Rangers Run Into Fast, Big Squad 8 Tonight, Here

RJC SEEKS REVENGE FOR LAST YEAR'S 27-0 DEFEAT

Tonight at eight the Rangers hope to do something about changing the underdog role which has been tagged to their team the last couple of games.

The rugged Tarleton State Flowboys will be a big order in trying to knock over the upset bucket. Last year's 27-0 defeat by Tarleton still stings and Coach Boone Yarborough's eleven has something called 'revenge' in mind.

New offensive plays hold the Ranger's hopes of switching the score this year. The Flowboy's running game is called good—very good. Marvin Brown, Tarleton All SWJC conference halfback, is the sparkplug of the invaders. Yarborough and other coaches consider him one of the best Junior college halfbacks in the state.

Sending his inexperienced boys against the veteran Flowboys, Coach Yarborough hopes to slow down the fast offensive of his opponent with some trick plays and lots of passing.

The Ranger's line—10 to 15 pounds lighter—will have its hands full with the heavy Flowboys forward wall. In the backfield, Coach Boone Yarborough is forced to sacrifice weight for speed.

At 165, Jack McWhorter is the heaviest back on the Ranger offensive team. Jimmy Gerth, the small 'un in the backfield at 155, has shown some good pass receiving and fast stepping in his spin-

Yearbook Staff Begin Work On 1951 'Bulldog'

Ranger High School's yearbook, the maroon and white "Bulldog" is in the beginning stage as the new staff members get together for work.

It is still too early to give a description of what the finished product will look like, Miss Barbara Getts, yearbook sponsor, said. But the students hope and expect to produce a pleasing and informative school annual, Miss Getts said.

THE WEATHER

By United Press
A coating of dense fog, verging on a light drizzle at some points settled over Texas today but weathermen expected the heavy blanket to lift during the day.

Only in extreme West Texas and in the Davis Mountain area were clear skies reported.

The forecast called for occasional light rain in the Panhandle and in the northeast portion of East Texas today and tomorrow.

Elsewhere, it was expected to be fair with little change in temperatures. Another coating of fog was expected over most of the state tomorrow.

ning and shifty broken-field running. Rounding out the light Ranger backfield are Bud Hamrick, quarterback and Bobby Williams, right half back.

Probable starters for Tarleton are: ends, Louis Holt, Brownwood, and Jack Jones, Breckenridge; guards, Charles Goff, McAllen and Lee Wise, Brownwood; tackles, Donald Deal, Midland, and James Coble, Mansfield; and center Dan Coultas, McAllen.

In the Flowboy backfield will be Pence Dacus, quarterback; Marvin Brown and Elmer Shaw, halfbacks; and fullback, Lloyd Corder.

The End EZZARD CHARLES RETAINS HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE AS BROWN BOMBER'S TEARS SPELL FINISH TO SIXTEEN TRIUMPHANT YEARS

By Oscar Fraley

United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (UP)—Tears streamed unashamed down the brown cheeks, bubbling through a purple left eyelid as if pumped by a broken heart, as the man named Joe Louis came to the end of the trail.

A legend forged by iron fists through 16 triumphant years, had been shattered in less than an hour, and nobody knew it better than the dark destroyer who finally had been destroyed himself.

It was the end of an era—and it proved once again the time-worn adage that "they never come back."

Other great champions had tried it—Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Corbett, Dempsey and Schmeling. Now, two years after he had been retired as the undefeated heavyweight champion of the world, the man they idolized as the Brown Bomber had come back to smash tradition and a slim, black usurper called Ezzard Charles.

But the rounds ground by, almost endlessly, and while the Bomber stalked ever forward in that famous fashion, all he was firing now were duds. The 14th round was the worst for those who watched the balding man; and, looking into the past, saw a vision of the young Louis who blazed out of nowhere with dynamic trail of battered rivals in his all-winning wake.

The years were claiming their inevitable toll now, and once again youth was having its fling. Back then it would have been Louis throwing that stunning, shocking right hand. Now he was "hacking" them—and one such crashing blow caused his arms to drop helplessly at his sides, an expression of utter agony twisting his "smiled" dead-pain into a death mask.

Leaden arm and with his brain numbed by the rain of blows, he still gave it a champion's effort in the final round. But it was a senseless long lost. Then, while the crowd with its fickle adoration cheered Charles—"champion of the world"—Joe Louis took the longest walk of his life.

Sixty-one times, Louis had taken that walk back to the dressing room. Sixty of them had been marches of victory. Only once before had he been beaten, knocked out by a man named Max Schmeling. But Joe was young, and revenge wasn't too far off.

There could be no revenge this time—until a distant day when, as a spectator, he might see some other youngster knock out this man who had proved his nemesis tonight.

So he made the long walk. He was bowed and shrouded in a blood-stained towel. They led him mite in each hand and left a like an old man, like a broken man. The vestiges of a great pride demanded, even now, that he hide the left eye swollen shut with a purple passion, the swollen, bleeding nose, and the bruise-stained body.

The newspapermen, who had seen him so many times in victory filed into the room and saw him sitting with a swollen hand buried in a bucket of ice, head bowed as never before. That's when the tears bubbled and Joe huddled into a corner, his back turned to the man who had known him in his fight from poverty to power.

Fumbling fingers dressed him for another fight now, this one from pity to privacy, and he closed that one good eye to shut out the sorrow in their faces. His voice was low and broken as with a voice which quivered with the tears, he tried one last time to answer their questions.

A jubilant Charles was celebrating in his dressing room down the hall under the Yankee Stadium, just as Louis had gloved 13 storied years ago on the night he won the title from Jim Braddock. Ezzard was rejoicing, and his victim was mumbling:

"That's the last fight for me. Positively, this time. You just can't do it when you just don't have it."

The shades of Jeffries, Fitzsimmons, Corbett, Dempsey and Schmeling nodded solemn agreement.

U.S. Mopping Up Ko-Reds

By Earnest Hoherecht
United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Sept. 28 (UP)—The battle of ammunition against some 70,000 Communist troops still in South Korea began in earnest today.

One American force had jumped within 24 miles of the border of Communist North Korea, American northern and southern armies were firmly joined and American fighter bombers were blasting fleeing Red columns from Taejeon to the 38th parallel. Intelligence officers said that since the Marine landing at Seoul's port of Incheon, the Marines had taken 3,300 prisoners and inflicted 11,200 enemy casualties.

Sixty miles south of Osan, Yanks of the 24th Division recaptured by-passed Taejeon and erased their bitterest Korean defeat. Tanks and foot soldiers spread throughout the city and also took Taejeon airport.

One thousand Reds made a determined stand on the outskirts of Taejeon, but finally broke and fled north by train and truck, only to be caught later by bombing, strafing American fighter-bombers.

American 2nd Division forces retook Chonju, 39 miles southwest of Taejeon. Northwest of Seoul, an unidentified Allied column—presumably the U. S. 187th Airborne Regiment—pushed five miles up the southwest bank of the Han River to Yanggong, 24 miles south of the 38th parallel.

In the same general area, Seventh Fleet units bombarded Fankochi Point, southernmost point on the Ongjin Peninsula, some 25 miles south of the 38th parallel.

South Korean Marines landed on five more islands off the west and south coasts.

It was estimated that some 50,000 Red troops of six divisions were caught in the newly-forged American trap below Seoul. The South Koreans on the mountainous eastern side of the peninsula were chasing 35,000 to 40,000 more.

UN MAY OK CROSSING OF 38TH PARALLEL

Peace Reports Still Coming From Reds

By Bruce W. Munn

United Press Staff Correspondent

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 28 (UP)—Informed sources believed today the United Nations General Assembly will give tacit authorization to Gen. Douglas MacArthur to cross the 38th Parallel unless reported peace feelers from North Korea bring a quick end to the Korean war.

Reaction to reports that North Korea had forwarded peace feelers to India through the Chinese Communist regime at Peiping, was mixed at the UN, where no official word of suggested peace terms had been received.

Informed sources in New Delhi, India, said it was believed the peace negotiations had been going on for some time through Indian ambassador to Peiping Sardar Pannikar. The Indian foreign affairs ministry reflecting reticence to discuss the negotiations said only "no communication yet has been received from Pannikar in Peiping."

Eastland Gilt To Be Shown In Breckenridge

Glen Fleming of the Pioneer 4-H Club will show his county first place winner winning gilt at the Sears Foundation area-wide pig show at Breckenridge, Saturday.

Fleming's gilt, which won first place in a county Sears show in Ranger last Saturday, will be in competition with gilts from Jack, Stephens, Young and Throckmorton counties.

Carroll Sandlin of Carbon, holder of the county's Sears' boar, will show his pig at the area show also. The boar was exhibited at the county show.

Other winners in the county show were Lawrence Ingram of the Scranton 4-H club, second; Mac Pines, Ranger 4-H club, third; Don Starr, Scranton, fourth; Leon Rodgers, Deadman 4-H club, fifth.

The Sears Foundation, in order to improve the breed of hogs, has set up funds for the purchase of eight gilts and a boar for counties entering into the pig program.

Eight boys are given gilts. They sign a contract to care for the gilts and to turn over a gilt out of the first litter back to the foundation. This gilt is in turn given to another boy. The Sears Foundation gives a different county boy a registered boar each year.

The Eastland county pigs are registered Durp Jerseys.

Four contests are held: A county, area, heavy litter and largest pen of five.

Sears and Roebuck also furnish the prize money; eight, seven, six, five and four dollars for the county show; thirty-five, thirty, twenty-five, twenty, and fifteen for the area show.

Wrong Turn Gets AF Men Combat Infantry Badge

SEOUL, Korea, Sept. 28 (UP)—The officers of one battalion which fought for Seoul say they're going to get combat infantryman's badges for a couple of Air Force boys.

During street fighting, Air Force Capt. James A. Jimenez, of San Antonio, Tex., who is attached to the 32nd infantry regiment as ground liaison officer, drove right into the middle of an intense fight.

He and his crew dismounted after their jeep took two bullets.

One of the crew, Corp. Robert C. Haro, of Burlington, N. J., killed one Communist and captured another. Jimenez' carbine jammed, so he started to sling grenades. Then he mounted an observation tower in a fire station and directed an air strike against the well-trenched enemy.

The doughboys say this battle entitled Jimenez and Haro to combat infantrymen's badges. "I never wanted to be there," Jimenez said. "I just took a wrong turn."

City Chamber Of Commerce Elects Brashier President

New officers were elected by the Ranger Chamber of Commerce to begin their duties Oct. 1.

Incoming executives are: F. F. Brashier, president; Dr. Calvin W. Harris, vice-president; W. F. Creager, treasurer; and E. V. Galloway, manager. Creager and Galloway were re-elected.

President Brashier has been a resident of Ranger since 1908 when he arrived from Arkansas. In 1925 Brashier and his father formed a partnership, the Ranger Furniture Exchange.

The furniture field has been Brashier's occupation before and after World War I, in which he served as a Marine. He has also been connected with the oil business.

Brashier has always owned his home and now lives at 702 W. Main. A son, Pete Brashier, Jr., works with his father. Brashier is a member of the Rotary Club, Masons, Retail Merchants Association and First Baptist Church.

As president of the Chamber,

In Education • 1876-1951
Our first state college—Texas A. and M. is now in its seventy-fifth year

... at the lowest possible cost, an education which is at the same time thorough, liberal and practical.

Governor Richard Coke, first Democrat to hold the Governor's office in Texas after Reconstruction days, was more responsible than any other man for the founding of the A. and M. College of Texas. A well-educated (William & Mary) strong-willed man of vision, he pushed through the Legislature the acts which established the college as a going concern, and served as chairman of the college's first board of directors. In his speech dedicating the new institution, on opening day, October 4, 1876, Richard Coke laid the foundation stone for the educational philosophy on which A. and M. has grown. "The aim and mission of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas," he said, "is, while preparing the young men of Texas for the high duties of American citizenship, at the same time to train their intelligence in the methods and appliances of science, and their hands to the skill which shall utilize them in the everyday pursuits of life... It has been the constant aim of the board to bring down to the lowest possible figure the cost of an education which shall be at the same time thorough, liberal and practical." On this foundation, the A. and M. College of Texas has been built, in its first 75 years, into one of the outstanding technical schools for men in the nation.

End of a Chapter
By Edwin Ruff

ALICE PINE needed an interval in which to think out what to explain and how to say what she wanted to say when she met Brent Halleck at Grovesnor Point.

As first, during that long drive from the city, it had been hard to compose her thoughts with the wind singing a song around her. She still wasn't able to get everything straight. But gradually the explanations came. Even though there were things she had to guess, she knew practically everything.

Of course, Alice would never be able to figure out exactly why Muriel wanted to discredit Brent around the village of Tolliver. Especially with people like Molly Tremayne. But Alice had a vague idea why.

It must have done something for Muriel's ego, she decided. Muriel wanted to build herself up by tearing Brent down through innuendos and half-truths. Alice had seen it work in her own case. Muriel wanted to pose as the success in the Halleck family, even as the breadwinner, and to destroy Brent—to point him out as the failure.

Alice couldn't think what must have been in Muriel's mind to do such a thing. But Muriel seems to have gotten some sort of a vicious kick out of it. And to call Brent a failure was a half-truth, in a way, although perhaps Muriel herself had made it as true as it was. Muriel really had been the breadwinner for awhile.

And why not? While Muriel was making a success of her career, Brent was away, at war. Before Brent actually left, though, he had given Muriel the security she had needed in order to make her stories click. As soon as Muriel got that security, she had all she wanted from Brent. Muriel had practically admitted this to Alice.

Then, when Brent came back from the war, he had lost his magazine contacts and had a bad time re-establishing them. He had

Then there was the man who had been drinking and he walked into an office building. The elevator was up toward the top but the first-floor door had not been closed, so he stepped through and fell down the shaft into the basement, landing with a great crash. People hurried down expecting to pick up a badly injured man but he had arisen and was brushing himself off as he remarked:

much for the chip. It must have been pretty terrible, living with a financially independent, successful woman who never lost a single opportunity to remind him how rich and how successful she was getting.

Brent would deny some of this. In her mind she could see him shake his head. But it was true.

ALICE'S mind went on over each detail of the unraveled puzzle. She knew all about Brent's decision not to contest Muriel's divorce. Chuck had told her. And she knew that Brent would have to buy the old place back, even again, from Muriel now since Brent had put the property in her name after their marriage.

Brent was on a job he disliked, but he could earn enough to buy the place. Of course, Muriel would let Brent have it on easy terms. But why shouldn't Muriel? The Point was Brent's home. It meant everything to him. And Brent probably had always felt that it was his place, even when it was not legally his.

It must have been a wrench to Brent when he had let her tear down his old house. Brent could not have stopped Muriel from this. He was away at war and Muriel was the breadwinner.

Later Brent had found that actually Muriel didn't want to take Rick. That point had been cleared up by Chuck Wisner. And later—Chuck hadn't talked about this, because he hadn't known about it—Muriel had let Brent take the blame for something he hadn't done. That whip episode the night of the storm.

Brent had been too decent to clear it up with Alice. Muriel was still Brent's wife and he felt, Alice decided, that Brent had to protect her. But Muriel did come through and clear this up. That's something Alice would always remember.

Alice was approaching Grovesnor Point now. She slowed down her car as the Hallock place came into view. She swerved into the drive, and parked her machine a little to one side.

She would leave room for Brent's car, when he came.

Huntsville Gets Ready For Big Prison Rodeo

HUNTSVILLE, Sept. 27 (Echo)—Huntsville is getting ready for the biggest opening crowd in rodeo history next Sunday, October 1, when the Nineteenth Annual Event makes its debut in the Prison-Rodeo Stadium. This little city is quickly proving itself to become the rodeo capitol of the Southwest.

Merchants, restaurateurs and townfolk are preparing for the large crowds expected to attend this annual feat. Empty lots are being leveled, raked and cleaned to serve as parking lots for visitors' cars. Teen-agers are building small soft-drink stands, hoping to quench the thirst of travelers and earn some pocket money. No stone has been left unturned to make this the greatest show in the history of the rodeo. From opening day, which has been designated as "Governor's Day," to the grand finale on the last Sunday in October, the show will burst forth in spectacular thrills and eye catching events.

Rodeo host, Warden H. E. Moore of the Huntsville Unit of the Texas Prison System, assured the public that his entire staff and personnel will be in readiness to handle the expected throngs. He further stated that the new steel bleachers, replacing the old wooden north stands, will be erected in time for opening day.

Rodeo Director Albert Moore stated today, "Never have I seen such wholehearted support and interest as shown by the inmates. Truly it will be the greatest, wildest show in the seventeen years I have directed the rodeo."

Inmates of the prison are putting the finishing touches to the annual housecleaning and renovation of the huge stadium. Rodeo stock is already trucking into the corrals and the entire prison is shouting—"IT'S RODEO TIME."

Smiles and Jokes Mean Opposite To Russian Delegate Jacob Malik; Two Months Of Bad Korea News

By Harry Ferguson
United Press Foreign News Editor

When you meet Jacob Malik, Russian delegate to the United Nations, in the corridors these days, he sometimes smiles and even cracks a joke. But that does not mean he is happy. It means just the opposite.

The Korean war was three months old yesterday. Nothing has gone right for the Russians in those 90 days. Their puppet army in North Korea is now learning about war the hard way. None of Malik's projects in the U.N. has come out the way he wanted it to. Time now runs against Moscow instead of against the skel-'on line of U.N. troops who held the bridgehead above Pusan until reinforcements arrived.

The short-range plans of the leaders of international Communism have been thwarted in Korea. These plans called for a quick Communist conquest of South Korea, establishment of another "People's Republic" and then, probably, a brief lull while they picked out another target for aggression. Now they are wondering how they are going to extricate themselves from the Korean debacle without too much loss of face.

The Communists have taken short-range setbacks before. They have survived them and, in due time, pushed ahead as strong as ever. But in Korea they see their long-range plans—the conquest of the entire world—in danger. Plenty of Russian officials have been led down into the cellar in Lubyanka Prison in Moscow and shot in the back of the head for much more trivial things than the crisis that has grown out of Korea.

Moscow's long-range plan is in danger because Korea alerted the world. It also unified nations who heretofore have been inclined to place their sovereign interest first and the problem of combating Communism second. Yesterday for instance, foreign minister Bevin of Britain said he favored the general principle of maintaining a United Nations army to rush to the scene in case there are any more Koreans. If such a plan goes through, the Democratic world will be able to give fire-department action to any other blaze the Kremlin starts.

But the biggest blow to the Communists' long-range plan is that Korea brought about the rearmament of the United States. Russia, in effect, handed a weapon to the biggest fellow in the world and put him on notice that he might be attacked at any time. Up until Korea, the American people were inclined to believe that Communism would be effectively challenged somewhere and some time, but nobody had a clear idea of how it was going to be done.

The fact that Malik smiles and tells a joke hardly could be interpreted as being a major shift in Russian policy, but it is a frown in the wind, it seems to have softened up some; he seems willing to concede there might be two sides to some problems. In short he is acting like a man who may have to work out a compromise some day soon with the Western world.

Our diplomats have warned us frequently about Russian "peace offensives"—attempts to lull us into a sense of security. The point they make is that it doesn't mean the Communists have altered their fundamental plans. It means they merely have decided the time isn't right for the day of reckoning.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY THE BEST!

GOODYEAR TIRES are the best!

In times like these, far-sighted people naturally buy the best. And when it comes to tires, they buy the best tires. That's why more car owners today are turning to Goodyear tires.

That's why we're having a hard time keeping Goodyear tires in stock—despite the fact that Goodyear makes more tires than any other manufacturer in the world. Even if we are temporarily out of your tire size, it will pay you to place your order now for earliest possible delivery.

Trade new miles for old

90% of all tire trouble occurs in the last 10% of tire life. Why take chances with worn, smooth tires? We'll trade new Goodyear miles for the remaining unsafe mileage in your present tires. Get out of the "danger zone"—go Goodyear. And for safer driving, get LifeGuard Safety Tubes.

Remember, if we don't have your tire size today, it will pay you to wait for new Goodyears—the best!

Come in... let's talk tires, tubes, terms

MARINES MOVE FAST TO GET TROOPS, HEAVY EQUIPMENT ACROSS HAN RIVER; SHORT HAIR IS COMMIE GIVE-AWAY

By H. D. Quigg
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WITH THE MARINES IN KOREA, Sept. 2 (UP)—The Marines moved fast after their first assault waves crossed the Han river to get troops, supplies and heavy equipment across.

The Han was a big, natural barrier on the drive from Inchon to Seoul. Marines are alert at such crossings. At 11:15 a. m. on the morning of the assault across the river they were assembling a big pontoon bridge.

We clambered down a footpath from the high hill from which we had watched the crossing and walked through the Han valley toward the river. Crossing a rice paddy, we noticed for the first time a row of Pershing tanks behind a field of high-grown millet. They were there to cover the crossing. Their long 90 millimeter guns were pointed at the river but they had not been used.

Your reporter encountered a truck moving along the valley road toward the river. It was covered with war correspondents, ivy-leafed hick-hikers. They had swarmed over the vehicle like flies assaulting a sugar bowl. They were on the body and on the rails, the running boards, the cab roof, the front fenders and the hood. I joined them, climbing aboard a spare tire mounted beside the cab.

Citrus Officers Clamp 2 Week Grapefruit Ban

WESLACO, Tex., Sept. 27 (UP)—A two-week ban on shipment of small grapefruit and oranges to market by lower Rio Grande Valley growers will go into effect at 12:01 a. m. next Tuesday.

The restriction was clamped on yesterday by the Texas Citrus Commission, which approved a recommendation from its executive committee that oranges be limited to no smaller than 2 3/8's, seedless grapefruit no smaller than 96's, and seeded grapefruit no smaller than 80's.

Size figures indicate the number necessary to fill a standard shipping crate.

Competition among valley shippers to get fruit to the market early brought on the limitations. Most observers agreed the fruit is failing the "spoon test", although it is passing the state's maturity tests.

Court injunctions prohibiting violators from further shipments are the commission's only means of enforcement. The federal-state inspection service was asked to check for violations of the ordinance.

The commission said shippers would be allowed only the usual deviation of 10 per cent a container permitted by the inspection service.

of the small boats which was used later to power the pontoon ferry. The bank on the opposite side was steep and sandy and littered with war refuse. Halfway up its slope was a stalled LVT, one of the amphibious craft which had brought the assault troops over. It had thrown a track. The LVT bore the name "Honey Barge" in big white letters. Across its front was lettered "Retto Loo." Its bow machine gun was named "Ho, To Go Joe."

The landing had been made through the village of Haengjo, a cluster of shabby, straw-roofed houses. Here and there a house burned to the ground. The black and smoking straw ashes forming a mat over, collapsed walls.

At the top of the bank we saw the street through the village had been leveled by fire. The bank was a dike-like earth formation. On the slope facing inland sat the entire pitiful population of the village, like spectators in a grandstand, surveying the blackened, fired section, nursing their wounded, watching the Marines search their houses. The villagers had been ordered to stay out while the town was combated for hiding enemy soldiers.

The road ran along the top of the bank. Marines were carrying their wounded over it in stretchers. On the road just above the villagers squatted 48 wounded Communists, prisoners. They wore their thin underwear, soaked with blood in patches where some had been hit. Two or three marines stood guard and medical corpsmen moved among them bandaging wounds. All had close-clipped hair a quarter to a half inch long except for two officers whose hair was of convention length.

"These men came down from North Korea only a few days ago," said Capt. D. L. Herrick of Montana, a Marine intelligence officer who watched as interpreters quizzed the Communists. "They're conscripts. Some just got in the army. When they think they're going to get captured they rip off their uniforms down to the underwear and melt into the civilian populace. But their short hair is a give away."

Staff Sgt. Robert Briggs of Richmond, Ind., said the prisoners had been a heavy machine gun platoon. More were being flushed out of rice paddies. Herrick pointed to a rough looking prisoner and said, "this guy says he didn't stop shooting his machine gun until he ran out of ammunition. It may be so but he's a rare case."

A wrinkled old woman lay by the roadside, her face pale, her eyes closed. She had been shot through the thigh. Someone had covered her with a blanket, another woman fanned her face. A Marine said he had heard the North Koreans shot her but he didn't know why.

Gambling Probe To Call Thirty Witness In Kan.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 28 (UP)—Thirty prospective witnesses today awaited their turn to testify before the Senate crime investigating committee at the public hearing.

Sen Estes Kefauver, D. Tenn., chairman, said the investigation here would look into not only race wire services, "but every phase of gambling and other interstate crime."

Those under subpoena included Jackson County Sheriff J. A. Purdome, close friend of slain Wolf C. Rimann, Kansas City's No. 1 operator in the liquor, juke box and tavern fields. Rimann's murder was never solved.

Kefauver, who arrived by plane last night, was joined early today by Sen. Alexander W. Wiley, R. Wis. They will be reinforced for the Saturday session by Sen. Herbert O'Connor, D. Md.

Kefauver said the committee would move to Chicago to open hearings Oct. 5, with 147 witnesses scheduled to be heard. After Chicago, the committee goes to Philadelphia.

"We have had some trouble getting witnesses in Kansas City," Kefauver admitted. "But generally, the public reaction to the investigation has been good."

He said he did not think the gang-style slaying of detective

TO REPLACE DOUGLAS AS AMBASSADOR

Reliable sources say that Walter S. Gifford, above, retired president of the American Telegraph and Telephoto Company, will be the new U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain, replacing Lewis Douglas who resigned. (NEA Telephoto).

William Drury in Chicago Monday night would have any effect on witnesses here. Drury had been scheduled to testify before the committee in Chicago.

Among those subpoenaed to appear in Kansas City were: John Mangiaracina, known as Johnny Mag, an ex-convict who is under federal indictment for in-

International Liar's Club Gets Some Whoppers Again

By Harman W. Nichol
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (UP)—Part of the world, at least, loves a liar. So here is the mid-noon crop of fibs from the famed Burlington, Wis., International Liar's Club.

Each year Otis C. Hullett, president of the outfit that was formed back here in the budget state in the early '30's, selects the biggest liar in the world and presents him with something of other. Usually a rubber "medal" plus a chance to tell a big one over the national network.

Right now, as we do every year, we'll present something of a preview of awful things to come.

A man from Argentina, France, who signed his letter Pierre Jones, (of all things!) submitted this one:

"I had a mouse in my barn which, of course spoke French. He was such a smart little fellow that I easily taught him to go after the cows in the pasture at milking time. He learned to moo in French—word for which is "bengne," which means—well, 'moo.' He did fine until the day when he met up with a mouse which somehow had gotten into our country from Sweden.

"That gave me a lot of trouble. He changed the 'bengne' to 'yaan.' The cows didn't understand what my mouse was talking about, stayed in the field and went un-milked for days. I finally had to fire my mouse. I understand he's now working for the Swedish embassy."

John J. Spicks, Jr., Oakland, Cal., had an interesting experience with a couple of his pets. As liars do, he swears this is true:

"Last summer my gold fish sliced a fit on some sharp rocks

RIGGING METHOD STREAMLINED IN NEW STEEL DERRICK

Oil Well Supply Company, U.S. Steel's oil field supply subsidiary with headquarters at Dallas, Texas, has announced a new portable steel derrick with a streamlined rigging method. Designed primarily for the higher derrick bases required in deeper well drilling, the new "bi-wheel" model raises directly from the ground. Upper left shows the assembled derrick ready to be erected, front legs hinging on a shaft at the bottom, rather than the top, of the substructure (inset). Upper right, draw works pulls it upward as it swings on front legs. Lower left, rear legs reach floor level and are connected on a second shaft which becomes the pivot point. Front legs raise to floor level, lower right, as the derrick completes the swing to vertical position. The new derrick is the first to use this means of rigging. Besides its ease of raising and lowering, it increases the safety factor by reducing loads on raising lines and draw works.

Truman Blasts James F. Byrnes In New Book

By Merriman Smith
(UP) White House Reporter
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (UP)—President Truman thinks James F. Byrnes "lost his nerve at Moscow... failed miserably as secretary of state... and ran out," according to an intimate biography of the President published today.

The book, "The Man From Independence," was written by North Carolina editor Jonathan Daniels, a one-time member of the White House family and close associate of the President during the 1948 election campaign.

Published by J. B. Lippincott, the book is not an official biography. But Mr. Truman says the manuscript and apparently gave Daniels permission to use intimate details which make it more revealing than any book yet published about the chief executive.

Daniels dates the President's break with Byrnes, now an anti-Truman candidate for Governor of South Carolina, from the 1945 conference of foreign ministers. Byrnes attended the conference as Mr. Truman's first appointee as secretary of state.

"Byrnes lost his nerve at Moscow," the President is quoted as saying.

"He failed miserably as secretary of state and ran out on me when the going was very rough and when I needed him worst."

Daniels noted that Byrnes left the top state department post in 1947, having resigned "on the advice of a physician." He then quotes Mr. Truman as saying: "His 'bad heart'... left him when he found that he made a bad guess. So he and old Baruch have joined the McCormicks, Hearsts and Scripps-Howards to discredit me. They will not succeed."

Daniels, now editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, also gave A. and M. College a thousand dollars several years ago to aid new students.

quotes Franklin D. Roosevelt, whom he served as secretary, to explain why Byrnes did not get the vice-presidential nomination from the Democrats in 1940. Daniels quotes FDR as saying he preferred Byrnes to Henry A. Wallace.

"But," Roosevelt told Daniels, "I talked with Archbishop Spellman and others in the church and they said the feeling against a renegade Catholic (Byrnes) would be such that any Catholic in doubt would resolve the difference against us—so at the last minute it was Wallace."

The publishers have since published a footnote in which Daniels says Spellman denies making any such statement to President Roosevelt.

Daniels concludes that Mr. Truman is "certainly the most un-average average man in America" and adds that he has taught the American people that their greatness lies in themselves.

"Bill and I had been fishing but a short time when a fog came down as thick as molasses and black like the night. I asked Bill to pull ashore but he kept on rowing and, having nothing else to do I kept on casting. We were having wonderful luck when—wham—we found ourselves ashore. Bill had rowed plumb out of that lake in the fog and when it lifted there we sat. Two miles from the lake and stuck in the branches of an old oak tree 20 feet off the ground. We built a fire up there and cooked a fine bunch of bass."

End of a Chapter

By Edwin Rutt

Copyright 1950 by MIA SERVICE, INC.

ALICE PINE got out of her car. It was dark. Muriel had closed up the house on the Point when she left for the coast and there was no one there now.

The singing of the wind which had distracted her thoughts on the long drive from the city, was silent here. There were no disturbing songs unless the gentle southing of the Sound down by the beach could be called a song.

Alice started back past the house, toward the beach, the same beach on which Brent Halleck had seen her and accused her of trespassing the first time they met.

She reached the sand and plodded through it to the edge of the water, where Long Island Sound lapped the shore.

A little mason dodged in and out behind ragged patches of clouds, alternately darkening the beach and then gliding it with a livid light.

For some infinitely long minutes Alice waited, listening to the incoming tide and waiting for the arrival of Brent Halleck. The lapping of the waves made a fretful, sighing noise, as if the Sound too were impatient.

The beach itself was deserted, save for Alice, and momentarily she was glad of its loneliness and that Brent had not yet arrived. She wanted to go over in her mind what she intended to say to him.

She would explain everything, show him that it was Muriel, not Brent himself, that had made him seem like a failure.

Alice had not given the reason for wanting Brent to meet her, when she sent her brief telegram. The message had simply asked him to meet her here, on the beach at the Point.

Slowly Alice went over her plan of what she would do when Brent finally came. When he arrived, she would sit on the sand beside him and tell him what she had learned. She would tell Brent about Muriel's visit, of her confession as to what happened the night of the storm, and she would also tell Brent of her conversation with Chuck Winsler in Tolliver the day Alice had left the Hallecks.

She would have to fill in some gaps, but Brent probably would know some of the answers. She must overcome his doubts—to show him where he had the ability to make something of himself still. Word by word she formed her pretty little speech.

She would tell Brent how she had misunderstood him of course, and she would explain to Brent that he was not the failure Muriel had tried to make him seem. She would tell him that the Hallecks were not going down-grade.

In conclusion she would say: "Oh, Brent, it's all going to be different now." And Brent, no doubt, would agree with her. Yes, that was Alice Pine's plan.

But as she waited, moments of doubt came to her mind. Had she done right in wiring him to come here? What if he had failed to receive her wire? The sounds of the waves became ominous and Alice grew slightly afraid. What if he would not come to meet her? Alice had thoughts of a long, lonely ride home.

But she knew Brent would come. She knew she wouldn't have to wait long.

Her mind raced back over what she had to do. When Brent arrived, the main thing would be to make him see that without Muriel to tear him down, things would be much different.

Suddenly her thoughts were interrupted by a distant cry. Someone calling her name. Alice listened and heard it again:

"Alice!"
It could be Brent. Alice whipped around, facing the house. Was it Brent Halleck? She had failed to hear his car when it pulled into the driveway next to her. The waves had probably drowned out the purring of the motor.

"Alice!"
As the cry came again—no doubting now, because she recognized Brent's voice—Alice saw the headlights of his car thrusting toward the beach. But where Alice stood was too far away. The groping, tapering antennas of light fell short and did not reach her. Brent could not see her.

Between the falling light and the spot where Alice stood near the edge of the Sound was a dark patch which the headlight beams could not pierce. From somewhere behind this blind spot came the shout again:

"Alice!"

She started toward him, her mind speeding over what she expected to say to him. She knew precisely what she must tell Brent Halleck. He would doubt, perhaps, but she must overcome his doubts, to restore his confidence in himself, to make him understand that it was Muriel, with her strange streak of sadism, which had defeated him all these years. Brent was here to hear her, and she must make him listen.

"Alice! Is that you?"
Alice cupped her hands and shouted. "Yes, Brent! Yes! Here I am!"

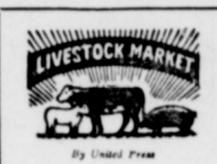

She almost stumbled as she ran toward him. She could see him now and he could see her as the moon peered out from behind the clouds for a brief instant. He was running toward her.

Yes, everything would be different for Brent from now on. Their outstretched arms met and the two figures melted into the darkness as the clouds folded again over the moon.

It was not strange, that Alice said scarcely any of the things she had intended to say to Brent at that time. In fact, she said none of them until long afterwards.

On this particular night there had seemed to be so many more important things to talk about.

ABSOLUTE PROOF HADACOL HELPS FOLKS SUFFERING STOMACH DISTURBANCES

when due to lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin in the system!

Mrs. John W. Geary, attractive and charming woman of 840 Ursuline St., New Orleans, Louisiana: "I'd been sick quite some time and the doctors told me it was nervous stomach. I couldn't eat regularly and lots of times I was unable to hold the food on my stomach. Then I heard about HADACOL. After the first few bottles I could tell a definite improvement. Now my stomach doesn't trouble me at all. I eat anything I want, and my nerves are fine." (Give HADACOL a chance to help you.)

Mrs. Minnie Shuff, a loving mother of Rt. 1, Box 42, Ville Platte, Louisiana: "My son Mark Wendell has been sick for some time. A lot of the time he couldn't hold anything on his stomach. He was very weak and pale. Then I started giving him HADACOL, and he improved in just a short time. He's gained weight and has more energy than a dozen wild Indians." (HADACOL is great for puny, nervous kiddies with easily upset stomachs due to lack of important Vitamins B-1, B-2, Iron and Niacin.)

Mrs. Alma Kincaid, 2125 E. Adelaide, St. Louis, Missouri: "I've been taking HADACOL for over a year. Before taking it, I had stomach distress for some time. Nothing seemed to help me. Then I took my husband's advice and took HADACOL. A good friend of his told him of the wonderful results he had from taking HADACOL. Now that I'm taking HADACOL I eat anything. I recommend HADACOL to all my friends." (A big improvement in often noticed within a few days.)

Why Continue To Doubt

These are just a few of thousands upon thousands of letters that constantly pour in telling of the wonderful results the great new HADACOL is giving. It's only a very foolish person who would continue to suffer in view of such overwhelming evidence.

Relieves the Cause of Stomach Distress Due to Such Deficiencies

So if you are suffering from stomach disturbance (gas pains, indigestion, heartburn), if the food you eat disagrees with you because your system is lacking Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin—don't delay—start taking HADACOL today. HADACOL is not a quick-acting antacid which gives symptomatic relief—instead, HADACOL actually relieves the REAL CAUSE of such stomach misery due to such deficiencies. And continued use helps prevent such painful distress from coming back.

Hundreds of Doctors Recommend It
Hundreds upon hundreds of doctors recommend HADACOL. It not only supplies weak, deficient systems with extra quantities of important Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin but also beneficial amounts of precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—elements so vital to help maintain vigorous health and guard against such deficiency ailments. And so inexpensive. Costs only a small amount a day. Trial-size bottle, $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. (C) 1950, The LeBlanc Corporation.—(Adv.)

Maids, Butlers Demand Higher Wages Today

By Elizabeth Toomey
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (UP)—Gladys, the upstairs maid, seems to be a vanishing American.

A survey of domestic help agencies shows that swank East Side town houses are looking for the "all-around girl" when it comes to servants. No longer does madam have an upstairs maid, a downstairs maid, a cook, a butler and a chauffeur.

"The cook has to help with the housework and the upstairs maid has to wait on the table," said the head of an employment agency specializing in "high class domestic help." Park Avenue residents that had five or six servants before the war now average two or three, according to the agency's estimate.

"Nobody brings a girl up to be a maid or a cook anymore," complained Eleanor Nielsen, who heads her own domestic employment agency. "I have plenty of butlers available, but I can't begin to fill the servant cutback in the high-ceilinged homes of the rich.

"They can't afford five or six servants at the salaries they have to pay now," one agency manager said. "Besides, they have to feed them, and with the cost of food today, even well-to-do families don't like to add six people to the list of mouths to feed."

The whole domestic help problem seems to have the would-be employers on a helpless merry-go-round.

"They have to pay more for them, so they expect more from the maid or cook," Miss Nielsen explained. "The girls get dissatisfied because they have so much to do, so they quit. Then we find them another maid and it happens all over again."

A good maid, if anybody wants to apply, demands around $40 a week in Manhattan now, plus room and board of course. A butler gets at least $50.

"But even the butlers today spend less time looking dignified and more time doing odd jobs around the house," Miss Nielsen commented with a sigh.
