TEXAN RETURNS WITH FIVE LEFT FROM SQUAD OF 13

By Charles Moore
WONSAN, Korea, Oct. 26 (UP)—There were 13 of them when the squad pulled out of San Diego, and today only five are left. Fourteen purple hearts—and wooden crosses over four graves—tell the story of their war.

This was the Second Rifle Squad of the Third Platoon, "Dog" Company, Fifth Regiment, First Marine Division—picked as the typical Marine squad when it sailed for Korea.

It fought in three critical battles in the south, landed at Inchon, and helped crack the Communist main line of defense at Seoul.

Look into the faces of these five Americans. They're the faces of kids in their teens or early 20's who have seen a lot of war in less than three months, who are ready but not eager to take on more of it, and who don't talk much about what they went through to save a country and a cause.

But from their matter of fact accounts, and the recollections of Sgt. Frank Kerr, Yakima, Wash., Marine photographer, who went along to make records of the Leathernecks in action, came this story of the outfit they call the "Purple Heart" squad now.

It started with the drive toward Chinhae. On the second day of the battle Pfc. Charles W. Heckman, 21, Indianapolis, was holding a ridge west of Chindong-Ni. A bullet hit him in the chest. That was the first death.

Two men were wounded the same day. One nursed an arm injury for two months in a hospital in Japan and came back to duty.

On Aug. 17 the squad was in the thick of the fight for Obangri ridge in the Nakdong bulge. The battalion gained and lost the ridge three times. Then came the final assault.

Communist shells killed Pfc. Robert S. Hansler, 19, of McAllen, Tex., and Corp. William L. McCarver, 20, Los Angeles, Calif. Pfc. Philip N. Lenz, 18, Olivia, Minn., was wounded by a machine gun while putting out an air panel, and died before reaching an aid station.

The squad leader fell but the outfit pushed on. Five more men were wounded before the battalion finally smashed across the ridge and drove the enemy into the river. The squad had never had losses like that. It never lost that many men again.

The six wounded that day included Pfc. Vandell J. Mayberry, 21, of (Box 126) Paducah, Texas, and Pfc. Lener M. Mateo, 18, of (57 Ceres St.) San Francisco, Calif.

Mateo and two others were back for the Inchon landing but Mayberry and the others were not. By that time Mateo was known to his buddies as "the man they couldn't kill."

This teen-ager was almost a casualty in the squad's first action in Korea. A water can fell on him from a plane.

It smashed his Browning automatic rifle but did not injure him. Then, in the Obangri ridge fighting, he was wounded by a grenade. It took him just three days to recover from that.

On Sept. 3 Mateo was hit by a 90-millimeter shell fragment. Four days out of action.

During the Inchon landing he helped his company knock out six tanks on the road to Seoul. His wounds opened up at that point and he was sent to a hospital, but several days later he was back with the squad.

The record for being out of action the shortest time belongs though, to Corp. Walter Baker, 21, of Earle, Ark., who got a shell fragment in the left hand during the Seoul attack. He was back in the fighting a day later.

Mateo isn't the only one in the squad who was wounded more than once in this "typical squad." But up to now the squad has received only one award recommendation.

That's because the battalion has been too busy fighting to handle the paper work.

Pups Pulverize Eastland Again, This Time 61-0

Rampaging along at a 36-point per game clip, Ranger Junior High's Pups kayoed the Eastland Junior team for the second time Tuesday night, 61-0.

It was no game. Or rather, the debacle would have been more representative of a basketball game. The Pups lost no time in showing the visitors back to their own goal line.

In fact, your reporter having no adding machine and becoming fascinated by the overwhelming superiority of the Pups, just sat there arid watched the touchdowns click off.

Coach Warden used about five teams in what would go down as the "Second Eastland Massacre." The game became such a run-away that the first string was sent to the showers at the half and watched the remainder of the game from the stands.

Mrs. Tom Nabers Rites Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Tom Nabers, 72, of Desdemona, were set for 4 p. m. today at the First Methodist church in Desdemona. Her husband preceded her in death on August 30, 1949. She had lived in Desdemona since 1924.

Nabers, Albuquerque, New Mexico; Edwin N. Nabers, Labrador; Mrs. E. E. Setser, Brookhaven, Miss.; and Mrs. Anthony Kouach, Corpus Christi; 12 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

PROTESTANT PASTOR BURIED IN WONSAN, KOREA—The leading Protestant pastor of Wonsan, Korea, is buried by members of his parish after his body was found, along with many others, in a cave near Wonsan. ## RJC Paly's Tonight; Bulldogs Practice

A light drill with concentration on offensive plays brought RJC's final workout to a close yesterday as they leave for the North Texas Fresh game tonight.

Passing was again the main portion of the tapering-off scrimmage, as Barrett and Hamrick went through their paces of chucking the ball.

Last week Navarro was hunting its second win of the season when they met the Rangers and now again the picture repeats itself. The NTSC Eagles are also trying for their second victory as is Ranger Junior College.

The Eagles have defeated Decatur Baptist JC 28-16. Their two losses came at the hands of Odessa JC 19-14. Odessa beat the Rangers 12-0 and if any faith can be put in comparable scores against a common foe, the Rangers should win by a tally.

The Eagles are coached by Fred McCain and Herb Ferrill, former NTSC grid stars and are improving rapidly after a slow start. End Bob Hardie and backs Cagle and Lankford have been particularly outstanding.

FFA Boys To Sell Unique Lawn Markers

If you're looking for something different and unique to aid friends and locate the number of your house, wait a few days. For some time within the next few weeks you may be contacted by some member of the Ranger FFA chapter who will offer lawn markers for sale.

These markers are designed to be placed on the lawn and will designate the number of the house. They are made of an aluminum alloy with a natural finish that can easily be seen day or night.

At their regular meeting Wednesday, the FFA Chapter voted to sell the lawn markers. Proceeds earned from the sale of these markers will be used in carrying out the local chapter's activities during the year.

The boys feel that in offering these markers they have an item that all homes will want and which are both attractive and useful.

The cycle has just about reached the other end now. From "Lazy Monday" to "Hustling Tuesday" and now, "Banging Wednesday." It was an entirely different and spark-plugging bunch of Bulldogs that scrimmaged yesterday.

The moon made its appearance again before Coaches Warden and Aille sent the players in. If they were a bit weary they deserved a short respite. The coaches worked them hard and long. Coach Warden wasn't sparing in his crisp remarks when any player made a mistake.

Mistakes are costly anytime and in a game with Hamilton one mistake might cost the Bulldogs the district title. But the boys went at their work with a "growl" and the second string took a beating when running Hamilton plays.

Again Mendoza racked up the backfield. On one series he was in on about five plays in a row. Woods got some nice tackles as did Yung, Barnes, Williams, Hummel, Davenport, Cantrell in fact the whole line was putting in the "Lazy Monday."

Vanner backed up the line well and in the defensive backfield, Cunningham, Comacho, Bagwell and Cole batted down passes at a better clip than they did Monday. It was a greatly improved squad and the team began to look like they had Hamilton on the mind. They didn't seem to have that let-down feeling that the fans were worried about.

ROKs To Occupy Border Area Of Manchuria

Pres. Says MacArthur Told Of 1945 A-Bomb

(UP)—President Truman said today that the North Korean-Manchurian border area will be occupied by South Korean troops, and not United States forces.

The President, at a news conference, also said he anticipated the development of no trouble in western Europe this coming winter.

2. Denied a story that Gen. Douglas MacArthur knew nothing about plans to drop an atomic bomb on Japan in 1945 until the explosive actually was unleashed over Hiroshima.

The story that MacArthur knew nothing about the atom bomb was recently printed by author John Gunther.

The President said it simply was not true. He said actually he gave the order to MacArthur and MacArthur transmitted the order for the actual dropping of the bomb.

THE WEATHER

By United Press
At least one "hot weather" record was broken in Texas yesterday and chances were good that more would fall today.

At Dallas, a high of 90 degrees was reported, four degrees hotter than the former record high for Oct. 25, set in 1944.

The weather bureau said that the previous record for today was 87 degrees in Dallas. At mid-morning the temperature had climbed to 68 degrees and was expected to reach 90 again.

MARINES LAND AT WONSAN; 170,000 UN TROOPS ADVANCE

By Earnest Hoberecht BULLETIN

TOKYO, Friday, Oct. 27 (UP)—War dispatches reported today that Korean Republican troops had reached the Manchurian border amidst mounting indications that Chinese Communist troops had entered Korea to fight the UN forces.

TOKYO, Oct. 26 (UP)—United Nations vanguards raced through North Korea within artillery range of Manchuria today while U. S. Marines swarmed ashore at the head of 50,000 reinforcements for the Allied knockout drive.

The new landing will put 170,000 Allied troops on the march toward the Manchurian and Soviet frontiers.

South Korean 6th Division units expected to reach the Yalu River frontier between northwest Korea and Communist Manchuria today. They sped through Kojang, only 18 miles from the border, without opposition last night.

In the northeast, more than 20,000 U. S. Marines hit the beaches at Wonsan in snow flurries and headed north behind other South Korean forces already 120 miles above the port.

Waiting behind the 1st Marine Division to land were 20,000 troops of the U. S. 7th Infantry Division, some 2,000 South Korean Marines and assorted administrative and engineering units. They were moved by sea from Inchon to the Korean west coast after liberating Seoul last month.

The 300-ship armada arrived off Wonsan last Friday, but had to wait outside until Allied minesweepers had cleared safe channels through more than 2,000 mines in one of the densest minefields in history.

The landing force will boost the total troops under Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the 10th Corps, to at least 70,000 men for the cleanup of northeast Korea. Another 100,000 United Nations troops are cleaning up north west Korea.

The Marines headed north toward Hamburg, where they were expected to swing inland in the wake of the South Korean 3rd Division. The 7th Division will continue on up the coast behind the "Hell on Foot" South Korean Capital Division.

Almond told newsmen he intended to keep going right up to the Manchurian and Soviet borders, spiking rumors that the Allied forces might draw up short of the frontiers.

An official spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur also emphasized at his daily press conference in Tokyo that the mission of United Nations forces is to clear Korea.

This was taken to mean that troops fighting under MacArthur's UN command will go anywhere and do anything necessary in North Korea to smash the Communist aggressors.

20 Nurses Missing

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. Oct. 26 (UP)—Officials of the Seventh Day Adventist Church said today that 20 of its nurses are missing in Korea and two of its nine Korean missions were burned.

Dr. A. K. Wier -- 50 Years' Practice, 4000 Babies Delivered

Dr. A. K. Wier, 8-48-1 Times P. I. If Every baby in Eastland county—and several more from surrounding counties—were to suddenly squall at once, you might have an idea of the number of newborn infants that Dr. Wier has delivered in the world.

Four thousand new voices, new personalities, new lives—many are buried and have grandchildren—many are scattered to the corners of the state and many, having lived their lives have passed away. Four thousand lives—all delivered into the world by one man, Dr. A. K. Wier, who has practiced medicine in Eastland County for half a century.

His offices are still at 118 and one-fourth W. Main Street. Climb up the stairs to meet him and you'll find a neatly attired physician, unburied by age or the toll of 50 years of hard and tedious work. And you'll see a twinkle in the proud eyes of a man who appreciates a sense of humor.

From the moment he began speaking, Dr. Wier's voice was clear and unhesitating—punctuated by a remarkable memory of events that occurred more than half a century ago.

The first remarks of Dr. Wier were naturally humorous and had to do with the girl who said, "The three things that people must necessarily go through are birth, marriage and death. Two of these are beyond the control of people, but I'm going to spend a lot of time with the third."

Mason County, the birthplace of Dr. Wier, was a vast open range consisting mostly of sheep and cattle country with a few big horse ranches. Land in that sparsely settled section sold for as little as a dollar an acre.

Dr. Wier was one of 11 children whose parents, James D. and Emma J. Wier, were school teachers. His father taught school for 31 consecutive years in Llano Mason and adjacent counties.

Dr. Wier recalls that school terms of that day were short—three to four months—and teacher's salaries averaged $40 a month. The common schools provided his early education which he later supplemented at Fort Worth University.

At an early age, the children worked cattle and lived near a great herd trail that ran near their home. It was a common experience to shade his eyes from the blinding dust kicked up by the 2500 to 3500 head of cattle that traveled the trail.

"I wanted to see what was over the hill," and with that point-blank curiosity, Dr. Wier at the age of 16, answered the needling of youthful wanderlust. Donning two suits of clothes, sitting astride the $8 saddle on his $15 pony, with half a dozen biscuits and a slab of bacon in the saddle-pocket, the adventurous Wier rode off for parts unknown.

The first night, the West Tex.

as "Tom Sawyer" stayed with a friend who lived 30 miles from his home. The second night, Dr. Wier met an old man in Burnett County who befriended him when the youth confessed that he was $1.10 of being broke. His journey took him to Williamson County, near La Grange, at the end of the third night. There he worked a few months as a farm hand.

After two winters of pumping water for the Temple water works, Dr. Wier, in 1900, drove a covered wagon to the Staff community. He intended to return to Bell County but like so many good intentions fall to the wayside, as a consequence I'm still here at the end of 50 years."

A year later began that training that was to furnish Ranger and Eastland County with the professional services of a much-talented and much-respected surgeon. Dr. Wier, completed his medical training at the Medical Department of Fort Worth University.

His return to Staff was heralded by a ten dollar bill, an $11 suit of clothes, a $1000 debt and the realization that he had no idea in the world to whom or where he was going. But the doctor-less townspeople solved his predicament.

At a mass meeting, the community voted to get the novice physician any and all things necessary to practice medicine—including a house, drug store and payment of his debt—if he would stay there as their doctor.

His first nine years of practice were spent at Staff and before moving to Ranger for more adequate school facilities for his children, he repaid all that the Staff community had done for him.

In 1913 Ranger had only about 700 people and medical equipment and facilities were meager. Dr. Wier can remember doing surgery in homes, sometimes on the dining table. A washtub of boiled water in the backyard was used to sterilize equipment.

Doctors were scarce and transportation was slow in the "horse and buggy" days—"and I didn't have a buggy," Dr. Wier said. So he made his rounds on horseback, sometimes being gone for three days.

The great oil boom of 1917, skyrocketed Ranger's population from 700 to 40,000 and the war caused a scarcity of doctors. During the boom, Dr. Wier was part owner and helped operate the first hospital in Ranger known as the Ranger General Hospital, located in the Young addition, at what is now the D. Joseph building.

Eleven years later, Dr. Wier owned and operated a hospital in Ranger and was instrumental in bringing the city-county hospital to this city, and is now the chairman of the Board of Directors of that hospital. For a number of years, he was county health officer and has been city health officer for the past 10 years.

In 1906-07 Dr. Wier was elected director of the First National Bank at Eastland. He is past president of the Eastland County medical society and once owned and operated an Eastland paper.

"All that I am and all that I have I owe to the host of friends who have contributed so generously to the meager success I have attained," Dr. Wier said. But, perhaps, what he cherishes most are the many people he delivered into this world and who now bear his name.

Dr. Wier's son followed in his father's footsteps. The younger Wier physician is Dr. D. T. Wier, practicing at Belen, N. M. Dr. Wier's daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Jamison, is employed by the American Red Cross and lives at 320 Austin Street.

The crutch upon which the sick lean would collapse if it were not for the nurses, Dr. Wier said. During the long years of his medical practice the nurses who worked with Dr. Wier have been indispensable in caring for the sick.

"They have rendered a professional and humane service so essential to the adequate care of the multiplied thousand," he said.

That twinkle was still dancing in Dr. Wier's eyes as he got up to return to his work. With a mischievous tilt of the head, he said, "You know, I've been fired only once in my life. And that was by my father-in-law. He said I was keeping late hours with the young folks, giggling and cutting up in general."

As he reached the door, Dr. Wier paused and grinned, "But I still think it was because I was courting his daughter."

SWC Teams Concentrate On Getting Injured And Ailing Players Back In Shape Before Saturday Games

By United Press
Southwest Conference coaches and trainers concentrated today on getting injured and ailing players back into the lineup before Saturday's gridiron battles.

Only Coach Rusty Russell of Southern Methodist could resist this night. Mustangs live side this week and the reports indicate his son, star quarterback, Rusty Russell Jr., will be ready to go against Texas, Nov. 4.

Longhorn fullback Byron Townsend was hospitalized yesterday with a cold, but was expected to be ready to cause the Rice Owls plenty of trouble Saturday. Sophomore Bob Raley ran in the former Odessa star's slot in a hard scrimmage.

Blair Cherry expressed satisfaction with the Steer's readiness for the Owls, but warned his charges that Rice may prove to be even better offensively this year than last—when they defeated Texas 17-15.

Rice Coach Jess Neely wore an unusual smile of optimism as he watched the Owls run through yesterday's workouts.

He said their performance was very satisfactory, although three regulars missed the rough work.

The ailing team members were end Frank Allen, badly bruised ribs; halfback Sney Wyatt, shoulder injury; and Guard Ike Neumann, stomach disorder. All should be ready to go Saturday.

Coach Harry Stielar's Texas A&M were ready to clash with Baylor Saturday in injury-free condition.

The A & M squad wound up rough work yesterday, and play polishing was docketed for today.

At Waco, Baylor Coach George Sauer said that "good old Baylor line" looked good—but probably not good enough to stop rampaging Bob Smith and company of the awesome Aggie ground attack.

Most of yesterday's long, hard workout was devoted to filling chinks in the line, but Sauer also added a few new plays to the Bear offense.

The Arkansas Razorbacks showed plenty of spirit as they whipped through offensive and defensive practice in preparation for their week-end tilt with Vanderbilt.

Coach Otis Douglas said the Hogs looked good, although several players still were hampered by injuries.

Douglas dropped senior tackle Jack Rushing from the A squad to the B team.

The Texas Christian Horned Frogs, the jinx club of the conference, scheduled a light drill as they practiced for Saturday's meeting with Mississippi.

Boyce House Gives You Texas

Will Rogers said that there is nothing as stupid as an educated man if you get him off the thing he is educated in.

And it might be added that there is nothing as stupid as an educated man if he is educated beyond his capacity to absorb.

Which many of our Ph. D.'s are. For example a bunch of professors gave a writer a grant of a substantial amount of money to write a book about the Southwest.

And what do you suppose he included in the Southwest? Louisiana and Arkansas!

Louisiana is a land of swamps, cotton plantations, old Southern homes and it is as Southern as Alabama and Georgia.

And as for Arkansas, your columnist was born there and therefore can lay some claim to knowing something about the state.

Arkansas has swamps and heavy rainfall. Cattle raising is not a major source of income; there are no arid regions, no sandstorms and no steady, strong winds such fighting in the Civil War, had as are to be found in considerable parts of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona.

Arkansas had slaves, seceded, was the scene of steamboats and plantations. If it isn't a Southern state, then there is no Southern state.

A region is not simply a matter of geography, of course but it is climate, customs, traditions and

'Chuh Oom Perp Soom Nee, Poo In' Means 'I Greet You For The First Time'—In Korean, Says H. D. Quigg

By H. D. Quigg
 WITH U. S. FORCES IN KOREA, Oct. 26 (UP)—"The entire world is in a turmoil these days."
 I have no quarrel with that statement. It seems safe enough. It's in an armed force pamphlet, and it's the first sentence in a section headed "A Tip For You."
 The pamphlet, "A Pocket Guide To Korea," published Sept. 1, 1950, by Louis Johnson, is designed to give soldiers, sailors and flyers the lowdown on Korea and its customs.
 You'll see some like issue, however, with another statement in the pamphlet. Speaking of Koreans, it says, "Their language is plenty loud and easy to make."
 Well, everybody to his own opinion. All I know is that I tried out a few phrases which the pamphlet lists and about which it asserts recklessly: "they're easy—you'll find them handy in getting along with the natives."
 Phrases were tried out on the lady who comes in every day to clean up our room in an Army billet and do our laundry. She is what the Army calls in its own private gobbledegook, an "Indigenous person." That means she's a native Korean.
 Her name is Chung Ko Myung. We call her "Mama-San."
 Mama-San was standing on a small neatly folded mound of clothes, tromping on them with her bare feet. That's the way she irons. She slowly works out wrinkles with her bare feet. This type of work leaves her plenty of time to think. At least she looks as if she is thinking.
 Her contemplative mood was shattered when I approached, pocket guide in hand.
 "I greet you for the first time, madam or missus," I said.
 That is, that's what I thought I said in Korean—pocket guide version. It goes: "Chuh oom perp soom nee, poo in."
 Mama-San stared at me. Her mouth fell open. She laughed.

For a moment she lost her balance and stepped off the clothes mound. A house boy named Kim who speaks English came in, talked to her and then told me: "She says you said 'I'm the first to know your toes are hungry faintly.' You did not pronounce it right."
 I tried again. "Where is a restaurant?" I asked out of the book. Mama-San chuckled and said: "Where do you live?"
 But when I tried, "How do you do, sir or missus," she said I got it almost right.
 Thus encouraged, I gave her a conversational burst from the pamphlet. "I'm hungry," I said. "I'm thirsty. I'm lost. I'm sick. I'm tired. Stop! Hold still! Come her. Come quickly! Help! Bring help. I will pay you. Take me to a doctor. Danger! Watch out! Goodbye."
 Mama-San covered her face with one hand and said something to Kim.
 "She says you are peculiar man," Kim said.
 There's another section in the pamphlet covering customs. It says one of the more usual Korean sports is stone-fighting, in which one village challenges another to "a joyous stone fight," and that in short order "casualties are everywhere."

 Kim and Mama-San said they never heard of it.
 "No stone fights—we have one snow pole," Kim said.
 "Snow pole," I said. "What's that?"
 "In winter it snows," Kim explained. "Little boys makes poles out of snow and throw at each other."
 "Oh, that kind of snow poles," I said.

The use of poisons to control weeds in farm ponds can be dangerous, the Fish and Wildlife Service reports. Effective control of many weeds, however, can be obtained by growing regular commercial fertilizer on the water early in the spring, before the weeds start growing. This results in the growth of millions of microscopic plants and animals—which color the water and kill the weeds by shading them.

Former Baseballer Struck Liquid Gold In Newest Eastland Pool

By Boyce House
 (Editors Note: When Boyce House came to Eastland County in the summer of 1921 to edit the Eastland Daily Oil Belt News, he used to see the Eastland baseball team in action so he was writing from first-hand knowledge about the pitching exploits of his friend, Rawley Fairbairn, when he wrote the following article.)

A former baseball pitcher has struck liquid gold in the newest Eastland pool.

The ex-mound artist is W. R. (Rawley) Fairbairn, now an electrical contractor in Odessa, formerly in that business in Glade-water.

Back during the great Eastland County oil boom of 1919 and 1920 Fairbairn found time to operate an electrical business in Eastland and also star as a pitcher in the West Texas League. Then, after the boom was over, Eastland fielded a fast semi-pro club which played each Sunday against teams representing such then-flourishing oil camps as Humbletown, Parks and Olden as well as Breckenridge, Cisco, Ranger and Thurber—the last named now being a "ghost town."

Fairbairn engaged in pitchers' battles with Blankenship (who starred in the majors), "Lefty" Purvis, "Satch" Henson and other ace. His years of experience made him cool and steady—and a good deal of a philosopher. He would remark with a chuckle, "They used to say that I had a million-dollar arm and a two-bit head; now they say I have a million-dollar head and a two-bit arm."

His chief reliance was his "slippery elm" pitch. The spitball was still permitted in semi-pro circles. He would chew on a wad of the elm and, by holding his glove to his face, he kept the batter guessing as to whether the tricky pitch was going to be used. When it was, the ball did all sorts of weird things; nobody—not even Fairbairn—knew just which way it would go. Tom Amis, the catcher, frequently had to be satisfied with blocking the ball, rather than catching it.

A team of barnstorming Texas League stars once invaded Ranger to play the best players of the Oil Belt. The visitors included such fence-busters as Clarence Kraft and Stump Edington. They won handily but Fairbairn pitched the last three innings for the Oil Belt club and allowed only one hit and no runs.

Fairbairn was born in Eastland County. His father owned the Eastland telephone system and a young Rawley did the line work in 1911 for Eastland's first light plant. He started in baseball with Calvert where, in 1915, he won 15 out of 16 starts, the club losing only four out of 48 games. Fairbairn was working in Fort Worth as an electrician when oil was discovered in Eastland County in 1917 and he returned. After the East Texas discovery, he lived in Glade-water six years, then moved to Odessa. He has handled electrical contracting over West Texas and New Mexico, including several army camps.

About two years ago, his old-time friend, Frank Day, veteran Eastland oil man, persuaded Fairbairn to buy a 170-acre farm, formerly the A. Nemir tract, because of its oil possibilities. Fairbairn is not only the landowner but the operator, too. Day has an interest and directs operations. Two small wells in the upper part of the lease were drilled in the Strawn sand. Then W. W. Bradley drilled on the adjoining Courtney but some distance from the Fairbairn wells and, after the new hydraulic treatment was tried, the Bradley well was rated at around 150 barrels.

So Fairbairn jumped across his lease to get as close as he could to this splendid producer and has just scored with a well which is considered fully as good as the Courtney producer.

As he gazed at the oil flowing

Hollywood Film Shop

By Jack Metcalfe
 United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, (UP)—Rhonda Fleming is turning in the misty eyes of an ingenue for the torrid glances of a celluloid bad girl.

She hopes her fans will stay loyal, because the beautiful redhead with the bright-green eyes is fed up with ending in the last reel as "the nice, sweet girl—usually in somebody's arms."

Her roles opposite Dick Powell in "Cry Danger" marks her maiden effort at cinematic sin. In it, she gets mixed up in a $100,000 holdup murder, makes love to Powell, her screen husband's best friend, and doublecrosses the police and her accomplices.

"I've been good long enough, playing hot-tempered, glamorous, sexy dames who really had hearts of gold," Rhonda said. "You can get in a rut that way."
 To make the switch complete, the girl with the high-octane figure appears through most of the film as a poor but honest miss.

"These just before finis," she said. "I'm revealed as a crook and double-dealer."
Man Gets Away
 "To make the change complete, don't even get my man."

This business of missing out on the men is something else Mae Fleming isn't used to.
 During her "good" years, she made some of Hollywood's most desirable catches in movie romance. Among her partners were Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, George Brent, John Payne and Glenn Ford.

Rhonda did give a hint, however, of her dramatic abilities in earlier more unappealing roles, for she mad, her camera debut in "Spellbound," playing a hysterical mental case in a sanitarium.

She later pleased cash customers and critics with her dramatic characterization in "The Spiral Staircase."

into the tank, he remarked, "It's as big as a thrill as pitching a no-hitter."

You Can't Build A Better Mousetrap!

"They're not the best-looking boarders a man ever had." Hack Turner said one day, "and they've got awful tempers. But I've found it pays to have 'em around."

Hack was talking about a family of barn owls, nesting in his silo this year. Some folks believe those little white-faced screechers kill chickens—and ought to be shot on sight. But Hack disagrees.

"Up at State University they've studied barn owls for years—and never known one to eat a chicken. On the other hand, a daddy owl will clean up around 300 mice a month. Farmers that kill barn owls are throwing away the best mousetraps known to man!"

From where I sit, when someone shows a prejudice against any group of animals or humans—it's usually just based on misunderstanding. For instance, some folks are plumb intolerant about those of us who enjoy an occasional quiet glass of beer. Get to really know us and you're liable to find we're pretty good birds at that!

Land Prices Of Tex. Farm Land Still Rising

COLLEGE STATION — Record high prices for Texas farm and ranch land existed at the end of 1949, and land prices continue to rise, according to a report prepared by John H. Southern and Joe R. Motheral. It was a cooperative study carried on by the USDA Bureau of Agricultural Economics and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

During 1950, Texas land prices increased an average of about seven and one-half percent, or from an average of $11.35 to $12.14 per acre. This increase is in contrast to the slight decrease which occurred during 1948. Last year marks the third straight year that land prices have stepped up a record high level. For example, the high price for land in 1949 was $12.14 per acre, compared to $11.35 in 1948.

Although the price increased in 1949, the number of acres sold was 25 per cent less than was sold in 1948. The average size of the tracts of land sold was smaller than had been the case for several years, and the number of sales dropped 11 per cent.

The rise in prices occurred in 12 of the 18 types-of-farming areas in Texas, the largest increase being for wheat farming land of the High Plains. The average price of land in this area jumped from $12.01 per acre to $13.01, an increase of 8.3 per cent. Very large increases also occurred in the grazing area of the High Plains and in the Texas Plains and the Lower Rio Grande Valley areas.

The average price of land was 18.7 per cent lower in the High Plains cotton area, and in the Rolling Plains area than during 1948. A drop of 15.2 per cent occurred during 1949 in the Grand Prairie. A considerable drop also occurred in the number of sales and the number of acres sold in these three areas, the acreage changing hands varying from one-fifth to one-third less than in 1948.

Southern and Motheral attribute the rising price of farm and ranch land in 1949 to the continued high prices paid for agricultural products resulting from the unusually high incomes in 1948 and 1949. In the agricultural products market, the price of cotton advanced 10.5 per cent, and the price of wheat advanced 10.5 per cent.

Lois O. Luck, Maybelle Muskegon, Mick (VPA) and Richard Tischer report finding a 10 per cent drop in the price of land in the High Plains area.

Science Comes Up With X-Rays Sent By Wire

Two scientists disclosed today the development of a machine that can send X-ray pictures over telephone wires or radio circuits.

The device, called a roentgenographic facsimile recorder, already is at work between the "center" of "rock-horror" movie "Cinderella" and the big medical centers in New York and Los Angeles.

Dr. J. Gershon-Cohen and A. G. Cooley describe the machine in the current issue of Radiology, official publication of the Radiological Society of North America.

Cooley and the design and Dr. Gershon-Cohen supervised its clinical applications.

Gershon-Cohen and Cooley point out that the machine will fit the needs of most rural hospitals who do not have the services of expert X-ray diagnosticians. They call diagnosis by wire "Telognosis."

The machine is similar to that used by newspaper picture services in transmitting photographs in that it uses photo electric cells to pick up light signals and send them over telephone wires to receivers on the other end.

Under normal conditions, Gershon-Cohen and Cooley said, a 14 by 17-inch X-ray film can be transmitted in four and a half minutes, and smaller films can be transmitted in correspondingly less time. Several small films can be transmitted at the same time.

Since the machine went into operation, there have been several dramatic experiences with it, the scientists reported. In one case a patient suffering acute abdominal symptoms was admitted to the West Chester Hospital. The surgeon in charge desired an emergency X-ray consultation. Within a few minutes a sharp, clear X-ray picture of the patient's abdominal area was being viewed by experts in Philadelphia. A diagnosis of bowel obstruction was made. An operation was performed immediately. The diagnosis was confirmed. The patient was out of danger.

BOYCE HOUSE SAYS

Another Old-time barber had just been found guilty of murder and sentenced to die. The judge asked, "Is there any special request you have?" The prisoner said, "Yes, your honor, I would like to shave the district attorney."

A man who was going to open up a fish market wanted a sign painted, reading "Fresh Fish for Sale Here Today." The sign-painter said, "Leave off 'today'—you wouldn't be selling them yesterday, and leave off 'here'—they would assume that was the place you were selling them. And you don't need to say 'For sale'—they know you are not giving them away." The sign-painter continued, "and leave off the 'fresh'—you wouldn't be selling spoiled fish. So all you need on the sign is the one word, 'Fish.'"

The man said, "When they get close enough to read the sign they can smell the fish—so I won't need any sign at all!"

Despondent Girl Leaps To Death From Bridge

HOUSTON, Oct. 26 (UP)—Blonde Norma Lee Triplett, a 26-year-old waitress despondent because she had lost custody of her two children, quarreled with a friend today and then leaped to her death from a bridge over Bray's Bayou, police said.

Her body still had not been recovered, and no official verdict has been returned. Police said, however, the death obviously was suicide.

Mrs. Triplett, a native of Blackwell, Okla., who came to Houston six months ago, "because it is a wonderful place to start a new life," was walking with 30-year-old Thomas C. Lindsey, a tugboat hand, and two friends, Mrs. Helen Phillips, 26, and Donald Moore, 23.

"We had been to a bar," Lindsey said. "She was in a 'mad spell.' When we crossed the bridge she said she thought she would jump. I tried to calm her, but she turned around and ran back. I ran toward her but she climbed up on the railing and jumped."

Moore leaped in and tried to pull Mrs. Triplett from the water. A sister, Miss Marie Marquet, 17, said Mrs. Triplett and her husband, Leon, were divorced two years ago and both lost custody of the two children who are in an orphanage at Fairfield, Okla.

She has been very unhappy because she lost the children, the sister said.

SCENES AROUND RANGER

SCENES AROUND . . . . RAN
For sometime I've prided myself on being calm, cool and collected. Thought nothing could shake me. But I've suddenly realized that I've got football on the brain—gridiron fever.

The first game that I saw the Bulldogs play was at Brady this year. That 62-20 insult left me with no particular feeling. I hadn't even gotten acquainted with the team and I thought, well, Ranger is just another below-average team.

Then came Cisco and a complete about face. Next, that wild Dublin affair and it suddenly dawned on me that the Bulldogs might be heading someplace. After Comanche, I knew they were. And now I am suffering all the symptoms of the excited and nervous fan.

The Hamilton game has had me on edge all week. In fact, I knew that I had completely surrendered to the wiles of football when I actually dreamed about the game the other night.

That dream came close to being a nightmare. The score was tied—I don't know what the actual count was, but somehow I knew in my dream it was a tied ball game. And there I was, standing in the end zone and hopping up and down, screaming and yelling. Nobody seemed to pay the slightest attention to me. I was trying to tell Cunningham something for I remember him distinctly invading my dream.

It was one of those crazy dreams you have now and then. The more I yelled the more I was ignored and the madder I got. I was just about to run onto the field of play, when, as dreams will do, I woke up. A most peculiar dream. Trying to analyze it scientifically I can only conclude that popcorn, dill pickles and milk are hardly the food to eat before going to bed.

Comacho's brother, Raymond, who was quite a ball player himself at Ranger a few years ago, will be home on a 10-day Coast Guard leave. He'll be here Saturday, missing by one day the Hamilton game. It is my hope that Santos will be able to reshah a victory to his brother.

Superstition is not part of my life but just to play safe I've been careful to notice all important signs. First that dream. I must have been a Hamilton fan in the dream—for who else would be fool-hardy enough to be on the field of play with the teams playing? And if I was a Hamilton fan and on the field and was angry—why, it must have been because the Bulldogs were on their way to break that tie.

Now, Raymond Comacho's visit. It would be an insult to the armed forces if one of its members came

Sugar Ray To Defend Crown

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26 (UP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, holder of the world welterweight title and the Pennsylvania version of the middleweight championship, defends his one-state world crown tonight against Carl (Bobo) Olson of Honolulu in a 15-round bout.

Olson, an unknown in the east, rolled into the championship brawl on a record of 82 knockouts in 52 professional fights, most of them on the west coast and in the Pacific islands.

Gym clocks here had the word of Otis Graham, Philadelphia welter he bested in 10 rounds in Honolulu last March, that Bobo was a strong fighter and a "hurter" inside.

There was no activity in the betting marts where fight odds are set, and no one would even give an estimate on what they could be. No one was disposed to bet against Robinson in a bout with a stranger.

home only to learn his high school had been defeated the day before. It is the duty of the home folks to "keep up the boys morale," as they say. So, naturally, Raymond is expecting a Bulldog win.

This all may sound a bit illogical—but it serves a desperate hope and wish.

Mrs. Lee Russell Hosts Meet Of Home Maker's Hallowe'en Social

The Homemakers Sunday school class of the First Baptist Church met, on Tuesday at 7:30 October 24, in the home of Mrs. Lee Russell, for a business and social meeting.

The president, Mrs. N. E. Landers, presided at the business meeting and introduced Mrs. M. P. McCallum, who gave the devotional on "Christian Fellowship," consisting of three parts: With God, Fellow Christians, and the Unsaved. And very cleverly ended the devotional with the group singing, "Make Me a Channel of Blessing."

Officers were elected during the meeting with Mrs. F. E. King, group captain; and Mrs. Theo Ferguson, Stewardship Vice-President.

Plans were made for the business and social meetings to be held Tuesday after the first Sunday, in each month. The next business, and social meeting will be on November 7, at 7:30 in the home of Mrs. O. L. Cantrell.

Following the brief business session a social was in order with various Hallowe'en games. The refreshments were carried out in Hallowe'en motif, with very decorative napkins. Spiced tea was served with cake topped with whipped cream, with Hallowe'en characters surrounding the nut cup favors.

Present were Meses: D. A. Fawcett, Marvin Edwards, Sunday school teacher, Miley E. Williams, A. G. Koenig, M. D. McCallum,

Wear Lipstick Wear Nylons—They're Gals

By Elizabeth Toomey
NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (UP)—The newest reservists called to the colors are wearing nylons and lipstick. They're girls!

The Army has called 1,644 women in the organized reserve back to duty, and judging from the first young ladies who reported at Manhattan Army headquarters for physical checkups, the whole thing comes as a big shock.

Barbara Shapland, for instance, a Brooklyn secretary figures she's pretty typical of the first lady reservists who will be required to serve 21 months.

"I'm a cinch to pass the physical," said Barbara as she stood in line with some 50 other young women. "I never felt better."

She served two years as a Wac, but went back to civilian life as soon as World War II ended.

"I was just leaving for work the other day when I opened the mailbox and here was this letter that started out, 'By direction of the President, you are requested...'" Barbara said. "I nearly fainted."

If the girls pass their physicals they're subject to call any time, probably within the next few weeks. Unmarried women with no dependents will be selected first, but married women with no dependents can be called too.

Next to Barbara in line stood red-eyed Mrs. Jeannette Hutak.

"I've had enough of war. I joined the Wac when my first husband was killed in the last war. Then I remarried just a year ago, and three weeks ago my husband was called back in."

The single girls were more philosophical.

"I brought it on myself, I guess by staying in the reserve," a pretty secretary commented. "But at least we can still wear civilian clothes when we're off duty now, and we couldn't when I was in before."

This cheered a solemn girl who stood at the counter. "I was out the first of what she figured was going to be a long line of forms to get herself back in uniform."

"Boy, wait till my sister hears that," she said. "She was already planning to take over my entire wardrobe."

Brooklyn Bridge was opened May 24, 1883.

Hallowe'en Fun Has Become More Docile

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (UP)—We were little imps when we were kids. Once, on Hallowe'en, we put a cow in the Moore Township High School lobby in Farmer City, Ill., and another time we coated the steam radiators with limburger.

But today, the young'uns are docile. Thanks to the cops and the chambers of commerce and the American Legion, all they do is wave pink hankies out the windows, dress up like spooks and holler "boo."

Or maybe mess up a few windows with soap.

Our government also has some advice on Hallowe'en nonsense.

The National Bureau of Standards which can do everything from look into the atom bomb to figure the wear and tear on knee and heel on a pair of nylons, figures the best way to take soap off windows is to use more soap and hot water.

Soap markings should be caught before the soap has dried and hardened.

If you let the soap harden, the bureau says you should smear a bunch of glycerin over the scribbling and wait until it has softened up the soap. Then go at the whole business with soap and water.

If the gremlins or goblins are really nasty mean and use wax rapiers, or candles, you may have to use other means.

Stuff like gasoline, kerosene, turpentine or mineral spirits.

The Bureau of Standards adds this note:

"After using solvents, the windows should be cleaned in the usual manner with water and soap or synthetic detergent."

In using the organic solvents, the bureau says, you must remember to keep them away from flames—and, for Heavens' sake don't breathe in the vapors. You might find yourself to be a very sick ghost-chaser.

The Bureau of Standards has a little idea which will spoil the kid's fun, but which might make us old folks happy.

If you leave your car out, you might put a protective coating of vaseline or lubricating oil on the glass before the goblins come. The wax and soap comes off easily.
