India Withdraws From Fight For UN Seat

Well... I Dunno, But...

In a recent issue of the Sheriff's Association of Texas Magazine, Ranger really got a spread. The magazine was called to our attention this morning. There are two full pages of pictures of Ranger, including business houses, Main Street during boom and at present, the swimming pool, refectories, and homes. Then there is a large picture of Chief W. G. Pounds and another picture showing the whole police force including Captain Johnny Boyd, J. L. Richardson, A. C. Ames, Dick Blackwell, B. T. Duncan, John Blankenship, then desk sergeant, and D. V. Morgan. Cutlines under the picture of Pounds described him as "one of those guys wouldn't want to pick a fight."

While we're on the subject of police, four of the force tell us that they've had their names changed, to wit, Hacksaw Goswick, Heavy Richardson, Rubbert Ames and Roastin' Ear Duncan. What the deal is, we don't know. They didn't explain how they acquired the names. It might have been from that trip to Fort Worth Monday.

Comment generally around town is in opposition to placing parking meters in Ranger's downtown streets. General opinion is to the effect that it would be more detrimental than helpful and it is felt that the situation can be handled in other ways. But we've offered you the chance to express yourselves and the time to do it. Among those who commented on this morning was Hicks, who said, I'm agin' I think it would be a shame at a man would have to pay to park on his own streets. Our rural neighbors won't pay to park in streets and consequently, we'll drive them to neighboring towns."

George Beighly stated that it is definitely not for it. In the place, I don't see how it would help any, would probably do more harm than good. Furthermore, I'd like to see something done about the speeding on Main Street and the blind approaches at intersections."

George Murphy said, "I'd like to see the merchants handle it some other way themselves. They and their employes could park on streets and parking lots and leave the space open for their customers from whom they get their dollars."

RETIRED OFFICER TESTIFIES IN HUGHES INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON—Retired Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers testified today that he bought 4 million dollars of government bonds on margin during the war after getting from former secretary of treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., the impression "that I could not go wrong."

The wartime air force procurement officer told a Senate investigating subcommittee he got this impression at a conference with Morgenthau and Chairman Mariner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve System. The subcommittee, investigating 40 million dollars of war contracts awarded to Howard Hughes went into the bond deal because the west coast plane-maker had testified Meyers tried to borrow 20 thousand dollars for margin operations. Meyers said this and other charges voiced by Hughes were "unadulterated lies." He said that what really happened was Hughes offered him 250 thousand dollars for bond purchases but he turned it down.

Meyers said Hughes offered him a postwar job as general manager of the Hughes Aircraft Co. at a time when contract negotiations were under way.

Senator Homer Ferguson asked if he did not consider such an offer from a contractor to an air force procurement officer to be "corrupt."

"I was sure he was trying to curry favor," Meyer replied.

BULLDOGS LAND IN CELLAR BY LOSING TO CISCO 22-0

Two blocked punts and a loose defense put the Ranger Bulldogs in the District 9AA cellar Tuesday afternoon when they lost 22-0 in the annual Armistice Day clash with the Cisco Lobos.

The first quarter ended without a score and it was anybody's ball game to this point. Cisco received the opening kick-off and Stanley Williams, leading the Lobos, picked up two first downs before the Bulldog line forced Cisco to punt. Ranger took the ball on their own 25 yard line. The first play from scrimmage was a short pass intended for Lanier which fell incomplete. After a loss of four yards on a ground play, Bobby Williams punted out of bounds on the Lobos' 49 yard line. The Ranger defense held here and forced the Lobos to kick again, this time the ball going out on the Bulldogs' 15. Wright connected a pass to Lanier for 5 yards and then to Williams for 5 yards and then to Williams for 5 yards for their first 1st down. Townzen carrying for 5 yards

Citizens Duty To Help Prevent Disease Spread

It is the duty of every citizen, young and old, to help in preventing the spread of disease. Every man, woman and child in Texas has a personal obligation to keep as well as possible, and to protect others from illness. Even the kindergarten age children can be taught to cover a cough or sneeze, to help in preventing the spread of colds or other infectious diseases that start with the symptoms of a cold.

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, emphasizes the fact that the local health officer can do little to break the chain of communicable disease in the community if he does not have the wholehearted support of the people. Every case of illness that looks suspicious of being a communicable disease should be promptly reported to the health officer. Physicians report to the county health officer the cases of communicable disease they diagnose as such, but parents often fail in this duty. The local health officer cannot institute control measures if he is not informed of cases, or suspected cases of communicable diseases.

Some signs and symptoms which often accompany communicable disease are: red and running eyes; running nose; coughing and sneezing; dizziness or faintness; swelling about the neck; sore throat; unusual paleness; earache or running ears; feverish appearance; rash; nausea; vomiting or diarrhea; irritability or other change in normal behavior and appearance.

Help to prevent the spread of communicable disease in your neighborhood by observing correct health practices, and reporting promptly any appearance of suspicious symptoms.

Petrillo Pleads Not Guilty

CHICAGO—James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, AFL, pleaded innocent today to a charge that he violated the Lea act by trying to force a radio station to hire unnecessary employees. Petrillo's lawyer, Daniel D. Carmell, asked the court for an early trial and federal judge Walter J. Labuy set the trial date for Dec. 15.

Carmell described Petrillo as "the savior of musical culture." Since 1900 a standard lamp socket and base has replaced 175 sizes formerly used in residential installations.

RANGER MEN AT WTCC MEET ON TUESDAY

David D. Pickrell, Ranger's director to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and R. V. Gallo-way, manager of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce were in Abilene Tuesday to attend the annual meeting of the directors. Mayor C. P. Dodson of Decatur, immediate past president of the Texas League of Municipalities and long a WTCC director, was chosen unanimously as president. His predecessor, Herman C. Custard, Cleburne banker, was presented the annual award plaque as "Top West Texan of 1947." Other officers chosen by acclamation were John D. Mitchell, Odessa; J. M. Wilson, Floydada; and B. P. Bludworth, Brownwood, vice presidents; and Malcolm M. Meek, Abilene, treasurer; B. A. Hansen was re-elected general manager. The directors reverted by this action to the prewar custom of electing three vice presidents. The organization has had only one or two in the last several years. The directors went on record as strongly favoring repeal of the state ad valorem tax levy and a Constitutional amendment putting teeth into the requirement for redistricting the state. The current soil conservation tour was outlined and various speakers urged that bankers and others give farmers every assistance in building up tax reserves and otherwise encouraging them in their farm production.

Ranger Jaycees Plan Tri-County Livestock Show

The Ranger Junior Chamber of Commerce has announced their plans to sponsor a Tri-County Livestock Show for Eastland, Stephens, and Palo Pinto Counties, on February 13 and 14, 1948. It is hoped that the residents of these counties will show sufficient interest in this affair to warrant its organization as an annual basis. Since Ranger is centrally located, almost in the corner of the three counties, the Ranger Jaycees have shouldered the responsibility of promoting and financing this show and sincerely covet the cooperation of every agricultural worker and livestock producer in this area. A catalog of rules, regulations, and premiums is now being prepared and will be supplied in the near future to every County Agent, Vocational Agriculture Teacher and resident who desires one.

Prison Inmates For Good Government

STILLWATER, Minn. (UP)—Minnesota state prison inmates, who are not eligible to vote, have predicted the re-election of Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl. The prison paper predicted that "in spite of gamblers, bookies and dealers in booze," Youngdahl would win by a comfortable margin. "When it comes to politics," the paper concluded, "iron bars do not a prison make."

BAPTISTS OUST PASTOR FROM CONVENTION

AMARILLO, Tex.—A tussle broke out on the floor of the Baptist General Convention today when a Fort Worth pastor tried to prevent Dr. Lewis Newton of Atlanta, Ga., from speaking. Rev. William Frazer of Fort Worth shouted from the floor that Newton should not be allowed to speak, charging that the Atlanta Baptist leader was "a friend of Stalin." Dr. Wallace Bassett of Dallas, presiding, had ruled shortly before the second day of the convention began, that there were to be no nominations or motions from the floor. As Frazer shouted, the audience of approximately 2,500 began singing a hymn to drown him out. There were loud voices above the din of "let him speak," and "throw him out."

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Half a dozen experts on the Marshall Plan were seated at the front of the room for the purpose of making a report on progress of the aid to Europe deliberations, now unofficially described as "Operation Survival."

The discussion was to be off the record, for background information only. Teams of American and European officials had been meeting behind closed doors all over Washington for the last couple weeks, so it was thought there might be something interesting, or even informative, to put out.

If, however, the reader reaches the end of the report contained in this column and finds himself woozy in the head and thoroughly confused, he should not worry. It will just be proof that he is normal.

For what came out of the conference was a lot of cliché and international gobbledegook that, in memory, sounded something like this:

It is easy to get diverted from our main objective, the first spokesman said. But that should not be allowed to becloud the issue. The fact that the 16 nations had been able to co-operate was the important historical aspect.

It would have to be understood at the beginning that there were four principal problems. First was to increase production. Second was to create financial stability. Third was to liberalize trade barriers. And fourth was the drafting of a preliminary report on requirements.

The problem would have to be worked at. It could not be mapped out in precise detail. It could not be looked at apart from the world picture.

While it would therefore be premature to state general conclusions, the overall objective was normality in the world of trade.

Conversations between the Europeans and Americans were at the present time informal, and at the technical level only.

The matter of resolving specifics had not yet been taken up. They could not be taken up until reports had been received from the Council of Economic Advisers and the Harriman Committee of 19.

Interdepartmental working groups were now considering various phases of the situation. It was understood they were all pulling together.

Responsibility had been put in the hands of a steering committee considering the problem in its dynamics.

Decision would have to be given to the fact that the problem was very complex in scope. Nevertheless, the solution would be made flexible. Every program would have to be analyzed before recommendations could be made to top-level authority.

There were two main considerations. First was availability. Second was impact.

Nothing had yet been firm-ed-up on availabilities. But in considering a less emphasis was being put on the dollar equivalents than on magnitude of requirements. They could only be blocked out, had to be emphasized that, at the technical level, the working committees did not constitute a negotiating body.

The impact of the program would have to be weighed by relating it to the world situation.

In the meantime, it could probably be assumed that every avenue being explored and—presumably—no stone was being left unturned as there was a meeting of minds around the table.

End of about an hour of this, it was pointed out to the expert secretary of State George Marshall had said the time for words passed, and now was the time for action. The expert agreed.

When the expert was asked if there was any one specific question at the Marshall Plan that he could answer. If there was, would please tell what this question was, so that it could be asked him? "Look," said the expert as he rose from his chair, "I have other things to do and I'm sure you have too."

This Is Happy

By PEGGY DERN

THE STORY: Happy Brandon had a job as secretary to Steve Landers, hard-bitten war correspondent and prophet of doom. Steve prefers working in Happy's one-room apartment to his own office. At a cocktail party, Happy meets George Harrell, southern aristocrat and gentleman farmer. Steve seems jealous when Harrell takes Happy to dinner. But Harrell's interest in Happy appears casual until the day he asks if he might bring his mother and sister to meet her. Happy tells Steve she is scared.

BEFORE noon the following morning, a florist's messenger arrived with a huge box filled with white and rose and lavender stocks, and a potted gardenia, white with blossoms, with here and there a small cone-shaped green-white bud. The card, of course, was George's. He had checked and bright-eyed. Happy arranged the stock in a low black bowl for the top of the bookcase; the gardenia went on the table.

A caterer's man brought in tiny sandwiches and beautifully iced cakes, and when Happy was dressed and ready for her tea party, she stood in the doorway and tried to imagine herself a stranger, getting a first glimpse of the room; and she had to admit that it was cheerful and cozy. Promptly at four-thirty the Harrells arrived. George, beaming at Happy in her simple green crepe frock, a matching ribbon in her hair, greeted her warmly. Beside him stood a woman not quite as tall as he, slender and gracious, with a delicately made-up face that gave the lie to her white hair, and a girl perhaps a year younger than Happy, blonde and plump, with a chubby young face.

Mrs. Harrell was pleasant, and Joyce was as gay and friendly as a puppy. When the guests had yielded up their wraps and were seated, Timmy made his entrance, so much on his best behavior that Happy eyed him fondly.

Tea was served; the first amenities had been disposed of and it was all going very nicely. Happy felt the stricture about her heart ease a little.

"I've been telling Happy that she should see Guale sometime," said George casually. "Why not?" answered Mrs. Harrell. Perhaps there was the faintest trace of rehearsal in the way they spoke their lines, but Happy was not disposed to notice it. "Why not come and spend a month with us, Miss Brandon?" Happy caught her breath and her eyes flew wide. She was speechless with surprise.

"Please do, Happy—goah, I don't want to call you Miss Brandon," said Joyce eagerly. "We could have fun. It's not bad at all at Guale in February." "You graceless imp! Guale, in February, is heaven!" said George sternly.

Mrs. Harrell laughed. "Mrs. Harrell thought, when I lived in New York, that February was the absolute last straw. I had grown so weary of winter, and it seemed so long. And then when my husband chose to retire and go down to Guale to live, I found February the very nicest month of the year. After the cold and the bleakness—" She shrugged lightly and put down her empty teacup. "We would be so happy if you could come, Miss Brandon—really."

"Please do, Happy!" begged Joyce. George said nothing, but his eyes added his own plea. Happy put up trembling hands and pushed the tumbled curls back from her face and laughed unsteadily. "It's—it's the loveliest invitation I've ever had. You're marvelous to ask me—I'd love it," she stammered.

Mrs. Harrell smiled warmly at her.

Shanghai Chauffeurs Fight Movie Slur

SHANGHAI (UP)—The local chauffeurs union has asked its membership to contribute 10,000 Chinese dollars apiece to hire a lawyer in a protest against the Hongkong-made motion picture, "Where Is Lady?"

It was the second manifestation in two months of tender feelings by a trade union which considered its occupation libeled by a movie. Barbers recently wrecked a local movie house and demanded that scenes showing a barber making ardent love to a feminine custo-

"Then that's all settled," said briskly. "Shall we all go down together? Joyce and I are leaving about the first—a few days earlier, if possible. You are going then, George?"

"I'll come down with Happy," he answered cheerfully. "And Timmy," he added.

HAPPY was hard at work retyping the final draft of his book when Steve arrived the next morning.

"How was the pink tea-fight?" he asked politely as he dropped into his favorite chair and stretched his long legs out.

"Oh, Steve, it was grand! They were so nice—" "Well, why shouldn't they be?" he snorted.

"They have invited me to spend a month at Guale," she said quietly.

"Oh, they have?" "Would you mind if I went?" Happy asked impulsively.

"It's what I have to do with it!" "Well, after all, there is a sort of rumor going around that you are my boss, that I work for you."

"Not for me, Happy—with me!" he snapped at her, and then went on curtly, "When were you planning on going?"

"They want me to spend February with them." "Oh, if you're going to be away from February on—"

"Only for the month of February." "You honestly think that once he's got you down there he'll ever let you get away again? Happy, your innocence would make the angels weep."

Happy's cheeks were scarlet, her eyes hot with resentment. "I was invited to spend February. I'm not 'the man who came to dinner' and stayed two years!" she flashed. "Of course I'll come back."

He nodded. "Well, it's possible, I suppose," he said carelessly. "My agent has been trying to get me to sign up for a lecture tour. I'll tell the bloke he can make it."

BULLDOGS LAND—

first down. A clipping penalty was called against the Loboes which set them back to the 48 yard stripe.
 Here the Loboes were forced to kick, kicking it over the goal and giving the ball to the Bulldogs on the 20. O. G. Lanier picked up a first down on line plays and Deaton grabbed a pass good for 25 yards. This was called back and the Bulldogs penalized to their own 15 for holding. A pass attempt failed and as Bobby Williams kicked, the Lobo line charged from all sides, blocking the punt and causing the ball to roll into the end zone. Bobby Williams recovered but it was a safety and Cisco led 2-0.

The Bulldogs' kick-off from their 20-yard line was returned all the way back to the Ranger 30. The Bulldog line held and the ball went over on their own 26 yard line. Lanier picked up another first down, cutting off right tackle and Williams picked up 4 yards but the Bulldogs were forced to punt as two other plays failed. Again the punt was blocked and the Loboes took over on the Bulldog 31 yard stripe.

The Ranger fans tried to help the Bulldogs on the next play but failed. As Cisco called time out they sent a hide-out player to the side lines. Fans tried to warn the Bulldogs but to no avail for the pass was good to him and to the 18 yard line. Here Williams stepped off left tackle and raced over for the score. Cleveland dropped the point and the score stood 9-0 as the half ended.

Ranger received the kick-off as the second half started. From their own 25, Williams and Lanier carried the ball for two first downs. Then a pass to Lanier was good for 15 yards and another first down. After Lanier picked up 4 yards, Wright tossed to Deaton on a quick pass play for the needed yardage, and the Bulldogs were on the Cisco 8 yard line with first and goal to go. After being dropped for a 10 yard loss, the Bulldogs were held and the ball went over on Cisco's 5 yard line.

In four plays the Loboes had another score, with Williams carrying the last 29 yards to go over. Cleveland again drop kicked for the point. The Bulldogs trailed 16-0 as the third quarter ended.

Another Ranger drive started from their own 30. A pass from Wright to Deaton brought them to the 46 where they were forced to punt. The ball rolled over the goal line so the Loboes took possession on their own 20. Langley, Bulldog guard playing good defensive ball, set Williams back on the first play. Then the Loboes again took over and again were opened holes for Cleveland and Williams to carry the ball to the Bulldogs' 35 before being stopped. The Bulldogs again took over and again were forced to kick.

From the Cisco 37, West received a beautiful pass from Stanley Williams and went all the way to score the last touchdown for the Loboes. The kick was no good and the game ended a few minutes later 22-0.

Pioneer Makes Traffic Gains

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 12—Continued traffic gains were registered during October by Pioneer Air Lines, Inc., it was revealed today in a report made public by Col. Robert J. Smith, president. The increased business trend which started in February, this year, has each month established new records for Pioneer in passengers and goods carried, he stated.

In announcing a new monthly passenger record of 7,513 persons flown a total of 1,850,923 revenue miles, Smith pointed out that also during October the fifty thousand mark in passengers served during the year was reached and surpassed. During the first ten months of 1947, a total of 51,199 ticket holders flew 13,508,376 revenue passenger miles, he said.

October air freight shipments reached a new high of 8,078 pounds and air express poundage mounted to 13,383, the report showed. Figures for air mail were not compiled as yet, according to Col. Smith, but were expected to also establish a new record.

Flight cancellations during the month brought the company operating factor down to 96.16 per cent of flights completed, which contrasts unfavorably with the 99.99 per cent operating factor of September and the 99.31 per cent completions in August flights Smith reported. He pointed out that still greater operating records would have been achieved during October had all schedules been completed.

29 Years Sees Great Change In El Paso Airport

EL PASO, Tex. (UP)—El Paso airport have changed considerably since a 16 year old soldier landed a Jenny airplane here on a dual cross-country flight 29 years ago.

Then, the soldier set the two-place plane on a level strip in the desert. Recently he landed a B-29 on a 7000-foot runway at Biggs Field.

He is Col. C. S. Irvine, assistant chief of staff of the Strategic Air Command from Washington, D. C. His passenger when he landed was Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug.

The B-29 was the Pascusan Dreamboat which Col. Irvine piloted from Hawaii over the north pole to Cairo last year.

Quaker Oats One Of Best, Cheapest

Though you serve one of America's finest breakfast cereals every day you'll not be called a spendthrift. The Quaker Oats Company revealed this week that, despite the continued rise in general food prices a serving of oatmeal still costs approximately one cent!

Scotsmen — appropriately enough — were the first to appreciate the economy and nut-toasty appeal of oats. Thrifty Highlanders enjoyed oatmeal and milk in all seasons of the year. From oatmeal they make "brose" or porridge, and "hannocks" or cakes. Americans — attracted by the rich whole-grain flavor of the nutritious cereal — in a nationwide survey have voted Quaker Oats best-tasting in the land.

Scientific discovery of vitality-protecting Vitamin B1, food-energy, protein, and iron has reassured Quaker Oats enthusiasts that their taste for the cereal is sound, in a health-wise way.

It has further been determined that — on a penny basis — oatmeal leads all common foods as the richest economical source of Vitamin B1; oatmeal leads as a rich thrifty source of protein and iron; and heads the list (except for cornmeal) as a rich and economical source of food energy. As a meat extender and as an ingredient in cookies, muffins, and cakes, the cereal has moved to fields beyond its use as a breakfast food; its versatility is largely attributed to improvement in the milling process during the past half century and to scientists' discoveries of vital food elements in oatmeal.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.
