Former FDR Son In Law Leaps To Death In N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (UP)—John Boettiger, former son-in-law of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, leaped to his death today from a 7th floor hotel suite. He overpowered in a "terrific struggle" a nurse assigned to guard him after a previous suicide attempt. The 50-year-old former newspaper publisher was believed to have killed himself because he was dissatisfied with his present job as a public relations expert. "He had always been a newspaper man and I'm not sure he was happy in his new field of public relations," said Theodor Swanson, head of the public relations firm for which Boettiger was a vice-president. "He had been relatively idle for the past few months."

Boettiger, former publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and the Arizona Times, at Phoenix, tore himself from the grasp of his male nurse, Joseph Paine, and hurled himself out an open window shortly after 6 a. m. EST. His pajama clad body landed on the sidewalk near the entrance of the swank Hotel Weylin, narrowly missing a fire marquee on the way down.

Boettiger joined Swanson's firm in July, 1949, a month before he was divorced by Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, daughter of the late president.

Boettiger tried to kill himself last Saturday by taking a large dose of sleeping pills, Swanson said. A hotel maid found him at 4 p. m. Sunday, unconscious in his room.

Bulldogs Face 179-Lb. Line

The Bulldogs began to shake off an understandingly spirited feeling yesterday and squared away for DeLeon with a fast pace of scrimmage. Only player injured in the Hamilton game was Jack Hummel, 175 right tackle, who is nursing a swollen ankle.

Pain has left the bruised foot and in a couple of days, with heat and soaking treatments, Coach Warden expects the swelling to go down.

Coaches Warden and Aills sent the squads through kick-off and punts returns with both runners and tacklers getting a long workout. The session ended at about 5 p. m. after the offensive team ran several plays.

Once again the Bulldogs will be running up against a heavier line. The DeLeon Bearcats average 179 pounds at the forward wall. On offense Ranger averages 160 and on defense, 165 pounds.

DeLeon has been the doormat of the district this year. But their best game was played against the same Hamilton bunch that is now leading the district race. Hamilton who was expected to run over the Bearcats, could manage only a 19-0 win. Cisco defeated DeLeon 19-

Jester's Widow Weds In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 31 (UP)—Mrs. Mabel Jester, widow of the late Texas Gov. Beauford Jester, was married to a childhood friend in a quiet ceremony here yesterday.

Only 10 persons were present as Mrs. Jester was wed to John Morris, 53, Texarkana, Ark., insurance man. The couple planned a honeymoon trip to New York.

Widower, Morris is the father of two children—both married. They are J. P. Morris, Jr., Texarkana, Ark., and Mrs. William Harrison, Fort Worth.

Gov. and Mrs. Jester were the parents of three children.

Fat Stock Show Invites City To Set Ranger Day

Ranger, which had a special "day" designated in its honor at the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show last winter, has been invited to have a day at the 1951 exposition.

W. R. Watt, president-manager of the Fort Worth show, in a letter to the Chamber of Commerce declared that this city helped to make the 1950 show one of the most successful in history. The letter continued: "Your city is invited to have a special day at the 1951 show (Jan. 26 through Feb. 4). By coming in an organized group, your citizens have lots of fun and advertise your city, as do the high school band and the Cowgirl Sweetheart."

Band Boosters Set For Laughs In Talent Play

No, No—that's not hallowe'en masks you see in store windows. Those weird faces belong to members of the Band Boosters Club who are all painted up as "characters" in their home talent play, "Comin' Round the Mountain," by Robert St. Clair.

The Ranger thespians can be seen on the High School stage at either the matinee, Monday, Nov. 6 at 1:30 or Tuesday, Nov. 7 at 7:30 p. m. The annual dramatic presentation is directed by Mrs. V. V. Cooper, Jr. Funds from admission to the play will be used to buy instruments for the high school band.

The characters (in disorder): "Maw Skitter," Mrs. Tommy Fox; "Pa Skitter," S. A. Hightower; "Curley," Robert Gans; "Corney Bell," Mrs. Marshall Jolly; "Dizzy Mae," Mrs. Raymond Long; "Zeke," Raymond Long.

"Ella Mae Du Funny," Mrs. Morris George; "Sammy Fester," Morris George; "Robert Bruce," Dr. Marshall Jolly; "Edward Small," J. B. Houghton, Jr.; "Doris Dean," Mrs. J. D. Johnson; "Carol Hughes," Mrs. Robert Gans.

Ft. Worth Holds Stock Roundup November 2-3

If it's possible to tell everything new about producing and marketing livestock that a feeder needs to know this year and tell it in a day and a half, some of the livestock interests of Fort Worth plan to have it done.

The occasion is the first annual Texas Livestock Roundup to be held in the Will Rogers Memorial Auditorium, Fort Worth, on Thursday and Friday, November 2 and 3. Everyone is invited, and it's free.

Speakers were selected from ranks of the best qualified livestock men in the nation to talk about trends, techniques and important issues. They know what they will be talking about, and it won't be dull listening.

Some of the high points on the program will be the carcass demonstration by local meat packers. Here, feeders can see why certain animals bring certain kinds of prices, and they can hear the recommendations for producing and marketing more of the better types.

Altogether there are seventeen main events on the program, not counting lunch.

Troops Hit High Gear In Advance To Border

Puerto Rico Rebels Kill 36 In Uprising

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Oct. 31 (UP)—National Guardsmen supported by tanks cleaned out a rebel stronghold today and advanced on another in a drive to crush a Communist-supported, anti-American revolt in which at least 36 persons have been killed. More than 200 terrorists, whose comrades tried unsuccessfully to assassinate Gov. Luis Munoz Marin and seize the major cities in this U. S. territory, took over Jayuya, a mountain town 37 miles southwest of San Juan, and converted it into an armed fort.

The terrorists, members of a nationalist organization seeking complete independence from the U. S. for the island, were reported to have killed all the police in Jayuya and to have burned a large section of the town.

Presidential executive secretary Roberto Sanchez Vilella predicted there would be a bloody battle for the town and that the rest of it might be destroyed if the guardsmen have to pour mortar, machine-gun and rifle fire against the rebels inside.

The municipal building, post office, internal revenue building, a theater and two gas stations were said to have been burned to the ground.

This latest terrorism, plus similar bloody and destructive incidents in at least 10 other Puerto Rican cities and towns, made the uprising the worst in Puerto Rican history.

Put authorities reported that they had control of the situation everywhere but in Jayuya and that 300 National Guard infantrymen, supported by 10 to 15 medium tanks, had been sent to storm the town.

Despite the official optimism that the uprising was almost at an end, some observers believed today might be bloodier than yesterday, when authorities estimated 20 policemen and more than 10 others, including rebels, were killed.

An official tabulation of casualties up to 3 a. m. today listed eight police, 21 rebels and one National Guardsman killed, 21 injured and 32 nationalists captured. Unofficial reports on minor outbreaks today listed six more dead, and there was no word yet of casualties in the Jayuya battle.

Last night the Governor told the nation in a broadcast that the outbreak was the work of fanatics engaged in a "criminal conspiracy." He urged the population to remain calm.

Earlier five rebels had attacked the presidential palace, La Fortaleza, with bombs and rifle fire. Four of the rebels were killed and the fifth wounded.

The rebels rolled up to the palace in an automobile and opened fire on a police guard stationed at the entrance.

They fired at the building itself and hurled fire bombs before police killed and wounded them. Munoz remained at work in his second floor office, protected from the street only by wooden shutters.

Mineral Wells Out To Ruin Pups Record

Ranger Junior High's Pups stake their perfect record against a tough Mineral Wells team at 7:30 tonight in Ranger.

The undefeated, untied and unscathed local eleven will try to wrap up their fourth consecutive win. This is the first time that their unscorered record is in danger of falling to the wayside.

Dr. Brown served five years as pastor in the Cisco district, two years at Rising Star and is now superintendent of the Fort Worth district. He received his Ph. D. from the University of Edinburgh, Scotland.

Services Set For Wilford Lawrence

Funeral services for Wilford H. Lawrence, 37, of Gainesville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lawrence of Olden, will be held at 9:30 a. m. at the First Baptist Church in Gainesville.

Burial will be at the Eastland Cemetery with the Masons in charge of the service at 4 p. m. Lawrence died at 9:45 p. m. Sunday, from injuries received when he fell 80 feet from a tubing board on an oil derrick while at work on Wednesday of last week. He is a former resident of Olden.

Survivors include his wife and two children; and one brother, Homer, of Olden.

Detective Gets Falsies

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (UP)—Private detective Robert Parselle, assigned to shadow a multi-millionaire's wife, became so friendly with her that she threw him a birthday party at which he was presented with a pair of lady's falsies.

Mentalist Joseph Dunninger, to whom Houdini left a secret message just before his death, presided over the séance and said the letters Decker produced were a portion of a 16-word key to the message. But he said it was not enough to win his standing offer of $10,000 to the first person who brings his conclusive proof that Houdini still lives in another world.

"Harry told me he'd get through with the whole thing if he could get through at all," Dunninger said, "and I'll stand on that."

Before Decker entered his partial "trance," he led Dunninger, mystery writer Sax Rohmer and a dozen newsmen in a recitation of the Lord's prayer, and a hoarse, "glory, glory, hallelujah." Then, under the faint illumination of Fifth Avenue street lights seeping into the skyscraper office, Decker sank back in a leather arm chair and began a writhing communication with what he claimed was Houdini's wrath.

"I'm getting something," he shrieked, "it's a P... no, it's something else... I can't make it out... it looks like a 'P'. I have it... it's a 'B'."

Interpreted with more groans, the letters "L-A-C-K-M" followed and then the shade of novelist Rex Beach horned in. "I've got a message for someone else in this room," Decker said, "it's for the man over there."

He rose in his chair and stabbed his hand toward Rohmer, who obeyed his direction to walk across the room and join hands with Decker. "A friend named Rex says he's guiding you, hand and will help you with writing something," Decker said.

When Decker added the last name, Beach, Rohmer snorted and said he'd be glad to have a little help on his writing and returned to his seat. The other guests at the séance roared with laughter and Decker said they had probably scared off the spirit population for the rest of the night.

HARRY HOUDINI'S GHOST RUNS INTO SOME CONFUSION; MEDIUM BRINGS BACK FAMOUS MAGICIAN'S VOICE AS SKEPTICS LAUGH

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (UP)—Harry Houdini, the most bashful ghost in modern history, made an inconclusive appearance in the darkened office of a Fifth Avenue skyscraper shortly after midnight today.

Invited to use his spiritualist powers to wrest a message from the shade of the famed magician, medium Frank Decker went into a semi-coma and moaned the letters "L-A-C-K-M-A-R" to a skeptical audience of reporters and photographers. It was the first time since Houdini's Halloween eve death 24 years ago that an effort had been used in an endeavor to contact the spirit of the departed conjurer.

Mentalist Joseph Dunninger, to whom Houdini left a secret message just before his death, presided over the séance and said the letters Decker produced were a portion of a 16-word key to the message. But he said it was not

US COLUMN SPEARS 25 MILES OF EMERGENCY RED CAPITAL

TOKYO, Wednesday, Nov. 1 (UP)—A tank-tipped U. S. column speared up the northwest coast of Korea today within 25 miles of the Communist emergency capital of Sinuiju on the Manchurian frontier.

Major Gen. John H. Church, commander of the 24th Division, ordered a forced march throughout the night for the regiment leading the push on Sinuiju. He predicted it would reach the Yalu River boundary by nightfall.

The 21st Regiment of the 24th Division, dubbed Task Force Stevens for its commander, Col. Richard W. Stevens of Pierre, S. D., struck through the coastal stronghold of Sonchon and eight miles beyond it, across the last river barrier short of the Yalu, to a point 25 miles from Sinuiju.

Except in the rugged mountains of North-Central Korea, the whole Allied push toward the frontiers went into high gear again. Flaring Communist resistance at several points, notably a threat to the great east coast bastion of Hamhung, had checked the march for a time.

The North Koreans and their Chinese Communist supporters still were fighting hard in some scattered sectors, but the United Nations troops were in the saddle and riding roughshod over most of the knots of resistance.

The U. S. 24th Division took over the lead in the rush toward the Manchurian border. Task force Stevens sped some 25 miles up the main west coast highway in scarcely 24 hours.

"We have them off balance," Church said. "If we let them get set we will have to dig out. I will be very surprised if we haven't reached the Yalu River by Wednesday night."

"The men are tired. They probably will growl like hell and curse me out, but in the end it will save lives."

Church added that he also would be greatly surprised if the 21st Regiment moving up the coast ran into more than one Communist battalion on the road to Sinuiju.

Communist infiltration continued around the defense perimeter of Hamhung, Allied base 70 miles southwest of Pungnan but a threatened attack by two divisions of Chinese Communist troops failed to develop.

Loss of Hamhung would cut the Allied northwest supply lines in two. However, the U. S. 1st Marine Division—23,000 strong—is at Wonsan, 50 miles to the south, and readily could deal with the enemy.

SCENES AROUND RANGER

Okay, Kids—young and old alike—it's Hallowe'en. Have your fun but keep in mind that little sentence that goes something like—"Do unto others—" Remember? Let's try to keep the trash-can switching down to a minimum. And anything stronger than soap is going to cost somebody some unnecessary expense when they try to wash it off their window, car or house. The Pups are playing tonight and that's a good place for the kids to let off a lot of that Hallowe'en steam. Take your colorful horns and spooky masks out there and maybe we can scare Mineral Wells into losing the game.

Community Chest officials were admittedly somewhat surprised when they learned that contributions had come in even before the drive officially got under way. That is an encouraging sign for Ranger as it tries to make its first Chest drive a success with hopes that the quota will be surpassed. There is really nothing new about the Chest, except combining the agencies that Ranger has always supported. The Community Chest has proven itself time and again in every city that has undertaken such a drive. In fact any city finds that it is a decided advantage to combine all welfare agencies into one Community Chest.

Instead of a Ranger citizen giving, say $5, to the Girl Scouts when he supports the Community Chest, he not only supports the Girl Scouts but at the same time, the Boy Scouts, the Salvation Army and Child Welfare.

Any business man who respects orderly supervision, will welcome the Community Chest to Ranger. And any individual who wants to know where his five bucks is going, can feel absolutely safe that the Community Chest is an official, welfare organization approved whole-heartedly by other Ranger civic organizations.

But the advantage does not lie merely with the excellent organizational work of the Chest. Its greater good lies in the service it performs for Ranger. Even if there were no Community Chest, Ranger would still contribute to the support of agencies which look after the less fortunate people in the city. Ranger's Chest simplifies and more closely directs the supervision of such support.

The pride of a city is not shown only in its prosperous business, attractive residential section or scenic surroundings. A city can truly be proud when in addition to the above, it shows its respect of humanity by looking after those of its citizens who are unable to care for themselves. The Community Chest means just what its name implies—a chest into which ALL the Community can and will give what it can afford to help the Community.

Army's Public Information Office Gets News; Even One Of Pheasant Hunting Col. Who Bags 10 Koreds

By H. D. QUINN WITH U. S. FORCES IN KOREA, Oct. 31 (UP)—The man who missed the pheasant and bagged the Communists shall not be nameless.

He is Edward Burke. Your reporter rescued him from a bulletin board for correspondents in an Army public information office. He had hung there on the board for several days, admired by all but used by none.

Burke's feat was neatly packaged in four sentences. They were written by some public information officer or enlisted man and sent to Eighth Army public information headquarters. The notice hung on the bulletin board, and many correspondents read it and smiled over it.

One day I asked a correspondent if he had used it. "No," he said, "I figured press associations had sent it out so I would only be duplicating them if I used it."

Other correspondents said the same thing. The press associations hadn't used it either. Each figured the others had seen it first and already sent it.

Well, here it is: "Memorandum for the press Number five. Maj. Edward Burke of Fayetteville, N. C., a member of the 52nd Field Artillery Battalion, 24th Infantry Division, took time off from combat to go pheasant hunting. He flushed a pheasant and hand fly with a shotgun. Result: 10 North Korean soldiers with hands in the air, who were escorted to a POW camp. Burke missed the pheasant."

The public information officer who sent this item in did not affix his name to it. Furnishing tidbits such as this and weightier tactical information is only part of the duties of the "P. I. O."

GOP Gains Seen In Next Weeks' Senate Vote

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (UP)—Thirty-three states will elect 36 United States Senators one week from today.

Democrats now hold 23 of those seats, Republicans 13. The number of Senators to be elected Nov. 7 is four more than the constitutional minimum.

Added starters come from four states where Senators will be elected to serve unexpired terms of men who died or resigned.

Connecticut, Idaho and North Carolina each will elect two Senators next week, one for a full six-year term and the other for an unexpired term. The fourth unexpired term seat will be filled by Rhode Island.

Democrats now control the Senators which adds up like this: Democrats 54

Republicans 42
Total 96

To obtain the bare majority necessary to organize the Senate in the new 82nd Congress, Republicans must make a net gain of seven seats to increase their membership to 49. This the Republicans claim they will do.

Democratic campaign managers counter claim that their party will increase its Senate majority. The precedents are that in an off-year election the party out of power gains congressional seats at the expense of the party in power.

The Washington consensus is that the Republicans will gain Senate seats next Tuesday. The magazine Newsweek which polled 50 Washington newsmen and women on election prospects this month reported their collective judgment that the Republicans will gain four seats, net. If so, the Senate would remain in control of Democrats and add up like this: Democrats 50
Republicans 46

BOYCE HOUSE SAYS
A man was talking to Dr. Zilch. He said, "I hear that Brown, who you've been treating for liver trouble, died of stomach trouble." The doctor replied, angrily, "That's not so. When I treat a man for liver trouble, he dies of liver trouble."

"Can you cure me?" a patient inquired anxiously.

"Why, I'll have you on your feet in a very short time," the doctor declared.

And he did, too—the patient had to sell his car in order to pay the doctor bill.

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Rutt

THE STORY: Edith Flood, the former Miss Frey, has been plucked by her father's will to charge the Frey & Company, an advertising agency, she has business troubles and troubles with her two brothers Jeff and Myron and younger sister Jean. Then comes a letter from her husband, Peter Flood, asking for a divorce. Edith leaves from Gil Summerfield, an old friend, that Peter has gone to Mexico from Bermuda, where he and Edith were living before Edith's father's death. With Peter is Irene Van Sant, a wealthy young woman. Edith returns to her office the next morning and finds two of her staff at work. They had been working all night on a campaign for Moratelo soap, an account which the firm has been afraid of losing.

CHUCK STONEHAM'S "brain-wave" and Vernon's execution of it made a profound impression on Reagan. And even Jeff Frey, more nervous than ever these days, admitted that the campaign was a honey.

"If Northcott won't take it," he declared, "it'll be because he's made up his mind not to take anything we do."

"Oh, it can't be that bad, Jeff," Edith said. "I know you can sell this campaign."

She had decided to let Jeffrey present the new idea without interference from herself or Reagan. After all, Jeff had been handling the account all along. And she still had the feeling that he resented her being in the business. Well, she would give him a clear field, as much as she could.

As it happened, Jeff was unable to make an appointment with Northcott for several days. Northcott said, over the phone, that he was pretty well tied up. He was pleased, however, that Frey & Company had sparked something new. He would be glad to see it on the following Monday. Meanwhile, he had determined to have this Saturday to himself, business or no business. Would Jeff play golf with him?

"Swell world, isn't it?" Gil said with his faintly-cynical smile. "A cockeyed puzzle." But there was a thoughtful look in his dark eyes.

ON the Sunday night following Jeff Frey's golf date with Lewis Northcott, Edith went for a long motor ride with Gil. It was late when they got back and he left her at her door. Edith entered the house to find it apparently deserted, but with lights blazing all over the first floor.

Her first thought was that the servants had been extremely remiss. Then she remembered. This was Sunday night. The servants were out.

She ran upstairs, becoming conscious, as she neared the top, of the sound of footsteps pacing back and forth. Jeff's room was just at the head of the stairs and she knocked on the door. There was no response. Edith waited a second, then pushed the door open.

Jeff Frey was certainly not responsible for the footsteps. Just at the moment he wasn't responsible for anything. There was a low light burning in the room. And in an armchair, an empty decanter and a half-empty glass on the table at his elbow, sprawled Jeffrey.

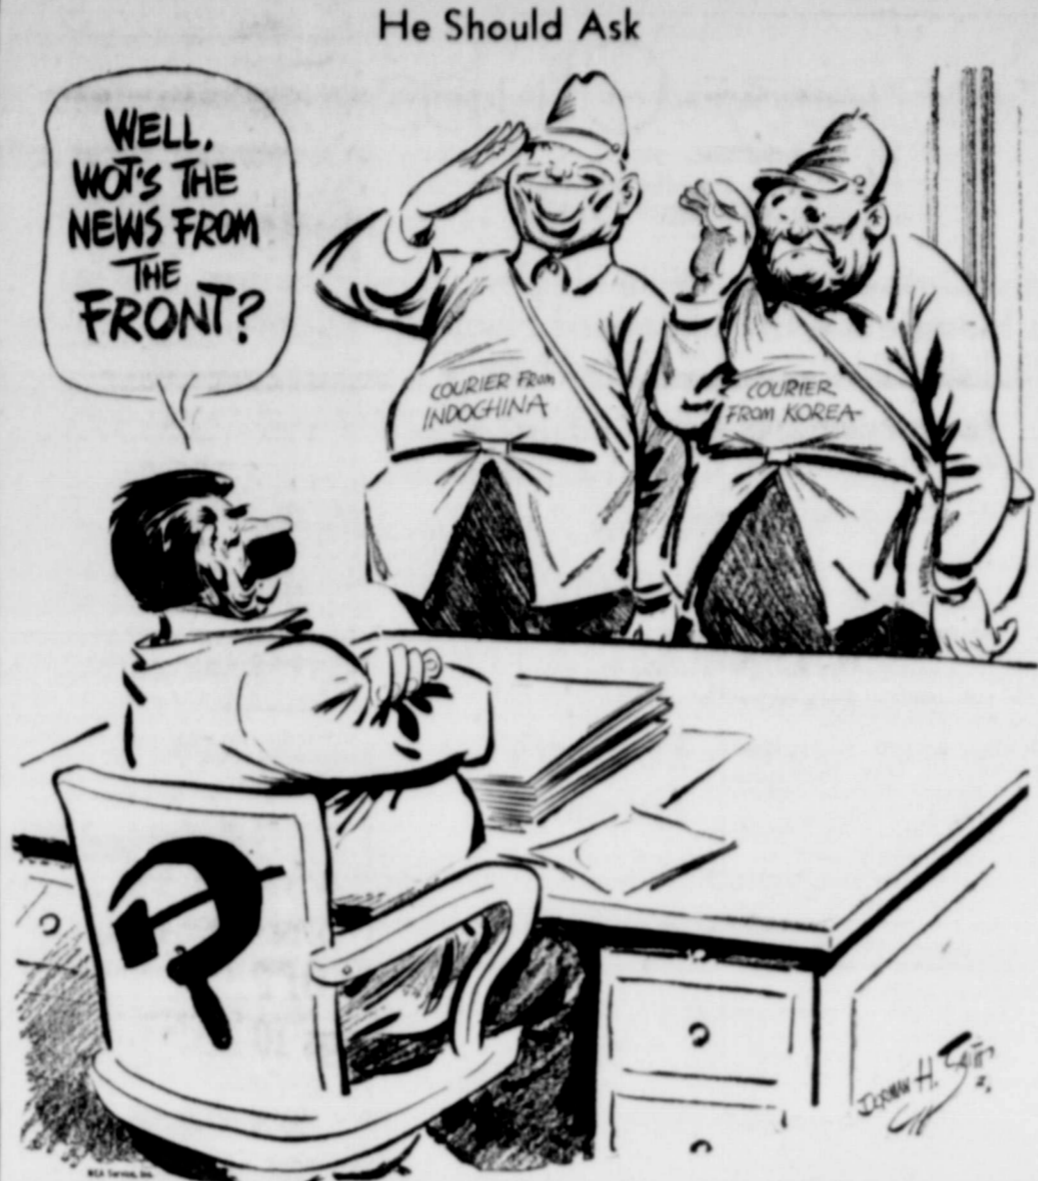

"Jeff!" Edith cried sharply, her tone a mixture of annoyance and disgust.

His only reply was a heavy exhalation of breath, virtually amounting to a snore.

She crossed the room swiftly, seized Jeff by the shoulders and shook him. It was no use. His head merely rolled foolishly from side to side and dropped to one shoulder the instant she stopped shaking.

For a moment Edith stood there, undecided. Then she backed out into the hallway. This was a fine state of affairs, but if Jeff had found it necessary to drink himself into a stupor, and she couldn't think why it had been necessary, at least he had chosen a safe place for it. She closed the door upon him. And suddenly she heard the footsteps again.

Rush Begins For 25,000 Cotton Bowl Tickets

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 31 (UP)—The annual rush for Cotton Bowl tickets begins tomorrow and it's expected to be the greatest ever.

Only 25,000 seats are available to the general public and officials of the New Year's Day spectacle expect 125,000 applications.

Here's how to go about the great gamble:

Mail applications to the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, 1343 National City Bldg., Dallas 1, Tex., enclosing check or money order for not more than four tickets. The price is $4.80 per ticket, plus a 25-cent mailing fee per application.

Applications must be received between Nov. 1 and 4 inclusive, and no more than one person will be accepted.

After all have been received, there will be a drawing and you may—repeat, may—get a ticket. Otherwise, you'll receive your money back.

Only 5,000,000 people in this country know they are hay fever sufferers. Allergists estimate there are at least another 10,000,000 who sneeze through protracted "summer colds," unaware of their allergy.

SMU Selected First Team In Nation On United Press Poll; Texas Stays In Seventh, Army Drops To Second

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (UP)—Southern Methodist supplanted Army today as the nation's No. 1 football team.

Although idle last week-end, Southern Methodist was given 16 first place votes and a total of 306 points to take over the lead in the United Press football ratings. Army dropped to second place with 10 first place ballots and a total of 294 points after leading the weekly ratings for the three previous weeks.

The ratings are compiled from the selections of 25 of the nation's outstanding coaches on the basis of 10 points for a first place vote, nine for second and so on down to one for 10th.

Ohio State's once defeated Buckeyes, impressive in their 83 to 21 victory over Iowa, jumped to third place with Oklahoma's undefeated Sooners dropping to fourth place, California, another of the nation's eight major teams which are unbeaten and untied, was fifth with Kentucky, Texas, Illinois, Princeton and Washington rounding out the top 10 teams in the country in that order.

Of the top 10, only Kentucky and Texas held the same positions as last week, sixth and seventh respectively. Illinois advanced from ninth to eighth and Princeton and Washington were newcomers in the select group, replacing Tennessee and Cornell.

Of the top 10, Southern Methodist, Army, Oklahoma, California, Kentucky and Princeton are unbeaten and untied. Ohio State, Illinois, Texas and Washington each have lost one game.

The other two unbeaten and untied major eleven's, Miami and Wyoming, placed 13th and 17th respectively.

SMU was named on 34 of the ballots, Ohio State on 33 and Oklahoma on 22. Only 24 teams received points this week, compared with 32 last week. Texas A. & M. and Michigan, which ranked 11th and 12th last week, dropped completely out of the picture, failing to receive a single point. The Aggies were defeated by Baylor, 27 to 20, while Michigan was held to a 7 to 7 tie by victory-strayed Minnesota.

For the second straight week Notre Dame, which suffered its third defeat of the season Saturday, failed to receive a single point. Michigan State, which defeated the Irish 26 to 33, was ranked 15th with 26 points.

Southern Methodist became the third team to take over the top spot in the United Press ratings, eliminating a steady presence. Notre Dame led the pre-season and first two weekly ratings in which the Mustangs paced 15th, seventh and fourth respectively. When Army took over first place in the third weekly ratings, SMU moved up into second place. The Mustangs dropped down to third place the
