Red Hand in Bogota Revolt Poses Baffling Mystery

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—How much the Communists had to do with the Bogota, Colombia, uprising that nearly broke up the Pan-American Conference is a moot point. The answers aren't simple. Washington intelligence reports on the Communist movement within Colombia reveal wheels within wheels in complex labor-political deals that almost defy analysis.

The organized labor movement got its start in Colombia about 1910. Communism came some 15 to 20 years later. It was a native-born movement. Evidence of foreign leadership is almost completely lacking. Even today there is not yet positive identification for the 12 or 15 foreign agents supposed to have been seized in the Bogota riots.

As in all countries, communism spread through the labor movement. There was a big strike among banana workers in 1928. Seven years later there was another big strike among petroleum workers. Both had some Communist leadership and both were put down by pretty severe application of force. That only made communism gain strength.

The first national Confederation of Labor was formed in 1938. Communists, now dominant in the railway, river, highway and petroleum workers' unions, have been in and out of the confederation many times. They were out in 1946, back in 1947 when in a big deal the leadership was divided between the Communists and the followers of Jorge Gaitan, the Liberal Party's virtual dictator, whose assassination led to the recent Bogota uprising. There is no evidence Gaitan was ever a Communist. But he was leader of a rowdy element in the labor unions.

The Colombian labor movement is now split along a new line. Gaitan followers and Communists are in the old confederation (CTC) which has 150,000 members. Its rival is the United Workers (UTC) which claims about 100,000 members. It is more conservative and is supposed to have inspiration and leadership from the Catholic Church, which has been active in winning workers away from communism.

The Communist Party (PCO). The new wing is the Colombian Workers' Party (PCO). Both wings together have about 400 members.

The highest Communist Party vote was 27,000 in 1945. In the municipal elections of 1946 the Communists polled less than 8000, as against 738,000 Liberals and 571,000 Conservatives.

At one time the Communists had six elected members of Congress. This was cut in half after the war. In 1947 the Communists lost all their seats in Congress. Their daily paper had gone bust. It was generally felt that their influence was decreasing.

The Conservative Party won the 1946 election because Gaitan had refused to support the Liberal candidate. This brought on a split in the Liberal Party, but the Gaitan faction was stronger than the orthodox Liberals. Gaitan had already been designated Liberal candidate for the presidential elections of 1950. Because of his strong labor support, he had a good chance of winning.

On the basis of circumstantial evidence alone, all these factors make it seem improbable that Gaitan was killed by a Communist, though he had Communist as well as Conservative enemies.

In Labor Confederation meetings before the Bogota Conference opened, Gaitan had opposed doing anything to embarrass Pan-American proceedings. The Communists had apparently wanted to follow such a course. As soon as Gaitan was slain, they did.

After the killing the rioters did not attack the Presidential Palace nor the Conservative Party headquarters as their first targets. Instead they went after the Capitol where Pan-American meetings were being held. Then they attacked American headquarters. And they looted the churches, the Archbishop's palace, and the church schools and convents which are always special points of Communist attack. They left their unmistakable proof of guilt there.

With Material Galore, Today's Baseball Problem Is Quality

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Spring is the best time to visit and sell baseball men.

Coming back for a fresh deal, all hands are certain they'll finish in the first division.

"I suppose I was that way when head of the Columbus club," says president-treasurer George McNeill Trautman of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, which is a whole of a name for the minors.

George Trautman ran the Cardinals' American Association farm, you see, prior to becoming president of that Triple A circuit. He was general manager of the Detroit Tigers before succeeding Judge William G. Branham as czar of the little fellows.

Red Trautman visited 19 of his leagues, most of them in the south and southwest, this spring. The 38 wheels now under his supervision is the largest number ever to campaign in the minors.

Trautman is not concerned about expanding further. He is more or less opposed to it, as a matter of fact. He takes the stand that there are enough clubs and leagues, and that his organization should stabilize what it has.

STARTING his second year as chief mogul of the minors, Trautman is bubbling over with ideas. His innovations include an annual mid-winter school for executives, a systemized operation of his organization's national convention and a pre-season clinic for umpires. Four supervisors advising umpires will roam the minors this year.

Trautman has had a booklet distributed among the executives of his many clubs. It contains hints and suggests stunts calculated to improve attendance, especially when a club is losing.

With a record number minor leagues in operation, some might suspect that there would not be enough playing material to go around, but not Trautman.

There may be a shortage of major league quality, but quantity poses no problem.

"There are plenty of players," stresses Trautman. "One baseball school alone last winter was forced to reject 2700 applications because it had a capacity of only 300."

Trautman, incidentally, may have played a part in Sen. John W. Bricker's selection of a political life. Trautman did not turn his attention to the executive side of organized baseball until he flunked out as a pitcher, and Bricker was his highly capable battery mate at Ohio State.

Every time scouts appeared to inspect Bricker, Trautman was so wild that it was impossible for the foxy foragers to properly appraise the catcher's possibilities.

Thus it was that both went on to bigger things, and George Trautman's name has been prominently mentioned as baseball's next high commissioner.

Young Police Helpers Gang Up On Suspect

MONESSEN, Pa. (UP)—The police of this community received a concrete dividend on the time and effort they put into formation of the Police Midget Athletic League.

Stanley Szezyk might be a free man, instead of going to jail charged with stealing a $150 box of tools, had it not been for boy members of the league.

Four boys, spotting Szezyk fleeing down an alley, ran after him. Attracted by their shouts, other youths joined the chase and soon cornered him. Then the boys about 50 strong by this time, surrounded Szezyk until police arrived.

rounded Szezyk until police arrived.

THE STORY: Patience Mond, newly brought up by two maiden aunts, is in love with Paul Taylor, whom her aunts have forbidden her to see because they have never been properly introduced. Charlotte, Patience's twin sister whom she has not seen since childhood, is a stage star rehearsing a show in London. She invites Patience up to spend a day with her, dresses her smartly from her own wardrobe, Patience meets Roger Dickson, popular actor and Charlotte's boyfriend. Roger is attracted to Patience, says he is going to see her again. On the way home, Patience stops in a lane to rub off her makeup before facing her aunts when Paul comes upon her. He looks out at her for changing. He wishes to know who her Bucky friends were who put her on the train, insists she is still in love with him (Paul). Patience slaps him, goes home in tears.

Peggy made up her face and reached for her hat. She was still full of him as they emerged from the cloakroom.

"I'm really in love this time, Patience."

"That's what you said less than a month ago."

"Ah, but this is different. One can always tell. He really is wonderful. He's a bit like Roger Dickson. You know. The musical comedy star."

IT was at that moment that Patience saw him. He was standing on the opposite side of the road watching the girls troop out of the academy. Peggy and she were still far back in the doorway and she knew he hadn't yet seen her. Her heart shook. On an impulse she grabbed Peggy by the arm. "Let's go out the back way. It's nearer."

Peggy allowed herself to be turned around. Though she couldn't think why Patience should say the back entrance was nearer. Still so long as she could talk about Jimmy. . . .

Patience found Roger had been inquiring for her when she returned to the academy. A girl in her class rushed up to her. "Do you know who's been asking for you?"

"Who?" asked Patience, knowing perfectly well.

"Roger Dickson! Gosh, I nearly dropped dead when I saw him. Fancy you knowing him!"

Peggy stared at her.

"Why Patience, you dark horse! I told you Jimmy was like him and you didn't say you knew him."

The girls looked at her with new interest. Little Patience Mond with a matinee idol trailing after her. Roger Dickson, too, of all people!

Patience was aware of their eyes on her as the afternoon progressed.

Girls who'd hitherto not noticed her seemed now only too ready to be friendly. She supposed they were hoping that one day Roger would be again waiting there outside the academy, and that she'd introduce him to them.

But he didn't come any more.

A FORTNIGHT slipped by and one morning there was a letter from Charlotte beside her breakfast plate.

She opened and read it, her heart racing. Charlotte wrote to say that the first night of the new show was the following Wednesday. "Darling, you must come. There's going to be a party on the stage afterwards. I know you'll enjoy it. Roger suggests you go with him and says he'll pick you up here at the flat. Yes, I'm in a flat of my own now. I've taken it furnished and it's terribly nice. I want you to come and stay here often. But first let's get the opening night over. I'm writing to Aunt Helen by this post asking her to let you come. It's a bit of a goo-goo letter, full of how I promise to look after you. . . ."

There was a postscript to the effect that Charlotte would leave an evening dress out for her. Her maid, Elizabeth, would be there and would help her to get ready. She herself would be at the theater.

Patience glanced at her Aunt Helen. She'd not opened Charlotte's letter yet. It was next on the little pile beside her plate. And now she was reaching for it. Patience sent up a silent prayer. "I've a letter here from Charlotte, Patience; she wants you to go to the opening performance of her new show."

"I know. She's written to me, too."

"I expect you'd like to, wouldn't you?"

"Oh yes, indeed I would. She suggests I stay the night with her."

"Yes, she tells me."

"Patience's breath caught in her throat."

"I may go, mayn't I, Aunt Helen?"

"Yes, child. I see no reason why you shouldn't," her Aunt Helen miraculously replied.

Comb South Seas For U. S. Dead

SAIPAN, Marianas Islands (UP) — American soldiers with rifles at the ready are still wading ashore on Pacific islands. They are looking for dead Americans but fear that they will find live Japanese.

A search is being conducted by a unit of 55 men under Capt. Arthur A. Arena, San Francisco. He is concentrating just now on the tiny islands that are scattered like grain between the wartime B-29 base of Tinian and the Japanese empire. Crippled bombers struggling to get back to Tinian often crashed and burned on the islands. The bodies of the crew were never found. Sometimes aerial pictures made at the time showed the site of the crash. The pictures, along with all other possible data, are carried by the search team as it goes ashore. The troops land in battle formation just in case they meet Japanese. Japanese soldiers who have lived in the jungle for four years have been sighted on several of the islands, but so far they have done nothing but keep out of the way. The main scattered area, an area of 180,000 square miles, will take another year to complete. Meanwhile, other American soldiers, aided by civilians, are removing the bodies from island cemeteries for reburial in Honolulu, if relatives desire, in the United States. So far, the remains of 3,264 service men have been removed from Saipan alone and sent to the United States. Thousands more are to go.

Pedant Disapproves Romantic Love.

COLUMBUS, O. (UP)—Romantic love and "the free choice system of mate selection" would be banned if an Ohio State University professor had his way.

Dr. A. R. Mangus, professor of rural sociology, however, leaves open the question of what he would put in its place.

"The free choice system of mate selection no longer works well," Dr. Mangus said. "In our mobile society it brings together China has only one-half acre, an India, one-third.

In 100 years, with the world's population doubled and granting that no more land is lost to erosion and other causes, there will be an average of only one acre per person in the world.

The United States is now in a comparatively enviable position. Bennett added, with a little more than three acres available for each of its 145,000,000 inhabitants.

But even here, he warned, the situation is growing worse each year. "In the last 150 years—half or more of our American farmlands has been damaged, chiefly by erosion," he said.

"Originally the topsoil in this country was nine inches deep. Now it is six inches deep," he added. About 460,000,000 acres of erodible land, almost all of it subject to erosion, flood, and windstorm. The population is expected to continue increasing creating a demand for 8,000,000 new acres of land every year.

"If it is assumed the same rate of population increase continues even for the next few decades," he warned, "we may be even closer to the danger line than we think."

Bennett said the only possibility of the difficulty is immediate, comprehensive crop and soil conservation measures: contour cultivation strip cropping, planting grass on steep land, drainage of low lands, irrigation of dry lands, and all the other modern means of preventive conservation.

"It will do no harm at this critical period in our history," he declared, "to ask ourselves if the world could feed the 2,000,000,000 more people it will have in another 10 years at the present rate of increase."

Erosion, Bennett pointed out already ranks among the top world causes of malnutrition hunger and famine.

Japan, among other nations, is already in the dire straits the whole world might someday meet, he said. In Japan there is only about one-fourth of an acre per person to feed the population.

Says Starvation Threatens World Unless Loss Of Soil Is Prevented

By James J. Murphy
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The Chief of the United States government soil conservation service believes the United States—and the world—will begin literally to starve to death within 100 years unless human beings take better care of their soil.

Dr. Hugh Bennett, soil conservation director, told a luncheon here that only about 4,000,000 acres of land in the world are available for farming right now.

The world population is now a little more than 2,000,000,000, providing an overall average of about two acres to feed every person.

But, Dr. Bennett pointed out, nutritionists have discovered it takes almost three acres to provide enough food for a "minimum nutritional diet." To add to the already unbalanced situation, he said, world population is increasing at about one per cent per year and available land is being constantly worn away by erosion wasteful plowing methods, and inadequate care.

Japan, among other nations, is already in the dire straits the whole world might someday meet, he said. In Japan there is only about one-fourth of an acre per person to feed the population.

Pet Deer Takes Care Of All Party Left-Overs

CHARDON, O. (UP)—Mrs. Margaret Mascorella finds party leftovers little trouble, for her daughter's pet deer has an appetite like a goat.

Skeeter, the one-year-old pet of Miss Nadaleen Mascorella, is fond of pickles, ice cream, cigarette ashes, olives and cake. Mrs. Mascorella is careful to keep her begonia plants on a high shelf, because Skeeter also loves flowers. The deer follows his 21-year-old mistress all around the house. Skeeter eats off the dining room table, wanders up and down stairs and peers inquiringly into the kitchen at meal time.

Skeeter is a strain on guests who are nervous and frightened to find a full-grown deer staring soulfully at them from a curled up position in front of the fireplace.

Cotton Growers Expected To Export Problems

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UP) — Cotton growers, especially those in Texas, should learn some of the answers this summer to questions involved in the export of southern cotton to far eastern markets. The answers are expected to be supplied by Dr. Ide F. Trotter, director of the Texas Extension Service and the man selected by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to tour the orient with a check list in his hand, asking questions. From Dr. Trotter's efforts, southern growers should know something about the amount, the kind and the staple length of the cotton to grow in Texas and the South. Twice Trotter turned down the Agricultural Department's request for his services. The third time, urged by President Gil Gilchrist of Texas A&M and D. W. Williams, vice-president for agriculture at the school, he said yes. "I find it almost impossible to take so much time away from the office to make this trip," Trotter said, "but wouldn't it be rather embarrassing to have somebody from one of the other southern states make the trip to find out about the foreign markets for Texas cotton?" The extension head left College Station March 13 for Washington, D. C., where he was briefed for the trip. He will leave for the Orient about the first of April and the schedule calls for stops in Japan, China, India and Pakistan. Trotter says, however, that it probably will be a round-the-world trip because his survey will end in

The Innocent Impostor

By Renee Shann

THE STORY: Patience Mood, grumpy brought up by two maiden aunts, is in love with Paul Taylor, whom her aunts have forbidden her to see because they have never been properly introduced. A short-tempered, Patience's twin sister whom she has not seen since childhood, she has just seen rearing a shrew in London. She invites Patience up to spend a day with her, dresses her smartly from her own wardrobe. Patience meets Roger Hirsch, popular actor and Charlotte's boyfriend. Roger is attracted to Patience, says he is going to see her again. On the way home, Patience stops in a line to rub off her makeup before facing her aunts. Her face is covered with cold cream when Paul comes upon her. She knows she looks a fright.

Paul looked at her speculatively. "I'd be interested to know what you're up to, Patience." Patience tossed her head. "And I'd be interested to know why you imagine I should be answerable to you." "That's easy. Because we're in love with each other." "Don't be silly." "You think that's silly?" "Very. I've never been in the least in love with you." "No?" Suddenly he moved to her and his hands came down on her shoulders. "You know quite well that's not true. You were in love with me. You still are in love with me. But the trouble's been you've not had the spunk to face up to it. But now—well, something's changed you."

SUDDENLY Patience flew into a temper. "What are you doing here, anyway?" she demanded, angrily. "I followed you. I was so intrigued to know what was going on. It's surprising to find you're a dark horse. You who always pretended you were such a dear little innocent! Incidentally, who were those flashy friends who saw you off at the station?" Patience's eyes blazed. "They weren't flashy."

"Well, they hardly looked the sort you revered aunts would approve of. A bit starchy, I thought them. But the girl was a knockout. I agree. Unfortunately I didn't see much of her. She would keep turning her back towards me." Patience opened her handbag with trembling hands to feel for her compact and powder-puff. In her confusion she spilled the entire contents on to the ground. Paul immediately stepped forward and helped her to pick them up. The lipstick that Charlotte had given her rolled the farthest and he chased it and handed it back to her. "That new?" "Yes." "You didn't use to use one."

"I know." He paused a moment for breath and his brows darkened. "I don't like it. I don't like you in that smart dress. It doesn't suit you and you look a mess with all that muck on your face. For two pins I'd take you right back to your aunts and tell them they'd better keep a closer eye on you. Yes, and I'll tell them too that by refusing to let you see me they're only running their heads into a pack of trouble. That engaged to me, you'd have come to no harm. Whereas now—"

SHE didn't look back as she turned the corner. She didn't stop to take her handkerchief from her pocket to wipe away the tears that rained down her cheeks. Only as she neared home did she make an effort to pull herself together. She got off her bicycle and once more looked at herself in the mirror from her handbag. Her face now was pale and her eyes showed that she'd been crying. Luckily there was a little stream nearby. She bathed them till they returned to normal. Then she took out her powder-puff. Ah, that was better! Better outwardly, at least. Because inwardly she was still seething. How dare Paul behave as if he'd every right to order her about? How dared he suggest that Charlotte and Roger were flashy! Never would she speak to him again.

Her aunts were waiting for her when she got in. She stood in the doorway forcing herself to smile at them. "Ah, there you are, dear child," said Miss Helen. Miss Helen looked up from her mending, her brows contracting at sight of Patience. "Patience dear, what on earth have you got on?" "A dress that Charlotte gave me, Aunt Helen."

"I can't say I care much for it. And those shoes! Really the heels are quite ridiculous. Especially in the country." "But I don't propose to wear them in the country, Aunt Helen. The whole get-up's for London." "Miss Alice said, a trifle nervously, that she thought it was very pretty. Miss Helen turned on her angrily. "It's not suitable for Patience, Alice."

Patience's eyes grew stubborn. "I like it, Aunt Helen." "Well, I hope you'll refrain from wearing it down here. And most certainly you can't go to the dress-making academy in it. It's altogether too flashy." "It was an unfortunate word. It touched Patience on the raw. "That's absurd. Honestly, Aunt Helen, I do wish you'd realize that I'm growing up and it's time I ceased dressing like a schoolgirl." Miss Helen looked at her coldly. "I think you forget yourself, Patience. That's not the tone of voice I expect you to use to me."

Pakistan and "it is shorter to return to the United States by the way of Europe."

The Agriculture Department wants to know something about the future cotton industry in the four countries. A few questions are:

- 1. How many of the mills were hit by our planes and how many of these mills have been rebuilt? 2. Are foreign markets on the upgrade and what quality of cotton do they want? 3. Is the trend in gear mills for a longer staple length? 4. How are we going to gear our cotton production over for export to Asia? A part of Texas' cotton prosperity depends on the answers.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh. Sam's Hens Wear Spectacles! Yes, it's a fact! Sam's brood of two dozen hens are wearing spectacles—which he bought from a mail-order house in Capitol City. Sam says it works (and big poultry raisers say so, too). The hens see each other through soft colored glasses, and instead of fighting and pecking at each other, they go around placidly, gain weight, and lay more eggs. Makes me almost wish we could have rose-colored glasses for human beings, too. So that instead of quarreling and criticizing, like we do so much of the time, we'd live and let live in contentment. From where I sit, the human race wastes a powerful lot of time in wrangling over minor issues... whether a man should drink beer or cider... whether a woman should wear slacks or skirts... instead of seeing each other through "spectacles" of tolerance that enable us to live-and-let-live like Sam's brood of chickens. ### NEWS FROM GORMAN

Funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon at the First Methodist Church by Rev. W. F. Smith for W. I. "Uncle Ike" Hunt, long time resident of Gorman. Burial service was under the direction of the Masonic lodge. He is survived by his widow, the former Fannie Lloyd, a daughter, Mrs. Lorena Gillespie of Bakersfield, Calif., daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joe Hunt, also of Bakersfield, and two grandchildren. Mrs. Gillespie and Mrs. Joe Hunt arrived here just a few hours before his death.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Jackson had their daughter, Miss Margaret of Bonham and her friend, Mrs. D. K. Freeland, home demonstration agent of Denton county, as visitors over the week-end. Also home from A. & M. College was their son, J.G., and his friend Charley Pence of Cisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McClain of Burk Burnett spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rankin.

Mr. and Mrs. Frances Barker and Dr. and Mrs. D. V. Rodgers and two sons attended the auto races at Arlington Downs Sunday.

Mrs. Elsie Gates was in Dallas Monday and Tuesday, where she met her son and his wife for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Baker spent Monday in Dallas.

Mrs. E. D. David was in Fort

Worth Saturday. Her niece Miss Emmett Temple embarked on a return voyage to Japan after spending thirty days leave with relatives. Miss Temple has served one and half years with the Red Cross in Japan and returned to her duties there.

Mrs. R. B. Lane was a Cisco visitor Monday.

Harold Mehaffey of Laguna Beach, Calif., is spending some time with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Z. O. Mehaffey.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward B. Eckwell and Bill Brogdon are in Houston this week where Dr. Ed is attending a medical convention.

bags shall be sampled if there are less than 100 bags in the lot; seven bags if there are from 100 to 400 bags in the lot; and 10 bags if there are over 400 bags in lot. Two pounds of vetch seed should be submitted for germination and purity tests.

Samples should be wrapped securely to prevent loss or breakage and mailed to the Vetch Seed-Testing Laboratory, Department of Agronomy, Agr. Exp. Sta., College Station, Texas. The name and address of the sender should appear on the label on the outside of the box.

The results of tests may be used by growers in securing official labels. For these labels, apply to Seed Laboratory Division, State Dept. of Agr. Austin, Texas.

The testing laboratory will make and report the tests on purity and germination in accordance with the state laws, but assumes no responsibility for the accuracy of the sample in representing the seed actually for sale. That responsibility must be assumed by the individual or firm affixing the label.

Remember, this service will be in great demand after the 1948 crop is harvested, so save these instructions or contact the Vocational Agriculture Department if more details are needed.

By Boyce House

Back in 1916 when your columnist was "cub reporter" on the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Vincent M. Carroll was one of the ace members of the staff.

Years went by—and I was editor of the Ranger Times. One day, the phone rang and it was the advertising manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, speaking in his office in Dallas. He said, "Are you the same Boyce House who used to work on the Commercial Appeal in Memphis, Tenn.?"

"Yes," "Well, do you remember a man who was a reporter, by the name of Carroll?" "You mean Vince Carroll? Yes I remember him very well."

It flashed through my mind that Carroll was in Dallas, wanted to get a check cashed and had given me as reference. I hoped the check wasn't a very large one. Of course, I didn't say any of this

Farm and Ranch Review

By R. B. Thomas, Jr.
Vocational Agriculture Teacher

Texas vetch growers will be able to have free germination tests run on their seed by the time the 1948 crop is harvested.

The State Legislature appropriated funds for this work and all vetch seed producers in this area are urged to take advantage of this opportunity.

Such tests can be of real value to vetch growers provided representative samples of seed are tested; however, regardless of its accuracy the test can show only the quality of the sample submitted. Follow these instructions:

Bulk: In sampling bulk seeds, at least seven hand fulls should be taken uniformly distributed parts of the quantity being sampled.

Bags: (a) To obtain composite samples:
1) In quantities of five bags or less, each bag should be sampled.
2) In quantities of more than five bags, at least every fifth bag, but not less than five bags, should be sampled.
b) To obtain individuals to test for uniformity at least four

High Button Shoes Coming Back?

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Shoe designers in this footwear manufacturing center are out to put the ladies back into spats and buttoned shoes by fall.

The St. Louis Shoe Manufacturing Association says it is turning back the fashion pages to fine heading, high button spats, scalloped pinking and jewel-cut ornaments for the new fall lines of women's foot wear.

The stylists won't go all the way back, though. Just enough to keep in step with present feminine fashions.

For instance, the new spat shoes won't be much like the ones grandmother wore when she stepped out. They're scheduled to be light and airy in appearance. One style, in particular, will have cut work all around the quarter.

And about buttons. Don't go digging in the attic trunk where Aunt Mamie put away the old buttonhook. The pearl buttons on next fall's shoes will be mostly for decorative purposes, although they still might be a handy gadget to latch a shoestring onto in an emergency.

The heels will be covered with a pearl-finished celluloid to match the buttons.

Mrs. Hill Honored On 76th Birthday

Mrs. G. E. Whitehead entertained her mother, Mrs. Cora A. Hill, with a chicken dinner at her home, 1112 Haig Street, Saturday, April 24, on her 76th birthday.

The table was laid with white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of roses in a large cutglass bowl. Roses were placed throughout the house.

Children who could not attend sent gifts and special messages from Kilgore, Borger, Amarillo, Paducah, Crane, Ranger, Waco, Round Rock, and California.

The following children and great grandchildren were present for the dinner: Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Whitehead, and Robert Whitehead, and the honoree, Mrs. Hill.

World Affairs Is Topic Of Program

Mrs. Jim Houghton was leader of the program on International Affairs at the meeting of the 1947 Club held Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Community Club-house.

Mrs. Houghton introduced Miss Mary Joy Wilson who spoke on "Can The World Be One," Miss Meta Ann Scott who discussed "Racial Relations," and Miss Ann Price who spoke on "Universal World Order." Mrs. J. D. Phillips discussed "Women In The U. N. O."

The meeting was closed after a short business session.

Dr. Dr. Harris Speaks To Young P. T. A.

The Young School Parent-Teacher Association met Tuesday afternoon at the school with Mrs. F. R. King, president, presiding over the meeting.

Guest speaker for the day was Dr. Calvin Harris who spoke on "Health, A Must." Mrs. Joe Young gave a report on the district convention held in Brownwood last week.

Following the program a short business meeting was held.

W. S. C. S. Circle Has Monthly Meet

The Ida Scudder Circle of the Woman's Society of Christian Service held its monthly meeting this week in the home of Mrs. G. C. Boswell, Mrs. T. D. Stewart assisted the hostess.

The program was opened with Mrs. Roscoe Hopper leading the devotional. Mrs. Vernon Deffebach led the program on "Christian Highways in Japan," and Mrs. M. L. King, circle chairman, read an interesting letter from a missionary in China.

Those attending were Meses J. L. Turner, G. O. Strong, M. L. King, L. R. Pearson, Floyd Killingsworth, George Williams, J. A. Bates, Vernon Deffebach, T. D. Clarke, Claude Jones, Boswell, and two visitors, Mrs. Bruce Maddox of Dallas, and Mrs. A. L. Rainwater.

Names Omitted In Circle Story

Through an oversight the names of Mrs. G. D. Nicholson and Mrs. P. M. Kuykendall were omitted from a write-up about the Bell Bennett circle of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church which appeared in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation to the people who were so kind to us at the recent death of our son and brother, Pedro Galaviz. We deeply appreciate the floral offerings and the beautiful service arranged by Killingsworth's Funeral Home.

Mrs. and Mrs. Carmen Galaviz and family.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP

The first American to win a scholarship to the Royal Academy of Music Department of Piano-forte in London is Don M. Liles, junior student in Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas. Liles recorded two piano solos and mailed them, with music to a hologram of his own composition, to the Royal Academy as his entrance in the scholarship contest.

A top poet as well as musician, he was named recently as 1948 winner of the annual collegiate Southwest Poetry contest.

Personals

Mrs. Verna Long is in Fort Worth where she is attending a training school for investigators for Old Age Assistance program.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Brashier, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Brashier, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ward were in Dallas Tuesday where they attended the convention of the Retail Furniture Association.

Mrs. Joe Frantz has returned to her home in Austin after spending a week with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Boswell, here.

Mrs. Saunders Gregg arrived home Wednesday from a visit in New York and Chicago.

U. S. Scientist Check Upon Long Life Serum

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—An American scientist here says he expects to learn the true value of a mysterious Russian life serum within a year.

Dr. Harry Goldblatt, director of the Institute of medical research at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, has given is experimentally to many persons during his years of experiments, and has found that it helps heal fractures.

Russian claims of its being able to prolong life, suggested by the discoverer, Prof. Alexander Bogomoleta, have not been proven, Goldblatt said.
