Pups Chew Up Breckenridge For 7-0 Win

Score Comes At Last Minute Of Close Game

There was a little more bite than barking last night when Ranger Junior High's Pups chewed a 7-0 win over the Junior team from Breckenridge.

It was a close game throughout with the Pups having the edge on the ground and the visitors in the air.

As early as the first quarter the Pups line was charging hard with a blocked Breckenridge punt being cancelled because of a Ranger penalty.

The lone tally came in the last minute of the game. With Ranger intercepting a Breckenridge pass on the visitors' 45 and running it back to the 27 yard line, the Pups started their best sustained drive of the game.

Mitchell, Wallace and Forney bowled and pulled their way to the Breckenridge one yard line.

On a quarterback sneak, Perrin rapped over for the score. Browning made the extra point on a hand-off over tackle.

The Pups' best pass came in the third quarter with a 11 yard jump pass from Ferrin to Gentry. The third quarter also saw some good, hard line play by Rush, McCullum, Getts and Wheeler.

Goldthwaite Club Member Makes Orientation Journey Through Western Europe To Learn Of ECA

Mrs. W. E. Cantrell of Goldthwaite who is with a delegation from the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in nearing the end of a tour of Europe and plans to start back to the United States next Tuesday.

The latest news of the delegation has been received from U. S. Army Headquarters in Frankfurt, in the American Zone of Germany. It was forwarded through Army channels to Lieut. L. A. "Dickie" Spatzman, who commands the Army's Organized Reserve Unit in Goldthwaite. The Army's report is as follows:

Thirty-five members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs arrived in Frankfurt September 12, on an orientation tour through Western Europe for the purpose of establishing good relationship with similar women's clubs of these countries and to be informed about the progress of the ECA program.

The ladies, who come from various parts of the United States, are on their way to Munich, where they will be met by German youth. Visits to Switzerland, Rome and Paris will complete the schedule planned before their return to the United States on October 3.

for the next membership luncheon and President Brashier asked that the chairman of each committee have his group contacted before the luncheon, also that the chairman of the various committees would be expected to arrange the programs for these monthly membership luncheons.

David D. Pickrell was re-elected as the West Texas Chamber of Commerce director from Ranger, and announced that the annual meeting of the regional organization would be held in Mineral Wells on Oct. 19th.

W. F. Creager, reporting for the agriculture committee, stated that premiums of $50 each had been awarded by the Chamber to the farmers bringing in the first load of 1950 peanuts and the first bale of 1950 cotton. He stated that the local gin had been thoroughly renovated and that the gin would operate every day for some time.

Retiring president J. A. Bates was given a vote of thanks for his work as president for the past year.

A. N. Larson, chairman of the Industrial committee, gave an optimistic report on several projects now being worked on by his committee and stated that it looked as if a deal would be worked out soon for the operation of the local aggregate plant, in which case it would employ 12 or 15 men.

Dr. Calvin W. Harris reported for the membership committee and stated that six new members had been secured and that his committee was conducting a sustained drive to continue indefinitely.

Dave Pickrell, president of the Community Chest, reported that the directors of that organization had just about completed plans for the first annual Chest drive and asked the cooperation of every one when called on.

He stated that the points to be stressed by workers in the drive were that the Chest was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and approved by all the civic organizations and was the one drive that deserved the unanimous support of everyone and that the drive would take the place of four usually held.

Texan Makes Legal History

LONDON, Oct. 4 (UP)—A former American GI from Texas and his estranged British war bride made legal history yesterday. They became the first persons to receive a court hearing after utilizing the new "Legal Aid and Advice Act," whereby persons making less than 14½ pounds ($40) a week receive free legal aid.

The act went into effect yesterday.

The ex-serviceman, Wilbert Roy Benner of Austin, Tex., and his wife Violet Margaret Benner went into court to decide custody of two of their three children. But the court postponed action on the custody case until Mrs. Benner's suit for divorce is heard in December.

The couple was married in Britain in August, 1944, and Benner eventually returned to the United States to work as a farm laborer.

In August, 1948, he returned to Britain in a fruitless attempt to get Mrs. Benner to go to the United States with him.

A lower court gave Benner custody of his daughters, Rosette, five, and Iris, four, in November, 1949. When Mrs. Benner refused to hand them over, she was jailed. But her husband obtained her release in three days and permitted her to keep the children temporarily.

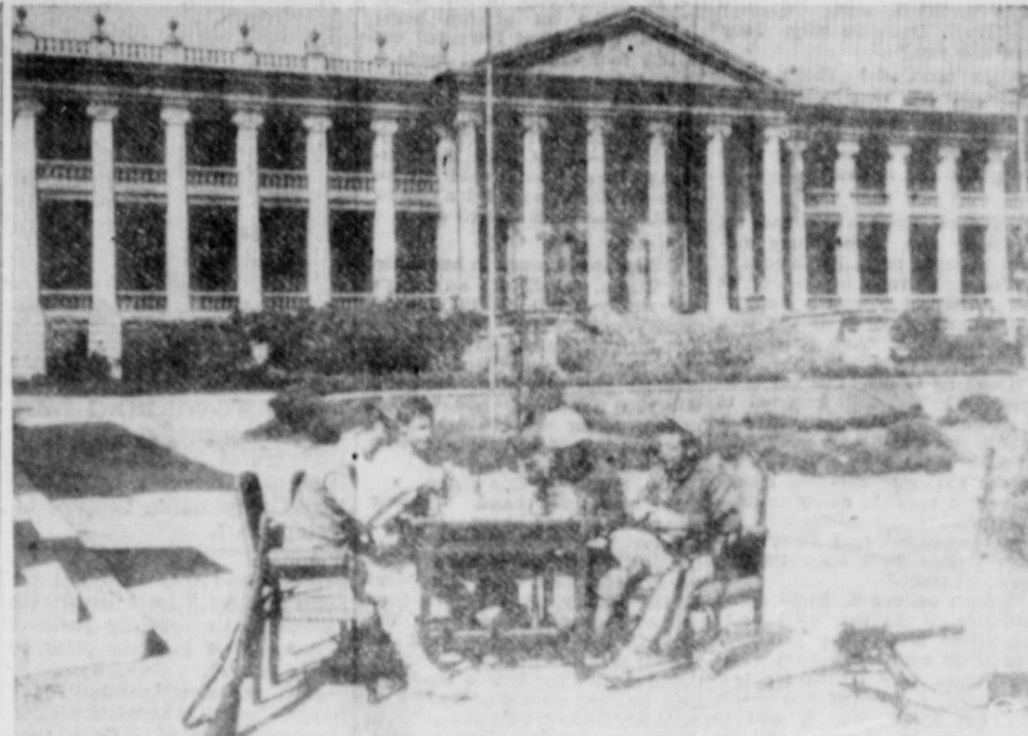

The custody of the third child, a one-year old boy, is being contested.

Body Of Tortured GI Found In Seoul

By Robert C. Miller
United Press Staff Correspondent

SEOUL, Korea, Oct. 4 (UP)—The battered body of an American soldier who has been tortured and shot by his Communist captors while U.S. Marines battled only a few miles away was found today.

It was dug out of a shallow grave in the Muck Hak Prison Camp, a converted school on the northeast outskirts of Seoul.

A former janitor at the prison camp, Kim Soon, said he heard an American scream help late on the night of Sept. 23.

"Then I heard five shots and the man stopped screaming," the janitor said.

Capt. Raymond A. Ginsti of Markill, Ill., a doctor in the Medical Corps, said the six-foot, red-haired prisoner died of a skull fracture and wounds in the chest.

The soldier's arm also was broken in several places and his head broken in several places.

Kim Soon said he knew where five other American prisoners were buried in the school grounds.

On the blackboard of the school were the surnames, ranks and outfits of 373 American war prisoners. All but 20 hospital cases were moved out Sept. 23, Kim Soon said. He did not know what happened to the hospital cases.

Outfits named on the blackboard included the 21st, 24th, 34th, 29th, 19th, 11th, 13th and 63rd Infantry Regiments, the 5th and 7th Cavalry Regiments and the 5th Air Force. They had arrived in Seoul early in August.

Kim Soon said he did not know where the prisoners had been taken because he had hidden for fear he also would be sent North. He said he heard the American's screen while crouching in the dark outside the prison fence.

He said the prisoners had been well-treated, but had very little medicine. He said the Americans occasionally were given pieces of paper on which to write speeches and occasionally some were taken to the Seoul radio station to broadcast.

Seoul residents were given tickets for weekly visits to the prison to peer at the Americans, he said.

"Once there was a big celebration and speeches were read in Korean, allegedly from the Americans, but nobody believed it for the speeches said things were much better in Muck Hak than in the American Army and we knew that was not true," he said.

Quota Of 3453 Set For Texas Draft For Nov.

AUSTIN, Oct. 4 (UP)—State Selective Service headquarters today announced a quota of 3,453 Texans to be inducted into the Army by local draft boards during November.

Brig. Gen. Paul L. Wakefield, State Director of Selective Service, said the November quota looted to 8,480 the number of men called for induction in Texas since the beginning of the Korean war.

First inductions of a quota of 2,513 were made in September, and inductions of 2,514 in October will continue through Oct. 13.

Wakefield said he had not received a quota for December, but it was expected within a few days. November inductions will take place at Abilene, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, San Antonio, Houston, Texasiana and Shreveport.

Grid Star Held For Rape Of Stamford Girl

ANSON, Tex., Oct. 4 (UP)—Kenneth Davis, Haskell High School football star, remained in jail today after failing to make $3,500 bail following his indictment on a rape charge.

Davis, 18, was indicted by the 104th District Court grand jury on a charge he forcibly attacked a 14-year-old Stamford High School freshman girl on a road near Stamford early last month.

Two other teammates, both minors, also were charged with rape but were released on $500 bond each.

Davis scored six touchdowns against Rotan in last Friday night's game.

TOKYO, Oct. 4 (UP)—A third South Korean Division wheeled into line on Korea's 38th Parallel today, amid increasing indications that United Nations forces were getting ready for their final big offensive to crush the North Korean Communist army.

A source close to Gen. Douglas MacArthur told the United Press tonight that Allied troops would begin their big assault as soon as they are fully regrouped and equipped. It appeared to be only a matter of days.

The South Korean Sixth Division reached Jinjan, a village barely one mile south of the Parallel after a march of more than 100 miles in less than three weeks.

In A Hurry

Navy Calls Cox For Examination; Leaves Same Day For California

There's an old saying in the armed forces that all you do is hurry up and wait. But this is a case of not waiting at all.

Between the hours of 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. Monday, Oct. 2, Richard Cox, 25, of Ranger, boarded a bus to Dallas, took his physical examination and was on his way to San Diego, Calif. And he missed his baby daughter's first birthday by 17 days.

Mrs. Cox said that she was taken completely unaware. She thought he would at least be given time to return to Ranger to finish any business he had. But as it turned out, Cox didn't even have his toothbrush with him.

His daughter, LINDAY Faye, will be a year old Oct. 19.

By a quirk of fate, Cox was saved the trouble of leaving his father's pick-up stranded in Dallas. His father, D. C. Cox of 1116 Foeh, suggested to his son that he drive the pick-up to Fort Worth and back.

As it turned out, his son would have been somewhat pressed for time. Without knowing he would leave for California that very night, Cox decided to ride the bus with the ticket the government had given him.

Cox, who was recalled to active duty by the Naval Reserve, served in the Navy as a electrician during the last war. He worked in Ranger with his father at the construction business.

Mafia, Racing Wire Service, Provide Intriguing Mysteries

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

Last of a series.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—There are two big mysteries behind organized crime in the U. S. today which continue to defy solution. Although in the few months of its existence the special Senate committee investigating organized crime in the U. S. has done an outstanding job of exposing various rackets, its investigations have only made the two big mysteries more intriguing.

Mystery No. 1 concerns the notorious Mafia, its membership, influence and shadowy operations.

Mystery No. 2 concerns the real control of the Continental Press Service which supplies the racing news to bookies all over the U. S. The Mafia, or Black Hand, has its roots in Italy. In Napoleon's time the rich Sicilian land-owners created it as a sort of private police force to keep the peasants in line.

It grew into such a powerful lawless organization, the whole Italian government had to get in the fight to try to end its reign of terror. This scattered its members to the U. S. and other countries.

A SPECIAL Senate committee agent was sent to Italy to look into possible connections between the Italian Mafia and criminal operations in the U. S. He recently returned and cautiously reported that the subject was worth further study. His detailed report to the committee on what he found is being kept secret.

It has been said that Lucky Luciano, convicted and deported head of a big narcotics and white slavery ring, is the world head of the gang. Others claim that the true brains is someone, as yet unidentified, with no official criminal record.

Only a mist of rather nebulous evidence exists on the Mafia's activities. The cold facts are few. It is pretty well established that the Mafia controls the liquor business in Kansas City, for instance, and the olive oil business in New York.

But certain patterns of action—in legitimate businesses as well as in organized criminal activities—point to control by the Mafia in other spots around the nation. Certain key names which have been linked with the Mafia keep cropping up in investigations in widely separated cities. They could add up to a sort of super crime syndicate, but the final clinching evidence which would expose the leaders and send them to jail always seems to be just beyond the grasp of investigators.

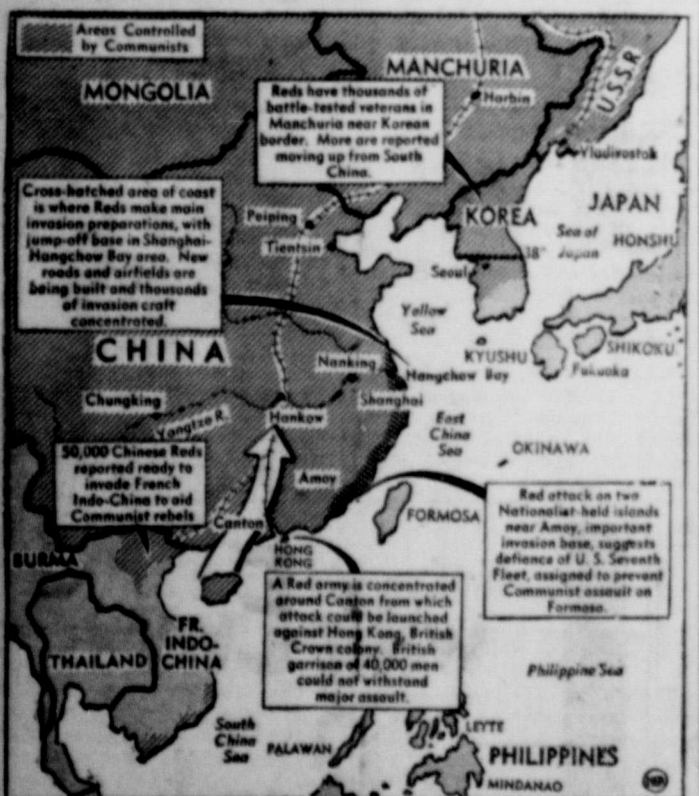

There is no known link between the Mafia and the Continental Press Service, the source of all racing news which is the cornerstone of bookie operations in the U. S. But the mystery of its operation is almost as profound.

ITS headquarters is in Cleveland. The sole, legal owner of physical properties is a young law student, Edward J. ... who apparently does not know much about his company's earnings. Long and bloody wars have been fought over its control in the past but today the issue seems to be settled.

In fact, it's the very peaceful, routine operation. In ... is the most suspicious thing about it, according to ... is fighting and gang strife among the big gamblers about control of other phases of the bookmaking racket. But the Continental Press Service now goes serenely on about its business of reporting up-to-the-second race track activities all over the country without becoming embroiled in the side activities of the business.

At some level, the experts point out, there must be an agreement among the big bosses as to what group or gang of crooks gets the service in a locality. If the goods could be gotten on the men at this level, it is claimed, the back of the fantastically profitable gambling racket in this country could be broken.

It is obvious that both of these problems, the Mafia, and the Continental Press Service, will be the subject of future investigations.

WILL CHINESE REDS STRIKE?—The next few weeks will be critical ones for United Nations forces in Korea. If Chinese Communists do not strike and there is no Communist aggression elsewhere, U. S. leaders expect the Korean front to be stabilized by mid-August. Chinese Reds, who can muster 1,500,000 battle-seasoned troops, pose the sharpest problem. Map shows where and how they might intervene to complicate the Korean picture. There has been a steady northward movement of troops (white arrow). Four Red armies are converging on the invasion coast north and south of Amoy. After Reds shelled two Nationalist-held islands off Amoy, Nationalist government on Formosa ordered its navy and air force to go into action if Communists invaded the islands.

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Rutt Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: The former Ede Frey has never been forgiven by her father for sleeping with fortune hunter Peter Flood. But Ede is as strong willed as her father and, determined to make the best of her bargain, she strives to inspire her husband to writing plays. When she met Peter he had written one play, moderately successful on Broadway. The couple had been living in Harmond, close to one of Ede's former acquaintances, Gil Summerfield. Returning home late from Summerfield's place one night, Ede finds a telegram waiting for her from her brother Jeffrey, stating that her father is critically ill. She flies to New York and her father's bedside. At the home are Ede's two brothers, Jeffrey and Myron, and her 19-year-old sister Jean.

"How are you, Dad?" she said. "How am I?" The sardonic eyes gleamed up at her. "That's a fool question. How would anyone be when he's dying?" Ede forced a smile. "Dying? You, Dad? Don't be silly. They can't kill you." "They can't, eh? That's what I thought for 68 years. I was wrong. They've got me this time and don't you forget it, Ede Frey. But I'll not die before I say what I've got to say to you."

Ede drew up a chair and sat facing him. For a long moment his eyes burned into hers. "You look tired," he decided, at last. "And not especially happy."

"I'm only tired from the trip, Dad," Ede said. "And I'm happy enough."

"Don't lie to me. I've got eyes, haven't I? You still married that insolent young puppy?" "Still married, Dad."

"Well, how do you get along? On the pittance you have, I suppose. I've seen no more writings by him."

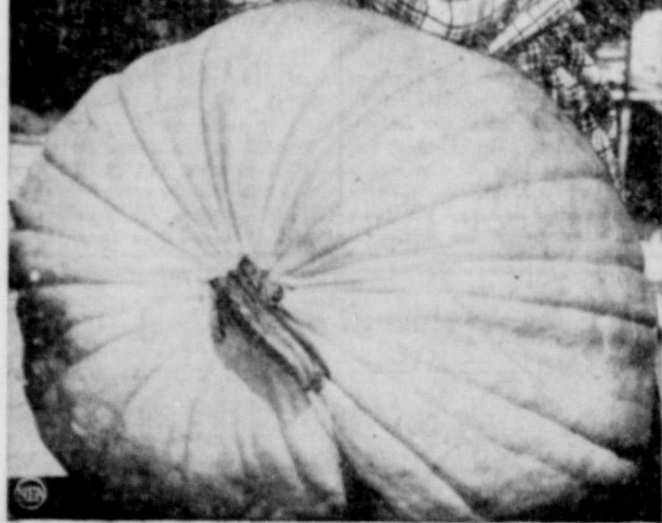

"We manage. And Peter's always trying. He'll come through again, all right."

"I don't believe it. But I didn't haul you all the way up here to talk about him." The pale-gray eyes lit up with amusement. "You don't know why I sent for you, of course. I suppose you think now I'm dying, that it was to pamper you by forgiving you for going against my wishes."

"There was something behind this questioning, Ede knew. Old Cornelius Frey wasn't interested in Peter, nor in Peter's success as a playwright. He was probably not even concerned very much with the amount Ede and Peter had to live on."

Ede crossed the room, kissed her father on the forehead and took one of Cornelius's withered hands in her own. It was incredibly hard and bony, like a claw.

Ede knew that her father had not sent for her to forgive her. There was some other reason. A reason that Ede did not understand.

THE LINE IS BUSY—Think of all the wrong numbers and busy signals wrapped up in this "mountain" of communications wire piled at a Signal Corps depot in South Korea. Cpl. Charles H. Faulkner of Salt Lake City, Utah, surveys the possibilities.

Ede said slowly. "I didn't want to go against you that time, Dad. But I honestly did love Peter Flood."

"Bah! Calf love. But you've paid for it. I can see it in your face. Well, I'm not going to forgive you. I never forgive."

"I know you don't," Ede smiled. "You're really an old devil, Dad. A wicked man."

"You're damn right I'm a wicked man," rasped old Cornelius, a gurgle of satisfaction in his voice. "I've had a lot of fun being wicked. I got what I wanted out of this fool world and I made a lot of money and I enjoyed doing it. And I swore that that jackanapes you married would never get any good out of my money. But now—all at once the bantering, almost gleeful note left his voice—"I don't know. I don't know at all." The voice trailed away.

Ede leaned forward in her chair. "Listen, Dad, if anything's worrying you, tell me. I'll do anything you ask."

"All right." Life seemed to come back into Cornelius's voice. "Remember you said that. Now I'll tell you something, Ede. I had them send for you because you're the only one of my children who isn't a fool."

"Oh, Father—" Ede began. He held up a hand. "I know what I'm talking about. Jeffrey's a nervous old fuddy-duddy. Fussing and twittering about. He doesn't earn half what I pay him at the agency. And Myron goes around with his head in the clouds. I don't know what he wants and he doesn't either. I made a place for him in the business because what else could I do with him? As for Jenn ... well, she's scarcely more than a child. She may have brains. I don't know. I haven't seen any signs of them yet and I won't be around long enough to find out."

"I'll take care of her," Ede said. "Of her! Ha!" Cornelius laughed shakily. "You don't seem to realize it, my dear, but you're going to take care of the whole darn bunch of them."

Ede almost jumped. "Dad! What on earth do you mean?"

networks and they have had the same trouble. A lot of stuff that glitters isn't necessarily gold.

Some of it is silver plate or phony jewelry.

Anyhow, to get back to "Battle Report," which is a serious resume of what we are doing in the way of winning wars.

The Pentagon has been alerted on this one. Nobody in the high command wants to see anybody else in the high command blink himself out of the picture.

The Pentagon radio division is considering greasing the "brass" on officers with vaseline. The greasiness takes the shine off.

That would take care of a lot of the boys who wear silver.

Say from five-star general down to lieutenant-colonel.

The way the television engineers put it, with all kinds of disregard for rank, is:

"Anything to reduce the glare to a steady dull."

The man on the street has an idea too. A cab driver I had suggested that "you could rough the silver up so that it doesn't shine so bright." Needless to say the hackie was a GI in World War II.

I also queried a low-ranker at Walter Reed Hospital, just in from a horrible time in Korea. He said that the high command didn't have to wear silver.

Quintuplets Use 'Musterole' For Chest Colds!

to relieve coughs—achy muscles

The Dionne Quints have always had the best care. Ever since they were babies, they've used Musterole to promptly relieve coughs and local congestion of colds. Be sure your kiddies enjoy Musterole's great benefits!

"They can wear a silver mesh over their stars," he said. "I know. I used to have to polish 'em. And they don't shine very much—even in the sun—not the way I used to put the polish on."

But "Battle Report," as televised by NBC is going to be back on the air again next Sunday.

This time it will be a GI fashion parade.

There will be a fine show of winter uniforms—the kind that will be worn in Korea if the war over there lasts that long.

There will be the parka like they wear in Alaska.

And the battle garb that is used in Germany.

But no trouble with silver, gold or brass this time. These boys will be models. All GIs.

Silver Not Good Over Television

By Harman W. Nichols

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (UP)—If the military brass wants to stay on television, the brass is going to have to cut out some of the silver.

Silver doesn't go on TV. Not that the silver isn't real. It is. But on Sunday last, NBC put on a program called "Battle Report."

On it was a general wearing three silver stars—three-fifths of the "whole milky way," as the boys in the fox holes rate 'em.

The general read his script just like he had rehearsed it. Did a fine job, too. But on the TV screen, to which I was a witness, his stars looked like a cop's spotlight on a bushel of stolen dimes.

The reflection blinked right back at me.

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Rutt Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Although the former Edie Frey had never been forgiven for eloping with the famous baseball player, her father, Cornelius Frey, sends her her from his deathbed. There is no full reconciliation, but Cornelius surprises Edie by saying that she is to take care of "the business" meaning her two brothers, Jeffrey and Myron, and her 18-year-old sister Jean.

VI
CORNELIUS FREY'S voice became softer. "Listen, Edie," he said, "there are just two things I've loved in life aside from what ever latent affection I've had for your boys."

"First, your mother. Before she died, I promised her I'd see that you children had the things you wanted. I don't think I've kept that promise very well. In your case, Edie, I failed. But I didn't like that Pete Flood business and I blew up. I thought, though, that you'd come crawling back home some day. You're too much character for that. I should have known better. You'd stick to a bargain if it killed you, just as I would." Something of a sigh escaped the dying man's lips. "But I wish you had. Things aren't running so well here."

Edie bit her lip. No keeping anything from this shrewd father of hers.

"But," continued Cornelius, "you'll have to work out your own problems. The point is that I want you to look out for the others as well, seeing that you have a few grains of sense in spite of marrying Peter Flood."

"And that brings me to my other love—the business, Edie. Now I could easily have followed your mother's wishes by settling trust funds on all of you and letting it go at that. You'd never have taken care of and imbeciles like Jeff and Myron, would have been starved. But I don't do things that way. Don't believe in it. I took the money I inherited and I doubled

it. I built up my business and, dead or alive, I want it to go on. And I want it to stay in my own family. "But"—Edie could almost feel, as well as see, the gray eyes burning at her—"there's only one of you with brains enough to carry it on. That's you, Edie."

"But, Dad," Edie was aghast, "I don't know beans . . ."

CORNELIUS'S mouth worked in annoyance. "Don't interrupt me. Of course, you don't know anything about the advertising business. But you've got a head, haven't you? You can learn. And there's a man in the agency—Reagan—who can help you."

"But what will Jeff and Myron—"

"Fiddlesticks! They've nothing to say about what I do with my own business. And what I'm doing is giving it to you. I'm giving you 51 per cent of the stock, a controlling interest. Jeff and Myron have the rest, because I want it all in the family. In Jenn's case, I've made a trust fund. I don't believe in that rot, mind you. But she's a child and I don't know what else to do about her."

Edie murmured, "You were very sensible."

"I'm usually sensible. All this is in my will, in black and white. It's unalterable. I saw to that. And let me tell you something else, Edie. You hang onto that 51 per cent! That business of mine is a good one and it'll take care of all of you. I've said nothing about the way profits are to be split. That's up to you, only don't make a fool of yourself. I want Jeff and Myron earning their way. And you, too. I'll not have you people loitering around on incomes that you don't lift a finger to make."

Edie's brain was whirling slightly. But she said, in a steady voice, "Very well, Dad. If that's the way you want it, I'll do my best."

Konstanty Hope Of Phillies To Stop Yankees

By Oscar Fraley

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4 (UP)—Big Jim Konstanty, a guy taught how to pitch by an undertaker, was one of the Philadelphia Phillies' big hopes today to embalm the New York Yankees in the world series.

With a riddled pitching staff, the Phillies were banking even more on Konstanty than they did during the regular season—when he won 16 games and saved 30 others while setting a major league mark for relief pitchers by appearing in 74 games.

That record shattered the 70-game appearance mark set by Ace Adams as New York Giants relief pitcher in 1943. And it moved Konstanty up among such illustrious members of the firmen's brigade as Hugh Casey and Joe Page.

All of which is a payoff on the faith of Eddie Sawyer, the reasonable manager of the Phillies. Konstanty was kicked around for years, passed up by the Athletics, the Braves and even Cincinnati.

Big Jim was about to call it a career and take Billy Southworth's advice to go back and teach school. But about that time he landed at Toronto, and fell into the exceptionally able hands of Sawyer. Eddie had faith—and he gave, Big Jim the confidence.

It was quite a job. For even while he was in college, at Syracuse, Jim hadn't been a pitcher. The coach said he had an "improper pivot." That's why Konstanty gives credit to an undertaker friend of Worcester, N. Y., for teaching him how to pitch. Sawyer put on the final touches when he transferred the six-foot one inch Konstanty into a reliever at Toronto.

Edie got up. She laid a cool firm hand on her father's forehead. "And about Peter, Dad," she said, gently, "you're not still—still sore about that, are you?"

"I don't know," said Cornelius resignedly. "I suppose, now that I'm using you for a purpose of my own, I'll have to pay for it by forgiving you, in part. I say, 'in part,' mind you. I never forgive—entirely. Some day, though, you'll see that I was right. That fellow's no good. You've got brains, Edie, but not as many as I have. If you had, you'd have seen it for yourself long ago."

Edie left him then. It was the last time she saw her father alive. (To Be Continued)

Undeclared War On Gas Prices Rages In Valley

By Oscar Fraley

EDINBURG, Tex., Oct. 4 (UP)—An undeclared gasoline price war raged today in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Operators of major company stations refused to say they were warring against self-service stations, where motorists fill up their own tanks and pay twenty and one-half cents per gallon of regular.

But Gulf Oil Company station owners met last week and began cutting prices, apparently to combat the new self-service stations which undersold them four cents a gallon.

Prices stood at 21 1/2 cents a gallon for regular today at most Gulf, Texas, Sinclair, Conoco and Magnolia stations. They sold premium gasoline for 23 1/2, a penny more than the helpfully opera-

Texans Will Trade Fruit For Houses

By Oscar Fraley

HARLINGEN, Tex., Oct. 4 (UP)—Negotiations were underway today to trade some Rio Grande Valley citrus fruit for Swedish pre-fabricated houses.

Austin Anson, executive manager of the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Growers and Shippers, said the Swedish government agreed to accept 65 per cent of the lumber's value in citrus and the other 35 per cent in U.S. dollars.

Negotiations are being conducted by a committee of citrus growers and Leonard Bremer, agent for Swedish lumber interests and citrus buyers.

"In case Konstanty gets into any difficulty in today's game," Sawyer said, "we'll use starting pitchers to relieve him."

"But just in case Raschi runs into trouble," hedged Stengel, "I might send Allie Reynolds in to relieve."

The weather bureau predicted cloudy, cool weather for the opener with nary a threat of rain.

Like Stengel, Sawyer said he immediately would break up his pitching rotation in case of emergency, although it was almost a foregone conclusion that Roberts, the Phillies' first 20-game winner since Grove Alexander hit that mark 33 year ago, would hurl for Philadelphia in the second game of the series.

"I pitched 10 innings in relief against Cincinnati once this season," he recalled, "and another time I went nine innings against Pittsburgh. The Yankees don't worry me too much. They're not supermen, are they?"

Manager Eddie Sawyer said he reached the decision to pitch Konstanty against the American League champions after careful deliberation.

There were 12th hour changes on both clubs.

The Yankees granted the Phillies permission to use pitcher Jocko Thompson and outfielder Jack Mayo in the series to replace the ailing Bill Nicholson and the Army

Relief Pitcher Konstanty Will Start For Phillies In Series Opener Today With Raschi Opposing Him On Mound

By Leo H. Peterson
United Press Sports Editor
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4 (UP)—Relief pitcher Jim Konstanty of the Philadelphia Phillies, an overlooked, over-worked ace-in-the-hole, aimed to cash in on the greatest gamble in baseball history when he opposed Vic Raschi of the New York Yankees today in the opening game of the 1950 World Series.

Respected, 34-year-old Konstanty, who hasn't started a game in 2 and one half years but compiled a brilliant relief record of 16 victories and only seven defeats while making 74 mound appearances this season, accepted his surprise assignment with a calm, almost detached indifference.

"Starting against the Yankees," quipped the sandy-haired, dry-murmured right-hander from Worcester, N. Y., "doesn't bother me. After all, I've had 72 hours of rest."

Konstanty, a husky, hard-working slow ball specialist, expressed confidence not only that he could last the route against the hard-Yankees but that he could beat them, too.

"I pitched 10 innings in relief against Cincinnati once this season," he recalled, "and another time I went nine innings against Pittsburgh. The Yankees don't worry me too much. They're not supermen, are they?"

Manager Eddie Sawyer said he reached the decision to pitch Konstanty against the American League champions after careful deliberation.

There were 12th hour changes on both clubs.

The Yankees granted the Phillies permission to use pitcher Jocko Thompson and outfielder Jack Mayo in the series to replace the ailing Bill Nicholson and the Army departed Curt Simmons. In return, New York was permitted to substitute, first baseman-outfielder Johnny Hopp for the injured Tommy Henrich.

Yankee manager Casey Stengel was confident the broad-shouldered hard-throwing Raschi, who won 21 games and dropped eight this season, would get his club off to a winning start.

"In case Konstanty gets into any difficulty in today's game," Sawyer said, "we'll use starting pitchers to relieve him."

"But just in case Raschi runs into trouble," hedged Stengel, "I might send Allie Reynolds in to relieve."

The weather bureau predicted cloudy, cool weather for the opener with nary a threat of rain.

Like Stengel, Sawyer said he immediately would break up his pitching rotation in case of emergency, although it was almost a foregone conclusion that Roberts, the Phillies' first 20-game winner since Grove Alexander hit that mark 33 year ago, would hurl for Philadelphia in the second game of the series.

It Was Just An Accident—

. . . that Columbus discovered America, or was it luck? He himself said that his journey would be hazardous and he didn't know where he was going. But he had faith that he would discover a great land, and he did. Likewise, the person who buys land without an abstract is embarking on a dangerous course. Like Columbus he must have faith that he won't lose his all and plenty of luck to avoid disaster.

Price Boosts May Bring Govt. Control

By Raymond H. Wilson
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (UP)—A high government economist warned today that the nation faces "unjustified" price and wage controls because of continuous price boosts.

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin said in a Gannett News Service interview that controls may be needed "for our own good to avoid the vicious spiral of an inflated economy."

The economist, who refused to be identified, did not refer to any specific price hikes. But he said every boost produces a "more serious" danger of inflation. He said several "basic" anti-inflationary measures are urgently needed, including higher taxes, stricter credit controls and allocation of certain critical materials.

The new National Production authority may issue orders today establishing priorities and allocations for steel products to insure delivery of supplies to essential defense industries.

The NPA refused to reveal details of the pending order. It is empowered to channel essential materials into war industry even though steel products for civilian use may be curtailed. Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer announced mean time that the steel industry would increase its annual production capacity by 9,400,000 tons, or nearly 10 per cent, by the end of 1952.

CIO tossed another possible roadblock in the way of rearmament when he told United Steel workers in McKeesport, Pa., last night that the union will strike if necessary to obtain its 1950 demands.

Prices still were going up. The Sharon Steel Corp., a major automobile industry supplier, boosted prices $5 to $10 per ton last week. The nation's top steel companies have not decided whether to follow suit.

Five independent auto makers have increased prices for 1951 models, but the industries big three—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—have not taken similar actions so far.
