Texas Should Have A One-House Non-Partisan Legislature

Texas would do well to follow the example of Nebraska, who, in 1934, installed a unicameral (one-house) legislative body.

The advantages of this type of governing group are numerous and obvious. First, take a look at the costs of our system (two-house, bicameral) and Nebraska's system. In one year the one-house session cost Nebraska taxpayers some $150,000 while in the same year Texans forked over $700,000 to let its Legislators, both Senators and Representatives convene.

But more than the financial consideration is the efficiency with which a unicameral system operates. In Texas we have 31 Senators and 150 Representatives, a total of 181 legislators. Nebraska has 43, and from these representative sections of the state, elected by non-partisan votes. This one-house, fewer-legislator system makes it much harder for buck-passing and heavy lobbying.

For instance, you may ask your representative how he plans to vote on a controversial issue when he's up for election. He may answer that he will vote as you like for such is our democratic principal. The voters may want an affirmative vote on say, the tax on natural gas. But when the representative votes for and gets the bill to the senate, it is killed because of high-pressure oil-interest lobbying. The next year voters put pressure on the Senate, thinking they'll surely get the bill passed during the next scheduled session. But the lobbying pressure is now on House members and the bill is killed without ever reaching Senate Chambers. And so it goes, on and on. Red tape, Legislative bickering and long formalities make the Texas legislature one of the many unwieldy governing bodies in the nation.

Walter D. Hines once said, "The lack of definite individual responsibility in our form of government is a fundamental cause of the evils of which the people complain."

In the uni-cameral system, the glaring eye of public sentiment can be focused on the legislators to force them to take action on publicly-approved measures. The blame can't be shifted so readily in this system.

Then too, is the committee problem. House and Senate committees in Texas are somewhat notorious for their duplication of activities, which in turn cost money. But these separate committees would be eliminated in the one-house system and should function better than House-senate joint committees.

We believe the business of governing and law-making would be streamlined by the unicameral system, much as streamlining a mechanical conveyance. By cutting down the size and rounding the corners the legislature could accomplish much more in a given time and would free Texas of costly special sessions.

A Constitutional revision would be necessary to bring about this change. And it would take an educated public to vote these changes. There would be much opposition as all changes bring opposition, but it would surely be worthwhile. The uni-cameral system has its disadvantages but not near as many as the bicameral system. Nebraska is apparently satisfied with their law-making body. They haven't changed since its initiation in 1934.

The Texas Department of Public Safety... A Great State Organization

About this time every year the accident curve turns upward with everyone taking vacations and in general doing more driving than during the winter months. And about this time various organizations over the country begin stressing safety to try to hold down highway accidents. But by far the most important is the year-around agency hired to do the job, The Texas Department of Public Safety.

Insurance figures reveal that Mr. Average Driver will be involved in an accident every four years. With something like four million drivers on Texas roads the Texas Department of Public Safety has a whale of a job keeping order. But keep order it does and statistics will prove this point. It would be impossible to keep Texas highways absolutely safe but the department has made great advancement toward this ideal. For instance, in 1937, 15 deaths for every one hundred million vehicle miles were reported. By 1949 the deaths were only half as many over the same distance.

But the department can't do anything about variable human nature. It can't apprehend all drunken drivers, those who won't dim their lights, speedsters and the multitude of others responsible for accidents.

As might be expected drinking drivers come in for the lion's share of fatal accidents. Their percentage ranges around 45 per cent. The remaining 55 per cent must be divided among sleepy drivers, speedsters and the careless.

Regardless of the motorist's feeling in the matter, mechanical failures comprise less than 10 per cent of total accidents each year. This puts the proverbial monkey on the driver's back because nine times out of ten an accident will be caused by him and him alone.

Only eight deathless days were reported in 1949 by the Safety Department. And in December of 1950, 303 persons lost their lives in accidents in the state to set an all-time high for one month. The economic loss of that month was reported as $12,226,013. Total economic loss for year in rural accidents equaled $53,744,475.

The largest number of reported accidents are caused by drivers in the 20-24 age group. The accident tendency then falls off with increased age.

The State Highway Department Accident statistics show that stricter laws must be enforced upon Texas citizens to curb the prevailing high death rate. No logical excuse can be given for an accident and more often than not the cause can be attributed to plain carelessness. We have the highways which, though not perfect, are among the best in the nation. We have sane law enforcement and rules, when adhered to, will result in safe driving.

Sure Cure for Inflation...

The Republicans have been consistent in giving lip opposition to high prices while fighting bitterly against any positive steps advocated by the Democratic Party to curb inflation, but rarely have the Republicans been clear in describing their own anti-inflation program.

However, the current Republican stand on curbing inflation has been stated by one of that party's leaders, Senator Homer Capehart of Indiana. Said the Senator:

"The American people can stop inflation any time they want to. All they have to do is quit buying."

This program has the virtue of simplicity, and can be upheld by experience. It is the program that was tried during the Hoover Administration and nobody can claim that 1932 was a year of inflation.

Answer to Question No. 1:

1. Because of the improvement in medical treatment given at the aid stations in World War II, the effects of shock, loss of blood and infection were greatly counteracted. After that, the patient stood an excellent chance of recovery when he reached a hospital. According to the medical military record, 96 out of 100 men who reached hospitals were saved. In World War I, when a lower percentage of wounded reached hospitals, the number was 89 out of 100.

Answer to Question No. 2:

2. Yes, in infancy. When contracted at school age the disease is less dangerous if proper medical care is given. Measles, since it takes epidemic form, runs in cycles with relatively few cases for several years and great number of cases in other years. For example in 1947 there were 221,100 cases whereas in 1949 there were 620,900 cases.

Answer to Question No. 3:

3. A 36-mile hike will take off just one pound of fat. In addition, the hiker would lose several pounds of water, which he would replace rapidly. Obviously, walking is not much of a solution for overweight. The age-old answer remains. Just don't eat so much of the wrong foods.

DANIEL ENDS MACEO GAMBLING WIRE SERVICE

Attorney General Price Daniel, left, obtains a court order from District Judge Jack Roberts of Austin stopping the Maceo gambling syndicate of Galveston from using telephone wires and equipment to bring horse race gambling information into Texas.

House Committee Lowers Boom On Organized Crime and Gambling in Texas

AUSTIN—The past week witnessed Texas' biggest crackdown on gambling and organized crime. The House Crime Investigating Committee held closed hearings which blew the lid off secrets of the Maceo gambling syndicate in Galveston and revealed an annual gross income in excess of $3,000,000 from slot machines, tip books, dice tables, roulette, horse race betting, and related businesses. A public hearing is tentatively scheduled for June 25.

Attorney General Price Daniel, who helped the committee in its investigation, followed through with a law suit against the 16 Maceo partners, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company and Southwestern Associated Telephone Company, to stop horse race gambling information from being brought into Texas over telephone wires.

District Judge Jack Roberts of Austin granted Daniel's request for a temporary restraining order and set the hearing for a temporary injunction for June 18.

By 3 o'clock on the afternoon of filing suit the five elaborate Maceo gambling parlors had closed down because their wire service had been stopped by the court's order.

Daniel's suit was similar to the one he brought in 1949 against Western Union Telegraph Company and the Texas "front" for Continental Press which resulted in the first state-wide injunction in the country against using telegraph wires for transmission of gambling information.

Daniel alleged that the gambling information was being assembled from race tracks throughout the nation by "a so-called news service known as the Continental Press." He said "this organization is substantially influenced in a some places controlled by the Capone Crime Syndicate which steals or otherwise obtains racing information from most tracks in violation of state laws."

Daniel said his assistants and investigators had been working on the case for months, but that they had withheld action until the House Crime Investigating Committee could complete their preliminary hearings on the Maceo operations. He said the committee hearings had been very helpful in completing certain phases of the case.

Every time we publish a picture of a man standing up in a boat, a lot of people write and indignantly denounce such a practice, saying that you should never stand up in a boat.

These sincere people overlook a number of good reasons why there are occasions when standing in a boat is almost a necessity. Willard Crandall, our boating editor says: "Standing in a boat is something to be universally condemned, as is rocking a boat. Even with canoes there are occasions when it is not only safe but perfectly sensible to stand. Commercial fishermen often stand up in their narrow dories to pull in nets, often in rough water. The dugout canoe of the Seminole Indian in Florida rolls more easily than a birch-bark canoe. And the birch-bark canoe is less steady than today's factory-designed canoes. Still, the Seminoles stand and pole their dugouts."

Here's angling editor Jason Lucas' opinion on the subject: "I've been in and around boats all my life and I've never heard of one nonintoxicated fisherman being drowned because of standing in a boat. Fact is, most experienced fishermen do, habitually or occasionally, stand in a boat. One may do it to stretch his legs or save turning the boat to cast behind him. There's no particular reason why he shouldn't stand—since he knows when it is safe to do so. If the boat is narrow and unstable, he probably won't stand. But if the boat is wide in the beam and stable, a person of very moderate experience should be safe in standing in it."

Naturally, circumstances vary. Only a foolish person would stand in an overloaded boat, for example. But, as the Outboard Boating Club of America advises, there are even more important things to worry about—such as heeding weather signs and always stepping into a boat rather than jumping into it.

"A good boatman piloting a good boat under good conditions could seldom come into trouble by standing up in a boat," says James G. Hilderbrand, publicity director of the Outboard Boating Club.

When we asked a veteran angler what he thought of the new fluorescent lures, he replied that they are better than plain ones—sometimes. Other times they weren't as good as regular ones.

This, of course, is what experienced fishermen had expected. But some of us were more gullible. There were great expectations based on the fallacious idea that the more visible a lure, the more irresistible to fish. But veterans know this isn't so. Sometimes bright gaudy ones are the best; sometimes the dull inconspicuous ones produce fish.

It was suggested that fluorescent lures might reflect certain rays visible to fish but not to man. However, some fairly recent experiments by English biologists seem to prove that fish see the same wave lengths we do. These biologists say that fish see colors and even shades exactly as humans. This isn't so surprising since we have much the same eye structure as theirs.

Angling editor Jay Lucas suggests we must consider this point: What normal fish foods are fluorescent to make fluorescent lures seem natural to fish? However, we know that most fish at all times, and the most choosy at most times, don't seem to give a darn what they swallow. All a fish usually asks that the thing be of suitable size and seem alive.

Should one use fluorescents? So far as our two chief species of game fish—bass and trout—are concerned, it seems highly unlikely that we'll ever find a lure that will be effective at all times. Both of these fish are extremely changeable in their notions of what they want, far more so than any other game fish. Even the musky, most temperamental of the lot, is unpredictable only as to when he'll strike, not as to what he'll strike.

What does all this add up to? To precisely what most of us had expected right from the start: You should by all means have some fluorescent flies or plugs along to try when the light is dull. But it would be foolish to rely on them at all times.

Summer Is Rough Time For Babies Says Health Officer

"Being a baby is a real hazard in either winter or summer but much can be done to avoid or at least lessen some of these hazards that are associated with hot summer days," declared Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. Summer is the season in which death from intestinal disorders has in the past exacted its greatest toll.

"To guard the infant against such danger, care must be taken that his food, especially milk is pure and kept safe. If there is any uncertainty concerning the water supply, the baby should drink only water which has been boiled and cooled and kept covered. The baby and all his food must be protected against flies. "Baby himself and all the things which he comes in contact should be kept as clean as possible. Plenty of fresh air and sunshine are essential for the best health of the infant. The baby's body should be gradually exposed to the direct rays of the sun;

begin with exposure of only part of the skin surface for three to five minutes and slowly increase the area of skin and time once or twice daily.

"Care must be taken to keep the baby free from prickly heat by keeping the skin clean and not too warmly dressed or covered. If the baby is comfortable, he will get his usual amount of sleep and will eat and develop normally. In case the child shows symptoms of any abnormal conditions, the family physician should be consulted at once."

Of the possible thousand points, the Dimmitt youths collected 840 to place the Bible School in the BB classification.

The children were kept busy with handiwork projects and bible studies. Examples of the handiwork were exhibited at the Commencement exercises.

Two hundred and sixty-three children enrolled in the school this year with an average attendance of 247. Mrs. Noel Gollehon acted as principal with some 55 young men and women workers. In all, $35 was collected for the Baptist Children's Mission Home at Round Rock, Texas.

CROP Pictures To Be Shown At Methodist Church

Sunday night at 8 p.m. there will be shown at the First Methodist Church two motion sound pictures showing the activities of the Christian Rural Overseas Program at work in war torn countries. There will be no charge for the picture and all who wish to see this relief work actually going on are invited to see these pictures "Seeds of Destiny" and "Operation Mercy" at 8 P.M. Sunday, June 17.

The Christian Rural Overseas Program is a program of relief work being carried on in war torn countries of the world to rehabilitate the people and living conditions in rural areas of these countries. It is done by sending supplies of food, medicine, clothing, seeds, and livestock. All of these supplies are administered by church groups with a minimum of expense so that more of that given for this relief actually gets to those who need it than through any other agency administering to the needy.

Farmers, Here Are 4 REASONS

Why You Should Investigate

CALFIDE 104

1. 'CALFIDE 104' NEUTRALIZES ALKALI

Alkali is the most dangerous enemy to food minerals in your soil. Due to special processing "CALFIDE 104" neutralizes the alkali in soil and renders its effects harmless to plant life and the natural minerals in the soil. Released of the necessity to combat the detrimental effect of alkali, by its own natural elements, the plant will grow healthier.

2. 'CALFIDE 104' EMULSIFIES THE SOIL

Alkali and other minerals prevalent in the soils of this area create what is known as "locked soil" condition. By natural chemical reaction "CALFIDE 104" loosens the soil to allow the plant to grow more readily and the soil to receive water and natural hydrogen more readily. By so doing, emulsifying the soil by mechanical methods is reduced to a minimum.

3. 'CALFIDE 104' INCREASES CROP YIELD

By preparing the soil to release the natural minerals in it to the plant life, "CALFIDE 104" stimulates plant growth and thereby increases plant production. "CALFIDE 104" is not a fertilizer but a soil conditioner that prepares the soil in such a manner that the plant can grow naturally without having to combat minerals that are detrimental to plant life.

4. 'CALFIDE 104' HELPS CROPS REPEL INSECTS

"CALFIDE 104" is NOT an insecticide. HOWEVER, by assisting the growth of normally healthy plants it aids in the repelling of plant insects. Plant feeding insects, like animal feeding insects, do not feed on healthy plant, but on diseased or weakened ones. A plant that is produced under normally healthy conditions repels insects by natural means. Actual tests show that insect festation is always at a minimum on plants grown on soil conditioned with "CALFIDE 104".

Health Talks . . .

When you approach a highway sign saying "Road repairs ahead, drive slowly," you automatically reduce your speed and watch out for hazards which may be present along the route. Sometimes you find only minor repairs going on, sometimes you find the going really rough; but if the hazards along that highway are too great for travel even at reduced terms, the sign will be "Detour," and you find yourself on an auxiliary road until the highway is in sufficiently good shape for regular traffic again.

In medical terms, rheumatic fever fits more closely, perhaps, than any other infectious disease into the "proceed with caution" category of road repairs. Most other diseases due to infectious agents will immediately send you on a detour, sometimes brief and sometimes crooked and rough, but rheumatic fever may assume so many different manifestations, affecting so many different parts of the body that the road ahead isn't always clear.

At best, rheumatic fever means a long period of careful watching for hazards that may suddenly appear. One slight attack never means that the germ has been whipped; it only means the germ or germs may come back at any time with renewed fervor.

Medical science has not yet discovered what causes rheumatic fever, the disease that strikes most often at 4 to 15-year-olds but may appear at practically any age. There are many theories as to the possible onset of the first attack of the disease but none hold true in the majority of cases and research goes on to try to unravel the secret.

After the first attack, the one or many following attacks of the disease seem to be linked with streptococcal infections in the nose and throat, so that only recently doctors have found in many cases they can prevent those infections by constant dosage with sulfa drugs and avoid the second and third attacks. Such is the nature of the disease that the damage it can do seems to become greater with each attack.

If rheumatic fever could be easily recognized, it wouldn't be possible for the disease to do so much harm in the first place. Growing pains such as aching joints are supposedly the most common symptom of rheumatic fever, but even this signal of disease is not always present. The aches are present, shifting from different parts of the body in what is called a migratory arthritis, when the millions of strings that hold you together are affected by the spread of the disease through the body. These strings, such as ligaments and tendons and the like, swell and fail to function properly because the fluids that keep them pliable change their natural state into a harder, stringy mass. Sometimes these "masses" can be seen as little knobs around the joints that hurt; they last a few days and then disappear, possibly showing up again in another joint that is painful.

Though the pain of such affected joints may be quite intense it is not the joints which are permanently damaged as a result of the acute attacks of rheumatic fever; the heart is the most likely spot to be damaged permanently.

Practically any part of that very complex heart organ may be affected, but most often the damage is inside the heart, to the valves which shut off the flow of blood through the chambers of the heart. The name, rheumatic endocarditis, means an inflammation of the inside of the heart due to rheumatic fever.

The usual pattern of heart damage is something like this:

The left side of the heart, which receives blood purified by the lungs, has two trap doors which close off as the two chambers of the left side of the heart are filled. When the first chamber sends the blood into the second part, one of the trap doors closes and shuts off the supply. In rheumatic fever, there are frequently long-stemmed warts which develop on the edges of those trap doors which keep them from closing properly, permitting the blood to still seep through into the other chamber. Your doctor can hear the sound of that leak of blood, he knows which trap doors are most likely to be affected, and from other signs of chances in the body he can tell whether it was due to rheumatic fever or to something else.

As the acute phase of rheumatic fever disappears, those wart-like growths usually shrink into that trap door, permanently changing the shape of the flap and throwing it out of shape. With new attacks of the disease, the flap gets more and more out of shape until it may become so deformed as to not function at all.

That is one of the pictures of rheumatic fever though there are many other paths it may cut and create serious damage. Since it may progress through the body so slowly that its presence is not made evident, the regular health checkup for all youngsters should by all means be continued through teen age. A doctor who checks your child regularly will know if any change in the child may be a signal of rheumatic fever.

The United States and the British Empire are the only major countries without universal military training.

Wedding Anniversary Couple Celebrate Golden

Nazareth parish has been in a festive mood during the past week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Huseman upon the occasion of their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Mrs. Huseman was born in Shererville, Ind., in 1881 and Mr. Huseman was born in Lowell, Ind., in 1878. Both their families later moved to Nebraska. There the two young people met and were married in Lindsay in 1901. In 1918 they decided to come to Texas and settled in Nazareth where they have been engaged in farming since. They have also been active members of their church and community activities since settling in Holy Family Parish.

The celebrations started during the evening of June 3. Receiving guests with Mr. and Mrs. Huseman was their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Schulte. The couple received many lovely and beautiful gifts from their large group of relatives and friends. Out-of-town relatives and friends present at their anniversary party were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Klemm, Tucumcari, N. M.; Mr. and Mrs. John Albracht and son, John, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Albracht and son, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Albracht and daughter, Gail; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Albracht and sons; Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Albracht; Mr. and Mrs. Banner, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kreisgauer of Hereford; and Mrs. Pauline Huseman and son, Ralph; Mr. and Mrs. Arch Johnson and family; and Mr. and Mrs. George Uselding and family of Happy.

On the actual day of their wedding, June 5, the couple attended a Mass read for them by the pastor, Father Peter Morsch. Mass servers were Alvin Klemm and Edwin Huseman. Preceding the Mass, the couple went to the foot of the altar to receive a special blessing given to couples on their wedding anniversaries.

Of the ten children born to the couple, only Mrs. Clarence Schulte is still living. They also have twenty-one grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Knights Hold Election

The Knights of Columbus met in order to hold an election of officers during the evening of May 5. Those newly elected were Ernest Brockman, grand knight; Vic Kern, Deputy grand knight; Urban Ball, recording secretary; Junior Hochstein, treasurer; Arnold Brockman, chancellor; Ray Schulte, advocate; Frank Drerup, outer sentinel; James Acker, inner sentinel, and Greg Hoelting, trustee.

Mrs. J. E. Hyland and son, Gerald of Fort Worth are visiting in Nazareth with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Braddock and Mr. and Mrs. James Schwallier.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Venhaus of Happy visited with relatives here Sunday.

The Girls' Softball Team will play their first game of the season in Umberger June 10 with the girls there.

A large group of young people from Nazareth attended the invitational semi-formal dance at Happy sponsored by the youth club there on June 8.

Miss Sophie Roessler feels that she is lucky since she was right in the midst of the tornado in White Deer last week and came out alive to tell about it. She was visiting with friends there at the time. They saw the funnel coming and tried to escape it in a car. When they saw they could not, they abandoned the car and got in a storm cellar just as the storm struck. She was in White Deer four years ago when the terrific tornado that did so much damage started there. She is beginning to become tornado conscious when storms near her.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Schulte, Mrs. Frank Schulte, Walter and Althea are going to Hartington, Nebr., to attend the wedding of one of Mrs. Frank Schulte's nieces.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Conrad have announced the birth of an infant daughter on June 8.

Mrs. Leonard Wilhelm has been seriously ill in the Plains Memorial Hospital. But at this writing she is reported as improving.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stork have received word that two of their daughters are ill in hospitals. Mrs. Virgil Pohlmeier, who lives in Tulia, has been in the hospital suffering an attack of acute appendicitis. Miss Lola Jean Stork, who is employed in Plainview, has undergone an appendectomy for the same reason.

Sunday guests of Jerri Mac and Bryce Dowell were Jerelle Preston and O. C. Rentfro.

A group of friends surprised Mrs. Dick Greathouse on her birthday, June 1st. They were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Preston, Genelle and Pat; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Dowell, Brice and Jerri Mac; Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Arnold, Carol and Lynda.

Arnold, Carol and Lynda.

Earl Greathouse is home after receiving his B.A. degree from Wayland College, Plainview. He is now awaiting his induction into the Navy around the 26th of June.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Burch went to Memphis Sunday.

Hail fell in our community Sunday afternoon. The worst damage was on cotton. Some is completely gone. It seems it is heavier in spots. It damaged some of the wheat.

Hail was light on the Dick Greathouse farm and no noticeable damage was done on the wheat, and we believe this was the average of the community. There is one planting to be done because of bugs, worms and hail; some just didn't come up except in a few spots. But if we had everything too easy, we'd probably not appreciate our blessing. It surely does look good to see the lakes full of water again.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Mears and Charlotte are at Abilene to be near a niece who is undergoing a surgery at the Hendrix Children's Hospital, as a result of polio.

Peggy Messenger spent Wednesday night with Fayrene Greathouse.
