Doctors Form New Medical Society Here

County Medical Societies Merge In Ranger Meeting Tuesday Night

A five county medical society was founded by merger at a meeting at the Ranger country club last night.

Dr. J. R. Youngblood of Breckenridge was elected president of the five county society.

Eastland and Callahan, one society, merged with the Stephens, Throckmorton and Shackelford society.

Dr. R. W. Evans of Clyde was elected first vice president of the new society. Dr. Grover C. Wood of Breckenridge, second vice president; Dr. W. P. Watkins of Ranger, secretary treasurer.

Censors of the new merger are Dr. M. L. Stubblefield of Baird; Dr. J. H. Caton of Eastland and Dr. H. H. Cartwright of Breckenridge.

Dr. P. M. Kuykendall was named delegate to the state convention.

Dr. W. K. Cowan of Eastland was named as alternate delegate.

Dr. R. G. Baker of Fort Worth, counselor of the 13th medical district, presided at the meeting. Guests were Dr. R. L. Dailey of Wichita Falls, president of the 13th district; and Dr. H. H. Cox, of Wichita Falls, and Earl Wilson of Fort Worth, secretary of the 13th.

The ladies auxiliary of the society were guests of the doctors at the barbecue preceding the business meeting. The ladies met at the home of Mrs. W. P. Watkins.

Dr. Ben Merrick of Dallas and Dr. R. S. Sparkman of Dallas delivered technical papers.

The next meeting of the five county organization will be held the third Tuesday in July at Cisco.

96 Cases of Polio Reported

AUSTIN, June 21 (UP)—Ninety-six cases of polio, a new high for this year, were reported last week in Texas, State Health officer George W. Cox announced today.

Bill To Extend Draft Set

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas, Ill., planned to bring before the senate today a bill to extend the draft law another three years.

Senate Crime Committee To Begin Hearings On Underworld Operation

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—The Senate crime investigating committee will begin hearings during the first week in July on underworld operations in Chicago and the Midwest, it was revealed today.

Committee sources said the sessions may be held both here and in Chicago. Although they will cover crime throughout the Midwest, these sources added, testimony naturally would center on the old home town of the notorious Capone gang and other prohibition underworld kings.

Virgil Peterson, director of the Chicago crime commission, was expected to be the star witness. The former FBI agent is a firm believer in the existence of interstate crime networks.

For that reason, the sessions are expected to have a bearing on evidence recently uncovered during closed committee hearings in Miami, Fla.

In a dispatch written for the United Press, Peterson recently reported that "many Chicago gangsters have moved part of their operations to Miami Beach."

"The New York crowd maintains friendly relations with Chicago," he said, "and Miami Beach especially has become a meeting place for big-time thieves and gangsters from all parts of the country."

In St. Louis, the crime committee served subpoenas yesterday ordering Western Union and the Pioneer News Service to produce records of customers who get racing service in that area.

The committee also moved to obtain records of C. J. Rich and Co., a national betting syndicate

Vastly Expanded Social Security System Heads For Quick Approval Senate Bill Hikes Payments To $80

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—A vastly expanded social security system headed for speedy adoption by Congress today after winning the senate's overwhelming approval.

The legislation would make the first drastic reforms in the program since it was born 15 years ago out of the fear and insecurity of the depression thirties.

Final approval must await settlement of differences between the senate bill and one the house passed last year.

The senate voted 21 to 2 last night to bring 19,000,000 more people under full coverage of the act, to double benefits and to raise payroll taxes as much as $18 a year per worker.

The house bill, adopted 333 to 14, would extend coverage to 11,000,000 persons and increase benefits about 70 per cent.

The proposed revisions reflect a long standing feeling by both major parties that the present system has not met the needs of America's aged.

The senate voted to increase maximum individual benefits from $45 to $80 a month. Minimum benefits would be raised from $10 to $20. The maximum allowed to any family group would go up from $85 to $150 a month.

A retired worker is allowed an added 50 per cent of his individual benefit when his wife reaches 65. He also receives added sums for dependent children under 18.

The house bill would raise benefits on a less generous scale but would allow a one and one-half per cent "bonus" for every year of coverage. The senate refused to accept that.

Both bills would raise the taxable "wage base" for social security purposes from the present $3,000 to $6,000 a year. This would increase taxes collected on salaries of those earning more than $3,600 a year by $18. The tax is split between the employee and the employer.

The house bill also would increase the payroll tax from the present one and one-half per cent to two per cent starting next January. The senate voted to freeze the present tax until 1956. After that, the tax would increase gradually until 1970 when it reached a maximum of three and one-quarter per cent.

Spain's capital, Madrid, lies almost at the exact geographic center of the country.

Vatican Intervention May Stall Release Of American Citizen

Sources Say Vatican Doesn't Think Crown Should Be Returned

LONDON, June 21 (UP)—Intervention by the Vatican may delay Hungary's release of American Businessman Robert A. Vogeler, serving a 15-year-prison term for alleged espionage and sabotage.

Sources close to the Vogeler negotiations said the Vatican had made it known to American authorities that it did not believe the ancient Hungarian Royal Crown of St. Stephen should be returned to Hungary in exchange for the executive's release.

Highway 80 Booster Club Calls Meeting

200 Families Depend On Income From Road

A meeting of the Highway 80 Boosters Club has been called for 8 p. m., Thursday, in the Blue Room of the Gholson Hotel.

Officers and a delegate to the national highway 80 convention will be elected.

Businessmen on highway 80 were urged to attend. All Ranger businessmen were invited. It was pointed out that 200 Ranger families depend directly on income derived from travel on the highway.

C. S. Kerr, operator of a tourist court on the highway, estimated that a couple stopping overnight here would spend from $12 to $15 in Ranger.

He pointed out the necessity of the highway being boosted as an East-West artery for tourist travel.

Simpson Hurls No Hitter To Take Rising Star

Billy Simpson pitched a no-hitter Tuesday night at Rising Star to lead the Ranger softballers to a 8 to 1 victory.

The only Rising Star run was scored when Ranger committed three errors.

L. Arterburn and James Townzen hit home runs. Arterburn led the Ranger hitting, scoring three hits in four times at bat.

The Ranger Junior and Senior teams will play Cisco here, starting at 7:30 p. m., Thursday.

P. Daniel Says Will Continue His Crusade

AUSTIN, June 21 (UP)—Attorney General Price Daniel today promised to continue his crusade to "keep the federal government honest with the state of Texas."

In a radio address last night, Daniel said the U. S. Supreme court would not have handed down an adverse ruling in the Texas tidelands case had it "allowed the evidence to be developed before writing an opinion."

Daniel accused the Supreme court of committing a "grave error of fact and history" in ruling the federal government, and not the state of Texas, owned rich Gulf Coast tidelands.

The Attorney General said the court's majority opinion was woven around a nonexistent annexation agreement between the United States and the republic of Texas.

Conference Ends

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 21 (UP)—The 42nd annual Governors conference ended today with many a newsmen and politician, talking about what some governors meant when they said what they said.

Return of the crown was one of three Hungarian conditions for Vogeler's freedom to which the United States was said to have agreed tentatively. The others were permission to reopen Hungary's consulates in the United States and lifting of the ban on American travel in Hungary.

However, informants said the Vatican asked U. S. officials to find "some other way, if possible", to reach agreement with the Hungarians.

One of Hungary's charges against Josef Cardinal Mindszenty during his Budapest trial last year was that he asked the United States not to return the crown to Hungary while the Communists remained in power.

The gen-encrusted gold and silver crown was conferred on King Stephen I by Pope Sylvester II in the 11th century. Since then it has been a symbol of collaboration between Hungary and the Vatican.

Stephen, later canonized, also is regarded as the founder of the Hungarian state. His crown, therefore, is the traditional Hungarian symbol of government authority.

Unconfirmed reports said Hungary subsequently offered to release Cardinal Mindszenty from his life sentence if the crown were returned. The offer was rejected. U. S. forces found the crown in Germany after the war and still hold it there.

American authorities in Vienna, Austria, refused to comment on the negotiations for Vogeler's release. They said continued press speculation could wreck the negotiations between the American legation in Budapest and the Hungarian government.

Rain Hampers Farm Operations; More Predicted

Rain Tuesday night halted farming operations in Eastland County, temporarily.

The work stoppage will be brief if no more rain falls, but prospects were for more showers Wednesday.

Rainfall measured 1.4 inch in Eastland, with 1.2 inch measured at Olden.

The rain was preceded by lashing winds which may have done some damage to corn.

County agent J. M. Cooper said Tuesday that many farmers had all their peanuts planted. He added that if it didn't rain before Saturday night that planting would be virtually complete.

Areas which reported showed that the rainfall was generally light, and that regular farming operations can be resumed shortly if no more rain comes.

The rain and win came following one of the hottest days of the year in this section.

Shirley May Slates Try At Channel

CHERBOURG, France, June 21 (UP)—Shirley May France, high school girl from Somerset, Mass., came back to Europe today for her second try at swimming the English channel.

The 17-year-old blonde was aboard the Queen Elizabeth, which stopped briefly at Cherbourg to debark passengers. She went on to Southampton to start her training in England.

LOOT RECOVERED—Detectives Cecil Easley, left, and J. E. Wilburn examine thousands of articles found piled high in a four room cottage in Houston, Texas. Officers say the loot is from hundreds of burglaries in the Houston area. (NEA Telephoto).

Worry

Judy Garland Announces Will Tell Soon Why Tried To Kill Herself

By Virginia MacPherson
HOLLYWOOD, June 21 (UP)—Judy Garland sent word today that she will be ready "in a day or two" to tell why she tried to kill herself by hacking at her throat with a jagged piece of glass.

"She's in a state of emotional hysteria now," her agent, Carlton Alsop, said. "She couldn't explain why she did it if she wanted to."

"But in a day or two she'll be ready to talk. Judy's the honey type. She'll snap out of this in a hurry."

But friends and officials at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feared that the doe-eyed star's emotional and physical ills might be too deep-seated to be overcome quickly.

Worried over her career, Miss Garland dashed into a bathroom Monday, broke a glass and tried to slash her throat.

Dr. Francis Ballard denied that the star had tried to take her own life. He said the injuries to her throat were only scratches.

He insisted, in a report to Hollywood police, that Miss Garland's act was intended more to attract attention than to inflict bodily harm upon herself. His report was listed as a "miscellaneous injury" case and officials said they planned no investigation.

However, Ballard admitted that he'd been treating Miss Garland "for several months during which time she has suffered several emotional reactions."

The 27-year-old singing star began a brilliant career 15 years ago in a short. She was at her peak in 1944 when her three-year marriage to composer Dave Rose fizzled out.

After that, her pals said, she was "emotionally keyed up all the time." She lost weight until she became a gaunt-eyed shadow of nervous beauty.

Her illness began to slash into her career. The laughing little girl of "The Wizard of Oz" started to flare up on the set.

Temperament cost her two big parts. In 1948, her role in "Barkleys of Broadway" went to Ginger Rogers and Judy went away for a rest. In 1949, she snugged the lead in "Annie Get Your Gun" but clashed with MGM after the studio had spent $1,000,000 on the epic. L. B. Mayer cut off her salary.

House-Senate Agree
WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—House and senate conferees agreed belatedly today on a compromise bill to authorize a 70 group Air Force.

"I feel wonderful," she said, and her new-found health carried her through the film "Summer Stock" without a flare-up.

The studio promised her a year's rest but asked her recently to play in "Royal Wedding" when June Allyson discovered she had a date with the stock and couldn't take the part. Judy cancelled a European vacation to help out.

Last Saturday, she was supposed to come in for an hour's rehearsal. She didn't show. The studio slapped her on suspension again.

Butler Urges Cities To Work Together, Here

B. A. Butler, Cisco chamber of commerce manager, told Ranger chamber of commerce members, that the interests of Cisco, Eastland and Ranger are the same interests.

And that what is good for one town is good for all.

He said that government control could be kept down only by the people at home—he mentioned the chambers of commerce, particularly—doing their jobs at home.

When You Buy A Bra, Girls Spare A Thought For He Who Makes Them

By Virginia McPherson HOLLYWOOD, (UP)—Next time you buy a corset or a bra, spare a few thoughts for the misunderstood "daredevil" who make the things.

Ladies' underwear, they'll have you know, is dangerous work for a mere male!

Five manufacturers got together today and compared notes on the good, old days when ladies weren't interested in "uplifts" and when they were still an actor, a rug salesman, a psychologist, a dairyman and a surveyor.

Now they risk life and limb and reputation daily—and all they get for it is a lousy, old fortune. Corraling female bulges in whalebone and lace is a delicate operation, according to manufacturers M. K. De La Vallade, Peter Rosenfeld, E. Sterling Ferguson, Jan Erteszek, and Raymond Redares.

"You have to be very careful of your reputation," Rosenfeld added. "Some men might envy our job of fitting bras on women. But actually, it's very dangerous work."

"Most of us manage to keep a doctor's objectivity about it all. But now and then a manufacturer will step out of line with a model or a customer—and then we all get a bad name."

That's why, the gentlemen agree they always insist another woman be present during all fittings. "We get a few exhibitionists," Rosenfeld said, "and it's absolutely essential that we have another witness around in case there's any trouble."

That's just one of the problems the bra and girdle boys run into. They also have to keep ahead of ladies fashions and any man knows how ticklish that is.

If they guess wrong—they're out of business. And as members of California apparel creators, they do $20,000,000 a year.

It's things like this, they admitted, that make 'em wonder sometimes why they ever want into ladies' lingerie in the first place.

"I'll tell you why I did," Erteszek shrugged. "I was a criminal psychologist. And crime does not pay—as well as brassieres."

Ferguson is an ex-actor who couldn't crack the move. Now he makes bras for girls who did. Rosenfeld was a contract and a rug salesman. And De La Vallade worked in a dairy.

"I now," he explained, "manufacture surgical and corrective bras for oversize women. And there are thousands and thousands of them. Women today are getting bigger and better every year." Redares, a Frenchman who talks like Charles Boyer, said he was "born to be a big manufacturer."

"As a baby, it was unconscious with me," he explained. "Then when I got to be 16, it was definitely a conscious thing."

"For awhile I got sidetracked. I surveyed mountains. But in 1939 I settled down to my rightful calling."

Ranger Rambling

A sense of duty's a wonderful thing. It can do you a lot of good, you know.

What I'm getting at is that I went swimming out at the Ranger pool yesterday.

Now as I took off 30 minutes early to do this, it was purely my duty that motivated me so that I might bring you a first hand account of how fine the water felt.

I'll find out today whether the boss reads this column.

Now being that I have a tendency to founder every time the water gets over two feet deep and that this causes me to swallow much water with a resultant loss of the city—I checked into the cleanliness of the pool as I like to know what I'm drinking.

While the city officials haven't borrowed any Hollywood tricks and improved the taste of the water with soda pop or champagne—they are putting enough chlorine in the water that germs must be having an awful hard time getting by.

Snooping around, I learned—city officials were very glad to give me the hurb—that the water is constantly circulating, that it passes through two filters and a chlorinator.

I also learned that C. C. Huffman, who's the manager of the pool, vacuum's it clean about three times a week. And don't anyone come around and ask me how you vacuum water. I flunked all my engineering courses.

The water at the pool was just right—like warm on top—it was cool enough two feet to keep you paddling—or swimming if you're in that class. And just being next to the water with a light breeze

PICNIC ENDS IN TRAGEDY—A truck loaded with high school students on way to a picnic went out of control near Cumberland, Md., plunged down a 35-foot embankment killed two of the young people, seriously injured four more and scattered picnic equipment over a wide area. (NEA Telephoto).

sweeping over it was a very much welcome relief to working in an office. (Oh, I forgot this was duty.)

There was a good crowd out there—many grade school boys and girls accompanied by their mothers. Only the mothers watched more than swam. Some high school boys and girls were out—but no adults—probably too early.

The park outside the pool was also getting a work out. Bran Garner, Mrs. Garner and a couple other couples were escaping from the heat by having a picnic lunch at the park tables.

Later that evening, I picked up by the grapevine that Breckenridge is a bit jealous of Ranger's swimming pool and that there is a lot of agitation over there for the town to grow up by getting a pool.

And maybe our 6,000 population neighbor's got a right to be jealous. The local pool represents an investment of at least $40,000. In fact it's doubtful if the city could replace the pool at that price.

The pool is a real tribute to the city administration of 1936—I hear that was the year—who worked to get Ranger the pool. It also must cause a sly doffing of the hat to the Works Progress Administration as much as some of us dislike to doff our hats to this depression conceived baby.

A lot of cities and school districts now have fine buildings—necessary recreational facilities—that they would not have had if the WPA hadn't furnished the labor.

While I'm writing the free publicity, I might as well stick in the Times when the pool's open: 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Saturdays and holidays. 1 to 6:30 p. m. on Sundays. 2 to 9 p. m. on weekdays.

THE STORY: Falling in love had been far from Clemency Norman's plans when she became necessary governess to Haba, small daughter of Syrie and Jon Amberley, who live at the home of Jon's brother Piers in Algeria. But soon Clemency finds she has lost her heart to Piers, Syrie, despising her weakling husband and in love with Piers herself, is arrested over Clemency's engagement to Piers. Jon tells Clemency that before his marriage Syrie and Piers were engaged and he only invited them to live at his home as he and Syrie could be together. Clemency, indignant over this story on Piers, goes to see Piers, but finds him talking with Syrie. Clemency rushes out of the room, and Syrie keeps Piers from explaining. Later Syrie appears in the nursery where Haba is ill and leads Clemency to believe that Jon's remarks were the truth.

XXX
CLEMENCY went softly into the next room, and crossing to Baba's bed, bent down. The child was lying on her back, flushed and breathing heavily. She turned her head restlessly on the pillow and coughed—a short, cruelly hard, dry little cough. Clemency's heart missed a beat as she slipped a hand under the covers and felt the small body—it was dry and burning hot, and in an instant she was hurrying in search of a thermometer.

Baba was still lying in a half stupor as Clemency fitted the little glass tube beneath an armpit. She knew enough about nursing to have realized at once that something was very wrong, and as she held the thermometer up to the light and read the tale it told a new fear banished everything else from her mind. Covering Baba up again she hurried out into the passage, and a few minutes later was knocking impatiently on Syrie's bedroom door. There was no reply to either her first or second summons, and trying the door she found it locked. She knocked loudly again, and was still hammering against the paneling when Jon Amberley spoke from behind her: "Who's the devil's the matter?"

Syrie turned to Clemency. "While he's thinking Piers will act," she said. "I'll call Piers. You go back to Haba."

Syrie went toward the stairway as Clemency ran back to the nursery. It was broad daylight now. Plugging in the electric kettle and then dragging blankets off her own bed, for she would not waste time asking for other blankets, Clemency tried to shut out the thought that it was only natural for Syrie to turn to Piers. But the thought remained like another knife in the open wound in her heart, even though she told herself she must not think of anything now, except that there was a sick child on her hand—that Baba might have pneumonia.

NEVERTHELESS, as she ministered to Baba with all the means at hand, Clemency could not rid herself of the frightening feeling that all of the evil which she had sensed in this house from the beginning, the hatred between brother and brother, and between husband and wife, had gathered itself into one cruel destructive force of which the helpless child was the victim.

Clemency was sitting beside her little charge when Syrie came upstairs again. In any circumstances the servants were usually moving by this time in the morning, and now the whole house was astir. Syrie said: "This is one of those times when living in the middle of the Sahara desert doesn't help! Piers can't get through by phone to the doctor, so he is going after him. Even if he drives like the wind, it'll be nearly three hours before he can get back." She went to the bed, and as she looked down at her daughter her eyes widened. "She looks dreadfully Darling," she bent down, "tall Mummy how you feel!"

But Baba, who was holding Clemency's hand, jerked away. "Go away!" she muttered. "She doesn't know you," said Clemency gently. "She was quite light-headed just now." Syrie drew a deep breath. "Justine will help you. I'll call her." She moved toward the door, rather obviously glad to escape. (To Be Continued)
