Russian Desires To Cease-Fire Called Sincere By News Writer

By Harry Ferguson
United Press Foreign News Editor

Balance sheet for the week between good and bad news in the hot and cold wars:

Good News

1. The Russian desire for a cease-fire in Korea seems to be a sincere one and not propaganda. Whether Moscow will insist on conditions which will make a negotiated peace impossible remains to be seen, but Stalin apparently wants to take the first step. The attitude in Washington, Tokyo and Korea has shifted abruptly in the last 48 hours. At first they were skeptical; now they favor the matter further.

2. There still is a slight chance that a solution can be found to the Iranian oil crisis. Premier Mossadegh of Iran sent a letter to President Truman which could be interpreted as meaning the Iranians would welcome America using its good offices to try to settle the controversy with Britain over nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. But the odds remain heavily against a satisfactory agreement.

3. The United States, has agreed to start arming Marshal Tito's Yugoslavian forces with light weapons. The western democracies apparently have become convinced there is an authentic feud on between Tito and Stalin and that we have won a valuable ally, despite the fact the entire structure of the Yugoslavian government is Communist.

Bad News

1. While there is talk of peace in the air the Chinese Communists continue to mass troops and supplies in Korea as though they were preparing for another offensive. Some U.N. leaders fear that if the enemy does attack, it will be their heaviest one of the war. In addition to swarms of infantry, they probably would throw in tanks and planes.

2. South Korea is going to be a stumbling block in any attempt to win a negotiated peace in Korea. The government already has gone on record as demanding that the U.N. Army go all the way to the Manchurian border and eliminate the last vestige of Communist rule in North Korea. Unless that demand can be modified the job of the U.N. negotiators is going to be almost hopeless.

3. The terror behind the iron curtain continues. This week a Hungarian Communist court sentenced Roman Catholic Archbishop Josef Groesz to 15 years imprisonment on a charge that he plotted the overthrow of the government. It came at a time when there have been persistent reports that mass purges and deportations have been started against part of the civilian population of Hungary.

Cleanup Drive Is To Be Held

HOUSTON, June 29 (UP)—A city-wide cleanup campaign will be held next week in an attempt to halt the rapid spread of polio here.

The campaign, suggested by councilman George Marquette and Louie Welch at a meeting called in the city hall last night, was endorsed by the city's leading polio authorities.

It was agreed, however, that the campaign would be directed against all disease as it might not affect the spread of polio at all. Lee McLemore of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, was appointed coordinator of the campaign.

Americans Will Be Released

FRANKFURT, Germany, June 29 (UP)—Czechoslovakia announced today that the pilots of two U. S. Air Force jet fighters which landed by mistake near Prague three weeks ago will be freed and their planes returned.

The U. S. embassy in Prague said a note from the Czech government promised the release of the men and planes, held since June 8. But the Czechs did not say when they would be freed.

U. S. Lt. Luther G. Roland, Hummelton, Pa., and Norwegian Lt. Bjorn Johansen, attached to the American forces under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Training Plan, became lost in their F-84 jets during a routine training flight over Germany June 8. They strayed into Czechoslovakia and managed to land safely at Kbely Airport, near Prague.

The U. S. delivered three notes to the Czech government asking release of the pilots but the Czechs refused to act until an investigation had been completed to see if the landings were "intentional."

Train Plunged Into A Creek

MODE, Ill., June 29 (UP)—The "Meadowlark" streamliner plunged 100 feet into a creek early today, killing two crewmen and injuring at least 20 persons.

The train, operated by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad, was carrying 75 passengers on a southbound run from Chicago to Cypress, Ill.

A 30-foot high earthen fill gave way beneath the train as it approached the trestle over Brush Creek a mile northwest of here.

The fill was weakened by a four inch rainfall during the preceding 24 hours.

As the right-of-way collapsed beneath it, the engine plummeted into the creek and turned over, dragging the baggage car and the train's three coaches down the embankment.

The engine and the mail car were almost completely covered by water.

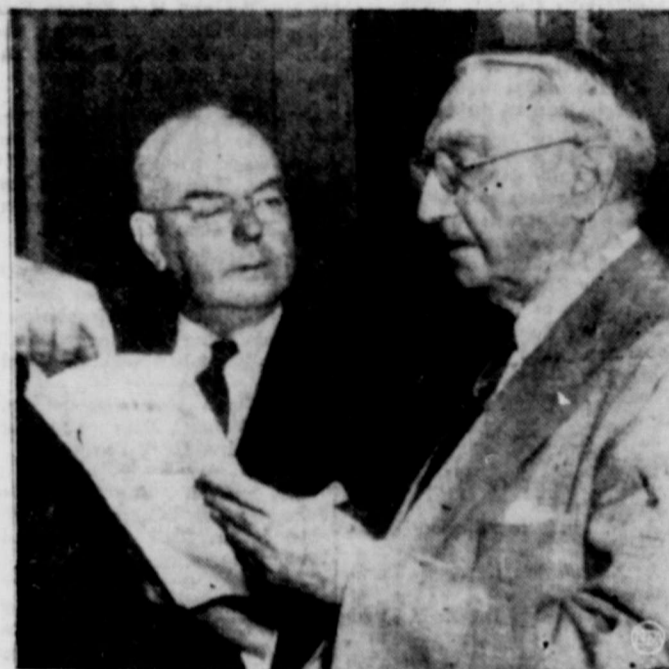

Fireman C. L. Mills, 60, of Salem, Ill., was killed instantly by the impact and died in his cab. Mail clerk Robert Boatright, 48, drowned in the baggage car.

Archer County Land Is Sold

WICHITA FALLS, June 29 (UP)—A group of corporations and individuals today were the owners of some 38,000 acres of Archer County oil properties.

The consideration was in excess of $5,000,000. Luke McCrory, trustee of the L. F. Wilson estate, disclosed that the Maricopa Oil Exploration Corp. headed the purchasing group.

He said the properties which now have 480 producing wells would be controlled by Petrex Oil Corp. of Houston. Petrex is expected to open a Wichita Falls office soon.

WHY HIGHER TAXES—Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder (L) was asked to explain administrations tax program today (June 28) to Senators who are wondering if nation's tax burden is nearing its limit. Here he is shown conferring with Sen. Walter George (D., Ga.) Chairman, Senate Committee on Finance before the hearing. (NEA Telephoto).

Charles Harris Expected To Give Himself Up Today To Face Charge

FAIRFIELD, Ill., June 29 (UP)—Charles (Black Charley) Harris was expected to give himself up today to face charges of machine-gunning two relatives of the notorious Shelton brothers.

Harris, once a henchman of the Sheltons', was accused of spraying bullets at Mrs. Lulu Pennington, 40, sister of the once-powerful gang lords, and her husband, Guy, 34.

A few hours after the machine-gunning yesterday, Louis Sons, 52-year-old laborer, was found shot to death in the home of Guy's brother.

His gun was described as the handgun as tall and armed with two pistols, he said, while Harris is short and stubby.

Both Penningtons were in serious condition at Fairfield Memorial Hospital with four bullet wounds apiece. But doctors expected them to live.

The attack was the newest, and boldest, outbreak of the mysterious feud which has killed three of the Shelton brothers and driven all their relatives except the Penningtons from the area.

Mrs. Pennington said she and her husband were driving through a residential district yesterday when a black car swung in front of them, forcing them to halt.

Officials said Sons had no apparent connection with the Sheltons. But they thought the killer might have mistaken him for one of the hated clan or have meant to kill Pennington's brother, Ogie.

All three Penningtons and an unidentified witness identified Harris as the man who leaped from a black car and fired at the couple, laughing wildly when they pleaded for mercy.

But State's Attorney Gerald Mayberry said another alleged witness, Sam Mercer, told him it "never did anything to you," and Harris laughed wildly.

Harris jumped out, she said, grabbed a drum type machine-gun and yelled "This is where you get it." Then he began firing.

Mrs. Pennington, wounded, crawled from the car and tried to hide in a ditch. She said she cried "I never did anything to you," and Harris laughed wildly.

"I'm going to kill all the Sheltons, just like I did your brothers," she said he shouted. "I'm going to cut your mother up in little pieces and throw her around the county."

When Guy tried to flee, she said, Harris cut him down with a burst.

A warrant charging assault with intent to murder was issued against Harris. He telephone Sheriff Elmer Brown, "I'll come in whenever you want me."

Harris, 55, was accused of being one of the gunmen who killed Big Carl Shelton, leader of the old Shelton gang, from ambush in 1947. He was arrested in the shooting and freed for lack of evidence.

He was also arrested and freed in the shooting of Little Earl Shelton, a nephew of Big Carl.

Bond Election Is Endorsed

FORT WORTH, June 29 (UP)—Endorsement of Chamber of Commerce directors and a citizen's committee was stamped today on a bond election plan, which is called and approved by voters, would provide for issuing of nearly $30,000,000 in bonds.

The groups voted to ask the Fort Worth City Council to call for the election at the earliest possible date.

Majority of the bond money, $23,450,000 would be used to buy right-of-way for the Fort Worth Expressway, and for work on city streets, storm sewers, street signs and lights, and traffic signals.

Change Of Venue Granted In Walker Embezzlement Trial

LAREDO MAN HAS IDEAS

LAREDO, June 29 (UP)—Uranium may some day take the place of petroleum as civilization's most common fuel, according to a Texas oilman who claims to mine more uranium than anyone else in the world.

R. O. Dulaney of Laredo and Fort Worth said more than 60 different uses for uranium already have been discovered and he believes the mineral has a brighter future than oil.

"They are already producing electricity with uranium power at an experimental station in Schenectady, N. Y.," Dulaney said. "It's the greatest power on earth, but the big problem is in harnessing and controlling it, as in the early days of electricity."

Dulaney purchased the uranium interests of F. A. Sifton of Dove Creek, Colo., several months ago and since has stepped up production tenfold.

His firm has 400 mining claims in the southwest corner of Colorado and produces some 3,000 tons of ore per month. Seven mills are in operation in the uranium section, he said.

"It wouldn't surprise me to see submarines and airplanes powered by uranium," Dulaney said. "Airplanes would be able to go around the world six times without refueling. Submarines could remain under the water indefinitely as far as power is concerned."

As to when the fuel will crowd out petroleum, Dulaney said only "not in my lifetime."

Perrin Base Is Changing Over

SHERMAN, June 29 (UP)—Fighter-interceptor pilots will be trained to fly jet planes in the future at Perrin Air Force Base here, it was announced today.

Air training headquarters said the field's mission would be changed from basic training in propeller-type craft to jets in October.

The field was a basic training center during World War II, closing down in 1946. It was reactivated in 1948 and had continued its war-time mission until the announcement today.

When the changeover is made, the field will be an all-weather combat crew flying school.

P. L. Haynes Asks For His Job Back

HOUSTON, June 29 (UP)—P. L. Haynes, fired for making love to a woman who had been in his jail, filed an appeal yesterday with the Civil Service Commission, asking for reinstatement.

Hynes was discharged about two weeks ago after a pretty 30-year-old woman claimed the officer forced her to submit to him under threat he would put her back in jail on a drunk charge if she didn't.

In his appeal, filed by attorney Percy Foreman, Hynes said among other things that he was on a temporary leave of absence at the time of the moonlight incident and therefore not on duty.

Further, he said, the charges against him were so vague and ambiguous that the specification were not enough "to show any discourtesy to the public or any lack of good moral character."

Judge Floyd Jones granted a change of venue in the trial of Horace Walker, Dallas, former Eastland County delinquent tax attorney, on charges of embezzlement at a hearing in the 91st district court which ended Thursday afternoon.

Trial date was set for September 10, in Stephens county. Defense attorneys presented 25 witnesses from the time the hearing started Wednesday afternoon to about 2 p.m. Thursday.

In a surprise move, the state attorneys, Frank Sparks and Elzo Been, did not offer any witnesses or testimony in the hearing.

Judge Jones immediately granted the change of venue to bring to a sudden end the proceedings which threatened to consume the remainder of the week in testimony.

Most of the 25 witnesses called to the stand by defense attorneys Ivan Irwin and Jimmy Martin testified that in their opinion Walker could not get a fair trial in Eastland County because of prejudice built up against him by the large number of suits brought against citizens of the county while he was delinquent tax collector.

Some said that possibly a jury could be picked from the county which would give Walker a fair trial, but that it would be "very hard to do."

Two or three witnesses said that they did not know, when asked if in their opinion Walker could get a fair trial here.

Included in the witnesses called to the stand Thursday were Charlie Coffey, Cisco, Jimmy Harkrider, Eastland; J. B. Johnson, Eastland; H. G. Vermillion, Eastland; Geo. Fields, Abilene, who was an employee of the Tax Collector's office during the time of Walker's contract; Henry Davenport, Ranger; C. E. May, Ranger; Hub Gilbert, Carbon; Richard West, Ranger and Mrs. Mattie Doyle, Eastland.

Davenport, who was a member of the county commission when Walker was awarded the delinquent tax contract, testified that he was in favor of letting Walker have the contract because he believed an out of town man was necessary to do the job properly and to treat all concerned in the same manner.

In reply to attorney Frank Sparks' question, "Do you still believe Walker was the best man for the contract, Henry?" Davenport replied, "Yes."

When questioned as to whether or not he believed Walker could receive a fair trial in the county, Davenport said, "I do not believe he could."

Afternoon testimony lasted only until about 2 p.m. when the defense rested its case. The state passed up the opportunity to present witnesses and Judge Jones gave his decision, stating that the date of trial would be either July 16 or 25.

After a consultation with lawyers for both sides, the date for trial was established as September 10.

Two Killed In Wreck Near Breckenridge

Wesley Norris, 25, Ranger died a few hours ago in a Graham Hospital resulting from a wreck between Graham and Breckenridge last night. Edwin Jones, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen C. Jones, Cisco, and grandson of Mrs. Pearl Downing, Eastland, was killed instantly when the car failed to make a turn. Norris was the husband of the former Miss Jeanette Hamilton of Ranger.

Both men were employed with the Pipkin's Piggly Wiggly store in Graham. Norris has been acting manager of the store and Jones has been butcher for the store for about eight months.

Funeral services for Jones were not completed, but will be held in Cisco under the direction of Thomas Funeral Home.

Jones was the nephew of Mrs. Jewell Garter of Eastland.

Navy Plane Has Crashed Today

KEY WEST, Fla., June 29 (UP)—A twin-engine Navy plane crashed shortly after takeoff at the Naval seaplane base here today killing eight persons.

The Navy announced that only one of the nine persons aboard the Navy patrol bomber, a PBM, survived the accident.

The plane cartwheeled on takeoff and landed upside down in 12 feet of water. The accident occurred at 8:40 a.m. and diving operations were started immediately for the seven men left in the plane.

The Navy reported that two men were rescued but one died shortly after being taken from the water. The only survivor was suffering minor shock and a broken leg.

The Navy reported that three officers and six enlisted men were aboard the plane.

Morrison Will Accept Invite

LONDON, June 29 (UP)—Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison will be "happy" to accept an invitation by the Moscow Communist newspaper Pravda to publish on its first page a statement by him on peace versus war and democracy versus Communism, a spokesman said today.

But Morrison can not guarantee, as Pravda demanded, that the British press will publish with equal prominence a reply by the newspaper, the spokesman said.

The spokesman pointed out that British newspaper, like American ones, are free and not subject to the dictation of the government like those in Russia.

But, the spokesman said, two newspapers already have ordered "the hospitality of their columns" for Pravda's reply.

If that will suit Pravda, Morrison will invite its London correspondent to interview him, foreign office sources said.

The Gold Mannequin

By Myles Connolly
COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Tim Reese, a celebrated veteran, who has kept "Jean Paul" an exclusive gown shop, in business with his designs, has fallen in love with the ex-model Jean Roland, one of the owners of the firm. Leading Tim on as a way to make him create beautiful gowns, Jean actually cares nothing for Tim and her partner Paul Panciera is happy. Then a surgical operation makes Tim able to walk with ease and he goes to New York to surprise Jean. He sees Jean in the window of "The Dress of the Year" at a store where she hears Mr. Panciera take the credit for designing it. Later Jean sees Tim's troubled mind with evidence and presently Tim is planning a shop of his own in partnership with Jean. This idea pleases Jean. When she returns to her partner she asks Mr. Panciera what she can do for him. Mr. Panciera offers Jean for not being eager to help him solve the problem, and Jean replies: "I'm not sure I want it solved."

ness, possibly." He shrugged. "We might even, if you would stay mildly sane, talk over some satisfactory arrangement for the three of us."

She shook her head firmly. "You may be sure I shall not ask him over. You might take it into your head to talk about me."

He smiled his ironic smile. "Could it be it has occurred to you that he and you might make a very profitable combination? Could it ever be avarice, sweet?"

ANGRILY, she turned away from him and went quickly to the passageway that led to the rear of the apartment. She returned almost immediately in a heavy coat.

"Now, now, I wouldn't be so impetuous," he reproved her. "It is good to flee inquiry but I feel the flight would be better made in the morning. Does he know you reside here?"

"What do you think?" She stopped, faced him. "No. It's simply I'm tired of your manners. Your artificiality is getting on my nerves. And, I might add, your conceit is also."

"He is so natural, isn't he, and so modest. One of nature's own gentlemen. How I suffer in comparison."

"You do! And I'm in love with him, if that's what you want to know!" She went swiftly to the door.

"Dear, dear," he sighed, shook his head sadly. "Love. Love at last. You, such a pretty coiled steel mechanism, in love. Truly I live in an age of wonders."

She opened the door. Swiftly he stepped forward, closed it.

"No." He was cool, authoritative. "No. It would hardly be good business for you—or for me, for that matter—if you should be seen tramping through a hotel lobby at this hour of the morning. It could hardly be described as in good taste, to put it mildly. Nor do I think it would enhance your reputation any to have people saying I threw you out." He took her arm, led her back into the room. "I will go, if it will make you any happier."

"It will, considerably."

He shrugged, went to a closet immediately inside of the passageway. In a moment he was back with his hat, coat and gloves.

"Nobody will notice an artificial and concealed poor creature like me at this hour of the night." He went to the door. "And if anyone should notice, it will be said that you threw me out. That will be considered amusing." He opened the door. "I shall be over for coffee in the morning. I am sure there will be much less heat and much more light then."

"I will be leaving in the morning."

"I shall try to be here in time to bid you adieu. Good night, my wonderful one."

He closed the door softly and was gone.

OVER Manhattan, the morning broke gray and cold, but not for Tim Reese. His expectancy of the day awakened him early and his bright memories of the night before kept him awake. The drab day and the plain hotel room were for him golden-hazed with pleasure.

Those dreams he had had in the hospital, the play of many scenes and many curtains, which had stretched so far into the distance, were beginning to be too real now for Tim to be anything but happy.

It was with an exuberance he had not known for years that he climbed out of bed and went to the window to shut it. He turned away from the window and then stopped abruptly. Astounded, he stared at his canes standing against the wall near the bed where he had placed them the night before.

He started at the canes a long moment, finding it difficult to believe their testimony. Then, suddenly, he gave out with a whoop of joy.

He had in his exuberance walked without the canes. He had walked without help for the first time since 1941.

Naughty Girls Leave Island

HOUSTON, June 29 (UP)—Vice squad officers said today they believed Galveston prostitutes are moving to Houston.

They made the statement after a 29-year-old woman, arrested here last night, admitted to officers that she was a Galveston prostitute for six years.

She told detectives L. W. Dwiggins and W. L. Hannatz that she left the island city because "the houses there were closing up and things were really getting tough" because of the investigation by the Texas House Crime Investigating Committee.

The woman declined to say how many other prostitutes have come to Houston from Galveston.

Police Chief L. D. Morrison promised a "hot" reception for the Galveston Red Light District women when they reach Houston.

"It will be a lot hotter for them here than it was or ever will be in Galveston," he said. "If they think they can pack their suitcases and come to Houston they are sadly mistaken."

WORLD TINDER BOX—Waterfront view of the huge Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., plant with workshops, company hospital buildings (right center) in foreground. Iranian officials seized the oil company's headquarters at Abadan after British ordered 130 technicians out of the oil fields. (NEA Telegraph).

DAUL PANCIERA nodded slowly. "I thought I saw that in your eyes." He paused and then went on. "The gentleman tonight, I gather, turned out to be much more attractive than the 'poor gink' I think you called him—the gink up at Cedarbrook." His irony curled his lips ever so slightly. "Am I to assume that this is an infatuation—even love, possibly?" Jean Roland was beginning to be annoyed now. "Assume what you like."

Mr. Panciera sighed. "Pour yourself, poor helpless youth. To break his heart upon a stone. I think—" He spoke carelessly but nonetheless pointedly. "—I think perhaps I shall have a little talk with the young man in the morning. Where is Tim Reese staying?"

"Not far from here, but much too far for you," Jean said sharply.

He smiled tolerantly. "Perhaps, then, you would prefer to ask him over here?"

"What would you talk to him about?"

"He was very relaxed, offhand. Oh, one thing and another. Bus-

ness, possibly." He shrugged. "We might even, if you would stay mildly sane, talk over some satisfactory arrangement for the three of us."

She shook her head firmly. "You may be sure I shall not ask him over. You might take it into your head to talk about me."

He smiled his ironic smile. "Could it be it has occurred to you that he and you might make a very profitable combination? Could it ever be avarice, sweet?"

ANGRILY, she turned away from him and went quickly to the passageway that led to the rear of the apartment. She returned almost immediately in a heavy coat.

"Now, now, I wouldn't be so impetuous," he reproved her. "It is good to flee inquiry but I feel the flight would be better made in the morning. Does he know you reside here?"

"What do you think?" She stopped, faced him. "No. It's simply I'm tired of your manners. Your artificiality is getting on my nerves. And, I might add, your conceit is also."

"He is so natural, isn't he, and so modest. One of nature's own gentlemen. How I suffer in comparison."

"You do! And I'm in love with him, if that's what you want to know!" She went swiftly to the door.

"Dear, dear," he sighed, shook his head sadly. "Love. Love at last. You, such a pretty coiled steel mechanism, in love. Truly I live in an age of wonders."

She opened the door. Swiftly he stepped forward, closed it.

"No." He was cool, authoritative. "No. It would hardly be good business for you—or for me, for that matter—if you should be seen tramping through a hotel lobby at this hour of the morning. It could hardly be described as in good taste, to put it mildly. Nor do I think it would enhance your reputation any to have people saying I threw you out." He took her arm, led her back into the room. "I will go, if it will make you any happier."

"It will, considerably."

He shrugged, went to a closet immediately inside of the passageway. In a moment he was back with his hat, coat and gloves.

"Nobody will notice an artificial and concealed poor creature like me at this hour of the night." He went to the door. "And if anyone should notice, it will be said that you threw me out. That will be considered amusing." He opened the door. "I shall be over for coffee in the morning. I am sure there will be much less heat and much more light then."

"I will be leaving in the morning."

"I shall try to be here in time to bid you adieu. Good night, my wonderful one."

He closed the door softly and was gone.

OVER Manhattan, the morning broke gray and cold, but not for Tim Reese. His expectancy of the day awakened him early and his bright memories of the night before kept him awake. The drab day and the plain hotel room were for him golden-hazed with pleasure.

Those dreams he had had in the hospital, the play of many scenes and many curtains, which had stretched so far into the distance, were beginning to be too real now for Tim to be anything but happy.

It was with an exuberance he had not known for years that he climbed out of bed and went to the window to shut it. He turned away from the window and then stopped abruptly. Astounded, he stared at his canes standing against the wall near the bed where he had placed them the night before.

He started at the canes a long moment, finding it difficult to believe their testimony. Then, suddenly, he gave out with a whoop of joy.

He had in his exuberance walked without the canes. He had walked without help for the first time since 1941.

Beautiful Bemberg Young Designs for Mature Woman

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The cool, slick fabric called bemberg rayon is particularly adaptable to the summertime needs of the mature woman. Because it's a rayon yarn made in fine deniers, it drapes beautifully. It's a fabric that does not wrinkle easily. It gives long service, can be washed and ironed. And it won't fade in the sun, won't lose its lustre in laundering.

Lately, designers have been working youthful lines into clothes for the older woman. This does not mean that they turn up a place of the spaghetti straps used for the younger age groups. There's a cuffed bodice that provides the right ease-up and there is, in addition, a long coat in bemberg navy sheer petal-printed in white. Both the white and the navy of this coat will keep their colors in the tub.

A tailored print (right) in black-and-white bemberg sheer has collar and pockets lined in black taffeta. The bodice buttons asymmetrically; lines of the skirt are slim.

THE REBEL YELL

By Darrell F. Holmes, Jr.

Southern Senators will never forget that day in Washington two years ago when Senator Harry F. Byrd called all of the Southern Senators into his office for a special meeting on states rights which had been called by Senator Russell of Georgia.

The meeting was attended by every Southern Senator, except two, one from North Carolina and one from Florida. Today those two Southern Senators are absent from the United States Senate, turned out by voters of their constituents. So, today, the South is solid again, standing determined to resist the passage of iniquitous and unconstitutional measures which would be so destructive to our Southland.

The Truman Administration has been a perfect example of mass confusion. One time they try to lull the nation into a sense of false security, thus leaving us with a snake under the bed which could rise and strike suddenly. Then they try to scare us to death telling us to be good little pussy-footed men and walk with bowed heads and small voice, less "Uncle Joe" get mad and hurt us. Well, the dirty low down, sneaking, Red, (Censored), stupid, Joe Stalin may be Harry Truman's uncle but he is surer than hell not mine nor that of true Americans who believe in fighting for those things in which they believe.

If Truman had his way we would have already been forced into a state of secession. That is where we will wind up unless we stop the administration's programs of Socialism. We must be able to strike and not recoil at a tough situation. The administration would make us an economic slave pulling an oar in the galley of the state.

Truman in other words is trying to separate all of the 48 states and bring them into one state. Not a

Texans Come Home Form War Land And Capture San Diego

SAN DIEGO Calif., June 28 (UP)—Fighting Leathernecks including 103 Texans who stormed ashore at Inchon took San Diego today without a struggle.

The Marines, 1473 members of the storied First Division, came home from Korea yesterday aboard the Navy transport U. S. S. Sylvester Antalok to be greeted by a doctful of wildly cheering relatives and military and civic officials.

For 760 of the Leathernecks, the San Diego landing was their final invasion. They are reservists, the Marine Corps "Minute-men," who were called back to active duty last July and now are scheduled to return to civilian life.

United States, mind you, but ONE state which would destroy America in about twenty years or less. The Truman party has done nothing but waste and squander public funds, enact foolish legislatures that would aid the Communist and the USSR, and be irresponsible in true politics and foreign policy.

I am a southerner and more proud of that single fact than anything else I own, well ever own, have done, or may do. Perhaps I speak with-sectional bias. Of course, I am more concerned with Texas, and the rest of the South than with New York, Main or Chicago. That is only natural. Nevertheless, I can see beyond our own sectional and geographic problems and look at the nation and want to see it here forever. The nation shall perish unless something is done. Socialism and Communism go hand in hand and Truman walks in the middle. The United Nations idea is good but while it is good in principle it is a big joke in actual working.

There is no retreat from Socialism and Truman is pressuring Congress to adopt everything from the crazy Brannan Farm Plan. Through this plan millions of pounds of food were plowed under ground to keep prices up. That's one Helluva way to try feeding a starving world and Truman seems to have taken it on us to feed that bunch of trash across the drink who have tried to ruin us for years. Guess that's part of his plan. Bleed us dry so his favorite Red Uncle can move in and take over.

Speaking of foreign affairs, we had no business in going to Korea. But now that Texas blood has wet Korean soil, let's not accept any queer deals off of the bottom of the marked deck like the pending peace plan offered us by Russia and urged by the Red Dean called Acheson. Let's find out where we stand before we aren't able to stand.

The consequences of this text are simple. We must stand up firm and say to them, you can not press down upon the brow of a free America. . . the thorny crown of Socialism. You will not crucify the people on a cross of moral wrong.

The remaining veterans were regulars, who look forward to 30-day leaves before being reassigned.

Hundreds of wives and mothers jammed the flag-decked Navy pier to watch the Antalok slip through the morning mists and alongside the dock. A fireboat circled the transport, its hoses spurting welcome geysers of water, and a Marine Corps band struck up the traditional hymn of the Leathernecks.

Maj. Gen. O. P. Smith, commanding officer of Camp Pendleton, Calif., and Maj. Gen. William T. Clement, command officer of the Marine Recruiting Depot here, welcomed the veterans, who then were given $30 pay and liberty.

The suspect had been arrested in Borger, yesterday. He denied any connection with the case although the girl identified him as her attacker. He willingly agreed to undergo the lie detector test.

Police and sheriff's deputies arrested four other suspects but released them after questioning. The inquiry continued.

Warren Reed, 29, said he picked up the men at a south side cafe. They robbed him of $58 after he took them to an address they gave him.

Reed was freed from the luggage compartment by police, who were notified by a passing motorist who became suspicious when he saw the men turn off the cab lights and drive down the street.

THE SCOREBOARD

Oakland's New Fairways Put U. S. Open Field on Defensive

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

DETROIT—(NEA)—Oakland Hills was a championship course before more than 100 traps were added and the fairways pinched in the drive zone.

Some of the fairways narrow down almost to a point. This gives you a rough idea of what the 162 starters are tackling in the 51st United States Open Championship, June 14-16.

Playing the short third in the play-off at Merion a year ago, Ben Hogan faded the ball onto the green.

"Fine shot," commented Joe Dey, Jr., the USGA executive secretary. "Yep, I liked that one," replied Ben, "but this course keeps you on the defensive. You're never ahead of it."

The professional shotmakers will find tricked-up Oakland Hills the same way.

On the tour, the pros simply take off against par, but the Open is another pattern.

It sounds trite, but the most important thing at Oakland Hills, as was the case at Merion, will be the strategic placement of every shot. The pinched fairways check the siege gunners. This layout has been rigged up to reward the champion, not penalize him.

Oakland Hills is bigger and longer than Merion. The famous course at Ardmore, Pa., is tighter. Yet the emphasis at Oakland Hills is on accuracy no matter how long the shot, and the pitch must be to the right part of the green.

HOGAN, Lloyd Mangrum and George Fazio tied with 287 at Merion last trip. Yet, and despite the greater expense and acreage at Oakland Hills, golf's most gifted prognosticators call 286 as the winning figure this time. High-waisted Ralph Guldahl set a new Open record in 1937 with 281 at Oakland Hills, so the experts consider it at least five strokes more difficult as presently laid out.

Fort Worth's wee Iron Man no doubt would have bobbed down in front at Chicago Medinah in 1949, too, had he been able to get there. While still lying on his bed, badly broken as the result of his near-fatal automobile accident, Ben Hogan filed his entry, and requested that it be kept secret.

Now are you going to stop a guy like that?

Suspect Freed After Lie Test

AMARILLO, June 29 (UP)—Potter County Sheriff Paul Gaitner notified his office from Austin today that a lie detector test had cleared a 27-year-old suspect in the rape of a nine-year-old Amarillo girl last Monday night.

The Tulsa, Okla., suspect was taken to Austin last night where he underwent the test at state laboratories of the Department of Public Safety.

The suspect had been arrested in Borger, yesterday. He denied any connection with the case although the girl identified him as her attacker. He willingly agreed to undergo the lie detector test.

Cabbie Locked In Car Trunk

FORT WORTH, June 29 (UP)—A Fort Worth taxicab driver was robbed at knife point early today by two men who then locked their victim in the luggage compartment of his vehicle.

Reed was freed from the luggage compartment by police, who were notified by a passing motorist who became suspicious when he saw the men turn off the cab lights and drive down the street.

Leroy Wilson Dies At 50

NEW YORK, June 29 (UP) — Leroy A. Wilson, 50, who worked his way from a $27.50 a week traffic clerk to a $125,000-a-year post as President of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., died yesterday following a long illness.

He was admitted to Presbyterian Hospital two weeks ago and Cleo F. Craig Wednesday was named acting president.

Wilson succeeded Walter Gifford in 1948 as president of the world's largest corporation, which included the vast Bell Telephone Systems, and at the age of 47, became one of the nation's youngest top executives.

AT&T rewarded him with its highest office for his energetic work as a vice-president in expanding and extending telephone service following World War II.

Dallas Woman Volunteers

HOUSTON, June 29 (UP) — Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff Loyd Frazier said today that a 23-year-old Dallas woman who is visiting here had volunteered to submit to questioning of her whereabouts on the night oil rigger Frank W. West was shot to death.

Frazier said she was the sister-in-law of a 22-year-old Houston man who was released Tuesday night after a lie detector test failed to connect him with the 18-month-old mystery murder.

West died several days after he was shot on Christmas Eve of 1949 following a minor traffic accident.
