Hospital Management Turned Over To Private Firm

CHARGED WITH FULL RESPONSIBILITY FOR OVERHAULING INSTITUTIONS

AUSTIN, Tex., March 14. (UP)—The multi-million dollar responsibility of business managing all state hospitals and institutions was turned over today to a private firm of accountants and industrial engineers.

Members of the board for Texas state hospitals and special schools retained Ernst and Ernst, a national business management firm, at an indefinite figure, "until such time as their services are no longer necessary."

The firm will hold complete responsibility for hiring of certain key personnel such as an assistant executive director of the board.

The assistant executive director, with a ceiling of $9,000 a year on the job, will ultimately serve as business manager for all state institutions.

Ernst and Ernst, with state headquarters at San Antonio, made a preliminary survey of business management practices now used in the state hospitals.

The charge to the state was $5,000.

W. C. Cook, an Ernst and Ernst industrial engineer, said the firm lost money on the transaction.

The organization will not be concerned with medical treatment of the patients.

Texans Await Sentencing In Oil Fraud Cases

LAYTON, O., March 14. (UP)—Five members of a family that operates an oil drilling company in Fort Worth, Tex., awaited sentencing today after pleading guilty to 88 charges of illegally selling oil stocks and gas leases in Ohio.

The guilty pleas were entered in Montgomery County Common Pleas Court yesterday by John E. Bennett, Sr., and four sons, Leo, Gene, Bayard and John E. Bennett, Jr.

The five were indicted last Oct. 28 after an investigation by the State Securities Division and County Prosecutor Matthias Heck revealed the Bennetts had sold $152,000 in stock and leases to residents of this area. The indictments accused the men of selling unregistered stock and of selling stock and leases without a state license.

The indictments covered a period from Nov. 19, 1946, through June 2, 1949. State Securities investigators said the counts represented only a portion of the about $1,000,000 actually involved.

Oil stocks and leases sold by the Bennetts were for properties in Texas, Louisiana, Wyoming and Colorado.

Cattlemen To Attack Horsemeat

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 14. (UP)—A two-day convention of the Texas Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association opened today with members promising more than comment on the horsemeat scandal.

Some 1,000 cattlemen, many of them wearing boots, agreed in hotel lobby conversations last night that action was needed to prevent further shipment of horsemeat intended for human consumption into Texas.

"You can be sure a strong resolution will be forthcoming about the horsemeat situation," Joe G. Montague, association attorney said.

Montague, referring to the seizure of several tons of mislabeled horsemeat in three Texas cities last week, remarked that "Apparently both state and federal laws have been violated. Our association will take a strong stand."

Gov. Allan Shivers and Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, former chairman of President Truman's Economic Council, were scheduled to discuss late developments in the two nation's fight against foot and mouth disease in Mexican cattle.

Bryant Edwards of Henrietta, president of the powerful cattlemen's group, will preside at the convention.

Venue Change For Johnsons Sought

AMARILLO, Tex., March 14.—(UP)—State attorneys appeared before district judge Henry S. Bishop today asking a change of venue for Ewald Johnson, charged with the slaying of oilfield trouble shooter W. A. (Tex) Thornton.

The State argued it would be impossible to get a jury in Amarillo, where Johnson is scheduled to be tried May 8 for the fatal beating of Thornton last June 22 in a local tourist court.

Trial date for Mrs. Johnson, 19, has not been set.

Assistant district attorney Branch Archer filed the change of venue motion for the 30 year old Johnson yesterday following the couple's arraignment. They were charged jointly, Judge Bishop granted a motion by Johnson's counsel for separate trials.

Posse Resumes Search For Sheriff's Slayer

MARFA, Tex., March 14 (UP)—A mounted posse, including Texas Rangers resumed its search of the rugged terrain along the Mexican border today for a handcuffed suspect in the slaying of Presidio county Sheriff Otis W. (Blackie) Morrow.

While border patrolmen kept a continuous watch along the Rio Grande in an effort to keep the killer from slipping into Mexico, the posse fanned out from the spot where it lost the killer's trail yesterday amid the hoofprints of a flock of goats.

The trail's end was near the shallow Rio Grande and came after the posse headed by Ranger Gully Cowsett had followed it for 15 miles.

Presidio county Attorney Norman C. Davis said today, however, that "possibilities are very good that he has already made it into Mexico."

Morrow's body was found Sunday in his car which had been driven in a ditch along Highway 67 eight miles north of Presidio. He had been shot through the left side of his body.

Under Morrow's head officers found a folded jacket and a wallet containing identification papers of a Chihuahua City, Mexican man.

Deputy Sheriff Mack Tarwater went to the Mexican city yesterday to aid Mexican officers in searching for the man there.

An empty cartridge case and an unused shell, both the same caliber as the gun carried by Morrow, were found near the scene of the shooting which gave strength to officers' belief that the sheriff had been killed with his own gun.

Neither the gun nor the handcuffs normally carried by Morrow were on him when he was found. Officers have theorized that Morrow had stopped to make an arrest, then was disarmed and shot.

Davis said that the search was confined in an area about 30 miles square. In that area, he said, are homes of about 20 ranchers.

"We are watching all those very closely," he said. "The killer will have to have something to eat and drink before very much longer."

Davis said the entire area is very rugged, covered chiefly with cactus.

Mercury Lights To Go On Tonight

The new mercury type street lights will light up Main Street tonight, if present plans carry, according to an announcement made today.

A. N. Larson, manager for the Texas Electric Service company in Ranger, stated today that the lights on Main street are ready to put into use and that they will be turned on and used while the remainder of the system is being completed.

The lights will be turned on around 7 o'clock tonight, but it was pointed out that it requires a few minutes for the lights to heat up to full lighting strength. As Larson said, there will not be a sudden flash as the lights are turned on.

The lights are the latest development in street lighting and will furnish a much greater amount of lighting for the town. It has been pointed out that the system of lighting will make Ranger's Main street more attractive, safer and that the new lights will provide greater protection against burglary.

The concert is being sponsored by the fine arts department of Ranger Junior College of which Baumgardner is the head. He urged the public to attend the concert.

GENE AUTRY, J. DEMPSEY GAPE AT FLOWING GOLD

FREDERICK, Okla. (UP)—Gene Autry and Jack Dempsey, successful oilmen who became famous in other pursuits, brought in a gusher near here today as 2,000 persons cheered.

The visiting celebrities were awed by the 40-foot fountain of "black gold" which spouted from the earth when a valve was opened. The spectators were more fascinated by Dempsey and Autry.

The movie cowboy and former world's heavyweight champion reportedly became partners in an oil drilling venture near this southwestern Oklahoma county seat. This was their first visit to the drilling scene together.

School children of Frederick, leaving classes without permission, swarmed to the city airport after Autry's twin-engine airplane buzzed over town at 10 A. M. The mob of youngsters, plus many adults, burst over the airport apron as the plane taxied down the field.

Police frantically waved for Autry to halt his craft and kill the engine before the youngsters could reach the whirling propellers. The plane was halted in time, 300 yards short of the apron.

The visitors finally got through the uncontrolled mob to automobiles which took them to the oil field four miles away.

Autry and Dempsey were clearly impressed when the black, sticky fluid began to flow.

"This is wonderful, simply wonderful," said Autry as the gusher gushed and the crowd applauded. He didn't make it clear whether he was referring to the oil or the applause, but he obviously enjoyed both.

About 10 barrels of crude oil spewed out of the 3,000 foot deep hole before the pair decided they had seen enough. It splashed about the derrick and matted up Autry's spic and span cowboy outfit a little, but he didn't complain. You don't strike oil every day.

After posing for movie and still cameras the partners hurried back to the airport to continue their flight to Wichita Falls, Tex.

Frederick schools took up as usual after lunch today. Teachers had declared an impromptu holiday about 10 A. M. after mass walkouts, and many of the teachers got to the well in time to see Autry and Dempsey.

It was resold yesterday to Mrs. Steve Galloway for $1,200 at auction after one group opened with a bid of $1,000. The group told auctioneer Tiny Haggard to let the bid ride, promising it would go to the polio clinic no matter who bought the pig.

Lora Lee Leaves Home Because She's Hungry

HOLLYWOOD, March 14, (UP)—Tiny screen actress Lora Lee Michel said today that she ran away from her foster mother, who is accused of starving her to keep her small enough for film roles, because "I was hungry all the time."

The 9-year-old film player disappeared from her bedroom last night, setting off a frenzied police search in the belief she had been kidnapped.

She was found early today at the home of a minister in nearby Burbank where she had fled in a taxi cab.

Police took her to juvenile hall where she had been lodged recently while authorities investigated complaints against her foster mother, Mrs. Lorraine Michel.

"I'm sure glad to get back here," the girl said. "One thing I like about it here is that they give you extra milk at 10:30 every morning. I can hardly wait. I can have as much as I want."

Lora Lee said Mrs. Michel and her husband had fed her skimpily and she was "hungry all the time."

Cab driver, Harry Frakus, who took her to the home of the Rev. Alfred Sundstrum, father of two of the little girl's playmates, said he found the girl at a Sunset Blvd. intersection.

AGENT SURPRISED OVER REACTION TO CROW JIBE

MCKINNEY, Tex., March 14—(UP)—Collin County Agent Jack McCullough said today he was surprised so many persons took him seriously when he threatened to shoot some North Texas crows into Dallas County.

For one thing, McCullough said, everyone should know that a crow would find only slim pickings in Dallas County which has "too many people and parasites, not enough corn and pecans."

Besides, McCullough tells that to all the counties.

McCullough said he started receiving telephone calls after he asked the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission to blast a roost near McKinney which has been offering a haven for up to 50,000 of the raucous black birds nightly.

"We don't expect to kill 'em all, but we do expect to scare a lot of them over into Dallas County."

Blvd. intersection.

She was barefooted and clad in pajamas.

"I just had to get away, I'm all upset," Frakus quoted the child. "I'm tired of all this fighting. I've lost 10 pounds in the last month."

Mrs. Michel has been ordered to appear in Beverly Hills Justice Court March 21 on charges of mistreating the $100-a-day child actress. She was accused of under-feeding the child to keep her small enough for film roles.

When she arrived at juvenile hall, the little girl told officers that "I never want to be in movies again."

McCullough said at the time. When Dallas County Commissioner Lynn Lawther heard the news he replied tersely: "We'll bomb 'em back."

McLaughlin said bombing experiments already had driven off countless Collin County crows.

"There's no telling where those crows went," he said. "I told the Kaufman boys we sent them down there, the Hunt County boys the same thing, Van Zandt County the same, and all the others around here."

"But I doubt if many went to Dallas County. They'd be so scared down there they wouldn't bother the crows. Dallas just hasn't got anything to offer a crow."

McCullough said he would be the last one to underrate the intelligence of a crow.

"Why the other night we had to set off some bombs in a small roost a half hour earlier than we had planned," he said. "The crows caught on. They were talking to each other, chattering like mad. I think they had just about decided to pull out when we set off the bombs."

Another thing, McCullough noted, "Crows never come back to a bombed roost."

It Was Dope, Not Liqueur FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—The man was booked for drunkenness and at the end of six hours in jail was just as groggy as at the beginning. Then puzzled police found the answer. They found several narcotic tablets inside the lining of a leather belt the prisoner wore.
