Vandenbergh Makes Appeal For Aid Program

TRUMAN SAYS POLITICS HAS BAD EFFECT

KEY WEST, Fla.—President Truman today said presidential election year politics is having a very "bad" effect on the affairs of government in both domestic and international fields.

The President met with reporters here in his first news conference in more than two weeks.

In his comment on politics the President said he was not being critical of anyone in particular, but that it was impossible for certain candidates in the Senate to approach issues of the day without bias. He named no names.

Settlement of foreign and domestic affairs," he said, permitting direct quotation.

This comment resulted from questioning about his presumed candidacy for re-election.

Mr. Truman brushed aside the request for a statement about his re-election campaign, saying that he had been so busy lately with foreign and domestic problems that he had not had much time for politics.

He blamed presidential-year politics particularly for blocking the administration's housing program in Congress. He said the situation also made conduct of our foreign policy difficult.

Mr. Truman took a guarded viewpoint in discussing the recent revolt of southern Democrats against his civil rights program. He would not comment directly on the revolt, but expressed the opinion that every state has a perfect right to decide how to conduct its elections.

Legion Speaker Endorsed UMT At Eastland Meet

Strong endorsement of Universal military training and preparedness program for this country was given by George E. B. Peddy of Houston, principal speaker at the 17th District American Legion and Auxiliary convention held in Eastland Saturday and Sunday. Peddy spoke at the noon hour.

The next district convention will be held at Rising Star on June 5 and 6. At that time a successor to Vice-Commander C. L. Cofer of Cisco, who resigned Sunday, will be chosen.

Delegates to the Eastland meeting were given an opportunity to view Seymour Stone's painting of the "Typical Texas Fighting Man" which was unveiled recently at Grandbury.

District Commander P. C. Stacy of Stephenville presided at a 7:45 o'clock breakfast on the Connellee Hotel roof for post officers and service officers.

At 9:00 a.m. there was a joint meeting at the Eastland Legion Hall of the Legion and Auxiliary members.

Memorial and Church services were held at 11:45 at the Legion Hall with addresses by Rev. J. B. Blank and N. P. McCarnay.

A resolution was passed requesting the Texas Employment Service to re-open the employment office in Eastland only recently closed.

Judge V. T. Seaberry of Eastland acted as master of ceremonies at the noon meeting and luncheon. Others presiding at various meetings included Dulin-Daniel Post Commander D. J. Fiency, and District commander Stacy of Stephenville.

Attendance was upwards of 350, most of whom registered.

Sen. Lodge Blazing His Own Trail In U. S. Foreign Relations Policy

By Harry W. Frantz, United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON (UP)— Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Massachusetts Republican, is blazing his own trail on foreign policy, but not from any lack of respect for the celebrated grandfather whose name he bears.

The present senator is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and is taking a prominent part in examination of witnesses on the Marshall Plan. Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Sr., was chairman of the same committee in the fateful days when the Senate rejected the Versailles Treaty and the League of Nations Covenant.

Senator Lodge, Jr., does not see any logic in the public tendency to compare or contrast his international views and activities with those of the elder Lodge.

"My grandfather always tried to serve the vital interests of the United States, and that is what I am trying to do," he said when queried. "Of course, the national interests change through the years, and the problems of the present time are not the same as those after the first world war."

The senator said his grandfather had at times been politically "maligned," and that it was painful to him. He had many times tried to correct misrepresentation of his grandfather's attitude, especially in regard to the Senate fight on the League of Nations.

Senator Lodge, Jr., said that in the Senate debate on the League of Nations there were three schools of thought: first, the so-called "irreconcilables," who wanted no form of international arrangement; second, those who favored ratification of the treaty exactly in the terms submitted.

"The third school of thought was represented by those who favored ratification of the treaty with reservations," he continued.

"It was to this group that my grandfather belonged. The 'irreconcilables' wanted nothing to be ratified. The advocates of the League as presented also wanted nothing unless they could have the original draft."

Any reader of the debates will see that the partisans of all three schools of thought were earnest and in good faith.

"If you seek to personalize the blame for the United States not becoming a member of the League, you will have to overlook the fact that on March 19, 1920, 24 of the President's followers voted against ratification of the treaty with ratifications. If they had voted for ratification we would have become members of the League."

Senator Lodge Jr., takes the view that all Americans should learn "from the lessons of history." His own approach to foreign affairs has the background of a broad first-hand acquaintance with the world, derived from his earlier career as a journalist.

from military service in Africa and Europe, and special missions abroad while a member of the Senate.

Capitol observers who have known both of the Senators Lodge have noted common traits of political practicality, intense studiousness, and the rare ability for working equally well in committee or in floor debate.

Importers Stymied By Made In Japan

SEATTLE (UP)— The public seems to object only to one thing about Japanese goods. That is, "made in Japan."

That is the lament of Trulson & Sunderland, Seattle importers. They are of the post-war batch of American business men who have been granted a government permit to trade with Japan.

According to W. W. Trulson, one of the primary causes for the trickle of Japanese goods into this country and the apathy of the buyer is American memory. "That, and the Japanese memory."

Americans, apparently, haven't been able yet to call up memories of "Madame Butterfly" or cherry trees when they come across a "made in Japan" trade mark. Japanese exporters realize that, he said.

That is why Trulson & Sunderland confine themselves to raw materials like rapeseed because it's impossible to stamp.

The Japanese trade mark is not the only problem.

"Japan knows raw materials are her best bet, but she has enough to get started," Trulson said.

Trulson wants cotton rags from Japan in exchange for building materials. But where Japanese used to collect, wash, cut and bale worn-out cotton clothing for export before the war, now they still wear them.

Share The Alarm Clock Is Two Family Motto

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)— The McCoy's and the Tabors are so neighborly that they even share one alarm clock between families. Here's how it's done:

The McCoy's own the clock. The Tabors advise the McCoy's the night before what time they want to be awakened.

When the alarm rings, Mrs. Lillian McCoy reaches for a cord near the bed and gives a jerk. The other end of the cord is tied to a cowbell in the Tabor home.

ASSOCIATION LISTS FISH RODEO PRIZES

Around $1,000 in cash and sporting goods prizes will be given away each month by the Possum Kingdom Game and Fish Association, according to an announcement made today.

The fish rodeo will open March 1 and ten prizes will be given each month for the four largest bass caught, three largest crappie, largest catfish, largest gar and largest string of rough fish. The largest bass each month will be worth $200 or the equivalent.

To be eligible one must be a member of the association and have a membership card when the catch is made and the card presented to the closest dock owner for registration.

Memberships may be obtained from association directors in any city in the six county area around the lake. These towns include, Mineral Wells, Grafton, Jacobboro, Graham, Weatherford, Breckenridge, Ranger, Eastland, Strawn, Santo, Palo Pinto. Cards may also be purchased from any dock operator.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the association, a monthly publication of the association was approved and on publication will be sent to all members. The first issue will appear the first part of March. Mrs. Don Fyle has been named assistant secretary and publicity director and manager of the publication.

Final Rites For Irvin Allison Held This P. M.

Funeral services for W. I. (Irvin) Allison, 72, who passed away at his home in Eastland early Sunday morning following a long illness, were held at the Eastland Baptist church this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Interment was in the Bear Springs cemetery.

Rev. Joe Allison and Rev. Grady Allison, nephews of Mr. Allison, and students at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene, assisted by Rev. L. M. Chapman, pastor of the Eastland church, officiated.

Funeral arrangements were in charge of Hamner's Funeral Home of Eastland.

Pallbearers were nephews of the deceased.

William Irvin Allison was born near Ennis in Ellis county on July 3, 1875 and came with his parents to Eastland county on Dec. 6, 1876. He taught school for a number of years, then was appointed Eastland county auditor, being the first auditor for the county, which position he held for four years. For eight years he lived at Gladewater where he served as accountant and auditor for oil companies.

Allison married Miss Emma Baker of Carbon in 1908. They had one child, a daughter, who is Mrs. Mary Alice Swan of Truro, Iowa. Mrs. Allison died in 1912 and Allison later married Miss Mannie Wardlow who survives. Also surviving are two brothers and two sisters as follows: J. C. Allison of Eastland, Edwin and Miss Annie Allison of Bear Springs and Mrs. Stella Dingler of Rising Star. Four grandchildren and a number of nephews and nieces also survive.

WOULD HALT WORLD WAR III BEFORE IT STARTS

WASHINGTON — Senator Vandenberg urged the Senate today to approve the European recovery program and mass America's resources in a mighty effort to "halt World War III before it starts."

"It can be one hundred years in history for one hundred years to come," the Republican foreign policy leader told the Senate in opening debate on the 5-billion-300-million dollar bill.

"This legislation seeks peace and stability for free men in a free world," he said. "It seeks them by economic rather than military means . . ."

"It aims to preserve the victory we thought we won in World War II. It strives to help stop World War III before it starts."

In eloquent and hard-hitting language, Vandenberg said the nation faced a decision which might tip the scales between peace and war, prosperity and economic chaos.

As chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, he stoutly defended the concept of a 51-month self-help program for the 10 nations of Western Europe along with the first year expenditure of more than 5 billions.

He struck out at those who would slash the program, saying they threatened to slice off arbitrarily the difference between "success and still-born failure." He appealed for an appropriation that would leave "no abill for failure."

Somberly Vandenberg told the Senate that the vast spending plan was only a "calculated risk" made doubly difficult by the Soviet Union's "great sabotage . . . shockingly echoed by some of our own citizens."

But then he confronted the Senate with this challenge: "The greatest nation on earth either justifies or surrenders its leadership. We must choose. There are no blueprints to guarantee results."

Battleship Film To Be Shown Last Times Tonight

Today is the last opportunity to see the Battleship Texas short film being shown at the Arcadia. The film is being shown in connection with the current move on the part of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Texas to raise funds to build a berth for the ship at San Jacinto.

At the close of the showing of the film tonight members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will take a collection for the fund. A collection taken Sunday night netted the fund $25.85.

MOTHER, SON VICTIMS OF STORM BURIED

Funeral services for Mrs. Nancy Olive Suzanna Pace and her son, W. Chris Pace, both of Route 3, Ranger, were conducted Sunday morning at 10 o'clock at the Macedonia cemetery with Rev. Jasper C. Massenge, pastor of the Second Baptist church officiating. Interment was in the Macedonia cemetery and arrangements were by Morris Funeral Home.

Mrs. Pace died Saturday, February 28, 1948 at the West Texas Hospital in Ranger of injuries received Thursday night when her home was destroyed in a tornado that hit the Oakley community about 10:30 o'clock. Mr. Pace was killed in the same tornado.

Mrs. Pace was born in Mississippi on September 8, 1867 and had resided in or near Ranger for 60 years. She was married to Jim Pace in Texas at the age of 22.

She is survived by the following sons and daughters, Rhuel Pace, Bert Pace, Ray Pace, Rhuel Pace and Mrs. Cate McClain, Mrs. Rose Kennedy, Mrs. Goldie McCreary and Mrs. Bertha Langford. One brother, George Morris of Rule and two sisters, Mrs. Cate Morris of Route 3, Ranger and Mrs. Eva Russell of Lamesa, also survive.

Mr. Pace was born in Ranger April 16, 1902, and had resided in or near Ranger all of his life. He was unmarried and was a veteran of World War II.

Pallbearers were Homer Langford, Briece Langford, Gordon Langford, Clifford Goforth, Sterman Williamson, Coleman Brown and all of Ranger.

Safety Group Sets Strict Standards

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)—A motorist who becomes a member of Pennsylvania's new Safe Driver League promises to:

1. Drive within the legal speed limit and with regard to road and weather conditions.
2. Come to a complete stop at all stop signs.
3. Refrain from driving while drinking.
4. Pass only when it can be done legally and safely.

The league is sponsored by Gov. James H. Duff's Highway Safety Conference. Each member receives an automobile window sticker.

"Folkas" Enters Language

NORMAN, Okla. (UP)—The word "folkas" has been accepted by the dictionary after nearly 20 years of use as a colloquial expression. The term was coined by Dr. Ben A. Botkin, former University of Oklahoma professor. The dictionary defines "folkas" as informal verbal expressions such as proverbs and exclamations.

Rebellion Of South Spreading

WASHINGTON — Southern rebellion against President Truman's leadership spread today, causing dejected congressional Democrats to fear the election already is lost.

South Carolina is today's hot spot. The Democratic executive committee there met to consider means of withholding the state's electoral votes from Mr. Truman, assuming he is nominated on a civil rights platform. Some angry Democrats believe the nomination should be refused him.

House and Senate Democracy cloak rooms are gloomy caverns these days. Four out of almost any five Democratic congressmen will tell you the party is in bad shape. Wallace's third party is blasting Democratic progress in the industrial east and in California. And the solid south is beginning to substitute action for talk.

Trying One On For Size

President Bill Peock of the Cleveland Indians beams happily as he helps Hank Greenberg into a Cleveland uniform, after a conference in Phoenix, Arizona, with the former Detroit Tigers and Pittsburgh Pirates slugger. Although Greenberg did not sign a contract, Peock said the baseball star will be with the Indians "in some capacity" this season—either as a coach-player or just a coach. (NEA Telephoto).

Finnish Leaders Study Reply To Russia's Request

HELSINKI — Finland's top government and parliamentary officials met today in a momentous round of conferences to decide how to reply to a Russian request for a military alliance.

President Paasikivi met Premier Pekkala, together with political and military leaders, probably to draft a preliminary reply to Premier Stalin's proposal for a Soviet-Finnish pact.

The matter will go before parliament tomorrow. Responsible quarters believed the Finnish leaders were preparing today at least an outline of a proposed answer to Moscow.

Predictions were made freely in responsible quarters that Finland would send a delegation to Moscow in response to Stalin's invitation.

Pekkala was understood to have recommended that Finland agree to negotiate with Russia.

Snyder Against Income Tax Cut

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary Snyder today opposed tax reduction now because it involves "serious consequences" for domestic prosperity and world peace.

Opening the administration's fight in the Senate against the House approved 6-billion-500-million dollar income tax slash, Snyder said it would raise prices, be of little or no help to lower income groups and create a deficit next year.

He said postponement of tax reduction "requires an unusual measure of self-denial, but this is no time to lower government revenue."

Snyder's views were contained in a statement to the Senate finance committee which opened hearings on the bill.

He reiterated in a large part his testimony given previously to the tax-writing House ways and means committee. His testimony carried little weight there. The Senate, however, was expected to set its target on reducing the over-all slash to about 4-billion dollars.

Showers Threat To Swollen East Texas Rivers

Scattered showers and thunder storms today threatened to send already swollen East Texas rivers and streams further out of banks with the probable result of thousands of dollars of additional property damage.

Clouds hovered over the entire state except the extreme southwest. Although precipitation had been generally light, a cool front approaching from the west was expected to cause heavy rainfall on making contact with the warm mass of air which has prevailed the last several days.

A torrential hour-long down pour in Dallas added to the load of the already flooding Trinity. The rain sent a flash flood swirling through a group of business houses in the Fair Park section of the city.

Texas Featured This Week At Public Library

In keeping with the observance of Texas Week at the Community Public Library, Texas books by Texas authors are being featured this week.

Special attention is called to the following books new in the Texas section of the library: Texas Republic, by William Hooper; Texas-Lone Star State by Rupert N. Richardson; Texas Yesterday and Tomorrow by Steve Wilhelm; For God and Texas-Life of P. H. Hill by Green Peyton; Texas, C. S. A. by James Farber; Texas Reader-1947-1948; The Alma by John Myers; Cub Reporter by Boyce House and Aubrey Jones; Last President of Texas by Herbert Gambrel.

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock an exhibit of posters made by school children for the membership contest will go on display and the public is invited to attend and view the work of the students. The contest is being sponsored by the library board. Subject for the posters is Texas and the award will be a membership in the library to the winner of the contest.

Wallace Directs Appeal To Discontented Minorities

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Henry Wallace's latest political adventure is shaping up as the offer of a cure-all for every thwarted and discontented minority element in the United States. His third party platform won't be formally adopted until its April convention. But the objectives stated at the Chicago Progressive Citizens' of America conference last month give the clue. The dollar-an-hour minimum wage request is an appeal to the underpaid. The demand for price rollbacks and curbs on inflation is an appeal to every family bucking the high cost of living. Abolition of the poll tax and Jim Crowism, plus demand for passage of anti-lynch laws and fair employment practices, is an appeal to the colored races. Repeal of the Taft-Hartley law is an appeal to labor. Death for the Un-American Activities Committee is a bid for liberals. Stopping the universal military training program is an appeal to conscientious objectors. Banning use of the atomic bomb is an appeal to pacifists. Furnishing arms to Palestine is an appeal to militant Zionists. Abandoning the Marshall Plan is the line taken by American isolationists. The whole foreign policy program follows the Communist line—ending the Truman doctrine of aid to Greece and Turkey, stopping further aid to Nationalist China.

SOME of the objectives on this list may be found in Democratic or Republican policy statements. Lumping them all together shows that the Wallace platform is an attempt to offer something for every unhappy or misfit individual in the country.

This effort to reach the underprivileged may be a deliberate effort of the Wallace organizers. They think their campaign is going to be financed by the dimes and quarters of the "forgotten" men.

At the recent PCA meeting in Chicago, the "forgotten" men of California came into headquarters and laid down $240 as his campaign contribution. As his train came east, he had collected it from Pullman porters, waiters and fellow-passengers in rallies held in the dining car after meal hours.

PRIME exhibit of Wallace leadership, however, is Rex Tugwell, ex-New Deal brainiac, ex-Governor of Puerto Rico, now a University of Chicago professor.

Tugwell has been a leading spirit in both PCA and Americans for Democratic Action, the Wilson Wyatt-Leon Henderson group of anti-Communist but liberal Democrats. Recently, Henderson wrote Tugwell, inviting him to the Philadelphia ADA convention. Tugwell declined and withdrew from ADA.

"I can agree with most of what Mr. Truman says: I look agast at what his administration does. So, I think, must any realistic liberal," he wrote to Henderson.

"In contrast, Henry Wallace has spoken with increasing strength and clarity. . . . He has persuaded me that he is the genuine embodiment of the tradition I value above all: that American hatred of exploitation and concern for the common man which has always had some champion no matter what the cost to himself.

"Henry Wallace is against war and the policy which leads to war. To say this is an assessment of Russia is deliberately to refuse to see the distinction between an invincible friendship for the Russian people in an inclusive world-neighborness—and a cowering before the threat of force. . . .

"The only step beyond that is war. . . . we cannot have a war. If we do, the human race is through. In the face of all this I must support the only great voice now being lifted for friendship to all men and against the exploitation of any. . . ."

SPORTS

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Mrs. Gretchen Fraser, the first American ever to win an Olympic skiing championship against Europe's masters, says she learned to ski as fast as a man in order to keep up with her husband, Don.

Fraser, a staff member of the Sun Valley, Ida., Ski Club, smiles somewhat wryly. He remembers that last winter, after his pretty missus had tacked up the last of her 17 national titles to become the top qualifier for the U. S. women's Winter Olympics team, he said to her: "You had better stop going so fast. For the first time you are going so fast that I can't keep up with you. Be more careful."

Disaster gave Mrs. Fraser a close brush two weeks before the races at St. Moritz, Switzerland. She was chasing a steep run far from the mountain village when she rounded a curve and found her path blocked by a horse-drawn sleigh crossing the right-of-way. She hurtled off the trail, fell some 50 feet through underbrush as she sought to check her speed. She succeeded barely in time to avert a serious fall.

WHEN Mrs. Fraser faced the Olympics starting gate she wore a four-leaf clover pin given her by her husband.

Mrs. Fraser's answer to her instructor husband's warning against dangerous speed was a cheerful negative shake of the head. She trained at Sun Valley harder than ever. There was day after day of improving her technique, sometimes with an instructor along to pick out minor flaws, at other times working out with her friend, Mrs. Kathleen Harriman Mortimer, daughter of Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman.

In the evening the 28-year-old Mrs. Fraser's now famous pigtail was pinned up into a trim tiana, and she donned leotard clothes at the resort and relaxed with other guests.

Largely self-taught at the outset, Mrs. Fraser, blonde pigtail flashing in the sunlight, just as they did when she twisted and chucked her way to the smashing victory in the Olympic cross-country slalom, competed against both girls and boys before she finished high school.

Those were the days of skiing's earliest development in this country, before leading ski areas had been built. Racers lined up, much as in a track meet, hurtled down slopes pell-mell.

Neighborhood victories were behind her when Gretchen first went to Sun Valley's open slopes as a girl of 17 in 1936. It was there that she met Don Fraser, a member of the 1936 Olympic team, who later became her husband.

OFFICE Nurse

By Adelaide Humphries

THE STORY: Janice Hilary, pretty, efficient young nurse to popular and handsome society doctor Eric Holbrook, runs his office for him. Eric and Janice have fallen in love—although Eric already has a wife (and is away) and Janice has a boy-friend (Ben Archer). They continue on formal terms with each other at the office, meeting in out-of-the-way restaurants when they want to be alone together. They both know things can't go on this way indefinitely but put off doing anything about it.

XVI

JANICE, too, had to take care to guard their secret—hers and Eric's. She wondered, looking into her mirror, why it was not painted on her face for the whole world to see. It was impossible that she should continue to look exactly the same. All that was bottled up inside ought to rise to the surface and break through.

Sometimes she thought certain people—her mother, whose mild blue eyes were remarkably keen, Miss Willows, whose long nose could pick out anything amiss like a bloodhound on a trail, Ben—But she was not going to think of Benny yet, either. Sometimes she thought these persons did glance at her oddly. Perhaps they sensed a difference in her that they could not see.

As one day, a long idle Sunday when Eric had had to go somewhere on Long Island, her mother had suddenly asked Janice if she were feeling well.

"Why, of course, darling," Janice's answer may have come too hastily, too heartily. "Why shouldn't I be? I never felt better in all my life."

"Yes, I guess that's so," Mrs. Hilary spoke in a guarded tone, and her glance, resting on her daughter's flushed face, was searching, unsatisfied. "You do look well, very well indeed. But you've been working so hard, dear—after hours and even evenings." Janice had not always said she was working when she had called up to say she would not be home until late, but she had given that impression. "You can't keep on, you know, dear." Her mother's tone was as mild as her blue eyes, yet there was an urgency about it. "It will get the best of you in the long run. It will sap your youth, your strength. And, of course, Janice, you won't want to keep on working all your life."

"WELL, no—hardly!" Janice's laugh was rather forced. She thought, Now what is Mother driving at? What does she think is wrong with me that she must step in and try to remedy? It was wonderful having a mother like hers, but it could be trying. Janice had never thought that before. She had never had anything to hide from her mother before, either.

"You'll want to be married one of these days." This remark had a casual, innocent sound but there was much that was not casual or innocent behind it.

"What makes you think that?" Janice was glad that she was occupied mending some winter things.

"Why shouldn't I think it?" Mrs. Hilary deposited herself on the edge of Janice's clothing-strewn bed with an air that stated she had no intention of being dismissed because her daughter was so busy. "What girl does not want to be married? I certainly did."

Janice smiled. Her mother was so obvious. But why was she worried? Janice did not consider herself resigned to single blessedness at her age. At least she had not, but now—No, that was the kind of thinking she and Eric had forbidden themselves. Who could tell what the future would bring? Who wanted to know, with the present so perfect?

YET afterwards Janice was to mark the conversation on this particular Sunday as the beginning of the end of that perfection. She had known it could not endure forever. That was why she and Eric had shielded it so carefully.

"We want you to be happy, dear." Her mother's voice was unusually gentle.

"Of course," Janice answered. I am happy, she told herself. I am terribly, unbelievably happy because I have Eric and his love.

It cannot last. She did not really have him. He did not belong to her. It was inconceivable that he ever would.

I am in love with a married man. There, she had said it to herself. It was a fact. It was such a hard fact it could not be pushed into the background. Janice experienced a deep dismay, an utter wretchedness that had nothing to do with the happiness she had just claimed was hers.

We rather hoped, your father and I, her mother was saying in a voice that seemed far away, "that you might marry Ben. He is such a nice boy. I know, dear, that it's not supposed to be our business, and we don't want to interfere, but as I said, all we want is your happiness. We want that very much."

"I'm fond of Benny," Janice heard herself answering, "but I don't love him."

"How can you be so sure?" her mother asked. Her eyes, her tone, added. How do you, my daughter, know so much about love unless you have found it?

Janice hoped her eyes did not give her away. "I'm as sure as anyone could be." She knew her tone was too light, almost frivolous.

Her mother gave a little sigh. She got up from the bed and put an arm around her daughter's straight shoulders. She brushed Janice's cheek with her lips; a feeling came, yet it turned Janice's heart over, and brought tears to her eyes and a lump to her throat.

And after her mother left the room, Janice sank down on the bed and covered her face with her hands.

Has Glass Arms
NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP)—David Popplewell admitted that his business of breaking his arm every year is getting tiresome. The youth broke his left arm in an accident in 1946. He fell down at school in 1947 and broke his right arm. With 1948 barely underway, he already has broken his right arm again.

Diversity in All
COLUMBUS, Ind. (UP)—The county jail was turned into a wading pool and an ice skating rink in quick succession. Pipes burst and filled a cell knee deep with water. Deputy Sheriff Earl Hog- an opened a door to let the water out, but cold air from sub-zero temperatures quickly sheathed the cell floor with ice.

Denounces America for Russian Love

Annabelle Bucar, left, 33, of Clairton Pa., resigned her position from the U. S. Embassy in Moscow and renounced her American citizenship for the Russian operetta singer, Konstantine Lapkin, she secretly married 13 months ago. She said the Russians are "fine people" and that she is convinced American foreign policy "is directed against these people." Later, on his 500-acre farm in Clairton, Ivan Bucar, right who came here from Austria at the age of 15, disowned his daughter after reading newspaper accounts of her action. Annabelle is the eldest of his 12 children. (NEA Telephoto)

Post-War Issues Make Diplomats Working Men

By Donald J. Gonzales
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The teapanning, top-hatted, striped-trousered, cane-twirling men who formerly handled international affairs are on the way out. Their successors are diplomats trained in the problems of food, fuel, fiber, and fertilizer.

The change has been rapid since the end of World War II. It has been brought about chiefly by austere world conditions which rule out most of the pre-war diplomatic customs, and have cut down on lavish banquets and cocktail parties.

liquor budgets. Daily duties of State Department officials have undergone similar changes. Nowadays, they receive more callers and notes concerning food allocations than treaties.

In a routine day, a department officer may meet up with the problem of recommending the number of whales that might be caught in the Antarctic during the next whaling season, or:

What are the proper cost-of-living allowances for American embassy personnel in Moscow now that the ruble rate has been altered?

Should tobacco be shipped to Western Europe as an "incentive" commodity under the Marshall Plan?

What would be a fair proportion between the United States and India for shipment of raw cotton to Japan under present controlled trade conditions?

And, should French demands for coal be filled before Italy's? If any one post-war date could be set as the one which contributed most to the changed approach to diplomacy, it probably would be June 5, 1947. Secretary of the State George C. Marshall on that date made his now-famous suggestion that European countries get together to figure out their aid requirements.

The "figuring" on economic matters consumed thousands of man hours in Europe. But that effort has been far eclipsed by planning on this side of the Atlantic.

First, the interim aid program had to be drafted by the State Department and other governmental agencies. Second, work had to be started on the 51-month, $17,000,000,000 Marshall Plan.

The projects threw out any eight-hour day, five-day week that might have been in effect. Lights

The Wrong Way to Economize-

... is neglecting to do certain necessary things at the proper time. One of these we observe day after day is failure on the part of purchasers of farms and town properties to file their deed, releases and other important legal documents with the County Clerk when the sale is completed. "Heartsease"

By Elsie Glenn

FOR THE SAKE OF ALL BRAVE BEAUTY PAST

You and I know absolutely nothing about our real selves. Did you know that? If we actually know so little of our friends, of other people, what can we really know of ourselves?

I say to you that you are a stranger to yourself.

There are some things we know, of course. We know how other people look, we know whether he has good manners or bad; we know whether we respect him, whether we like him, whether we love him.

But what do we actually know about him? What do we actually know about ourselves?

Practically nothing.

The veil that separates the conscious from the unconscious is indeed thin, yet completely impenetrable.

Have you ever had the experience of looking into the mirror at yourself and suddenly feeling that you are a stranger? Have you ever been sitting talking to your friend, to someone you love, and have the strange feeling that you do not know this person? Do you ever feel the magic contained in someone else... the magic that excites you, startles you... almost frightens you?

Of course you have. And mightily quickly you try to forget it.

It's something unknown to you. Human beings fear the unknown.

But I can't tell you that you are a stranger to yourself and that those you love are strangers to you.

Could it be that when this life,

Former Resident Married Recently

Word has been received here of the marriage in Meadville, Pennsylvania of Miss Blanche Eltringham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Eltringham of Saegertown, Pa., and Cecil E. Neal. Mr. Neal is the nephew of Mrs. Homer V. Hodges of Ranger.

The ceremony was performed February 25 at 7 p. m. in the Stone Methodist Church by the pastor, Dr. Albert Marriott. Only members of the families were present.

The bride wore a basque suit of grey crepe and an orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony a dinner was held in the home of the groom's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lamb, after which the couple left on a wedding trip to Pittsburgh. They will make their home in Saegertown.

Mr. Neal is a veteran of World War II, having spent five years in India. He made his home in Ranger with his brother, Ellie Neal, until a month ago.

Royal Marines To Play At FDR London Unveiling

LONDON (UP)—The Franklin Roosevelt Memorial Committee announced that the Royal Marines will furnish the guard and the band for the unveiling of the Roosevelt Memorial in Grosvenor Square April 12.

The Marines were chosen because of the late President's naval associations, the committee said. The choir from St. Paul's cathedral also will participate and the benediction will be pronounced by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

It already has been announced that Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will unveil the memorial, with the King and queen present.

Hand Grenades were used by U. S. Marines who served under John Paul Jones during the Revolution.

Japanese Going For Tourist's Trade

TOKYO (UP)—Japan wants to throw open her resort facilities to tourists this summer and is preparing a detailed plan for submission to Allied Headquarters.

Japan badly needs the foreign credits such trade would bring. The Japanese government will ask that a special rate of exchange be established to apply to the tourist trade.

TAKE A LOOK AT YOUR INSIDES

bad taste in your mouth, your coffee (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you; you may have heartburn, gas and daisy spells, you may be troubled with belching; at night the gas in your bowels may press upon your bladder making you get up frequently, thus breaking into your sleep.

In the morning you are tired instead of refreshed. Gradually your health is impaired.

Your complexion may become sallow or bilious; dark rings may appear under your eyes, you may feel gay, dull and irritable or blue and melancholic. You may have frequent colds ("intestinal toxemia" or "acute gastritis" as many doctors call it).

HOW TO GET RELIEF

You can relieve this condition usually overnight, by taking Calotabs at bedtime and drinking water, freely, next day.

The beneficial effects of Calotabs lie in the fact that they are (1) laxative, (2) antiseptic to the intestines, (3) diuretic to the kidneys. (4) Effective in relieving symptoms of biliousness and acute gastritis due to constipation or faulty digestion.

Calotabs are pleasant to take (sugar coated), prompt and effective. Try them and see. Follow label directions. At your druggist's.
