RANGER, TEXAS, MONDAY, JANUARY 21, 1952

PRICE FIVE CENTS

SEEN OR HEARD

We have heard comment on the need for two-way radios for the Ranger Police since the recent safe robberies.

We also know that Ranger is going to be the only "one horse" town of any size left in the country within a reasonable time. The Eastland County Sheriff's department has ordered a complete radio station for their cars and the city of Eastland is purchasing a transmitter for the police car which will operate along with the Sheriff's hook-up. Cisco has made their plans known of outfitting the law enforcement officers with radios.

Here in Ranger if the patrol car is out on Highway 80 patrolling for speeders or answering a call anywhere else in town there is no way of contacting them until they come back to the police station or go to a designated spot and call in or leave word they can be found.

Sometimes it takes as long as one hour for the police to reach the scene of a call if they are already out on another report.

If there was a radio in the police car and another in the police station in the City Hall, the person on the desk there could just call out and tell them what was happening some other place. It is the second call was more urgent than the first they could leave and proceed there immediately.

Along with better protection for Ranger by having the patrol car out working all areas of the town during critical periods we would be in contact with the sheriff, Eastland police, Cisco police and the local Highway Patrolmen and they in turn would have all the law enforcement facilities of the state at their disposal.

While the initial cost of installing the radio's here in Ranger has prohibited the purchase of them you have to bear in mind the "earning powers" the unit would give to the police department.

Instead of leaving only long enough to make a quick check of the business and residential areas the officers could patrol all night long; while not checking business houses and residential areas they could be patrolling highway 80. On the main through highway where the radios would pay for themselves in fines from speeding.

In our opinion the addition of radios would be in comparison to doubling the size of the Ranger Police force and adding another vehicle.

This example was cited after the recent robberies here. That had the Ranger police car been equipped with two-way radios and could have gotten in contact with the State Highway Patrol and checked the number of the suspicious car they found near high school the night of the robbery, there would be a much greater chance that those robberies would be solved.

The Sheriff of Eastland County paid for the radios that will be installed there through public donations.

Any opinions or viewpoints any of you may have concerning a radio system for Ranger are welcome in the form of a signed letter that sticks to the facts of the radios leaving out politics or other questions at stake that do not enter into the question.

British Close Iran Consulates

TEHRAN, IRAN, Jan. 21 (UP)—Great Britain yielded to Iranian demands today and closed all its consulates throughout the country.

A British embassy spokesman said nine British consulates were shut, effective this morning. He said these included Belgian consulate sections whose interests were represented by the British consuls at Tabriz and Khorramshahr.

The British acted after the Iranian government rejected last night a British protest against the decision announced by the Iranian government in a note on Jan. 12.

With the rejection, Iran produced six photostats of letters intended to support its charges that British interference in the internal affairs of this country was responsible for the action.

A British embassy officer commenting on the Iranian note said the alleged British consular interference dated back 40 years and most of the persons involved were dead. In addition, he said the charges were only general and not concrete.

However, the British spokesman welcomed Iranian assurance about strengthening friendly relations with Britain. He said he hoped British personnel in Iran would enjoy the same freedom of movement and security that Iran has enjoyed in England.

Meanwhile, Premier Mohammed Mossadegh prepared to answer tomorrow an ultimatum by a fanatical Moslem sect promising his assassination unless he immediately freed its leader.

4-H Club Rally Day, April 12th

The Eastland County 4-H Committee met Saturday, January 19 in the County Commissioners' Courtroom. Sandra Herrick, chairman, presided over the business meeting. There were twenty present at the meeting. April 12 has been set for 4-H Rally Day since the date in December had to be changed.

The Committee members, which are the presidents of the girls' and boys' Club of the county received training on simple parliamentary procedure. Evelyn Bigby, Assis. Home Demonstration Agent and C. V. Whitaker, Assis. County Agent conducted the training meeting.

J. M. Cooper, County Agent was present at the meeting and made pictures of the officers in action.

He Should Have Closed That Door

MERIDIAN, Miss., Jan. 21 (UP)—Herschell Reynolds, who police arrested for illegally transporting whiskey, made just one mistake—he left his car unlocked.

A puzzled pedestrian reported to police he saw a "long parade of people" toting the whiskey from the car and minutes later Reynolds was arrested.

Police said that unidentified citizens made off with $1,000 worth of the whiskey, which is illegal in Mississippi.

Egypt Promises Full Probe Of Death Of Nun During Rioting

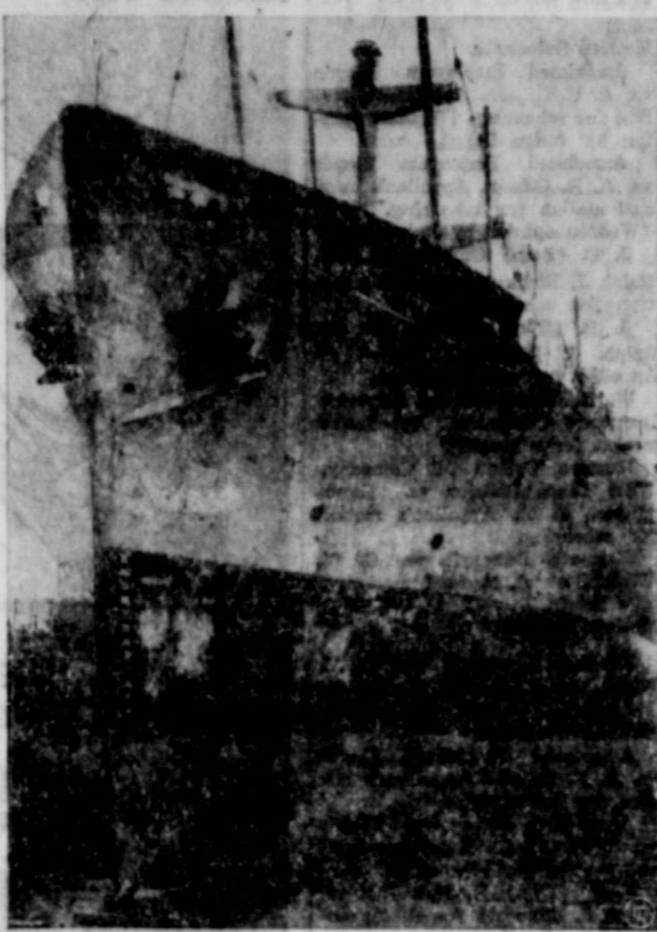

ISMALIA, EGYPT, Jan. (UP)—Egypt has promised a full and immediate investigation into the killing of an American nun during rioting in the Suez Canal Zone town it was announced today.

The U. S. Embassy in Cairo said acting Egyptian Foreign Minister Ibrahim Farag Pasha made the pledge to American Ambassador Jefferson Caffery last night.

The announcement said Caffery had called on Farag to express his "grave concern over the tragic death of Sister Anthony" at the Sisters of Charity (St. Vincent de Paul Society) convent Saturday.

Both the U.S. Embassy and British military headquarters also have launched investigations into the first American death since Egypt began trying to expel British forces from the Canal Zone late last year.

The British and nuns said Egyptian terrorists murdered 52-year-old New York born Sister Anthony when she tried to prevent them from hurling their bombs in the convent grounds. The Egyptians said she was killed

CAPTAIN CARLSEN'S NEW SHIP—This is the freighter, the SS Halanda Victory, that Capt. Henrik Kurt Carlsen will command, replacing the ill-fated Flying Enterprise which he drove valiantly to bring to port in a two-week battle against the sea. As Skipper Carlsen received a hero's ovation in New York City, his new ship was in drydock at Hoboken, N. J., being readied to take to sea.

Dallas Man Dies In Wreck Near Ranger; 3 Accidents Reported

James L. Ott of 5501 Military Drive, Dallas, was killed when his 1949 Chrysler left the highway and overturned on Highway 80, 8.3 miles east of the Ranger city limits Sunday night about 8:30 p.m.

Ott was headed west at the time of the accident; he was believed to be headed for Sweetwater where he had been working. He is a nephew of Homer Paekwood of Ranger.

Two Eastland men who witnessed the accident and who went back to the car as quickly as they could reported that Ott was still alive when they reached his side. He managed to say a few words before passing out.

Morris Funeral Home's ambulance answered the call to the scene of the accident and brought him to a Ranger hospital where he was pronounced dead.

The body was returned to Dallas last night.

Another accident that happened about 6:00 Sunday evening involving a 1949 Chevrolet driven by Miss Donna Carter of 1922 6th Street, Fort Worth occurred about 5.6 miles east of the Ranger city limits.

Miss Carter was thrown clear of the car as it left the highway and overturned twice. She was taken to the Ranger General Hospital where she was examined and released with only minor injuries and bruises.

Her uncle, ex-candidate for governor and VFW Commander, Roger Q. Evans came after Miss Carter and took her on to Fort Worth from Ranger.

A third accident about one mile east of Ranger was reported Sunday night involving a late model Oldsmobile. As far as is known no one was injured seriously in this accident.

Highway Patrolmen Lesley Strawn and Terry Barrett of Eastland investigated the mishaps.

The light rain making the driving conditions hazardous through this section was believed to be one of the main causes of the accidents.

Quarterback Club Meeting Tonight

The Quarterback Club will meet tonight at 7:30 at the Ranger Chamber of Commerce to further plans for their coming intra-squad football banquet.

President E. F. Arterburn stated that the committee appointed last Monday night will make their reports tonight on the progress of the planned banquet.

The name of the speaker and a film to be shown will be announced along with the date of the affair.

President Arterburn remarked that each and everyone is invited to attend the meeting tonight. Some reference by men interested that they have not been invited and therefore did not attend is a misrepresentation of the policy and the present members would like to take this time to extend to each and everyone of you interested in athletics in Ranger an invitation to gather with them at the Chamber of Commerce tonight.

Mrs. Caton Has Heart Attack; Now In Hospital

Mrs. J. H. Caton, of Eastland, is still in a critical condition in a Ranger hospital, following a heart attack early Saturday morning. She was moved to the Ranger hospital early Saturday, and during Sunday her condition seemed to be improved.

However, word today indicates that she spent a very bad night last night. Her husband, Dr. J. H. Caton, remains at her bedside.

But before he returned to London yesterday, newspapers were busy knocking down the speculation. Both the Sunday Dispatch and the Sunday Pictorial reported that the Princess and Dalkeith were only "good friends."

He came south from Scotland the weekend before last to join a house party at Sandringham, the King's country estate, as a guest of the part 21-year-old Margaret and the Royal Family.

At the time reports flew thick and fast that Dalkeith was going to ask the ailing King for the hand of his daughter. Maybe he did.

Reds Throw Allies Back In Attacks

8th ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Jan. 21 (UP)—Pierce Communist fire forced back United Nations riders on the western front today.

The UN raiding patrol first attacked a hill northwest of Yonchon at 2 a.m., only to be thrown back by intense small arms and mortar fire.

After an artillery bombardment, the raiding party again assaulted the hill and this time got close enough to hurl hand grenades at the Reds. Once more, however, the enemy fire drove the Allies back to their own lines.

Slightly farther east, UN units repulsed a probing attack by 15 Communist near Chorwon. Another 15-man probe was thrown back south of Pyongyang on the central front.

On the eastern front, UN patrols fought four engagements with Communist units in bunkers west of the Mundung Valley. In one, the Allies surrounded four bunkers, killed 24 Reds and captured five others in a 20-minute fight.

Bad weather hampered air activity after another day of methodical destruction of Communist installations and supply routes Sunday. Patrolling American Sabrejets also shot down two Communist MIG-15 jet fighters during Sunday.

Flying through snow flurries and dense clouds, Sabrejets exchanged firing passes with 32 Communist jets over northwest Korea today, but no damage was claimed.

Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers cut Communist rail lines in 71 places and destroyed or damaged two railway cars, a railway bridge, a road bridge and two tunnels.

Princess Not Engaged After Earl's Visit

LONDON, Jan. 21 (UP)—The wealthy young Earl of Dalkeith was back today from a week with the Royal Family and everybody wondered whether he had asked King George VI for the hand of Princess Margaret.

However, to all outward appearances red-haired "Johnny" Dalkeith, 28-year-old heir to 500,000 acres and six castles, was still one of England's most eligible bachelors.

He came south from Scotland the weekend before last to join a house party at Sandringham, the King's country estate, as a guest of the part 21-year-old Margaret and the Royal Family.

At the time reports flew thick and fast that Dalkeith was going to ask the ailing King for the hand of his daughter. Maybe he did.

Truman Wants The Social Security Limit Raised

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (UP)—President Truman said today that the Social Security tax should be applied to annual income up to $6000 instead of the present limit of $3600.

In his annual budget message to congress, Mr. Truman said it is possible to increase average primary benefit rates by about $5 a month to $47 "without in any way increasing the contribution rates in present laws."

He said these other "desirable improvements" should be made in the social security laws.

1—Extend social security coverage to members of the Armed Forces, public employees, farmers and other groups not covered by a publicly-sponsored insurance system.

2—Raise the present $3600 limit on taxable earnings "as soon as practicable."

3—make provision for permanent and total disability protection.

Mr. Truman was asked to explain an explanatory news conference how much he proposed to raise the social security taxable wage base. He replied that he hadn't given it much thought, but that it ought to go up to $6000.

Population Of States Growing

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The natural increase in population—excess of births over deaths—in the United States last year was more than 2,400,000, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians estimate. This is close to the all-time record high of 2,431,900 in 1947.

With a moderate gain through immigration, the total increase in population for the year is estimated to exceed 2,650,000.

Since the end of World War II, this country has added about 15,800,000 to its population, which the statisticians point out is about equivalent to the present population of the three Pacific Coast states, or to that of New York State, or to the combined population of the three Scandinavian countries of Sweden, Norway, and Denmark.

"The rapid increase in our population during recent years bears witness to the great vitality of our nation," the statisticians comment.

Jaycees Meet Tonight 7:30

President Charles Milliken of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce announced this morning that there will be a very important meeting of the Jaycees tonight at 7:30.

President Milliken stated that among the important subjects coming before the meeting will be the Tri-County and the local Jaycee sponsored livestock shows.

That year he made his first race for governor, and it was a race to be remembered.

Neff had no machine to back him, and no publicity organization. But he traveled the state from county to county, using an automobile, a buggy, a horse, or any other means of transportation he needed to get where he was going. He even campaigned by air, and became the first Texas politician to do so.

He was elected, and won another race two years later. During his term in the governor's chair, he assured himself everlasting fame by setting up the state public park system, one that has grown to be the largest in the nation and now includes several million acres.

After leaving Baylor, he taught school in Arkansas, earning money to pay for his law education. He graduated from the University of Texas Law School, then returned to Waco to set up his practice.

McLennan County sent him to the legislature, then chose him for County Attorney. During his term as prosecutor he collected fines and fees amounting to almost $25,000 more than his salary.

In 1912 he left the attorney's post, and went into private law practice again. Not until 1921 did

ALLIES DENY BOMBING OF COMMUNIST PEACE CONVOY

By Arnold Dibble
United Press Staff Correspondent
PANMUNJOM, Korea, Jan. 21 (UP)—Korean armistice talks appeared to have reached a dead-end today with both sides refusing to budge.

Only a major policy change by the United Nations or the Communists can end the endurance contest and save the negotiations from final collapse.

Both subcommittees working on a truce agreed to meet again at 11 a.m. tomorrow 19 p.m. today EST, but neither held out any hope for agreement.

Each side served notice in the two subcommittees today that it will not yield on the few main issues blocking an armistice—the UN demands for voluntary repatriation of war prisoners and for a ban on military airfield construction.

A Communist spokesman covering the truce talks told UN correspondents that full-scale fighting is "sure to begin" unless the UN drops its airfield ban demand.

At the same time, the UN denied a Communist charge that Allied planes deliberately bombed and strafed a properly-marked Communist truce delegation convoy on the Pyongyang-Kaesong road last Friday.

It conceded that some such Communist vehicles might have been hit during an Allied air attack at the spot—a bridge 40 miles north of Kaesong. However, the UN said, the four attacking planes did not see any vehicles in the vicinity.

UN liaison officer Col. James C. Murray moreover hinted that the Reds might have been trying to sneak through an extra convoy under protection of certain markers.

A southbound convoy had been spotted at the bridge three hours before the attack, Murray said, and the Allies have agreed to permit only one southbound convoy a day. The Reds said two of the three vehicles in the attacked convoy were destroyed and two men injured.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho delivered to representatives of the International Red Cross a Communist reply to a personal appeal from their president for a conference with North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung.

The contents of the message were not disclosed. However, it was believed Kim repeated the Communist stand that the Reds will not deal with the I.R.C. on war prisoner questions until an armistice has been signed.

MORE PRECIOUS THAN RUBIES

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

THE STORY: Once more Alma, woman jewelry designer, is evaluated by the House of Trumbull. Her husband, Tommy, is in a bad mood. She is a failure. An opinion on her part is given. She is given to someone else because Tommy is "not the caliber" for the position.

ALMA CONROY paused a little before she went on with the bad news—that Tommy wouldn't get the job he wanted at the House.

Tommy had his back to her now and was mixing a drink.

"They want a settled man, someone who is loyal to the House," she tried to explain. "And—oh, Tommy, perhaps Mr. Berg knew that you sometimes drink too much and what with having to handle those precious things when you photographed them. . . I hope not, but I'm afraid that's what he thought. For you are a wonderful photographer—it's such a pity that you always seem to spoil your own chances!"

Tommy looked at her over his shoulder and, surprisingly, laughed.

"Thanks for the lecture!" he said. "Well, let that old fuddy-duddy keep his confounded photography. I've got something better!"

"Where?" She was startled.

"Right at Trumbull's. A big-time job—and you didn't get it for me either, my girl!"

"Tommy! But that's wonderful, dear! What sort of a job?"

"I can't tell you."

"Nonsense—why not?"

He came over, put down his drink and took her face between his long hands. "Do you know that places in Trumbull's class do a lot of confidential business?"

She nodded. "I suppose so. I never thought about it."

"Well, that's all I can tell you. It's why you were out with Bright Muncie!"

Tommy shot her a quick look from under his heavy brows. He looked angry.

"I said, we are not going to discuss details. I don't even want to know that I'm working with Bright. He made it plain. Now you shut up and believe that your husband is on the big time at last!"

"I want to believe it! Oh, Tommy, how I want to believe it—but you've crowded too soon before. This I'd like a little proof."

"Okay—show about this?"

He hung his hat aside and thrust the package he had brought home into her hands. They shook a little as she unwrapped it, feeling numb by the statement he had just made and curiously detached from all reality. Under the tissue paper inside was a stole of gorgeous silver fox. She lifted it out, staring incredulously.

"You must have worked awfully hard for this!" she said uncertainly. Tommy gave a short laugh.

"Easiest money I ever made!" he said. "Try it on—it won't bite! What's more, it's all paid for. From me to you with love."

Under the tissue paper inside was a stole of gorgeous silver fox. She lifted it out, staring incredulously.

SLIDING the soft fur around her shoulders she suddenly wanted to cry. After all these years Tommy had brought her a present like this! Only a man who was making real money would buy such a thing—unless, and spoke eloquently. Perhaps at last the moment for which she had longed so long had really arrived. How she would laugh now at Papa Victor's misgivings about Tommy, at Joe's disgust at his friend's backsliding!

Tommy making good! It justified everything—the fact that she had supported him, given him one fresh start after another, shielded him from the consequences of his own mistakes, built up his courage with flattery and faith.

A slow warmth began to fill her: the youth and strength of which long ago, when she had been a girl, she had sapped her, came flooding into her veins again.

"Tommy," she said chokingly. "My darling, my darling, I knew this would happen some day!"

"That I'd eventually pay off?" She could not endure the taunt, even though it was flung laughingly.

"Oh, Tommy, it isn't that—it's just that I wanted you to be a man I love the present, of course! But you've stood on your own feet to get it is even more precious to me." She looked at him under lowered lids for a long moment, allowing him to see the great welling of tenderness in her eyes.

"Darling," he added softly, "I'm not saying anything except that right now I'm hungry. What happened to that dinner we were going to have?"

Alma sprang up with her usual devoted obedience. "I'll try and rescue it!" she said.

THE next morning Tommy left his apartment at the evening before, breakfasted and set the apartment to rights quickly and efficiently. Then she pulled a large hat that was beautiful but unfashionable down over her rough-cut copper-colored hair and stood for a long moment staring at the mirrored reflection of the full mouth and wide set gray eyes which dominated her face.

It was not, strictly speaking, a beautiful face, and Alma knew it. She was aware too that her body was just an average, gently rounded body looking neither older nor younger than her 26 years. As a rule Alma cared very little about her appearance excepting only that it be cleanly and devoid of the ridiculousness of too current fashion. But today, thinking of Tommy's surprise, she realized for the first time that she bore a certain intangible resemblance to Gran' Bijou.

"A French temperament and a New England conscience!" she said aloud. "That's me, and it's an awful combination!"

She picked up the lovely new fox stole and drew it around her tenderly, caressing it with her cheek. It was going to be a bit of triumph to be able to say Tommy had given it to her, and it was a chilling thought—ought she to mention that fact just yet?

Perhaps not. At least she had better not get generally untidy in the store grapevine had established Tommy's new, secretly important position at the House. This impulse to be careful was not an altogether happy one. And it seemed a little strange and lonely not to walk to work with Tommy as she usually did.

The new midtown building which Trumbull & Co. had recently erected stood gleaming in the midwinter sunshine, and Alma, on the opposite corner, paused for a moment to gaze at it with a sort of obedience to the House as a symbol of integrity. This was a quality which had been bound up in the family many years.

Old Victor Blanchard, her grandfather had been at Trumbull's for 60 years. Her father, Jules Blanchard, had been a journeyman-jeweler at the House until his sudden death from pneumonia when Alma was only three years old. Then, six years ago Papa Victor had brought her to work and presented her to the president of Trumbull's in much the same manner with which a knight of King Arthur's Court might have presented a young aspirant of his own blood to the service of the Round Table.

MR. Muncie did not show how deeply he was touched by the little ceremony, for emotional display had no place in his conception of permissible behavior, and he had concealed his interest in the youngster.

"She is far too young to be any good!" Mr. Muncie had declared, "and we don't take any apprentices any more, Mr. Victor."

"Ah! Miss, she is not an apprentice! Old Victor's voice had been gentle but stubborn. "She is a workman of high skill. I have trained her myself. As for being too young, why! I was only 12 when my father first brought me to Mr. Trumbull at the old lower Broadway establishment, and I too, was already a skilled journeyman. Jules, my son, came to us at Union Square when he had just 19 years. I stake my reputation that you will not regret taking this young woman."

Coffee Essential To Entertainment Of "His" Friends

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

Copyright 1951 by NEA Service, Inc.

Soner or later, every married woman must face the determined and rather defiant announcement by her husband that he is having a couple of friends over for supper. Spoken in a certain tone this clearly means a stag party for a change—with all of the talk concentrated on sports, business, and politics, and none at all touching on fashions or gossip.

If the wife is smart, she'll cater to this occasional declaration of independence with a special kind of entertaining, and thus win the everlasting gratitude of her mate. To make it special, however, the following pointers should be kept in mind.

The first certainty about a man's kind of meal is that it should be kept simple, with plenty of well-seasoned filling food, but no fuss and bother, no dainty dishes, and above all, no fancy frills.

Second, it should be informal, with nothing in the table setting, the menu, or the accommodations to suggest that he private was intended for anything but relaxation and easy conversation—or "bull session" as the boys call it.

Third, the coffee should be brewed to perfection, fresh and strong, with a good reserve supply for as many helpings as the guests might want. The husband's capacity is a known factor, but hearty coffee-drinkers among men have been known to drink a quart or so in a single evening without looking like they've had nearly enough. The menfolk have no exclusive claim on this favorite drink, but coffee after the meal is one of the every-day pleasures practically all of them look forward to—so mark this point well.

Fourth, there should be plenty of ash trays, both on the table and the living room. And book matches for those pipes that never stay lit.

The selection of meat is no problem, but meat there must be. A favorite dish of the husband's will do unless he, himself, suggests something so masculinely sportive as sizzling porterhouse steak—and is willing to foot the bill. Vegetables, salad, and bread will fill out the meal. A simple dessert can be optional, according to the advice of the husband, who will know the exact eating habits of his close friends.

A final tip: After the meal, escape to your room with a graceful excuse, but watch the clock and return within two hours to offer more coffee. You'll be piqued to find the livingroom so filled with tobacco smoke and the men so completely contented in a womanless world. But they'll love you for the thoughtfulness, and that certain Guy will swear to himself that he's married to the cleverest, most understanding girl in the world.

Churchill Will Leave Wed. For England

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (UP)—Winston Churchill stayed indoors at the home of financier Bernard Baruch today to catch up on his homework but he will come out tomorrow for a parade up Broadway to the city hall.

Britain's Prime Minister said he would spend the day reading state papers that have accumulated and greeting friends. Baruch said the visits would be of "no political significance."

Churchill's timetable called for him to leave Baruch's spacious E. 66th Street residence tomorrow at 12:20 p.m. EST for the parade in his honor, the city's second major procession in less than a week.

Capt. Henrik Kurt Carlsen of the Flying Enterprise was honored with a ticker tape parade last Thursday.

The Prime Minister's 10-car motorcade will be joined in lower Manhattan by some 400 policemen and firemen, an Air Force band and a mounted police escort.

After receiving the city's medal of honor from Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, Churchill will give his farewell address to the nation before radio microphones and television cameras.

Churchill will remain in the city as Baruch's guest until his departure to England on the Queen Mary, probably early Wednesday.

Flapping Wings May Be Next In Aviation Field

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 21 (UP)—Bill Stout, who has been a jump ahead of pioneers for close to a half century, now is about to show the world how to build airplanes with flapping wings.

If their wings would flap, like those of birds and insects, private airplanes would need no airports and Mrs. Eeverman would find flying as simple as driving a car. For proof, just watch a dragonfly.

"This is the next step in aviation and the one that all the people can use," says William Bushnell Stout, who built the first all-metal airplane and the historic Ford tri-motor passenger plane of 1925.

Now a youthful 71, Stout reached the point in the last few days where he is ready for wind tunnel tests and engineering work on flapping wings. This follows six years of study and experimentation with copies of bird and insect wings.

"There are 50,000,000 years of precedent in nature," Stout mus-

Some Believe UMT Hurt By Chief Of Staff

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (UP)—Some Congressional supporters of Universal Military Training complained today that the Army has hurt UMT's chances.

They objected to testimony Friday by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, chief of staff, that the Army will recommend that UMT be run on a volunteer basis for at least the first two or three years.

Collins' testimony, pronounced on his contention that there is no real need for enactment of compulsory training legislation at this time.

Both sides were reluctant to be quoted. However, Armed Services Committee Chairman Carl Vinson (D. Ga.), who supports the volunteer plan as the best way to get compulsory UMT started, praised Collins' statement.

Five Teenagers Admit 21 Thrill Burglaries

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 21 (UP)—County officers today held five teenagers who admitted staging 21 "thrill" burglaries in five states in the past two months.

Midwest City Police Chief Tom Denton, whose officers captured the five yesterday, said charges would be filed against them and possibly a sixth youth today. Officers said they confessed to burglaries in Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

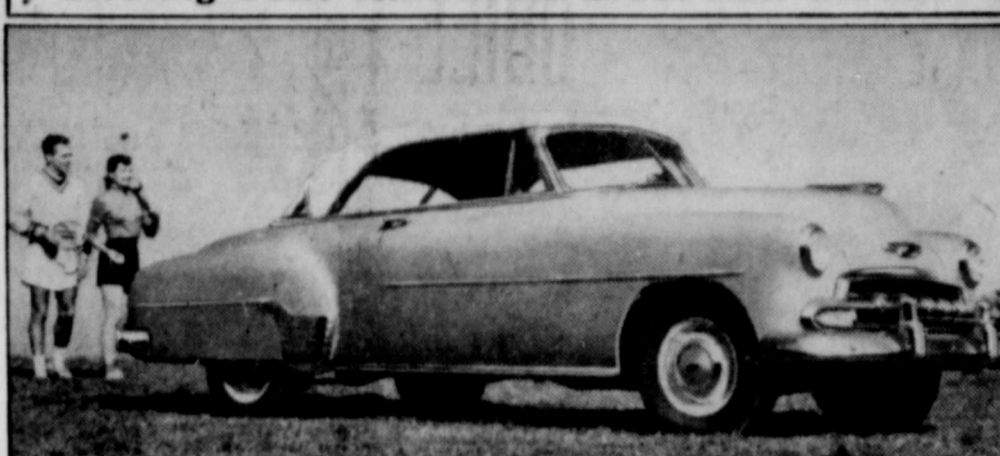

Denton said all the boys are 18 or younger, and two come from "very respectable homes."

Police caught the boys in a grocery store in Midwest City near here yesterday.

Denton said the youths took a nine-day trip to California early this month and admitted burglarizing several firms en route.

Denton said burglaries were staged in Oklahoma City; Lawton, Okla.; Dallas; Albuquerque, N. M.; Flagstaff, Ariz.; and San Bernardino, Calif.

HERE COMES THE GROOM

Looking Back on 1951—

... the inventory shows that the scales weighed out a good portion of the better things for us to enjoy. While the mistakes we made stick out like a sore finger and our failures almost overwhelm us, yet these discouragements are small indeed when compared to the unhappiness and tragic experiences of some who happen to live in other countries.
