Brashier Elected President Of C of C For Next Year

DR. HARRIS, W. F. CREAGER NAMED VICE PRESIDENT AND TREASURER OF ORGANIZATION

Chamber of Commerce board of directors elected F. P. Brashier president, effective October 1, by acclamation at a meeting Tuesday night.

Dr. C. W. Harris was elected vice president. Other officers elected—all by acclamation—follow: W. F. Creager, treasurer; R. V. Galloway, manager.

B. A. Tummel, chairman of the nominating committee, made the report of the committee.

THE OFFICERS ARE ELECTED from the directorate. Five directors are appointed each year by the city commission from a list of 15 of the membership, selected by the board of directors. Directors are appointed in January.

CREAGER, CHAIRMAN OF THE C of C's agriculture committee reported good success in the solicitation of funds for the first bale of cotton and first load of peanuts bonuses and for funds to defray Ranger's part of an Eastland county peanut exhibition at the Dallas state fair.

J. E. Meroney, chairman of the highway committee, reported that the central division of the National Highway 80 association had asked for a financial report of the group that was financing the highway sign at Weatherford.

He said that he was hopeful that the central division would maintain the sign for the balance of the contract period of about two years.

DR. HARRIS WAS APPOINTED chairman of a membership drive committee. With him on the committee are F. P. Brashier, E. Arterburn, Art Cambell, Earl Swoveland and H. O. Foster and Gaston Dixon.

The drive will start in the latter part of September. A membership luncheon will be held on September 19 at the Gholson Coffee shop.

THE BOARD VOTED APPROVAL of refinancing the school's indebtedness at a recent meeting. Johnny Bates explained the situation.

Arterburn said that funds were far short for financing erection of lights at the football stadium. He asked Quarterback club members to pay their dues.

B. A. Tummel, chairman of the industrial committee, spoke optimistically in his report.

Small Strikes Don't Settle Like Big Ones

By United Press
Negotiations to end a walkout of 28,000 CIO Electrical workers at General Electric plants were postponed today and International Harvester Co. charged the CIO Auto Workers with "stalling" in talks to end a strike by 22,000 employees.

FEDERAL MEDIATORS POSTPONED the General Electric negotiations so the company could hold bargaining sessions with the CIO union's rival, the left-wing United Electrical Workers (Ind.).

The CIO International Electric Workers Union represents 60,000 employees in 51 GE plants. The Independent UE represents 35,000 GE workers.

About 28,000 of the IUE members are staging strikes to back up the union's demand for a 10-cent hourly pay increase and other benefits. The company has offered both the UE and the IUE five-cent wage boosts.

A SPOKESMAN FOR THE International Harvester Co. said that negotiators for the United Auto Workers "seem to be waiting for something" in their talks to end a UAW strike at eight Harvester plants.

"We thought that with the settlements in the automobile industry they would begin negotiating seriously," he said, "but there was no progress at all in yesterday's negotiations."

THE RIVAL FARM EQUIPMENT workers union also has 32,000 workers on strike against the company. Both unions demand a 10-cent hourly raise. In addition, 13,000 UAW members are striking against John Deere & Co. farm equipment plants in Illinois and Indiana.

Winners Named In Bowling Matches

Tommy Drake, radio announcer from Breckenridge, bowled a 202 last week to win the men's singles. Nell Wilbanks, a Swoveland's Cafe employee, rolled a 171 to beat the rest of the women competing at the Ranger Bowl.

Pentagon Says Korea Serious But Not Tragic

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (UP)—A military spokesman conceded today the Korean situation is "serious," but said the North Korean successes could not be called a "real break-through."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces have maintained opposition even at local break-throughs, the spokesman said.

The Communist forces "do not have a wide open field ahead of them," he said. The situation is "serious but not a flaming disaster."

His comments were made at a 10 a. m. EDT Pentagon press briefing.

He pointed out that the Communist forces are "attacking seriously" only on the northern front. He said that "things are pretty stable" in the south and central battlefronts.

The present North Korean successes are "the old story" of more manpower, he added.

He said that it would be a mistake to draw any definite conclusions now while "both sides are slugging it out."

Chest Sets Goal Of $3,333.33 For Charity

The Community Chest set a budget of $3,333.33 to be raised in a single drive for the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Child Welfare and the Salvation Army.

Dave Pickrel, chairman of the drive, appointed Hugh Smith, Morris George and Wilson Guest to investigate and determine what Ranger residents should give as individuals.

T. J. Anderson, George and J. W. Elder were appointed to contact men and women who could make big gifts to the drive.

RJC, Schools Can Use Each Others Buses

Dr. G. C. Boswell, president of the Ranger Junior College, said that a state official had ruled that public school buses could carry junior college students and that junior college buses could carry public school students.

The ruling will save the local school system a considerable amount of money.

The junior college runs a bus via Eastland. The public schools run buses into several communities which have students enrolled in the junior college.

BULLETIN

ON THE TAEQU FRONT, Korea, Sept. 6 (UP)—American and South Korean troops withdrew to a new line of defense north of Taegu today. The First Cavalry division gave up two hills in an attempt to tighten the line against Communist forces which were probing the front.

By Earnest Hoberecht, United Press Staff Correspondent
TOKYO, Thursday, Sept. 7 (UP)—The Communist overran the east coast Port of Pohang today and punched their way to within 10 miles of the big Allied communications center of Taegu.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said the enemy was gathering strength for a still stronger push and one of the strangest battles of the war was shaping up on the northern front. The Communists threw in armored reinforcements, which included 84 tanks, and American night fighter pilots offered battle to them in the darkness. The results were not known immediately, but the American fliers destroyed 10 tanks and damaged seven others yesterday. American 24th division troops counter-attacked toward Pohang and gained up to two miles. U. S. and South Korean forces pushed back into Yongchon, transport center midway between Pohang and Taegu.

The threat to Taegu, former emergency capital and mainbase in the northern part of the beachhead, suddenly became acute. The U. S. 1st Cavalry division was forced back to a line only nine miles north of Taegu in the general setback along the northern line.

British troops, going into action for the first time in Korea, were fighting eight miles southwest of Taegu. Communist forces which broke across the Nakdong last week in the western front offensive apparently had pushed up the highway into Taegu from the area of Taksong, 15 miles to the southwest.

A LONGER RANGE THREAT

To the east flank of Taegu arose when the Communists reached Yongchon after a 5 1/2 mile advance. Although Allied units reentered the town, the enemy in that area was in position to cut the eastern supply route from Pusan to Taegu or to push down a main road toward Pusan.

A U. S. 8th Army communique said Allied forces fighting north from Kyongju and east from Yongchon "today were halting the Communist exploitation of his breakthrough south of Kigye" in the Pohang sector.

A regiment of the South Korean capital division stopped a Communist regiment a little over a mile south of Pohang, the communique reported.

ON THE TAEQU FRONT, IT said, the U. S. 1st Cavalry division repulsed two attacks without loss of ground. One was in the area of the walled city of Kasan, north of Taegu, which the Americans had lost along with nearby Tabu. The other was two miles northeast of Waegwan, which is 12 miles northwest of Taegu.

American reinforcements rushed into the critical sector and opened a counter-attack northwest of Kyongju, the threatened transport center 17 miles southwest of Pohang.

United Press Correspondent Robert Bennyhoff reported from the Kyongju front that men of the 24th division had gained up to two miles by noon.

JUST TO THE NORTHWEST,

American and South Korean troops forged back into Yongchon a few hours after it was lost, according to field reports. Bennyhoff said the Communists appeared to have been forced out of Yongchon. A 24th division spotter plane reported ed U. S. and Korean Republican troops were in the town and a U. S. officer at Kyongju said the Allies were "back in the city."

The road between Kyongju and Yongchon was reported open late Wednesday.

Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of ground forces in Korea, was in Kyongju to give the critical situation his close attention. He said he thought the northern line was "safe," he felt optimistic about regaining the lost ground, and the western front along the Nakdong to Masan was "secured."

"I HAVE GREAT HOPE OF getting back to our original line, and once back to the line we hope to hold for our departure when we begin our counter-offensive," Walker said.

"Since Sept. 1 the enemy has been hitting us with everything he has. I think we were trying to get us to move some of our people away from the southern front to the north."

"I feel also that he definitely was trying to reach Pusan—that he was trying a pincers movement from both north and south."

The evacuation of Pohang was orderly, Bennyhoff reported from that area. The defenders fell back to a line behind the Yongnan river southwest of the city and paralleling the Pohang-Angang highway.

THE POHANG AIR FIELD, six miles south of the city itself, still was in Allied hands. Front reports said orders had gone out to hold it at all costs. A spokesman at MacArthur's headquarters said no action had been reported in or near the airfield, the best in the beachhead which had to be abandoned as an operational base when the Communists first took Pohang Aug. 11.

The entire Western front south from the Taegu area to the sea was reported in good shape. The U. S. 2nd division and 1st Marine brigade were shoving the enemy back toward the Nakdong at a steady pace. A late communique said they had gained up to two miles, with the Marines about five miles west of Yongnan in 1 h-r Nakdong bend where the deepest penetration was made in the offensive last week.

Hurricane Begins To Backtrack After Battering Coast For Hours

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. Sept. 6 (UP)—A backtracking hurricane began to lose some of its punch today after battering the Florida west coast for hours with winds up to 125 miles per hour.

At least 10 persons were missing in the storm, rated by the Miami weather bureau as the "worst in history" for the northern end of the Gulf coast.

Damage was estimated at more than $1,000,000 in the St. Petersburg area alone.

Its long stay over land had drained the storm of much of its vigor and highest winds reported in the last few hours were 67 miles per hour at Anclote Key. However, the weather bureau warned that hurricane winds still whirled around the "eye" of the tempest and dangerous gales whipped over much of the northern and central Florida.

It was drifting toward this rich gulf coast resort city for the second time in 24 hours, this time on a south-southeast course. An early morning advisory located the storm center about 20 miles north of Tampa. The forward movement was only about four miles per hour. The Red Cross appealed to local residents to open their homes to evacuees after downtown hotels were filled to overflowing. Two barracks at the U. S. Maritime Training station, which had been closed for a year, were reopened as shelters.

The unpredictable hurricane, which pounded the northern end of the peninsula yesterday with towering tides and ferocious winds, whirled around suddenly early today and started back along the same path it had come.

Damage here yesterday was estimated at $1,000,000. The St. Petersburg Times had photographs of three $50,000 homes which a reporter said looked as if they had been "crumpled by a giant hand."

Officials feared for the safety of ten men aboard a small tug which got caught in the hurricane off Tarpon Springs yesterday and has not been heard from since. The Coast Guard ordered a search for the vessel.

The big winds posed a new threat to the 100,000,000-box citrus fruit crop just ripening into the largest crop in Florida's history. Previously the fruit belt had received beneficial rains from the fringes of the storm, but the southwestward movement of the storm might bring damaging winds this time.

THE STORY: Alice Pine, secretary to Muriel Hallock, has suspected Brent, Muriel's husband, of embezzling her money. Muriel, who had witnessed the scene, appointed Muriel's secretary, Alice, to investigate. Muriel does not blame Alice and does not seem to care what happens between Alice and Brent. Alice feels guilty, although she realizes she had nothing to do with Brent's actions except being there. Brent goes away to take a job as art director in an advertising agency and to return only on week-ends. He has asked Alice to "watch out for Rick." But on Saturday, when Brent fails to return home, Alice is keenly disappointed. That afternoon, Muriel, the nurse, appears with Rick. Muriel tells Rick to go to bed, but Rick suddenly goes into a tantrum.

ferred, she had to follow through. "Let me handle him, Muriel," she said quickly. "You—you're tired."

She didn't wait for a reply. She scooped up the squalling youngster. He screamed lustily and continued kicking. Alice's thighs took a pounding as she carried Rick into the house.

In the hall she sat down, holding the boy in her lap. Gradually she quieted him to a point where the screams ceased and he sobbed spasmodically against her shoulder.

"That was a pretty silly thing to do, Rick," she said then. "Big boys don't do that."

Thereafter she read him a lecture composed of remarks equally lame. Rick, however, appeared to profit by it.

"Rick big boy," he assured her solemnly, eschewing sobs. "That's debatable," said Alice. And she gave him to Stella who had followed Alice into the house and been a silent witness to the quieting.

"Rick big boy," he assured her solemnly, eschewing sobs. "That's debatable," said Alice. And she gave him to Stella who had followed Alice into the house and been a silent witness to the quieting.

ALICE'S next golf game with Molly Tremayne was an abbreviated affair. Molly left after the fifteenth hole to keep a dentist appointment. Alice, finishing alone, found Chuck Winger idling near the eighteenth green.

Chuck had made a slight concession to his surroundings by discarding the paint-daubed pants for decent gray slacks. But he wore another jersey flamboyant as the one he had on the first time Alice saw him.

"Hi," he greeted her. "Just saw Molly tearing away. What's the matter? Did she get licked and go off mad?"

"She had to see the dentist," Alice said. "And don't be silly. Molly doesn't get mad."

"Oh yes, she does. She's mad at me." His sidelong grin reminded her again of a little boy.

She said: "Not mad, Chuck. Just terribly disappointed. You see, she knew you from your smugglebunny days. And it's hard for her to see you grow up to be the village varrant."

"Well," said Chuck amiably, "somebody had to take the job." Alice let a moment pass before she spoke: "Chuck, tell me something, will you?"

"Why, certainly," he replied. "I'd tell you lots of things—if I were a young man again."

"No, I mean seriously. Why does Molly Tremayne have it in for Brent Hallock?"

Chuck raised his sandy brows. "Ha! Has she been maligning him?"

"Not so much today," Alice said. "But, another time she made me understand pretty definitely that she didn't think very much of him."

"Oh," Chuck dismissed Molly with a wave of his hand. "Molly's all right. But she's lived around her since Columbus' day and she knows too much about everybody."

Ranger Rambling

The refunding of the Ranger school's bonded indebtedness helped not only Ranger but the bookkeeping of the State Permanent and Available funds.

Refunding the local district's debt removed 80 per cent of the delinquent bonds held by the two funds.

That's quite a little percentage for the little town of Ranger to have.

The law under which this indebtedness was refunded was passed in 1947 at the urging of Cisco, who was in as bad a shape as Ranger.

Ranger was unable to take advantage of the law at that time because Sieberling Rubber company still held some of the bonds.

Incidentally, Sieberling has been trying to get money since the late thirties from Ranger—and got several court judgments. But the school wasn't able to clear up this debt and become eligible for the refunding until this year when the Junior college collected enough money to buy the Cooper (administration) building from the school district.

A couple more years and Ranger would not have been able to refund because the debt was growing all the time—and to such an extent that Ranger couldn't have paid off the refunding bonds in 40 years, which the law requires.

It's going to take from 38 to 39 years as it is.

And this might be a good time to correct a couple dates that came out wrong in yesterday's story.

The district didn't issue bonds in 1935. The last bond issue was in 1926.

The original bonds will be paid off in 1965 instead of 1955 as stated.

Refunding is so important to Ranger because in another 40 or 50 years—maybe sooner—the school buildings are going to start tottering around the edges—and be condemned. Ranger district can't vote another bond issue until it gets out of debt.

Therefore it is important to get out of debt as soon as possible so that a new bond issue can be voted for rebuilding in 1990 or 2000.

Farmers have what sounds like a legitimate complaint against us city folks.

And that's shooting their stock, tearing down their fences, trampling up their fields while we're hunting doves now and rabbits later.

They don't want that to happen this year. And you can understand why they get a little more irritated at losing a cow when you figure that the animal may be worth $100 up to $250 and that the farmer may have that much money in the animal.

A great number of farmers are willing to have you hunt their ground if you take care of their fences, ask them for permission

Marines Fighting In Korea Are Hopping Mad At Presidential Quote About Propaganda Machine

By Peter Kallscher
United Press Staff Correspondent
SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, Sept. 6 (UP)—The U. S. Marines were hoppin' mad and used unprintable four-letter words today to describe what they thought of President Truman's statement and watch out for stock.

But shooting from the roads without regard to animals in a field is a good way to ruin your and the other fellow's hunting.

The Community Chest organization is getting underway. There was a lot of delay before a group of civic leaders were sold on the idea.

But the directors, ably chairman by Dave Pickrel, are working now, making careful and conservative plans.

But they complain that a lot of people have the misconception that the Chest is to raise money for all drives—that it is commercial in nature.

It's strictly a charity organization. It will raise funds only for the Boy and Girl Scouts, Child Welfare and the Salvation Army.

There will still be independent drives by the Red Cross, the March of Dimes, various churches, the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations that can't enter the chest for one reason or another.

It Was Just An Accident—

... that Columbus discovered America, or was it luck? He himself said that his journey would be hazardous and he didn't know where he was going. But he had faith that he would discover a great land, and he did. Likewise, the person who buys land without an abstract is embarking on a dangerous course. Like Columbus he must have faith that he won't lose his all and plenty of luck to avoid disaster.

BOYCE HOUSE SAYS

In a State where women serve on juries, a man was going on trial. There were more women in the jury panel than there were men.

The defendant looked at every juror, studied anew the judge, made up his mind, and turned to his lawyer. "I think we'd better withdraw our motion for a jury trial, and let the judge hear the case," he said.

"Why do you want to do that?" "Well, I never could fool my mother, I never could fool my sweetheart, I never could fool my wife—and there are eight women on that jury! I'll take my chances with the judge."

of the Red Cross field mission attached to the 1st Marine brigade.

"Marines are doers and not talkers," Cole said. "I went through the last war with the Army, the Navy, the Air Force and the Marines. I never saw morale as high as in the Marines."

A marine lieutenant said, "I voted for him the last time but by God the next time . . ."

His top sergeant hopped in: "He ain't going to lose many votes," the sergeant said. "The Marines are too busy fighting to vote."

A tough looking private lit a cigarette and tried to calm the others. They had just returned from four fierce battles in a month of war.

"I think we ought to be broad-minded about this," he said. Then, a grin creasing his dirty face, he added, "in fact having your brains spread all over Korea is about as broadminded as you can get."

A captain who led the 1st Marine patrol up Mount Suribachi in World War II turned his head and silently walked away when asked to comment on the President's statement.

"I just don't believe the President could have said that," a Captain just back from the Nak-tong bulge said in bewilderment.

"He did the best he could to sink us," a Major in a dirty uniform added. "The American people apparently found out we were useful to have around."

A third officer in the group walked away in disgust.

The only man who would be quoted by name was A. W. Cole of San Diego, Calif., a member

Delay Slated In Uncle Sam's Appeal To Law

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6 (UP)—A delay until next summer appeared likely today in the government's appeal in the $300,000,000 Texas City disaster case.

More than a truckload of documents must be printed before the Fifth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals can weigh the appeals.

The court ordinarily would hear the case in a term opening Nov. 6 at Fort Worth. But Eberhard P. Deutsch, representing the government in its appeals said it appeared unlikely that the huge mass of material would be ready by then.

Attorneys agreed that the case probably will be heard here early next summer.

Some 8,000 plaintiffs filed damage suits charging that government negligence caused the disaster. The suits were consolidated for speedier court action.

Relatives Sue To Break Will Favor Of Church

RICHMOND, Sept. 6 (UP)—A petition asking that the will of the late Miss Stella Scanlan be set aside charged today that she was "of unsound mind" and "was kept a virtual prisoner for four years prior to her death." In the will Miss Scanlan left practically all her multi-million dollar estate to Catholic church charities.

The suit was filed by H. A. Hillendahl and 20 others who are descendants of the maternal or paternal grandparents of Stella Scanlan against L. F. Linnenberg the Scanlan plantation manager, Walter F. Brown, who was attorney for Miss Scanlan, Bishop Wendelin J. Nold of the Catholic Diocese of Galveston and the Scanlan Foundation.

Among other things, the suit charged that Miss Scanlan at the time she executed the will in 1947, and a codicil dated Feb. 23, 1948, was unable to take a "rational survey of her estate" did not know or understand the objects of her bounty; that she had no comprehension whatsoever of what the Scanlan Foundation was, and at the time she executed the will and codicil she had no comprehension of who the persons were who would be affected by the instrument.

Miss Scanlan, the suit alleged, had been confined to the 8,000-acre Scanlan Plantation for some four years before she died last January.

The Scanlan foundation is a Catholic charity organization.
