson said he (1) waited 10 minutes vainly for his order to be taken, (2) beckoned to waiter, (3) was ignored, (4) called out for service, (5) didn't get it.

Not only that, Anderson complained, but when he asked the manager for a menu, the manager refused.

The court, without any legal relief for him, intimated that Anderson should try another restaurant.

PENSIONERS TO MEET

A meeting of the members of the Pensioners' Club will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Second Baptist Church.

Important business will be transacted and all members are urged to attend.

A newcomer in the battery radio field is small enough to fit in to the palm of a hand and has a hundred mile reception range.

RUSSIA LEADS OPPOSITION; SUPPORT OF OTHERS COOL

LAKE SUCCESS—The United States told the United Nations today that establishment of a year-round "Little Assembly" offered possibly the last chance to regain world confidence in the UN's ability to keep the peace.

The statement by American Delegate John Foster Dulles opened the fight of the United States to overcome the stalemate in peace machinery caused by the deadlock in the UN security council.

Establishment of the so-called "Little Assembly" is bitterly opposed by Russia and has only lukewarm support among western nations which usually vote with the United States.

Dulles called for quick action to combat "world-wide disillusionment" and said the move was necessary if public confidence in the UN is to be regained.

Dulles denied Soviet charges that the plan was aimed at nullifying the UN security council and characterized it instead as a tool for helping the UN "do better than it has done" in overcoming American-Russian power politics.

The little assembly idea was devised by Secretary of State George C. Marshall and his aides as a counterweight to the security council.

Dulles spoke to the political committee with hopes of getting the assembly to establish for at least a year an "interim committee," consisting of all 57 of the United Nations. It would meet constantly, wrestling with problems of "peace and security" which can't be handled by the veto-paralyzed security council and generally considering problems in advance of the 1948 assembly session.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky already has hinted that Russia—and probably its five supporters in the UN—will boycott the committee on grounds that it is an attempt by the United States to get around the veto.

9 Jurors Seated In Ross Case

LA GRANGE, Tex. — Nine jurors were seated by mid-morning today as preliminaries in the murder trial of Dr. Lloyd I. Ross continued in Fayette District Court.

An 89-man venire had been virtually exhausted, and it appeared likely that another panel would have to be summoned before the 12-man jury would be completed.

Ninth juror accepted was Tom Beale, about 55, a farmer and father of two children. Beale was the 73rd man to be questioned. Ross wore the same blue suit, shirt and tie as yesterday. The ancient courtroom, expected to be jammed when testimony begins, still was not crowded as the tedious process of asking each venireman the same list of questions dragged on.

The trial was moved here on a change of venue from Comal county last month. There, in four days, only 10 jurors were obtained from three panels of veniremen.

Morning Glories

Heavenly blue!
Knew deep in June is my favorite time of the year, but it's a breathtaking experience by the fall to wake early, the crisp, cold air ruffling the bedroom curtains, to shiver deliciously, turn over, and look out the window.
A back fence, sparkling with crystal looking dew, completely covered with huge, Heavenly blue Morning Glories.

The Glory of the Morning!
Have you ever stopped dead still in your mad scramble to live . . . completely overwhelmed by a sense of glory . . . a sublime, overpowering emotion that makes everything you see, stand out in sudden radiance! It's like standing naked in a quick, cold shower . . . the shock of the icy water beating every feeling of fatigue from the body.
It's like being born again.
Do you know what I believe?
I believe that, in a sense, you and I die and are born again many times throughout our life cycle.

Heaven Helps Those Who Help Themselves

In those times of radiance, when you and I do not quite understand what is happening to us, I believe that the God Who creates us, allows us just a brief glimpse of the Divinity planned for us all. We could not bear too long a glimpse . . . not while we are imprisoned in the bonds of the flesh, but the cool, crisp Day will come when the Gate will swing wide, the blue Morning Glories of Heaven will open their petals in glorious ecstasy to the Sun.

The typical class of '51 lass in:—18 years of age—a brunette—was graduated from a public school—was in upper fourth of her prep graduating class—father is a college grad, and is now a business man—mother attended college but did not graduate.

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION

By Elizabeth Seifert
© by Elizabeth Seifert, Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

XXIX
WHAT he ate for that dinner at the Woodwards, what was said, what was done, Malcolm scarcely knew. When the guests were free at last to go their separate ways, he asked Martin to take him to the Hospital. He would spend the night there.
Martin agreed to this without question, recognizing one of Malcolm's migraine attacks. He wanted to ask Doc what was bothering him beside the head—but there was a stillness about his brother he did not dare violate.
Malcolm appreciated this tact from Martin. He would not have cared to explain that he stayed here in the Hospital because of an unwillingness to force himself upon Nancy. He didn't believe that she really meant to divorce him—but while she thought she believed that, he must help her keep her pride. It was incredible to think his home could be broken by divorce. Had Nancy given any thought at all to the children? Even if she didn't love Malcolm—Woodward—surely she could not let the family melt down into slimy nothingness!
Drained by a night of emotion and pain, Malcolm dragged himself out of bed the next morning, showered, shaved, dressed in his whites, and went out to his desk. He asked for some coffee to be sent up.
Walking as if on a thin crust over boiling lava, speaking carefully, watching his hands as if they belonged to a beginning intern, he got himself through the morning. He even remembered to send home for some clothes to replace his tail coat and boiled shirt. He could not wear that outfit to the Staff Luncheon, nor did he choose to attend in white linen. Going in to speak to Pop, hoping he sounded composed on this daily visit, he suggested that McAn sit at the head of the table, give a proper welcome to Dr. Gregor.

POP snorted. "Drool down my chin for his edification!" he cried. "I'll see him, and talk to him—but not while trying to put food into my mouth with the hands I have to use. What's the matter with you, Malcolm? Sick?"
"Head. Bad as I ever had."
Pop nodded sympathetically. "Think this Gregor's all he's cracked up to be?" he asked.
Malcolm drew a deep breath. "I hope so!" he said tensely. "By George, I hope so!"
Still walking warily, Malcolm went to the Staff Luncheon, a look in his eyes so coldly forbidding that few even greeted him. The Manager brought Dr. Gregor in, introduced him to Malcolm. Dr. Glenn shook hands with the new Surgeon, indicated the chair at his right hand. He was stiffly inclined to be courteous and reserved—no more—to Gregor, coming here, as he did, under the banner of Dr. Andrew Woodward.
The strange doctor, on his part, was quiet and watchful; he spoke in an easy, friendly fashion to those who came up and greeted him as Malcolm mentioned their names and positions. Sitting at Dr. Glenn's side, his quiet poise was restful; he was a slender, well-dressed man, not personally handsome, nor seeming to make any effort to establish himself, to make himself liked. That, too, was reassuring. Malcolm could feel himself relax. The little demons mercifully loosed the band they had been pulling about his head. Sighing a little in his relief, Malcolm picked up his fork and began to eat; it might have been Martin who sat beside him.
Surprised at this idea, Malcolm turned in his chair to look again at Gregor. The Orthopedist glanced up, met Malcolm's puzzled eyes, and smiled. His homely face lit up as with an inward flame; his dark eyes glowed, his big mouth spread wider with good-natured, keen humor. Malcolm smiled in return and nodded, his head. He liked this fellow.

ANDREW WOODWARD came in 10 minutes after everyone was seated and busy with the roast beef and new peas. He strode into the room, smiling broadly, his red head gleaming. He came up to Gregor, his hand outstretched, forceful personality blazing about him like a nimbus. "I am sorry I'm late, Doctor," he said heartily. "I got tied up with a childhood ailment peculiar to springtime. /another 3-year-old fell off his tricycle. I particularly wanted to be here to introduce you, and give you the low-down on these guys." Dr. Gregor smiled, slightly, and nodded toward Malcolm. "Dr. Glenn has done the honors," he said in his steady, warm voice.
Andrew laughed, his hand upon the new doctor's shoulder. "I'll bet he hasn't explained that he was again your coming here, Doctor." Gregor turned to look, not at Woodward, but at Glenn. "I've often heard what a smart man he was," he said clearly. Those about the table grinned.
Malcolm's mouth twisted wryly. "When Woodward said he thought he could get you for the Lair, Dr. Gregor, I was afraid he spoke too hopefully. I am glad now that I was mistaken."
Gregor nodded. "Thank you. But it was not Dr. Woodward who 'got me' for your Hospital. Do you call it the Lair? That's quite good. No, Dr. Glenn—it was you who 'got me'. When I heard that the wing was being built, I thought perhaps I would ask for the appointment because of the chance it would give me to work with you." His eyes clung to Malcolm's for a moment of complete understanding.
As unobtrusively as possible, Andrew Woodward went to sit in his chair around the curve of the big table. His eyes were sullen; his underlip clamped itself tightly over his thin upper one.

For the first time in history, a captured German V-2 rocket is fired from an aircraft carrier during a test made on board the USS Midway at sea. Rocket can be seen a few feet above the flight deck just after it had been fired. It went only about six miles before falling into the sea, but the test was regarded as successful. ## Big Brothers Club Converts Boy From Thefts

DALLAS, (UP)—The time was 1944, and the boy was 14 years old and on the way to becoming a chronic car thief. He stole several, drove wildly around Dallas until the gasoline supply was exhausted and abandoned them, always looking for another. Police got him, just as he was about to take a convertible parked on a downtown street. A juvenile officer spoke to Austin G. Scott, executive secretary of the Dallas Big Brothers club. "He seems to be, basically, a good boy," the officer told Scott.

"I'd like for you to talk to him. Try that interest-finded thing of yours."

The medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, made of 16 herbs, roots, vegetables, and balsams—truly nature's own way to relief. Instantly you take it, it starts to work flushing out kidneys... increases the flow of urine, helping to relieve excess acidity... so irritated bladder gets a good flushing out, too. Or get full-sized bottle of Swamp-Root today at your druggists.

Illinois Promotes Musical Training

CHICAGO (UP)—A new organization has been formed here to widen the appreciation of music in all levels of American life, and to promote better musical training in the schools. The American Music Conference, a non-profit educational organization, was chartered by the state of Illinois. Louis G. LaMair, chairman of the board of trustees and support of all branches of the music industry.

"Music has a vital place in our life and society," LaMair said. "It is one of the soundest builders of character and personality and is among our greatest civilizing influences." He said that one of the principal aims of the American Music Congress would be to promote musical instruction in the public schools. "There is a glaring lack of facilities in our schools," he said "to satisfy this craving for music. Music must be recognized as a basic part of the school curriculum."

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, though that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

MADISON, Wis. (UP)— Her husband threw his golf clubs at her because she missed a putt, Mrs. Virginia Metzger, 35, told a divorce judge here.

Vet's Policing Idea Proves Profitable

DES MOINES, Ia. (UP)— An idea was conceived by a World War II veteran, Richard Westburg, to do his community some good and make a living at it. The idea is developing into one of Des Moines' fastest-growing businesses.

With the help of a GI loan and plenty of initiative, Westburg began a venture called the ambulance patrol service last February. Today the service, with the sanction and co-operation of the police department, furnishes a 36-block area in the Iowa capital city with additional police protection, unlimited ambulance service, fire guard and general service to house holders who pay $10 annually for the protection.

Westburg, a former Army Air Force instructor, now has more than 600 or better than 90 per cent of the residents in the area subscribing to his service. He began his project with 65.

The patrol work entails the use of a station wagon equipped with a mobile telephone so the patrol officers may be reached quickly by persons in need. Westburg now hires two men, dressing them in uniforms somewhat similar to policemen, to patrol the area.

"We give the area additional protection from 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. daily," he said.

"That means we check homes when people are on vacation and when they are home we keep a continual patrol in the neighborhood looking for suspicious characters, speeders, drunken drivers and just plain drunks who might molest residents," Westburg explained.
