Play To Child Is As Work To His Parents

"Playmate, come out and play with me" is a song which has been chanted by generations of children.

"Play" in regard to children is a word somewhat lacking in meaning; it is not a lot of foolishness, as many might believe. A child's play is his job just as surely as his father's job is farming or engineering. The way a child learns to play will mark him for the rest of his life. Seeing how he reacts to his playmates and how they react to him is almost life looking into a crystal ball to see how he will fit with his co-workers in jobs and clubs when he grows up. A boy who lives in a world all his own and doesn't learn the lesson of give-and-take can't be expected to turn into a well-rounded sort of adult.

Not only his activities with others affects a child; what he learns to do by himself will show up in the long run. In later childhood (from 6 to 12 years of age) when a boy begins to make model airplanes or a girl starts to fasten clothes, the parents should encourage these talents. Not only does a child need to have the right equipment and learn how to use it, he needs the moral support of his elders.

Speaking of moral support, family hobbies can be a lot of fun. Seven-year-old Sue will be more inclined to practice her piano lessons if mother can play the "hard-part" in a four-handed duet. And even if father sings off-key, she'll think there's nothing quite so nice as a family sing-song.

In dad's workshop Sonny might make a toy boat with a little help from dad who takes a little time out from building a chair. On the other hand, mother might call on dad and Sonny to steady a board she is sawing for a coffee table. All three will benefit from the experience of sharing a hobby.

Women learn to set aside time or a hobby, they are more likely to strike a good balance between

A&M Creates New Agricultural Publicity Office

COLLEGE STATION, (Sp.)—Creation of an Agricultural Information Office for the Texas A&M College System was announced Wednesday by Chancellor Gibb Gilchrist.

The new office will take over the duties and facilities of the Editorial Office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Publications Office of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, with the mailing rooms of both services and informational work of the School of Agriculture of the Texas A&M College.

Tad Moses, editor of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, was named head of the new service with the title agricultural editor.

The old Horse Barn, a landmark on the A&M College campus, is being renovated to house the Agricultural Information Office. Occupancy is expected in about 90 days. Consolidation of personnel and facilities will take place at that time, Chancellor Gilchrist said.

Moses has been in editorial work since 1924 and Station editor since 1945. A former student of Texas A&M College, he returned here in 1943 as assistant director of information. From 1924 until 1943, he was assistant editor and editor of The Cattle, published in Fort Worth by the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Aug. 28 (UP)—A 29-year-old former Navy diver sought a backer Thursday for his planned undersea walk across the English Channel. Bill Abernathy said he wants to do it "to show people the value of deep sea diving."

work and play when they grow into adulthood. Even if an adult never had a hobby when he was a child, it's never too late for him to learn. Take the case of Grandma Moses, the famous artist whose talent was not discovered until she was in her late 70's. A late start certainly didn't seem to stop her.

22 Injured In Bus And Truck Accident Wed.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 28 (UP)—Twenty-two persons were injured—four critically and one seriously—Wednesday when a speeding gasoline transport crashed into a Los Angeles-bound bus on U. S. 66 near here.

The rest of the 37 passengers aboard the Continental Trailways bus were shaken up but uninjured and of the 18 others injured, six were hospitalized at Sandia Special Weapons Base here and the rest released after first aid treatment.

Authorities said a major disaster, such as the bus accident that killed 28 persons near Waco, Tex., three weeks ago, was averted only because the gasoline transport was empty.

New Mexico state police blamed "excessive speed" of the truck for the accident, saying the driver of the bus, C. L. Ripple, 37, Albuquerque, had pulled off the highway in an effort to avoid the oncoming transport, which hit a wet spot on the pavement and smashed into the left side of the bus. B. C. Harrison, 27, Roswell, N.

M., driver of the truck, was seriously injured in the collision. On the critical list at Sandia base hospital were three sailors—Seaman Recruit William J. Farrell, Seaman Recruit Donald E. Jones and Seaman Apprentice Lawrence Pusch, all of San Diego, Calif., naval training station—and Delmer H. Hall, San Pedro, Calif., a shipyard worker.

All of the injured were brought to Sandia base or Albuquerque hospitals. A second bus was sent to the accident scene to take the injured passengers on to Los Angeles.

Others who were hospitalized but whose conditions were not considered serious were:

Jerry Martin, Piercetown, Ark.; Mrs. Harriet M. Robinson, Los Angeles; Mrs. Mary Flynn, Eagle Mountain, Calif.; Donald Steele, Colton, Calif.; and Mrs. Ethel Rhynes, residence not listed.

Jap Premier Call Election

TOKYO, Aug. 28 (UP)—Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida dissolved the diet Thursday and called for new general elections

Oct. 1, the first to be held in an independent Japan since the end of the occupation.

The dissolution came in response to demands from opposition parties, the press and members of Yoshida's own liberal party.

These groups pointed out that the present government and diet were elected three and one half years ago under the Allied occupation and do not now represent the will of the Japanese people.

Yoshida said he will seek reelection and again appeal to the voters for a chance to head a new government.

War-time political and military figures, who were purged from public life by the occupation, will be running for the first time in the October elections. They will oppose new leaders who have risen to prominence during the period of the occupation.

Yoshida won the respect of occupation leaders for the way in which he guided Japan through the stormy days of Red terrorism in 1949, the peace treaty and the transition to independence.

UN Planes Strafe And Bomb Red Troops, Supply

By Warren Franklin SEUL, Korea, Aug. 28 (UP)—United Nations warplanes swarmed over North Korea from the battline to the Yalu River Thursday, blasting Communist troop and supply concentrations with bullets and bombs and search in vain for enemy MIG-15 jets.

F-80 Shooting Stars and F-84 Thunderjets destroyed 49 buildings in a Communist troop area the attack.

Propeller-driven F-51 Mustangs near Yonan on the Haeju peninsula.

Marine Pantherjets left two supply targets burning near Shion just north of the battline. Pilots reported large secondary explosions and numerous fires after scored three hits on fuel storage tanks near Haeju on the 38th parallel.

F-86 Sabrejets patrolled MIG alley up to the Yalu but for the sixth straight day sighted none of the Russian-built planes.

Ground Action Light Ground action slowed to a near stop. UN patrols engaged Communist units up to a platoon in strength.

Navy planes from three American carriers braved the thickest anti-aircraft fire of the Korean war Wednesday to blast two important North Korean power plants with 2,000-pound bombs.

It was one of the heaviest hit attacks of the war on the Communist power supply. It caught the Reds feverishly trying to repair damage inflicted on the plants by previous Allied strikes.

1 and 2 hydroelectric plants. All UN planes returned safely to their carriers.

Anti-aircraft fire was so thick and accurate, the Navy said, that pilots were unable to get a clear picture of what damage they inflicted.

Hit Warned City Air Force B-26 light bombers took over the night shift to assault a supply concentration near Bohung in northwestern Korea.

WHAT BECAME OF THE GIRL YOU MARRIED?

"Lost... one gay sweet bride. Girl eager to please me and keep my house ship-shape. Girl who thinks I'm wonderful and tells me so daily and twice on Sundays. Chief characteristics: Appreciation. Ample reward offered by one discouraged guy."

Here's a rebuttal for husbands from the September issue of Better Homes & Gardens. A story entitled, "What Became of the Man I Married?" appeared in the May issue of the magazine.

Many brides are realistically unprepared for marriage. To many women float down the aisle believing that their orange blossoms will never fade. They believe that they are setting off on a perennial honeymoon.

Some women never learn. Even after years of marriage, too many wives still expect their husbands to dress like Dean Acheson, make love like the Continental and take her out as often as Frankie does Ava, in addition to bringing home the bacon... bacon quite as big and juicy as those slabs brought home by the husband of the woman who lives next door.

In short, instead of accepting her quite human, but often quite wonderful husband for what he is, she remains stubbornly in love with the Prince of Fairy Tales. And she will nag, shove, shame, weep, plead, connive and otherwise crush her poor bewildered partner in an attempt to fit him into the mold. She has fallen in love with a mirage... her own sense of having done wrong.

Women are romance and affection hungry to an extent that few men understand. But, more women would find their longing fulfilled, however, if they only realized that romance is a two-way street. The wife who sits dolefully at one end of the street, expecting love to come to her had better be prepared to sit for a long time.

The wife who is willing to hop down off her high horse and coming running halfway (and a little bit more) will find that her marriage relationship will be enriched.

Seen or Heard—

There are many features of this program that will make Ranger Junior College more desirable to the prospective student.

In Coach Dick Henderson's college has chosen a member of the faculty to lead the cadet program that has the ability, friendliness and understanding of the students, which in a large measure may be a deciding factor in the success of the undertaking.

The eyes of the CAP, Air Force, and the nation's junior colleges will be on Ranger during the test period of this unit.

Ranger finds itself in the honorable position as being the first junior college in the United States to have the CAP on the foresightfulness of the president of the institution.

Dr. Boswell attended a meeting of heads of the state junior colleges at Austin, attended by Air Force representatives from the Pentagon in Washington, who were interested in installing a unit as "guinea pig" in a junior college. They called for a college to volunteer for the test.

Dr. Boswell at first hesitated and then said that he would like for IJC to have this honor, and here we are.

Truck Tanks Are To Begin Moving Water Into Eastland Friday; Higher Rates Announced By City Council

Water trucks will begin moving water into Eastland tomorrow (Friday) morning, is a statement credited to L. C. Heck, city manager, following a called meeting of the City Council Wednesday.

The water situation has reached the acute stage. Something had to be done, and done now, and it was up to the City Council to do it. The council has acted, and here is the story:

Today our daily water requirements indicate that slightly more than 400,000 gallons of water is being consumed each day. One hundred thousand gallons has been going to four industrial plants, but effective now, the four industrial plants have arranged to get their supply elsewhere.

for our supply, the rates will of necessity be hiked again.

Water from Strawn is out, as is that at Miegus and Thurber. The cost would prove prohibitive, it is said.

Just at this time water haulers will bring in water from a well south of Eastland, and in all probability from a well north of the city, also Lake Bierney, just west of Cisco, and possibly by next week will be getting a portion of the supply from a new well that has been drilled on a farm near Olden.

Those sources mentioned above, along with our almost depleted supply at the lake, will constitute the mixture which is to be treated and used as a temporary water supply. The picture is not bright, and it may get worse. Sources mentioned above are limited. What we get from Cisco is on a day to day basis, and may be cut off without notice.

Gordon Wood has been awarded contract for water hauling. He will use large tank trucks, and each truck will have a capacity of 4,500 gallons. He will operate with three shifts of drivers.

And in the meantime people are urged to conserve water. Stop taking all the water you want, and probably need, and take only that which is absolutely necessary, the council advises.

Polio Epidemic In Texas Shows Heavy Decline

By United Press
Dr. George W. Cox, the Texas state health officer, said Thursday there has been a definite break in the state's polio epidemic, but the dread disease gave indications of moving north into Oklahoma and Kansas.

Oklahoma's polio toll climbed late Wednesday to 625 cases for the year, only 28 less than for all of 1951. Six new cases and two "possibles" were admitted to state hospitals.

And in Kansas, polio cases passed the 300 mark, with 19 new cases reported Wednesday. Kansas has had 12 polio fatalities, Oklahoma 25.

Ike Hall, chairman of the 1953 March of Dimes campaign for Oklahoma, predicted this year would be the second worst in history for polio, exceeded only by 1948, when more than 1,300 cases were reported.

In Texas, Dr. Cox said only 162 cases were reported to his office

Personal Loan Plan Popular In State of Texas

Nearly 100 per cent of the San Antonians answering a recent mail poll, involving thousands of small loan borrowers, said that the charges for personal loans obtained under the conditions provided by Senate Bill 339, the new Texas lending law, were satisfactory, according to Leo Brewer, San Antonio attorney.
"Nearly all the borrowers reported that the charge for personal loans under the new Act, which is the discount, or flat dollar charge method, is satisfactory," Brewer said. "Nearly all of the borrowers stated they would continue to borrow in the future, if and when necessary, with lenders who offer the services provided by the new Texas discount lending law," he declared.
"The new lending law," Brewer explained, "because effective in September 1951. Since then, statewide inquiries to tens of thousands of small loan borrowers have revealed that Texans overwhelmingly favor this new Act which provides for examination of all lenders by the State Department of Banking."

PLUG 'N TRIGGER

By J. FRED EDER
United Press Outdoors Expert
A careless snag a bit of foolery, and a little nonsense now and then does not—"misshapen even a monarch"—so said Walpole.
True words were never spoken and often high spirits coupled with a desire for a little fun result in the development of useful and practical ideas! Although followers of Isaac Walton are usually considered or looked upon as serious minded individuals, many modern day anglers take to fun just as readily as other humans. In fact a fun loving minor with a system composed of "good natured and practical pranks" is hard to beat for fun at home or in camp.
A stunt that started out as a bit of foolery has developed into a brand new and highly interesting sport which in turn has elevated the lowly carp to a pedestal usually reserved for the finest Kentucky race horses.
Now you may be wondering the connection between carp and Kentucky thoroughbred race horses. I will admit the similarity exists in the name only—racing.
Still on the lowly carp's side of the ledger no more thrilling, exciting an unpredictable "race" was ever run than that afforded by a "carp race." No, it's not a typographical error, you read it right—"carp race."
If you think Mr. Carp can't run a thrilling race you're in for a lot of excitement and fun that no other form of racing has ever been able to duplicate. Two, three, four or more individuals can play the game. In fact, the more the merrier if sufficient water space is available.
The first problem is to catch the carp for racing carp of fairly good and strength should be used. At least they should be fairly equal in size when matched with one another.
A good "doughbait" or any other of the many numerous carp baits, will catch carp and take care of the first detail, that of obtaining a "stock of racing carp."
Next on the list will be a good supply of "gas filled balloons preferably painted with large number." These balloons should be fairly large and tie securely to a strong line—your old reel line or at least 15 pound test will do.
Length of the line should be approximately six to eight feet. Now select your favorite "steed" or rather "racing carp" and securely tie a harness of at least 15 pound test line around the center of the carp's body and between or around the dorsal fins, thus preventing the line or harness from slipping either direction. To this harness is attached the six foot line with balloon with several of the entries. Thus prepared with line, harness, and gas filled balloon you're ready for the races.
The purpose of the gas filled balloon as you have probably suspected by now, is to trace the movement of the carp in the water and indicate the route or movement of your carp!
There will be times when your "racer" will submerge the balloon, but not for long. The extreme buoyancy of the gas filled balloon will bring him back close enough to the surface again to let the balloon rise and float above the water!
With the racing carp ready for the races, the entries should be taken to the ends of a fairly large slough or lake cove, preferably free from brush. The contestants are then released in the water and the race is on. First carp to swim out of the neck of water is the winner.
A large circle can also be marked off way out in the open deep water of your lake thus eliminating any chance of your entry becoming snagged.
The circle can be marked with brightly colored jugs anchored so as to form a large circle, the first "racing carp" to swim out of the circle is the winner. Carp are a hardy species of fish and can stand the strain of racing fairly well if handled with wet hands and a reasonable amount of care while in captivity. After the race the carp can easily be recovered.
Never release them back to the lake. Dispose of them, as the species is undesirable and a detriment to black bass and species of game fish.
If you prefer they can be kept indefinitely in a live box. Other than the feeding, no other care will be required by your "stable" of "racing carp." It's a stable of racers than can give you and the gang a lot of fun, thrills and excitement second to none and at the same time rid Mr. Bass of an enemy that plays havoc with his spawning beds.

IT'S THE LAW

"Deed of Trust" Secures Real Estate Note

In most cases the seller wants the cash when the buyer buys the house. Then the problem to the buyer is, how to raise the money? The answer is, borrow it. Regulation X of the Federal Government requires the buyer to have a certain amount of his own money on hand for payment on the house, if it is not older than a certain age. However, even as to houses not under Regulation X, the buyer should have some cash of his own.

One item common to all loans is the promissory note. In this note, the borrower promises to re-pay to the lender the amount of money borrowed. Of course, the borrower agrees to pay the lender some interest for the use of the money.

The rate of interest can be as high as 10 per cent and still be legal in Texas, but most lenders today charge about one-half of that rate. The rate of interest is usually lowest on those loans that are insured by an instrumentality of the Federal Government, such as Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and Veterans Administration (VA).

A note usually provides for the sum of money being re-paid to the lender in installments—monthly installments probably being the most common. This portion of the note is very important to the borrower as he does not want the installments to exceed the amount he can afford to pay.

On the other hand, the borrower does not usually want the installments to be too small. Small installments mean that the principal is re-paid very slowly and, therefore, over the life of the loan, the borrower pays more interest.

In regard to re-payment, if the note contains a provision enabling the borrower to pay the loan in part or in full prior to the maturity of the note, (payment privilege) then the borrower can use his extra cash to reduce his indebtedness. Also, a liberal prepayment privilege may be very useful to a borrower if and when he desires to sell his house.

In order for the lender to have something to fall back on in case the borrower does not fulfill his promise to re-pay the money, most borrowers are required to place a mortgage on the house and lot they are buying. In Texas, the mortgage instrument used is a "Deed of Trust", a complicated instrument.

In its essentials, it is a conveyance of the real estate by the borrower to a third party ("Trustee") for the benefit of and as security for the lender. If the borrower defaults in the payment of the note or defaults in the performance of certain promises made in the Deed of Trust, then the Trustee is authorized to sell the property and apply the proceeds to the satisfaction of the borrower's debt to the lender.

Literature Of Today Is Good, Is Claim Made

Many people today believe that the United States is producing a mass culture in which religion languishes, the arts are smothered by the demands of mass entertainment and the life of the spirit wanes. In this atmosphere it is easy for observers to point to a decline in the moral behavior of young and old. Teen-age crime and official corruption in Washington are seen as signs of widespread ethical decay.

Such conclusions are of doubtful validity, contends Frederick Lewis Allen, writing in the September Reader's Digest. Mr. Allen, editor of Harper's Magazine and experienced observer of the national scene, marshals a wealth of evidence to demonstrate the current vitality of the public conscience and a broadening appreciation of the arts.

Concern about the distribution of income and the ideal of equality of educational opportunity never before commanded such general acceptance. Our expanded sense of public obligation is manifest in the amount of time individual men and women devote to such community institutions as the churches, hospitals and schools.

Refuting the widely held notion that American material prosperity has throttled the arts, Mr. Allen looks at the records of the recent past in the fields of literature, painting and music. An increasing amount of high quality writing has found a place in our mass periodicals. Examples: Churchill's memoirs in Life, Faulkner's short stories in The Saturday Evening Post. Despite some trash on best-seller book lists, most fiction and non-fiction volumes enjoying top sales are among the best of their time, Allen holds. In the low-priced reprint field, George Orwell's Nineteen Eighty-Four has sold more than 750,000 copies; a translation of The Odyssey, 350,000.

Music shows the same pattern of resurgent interest. In 1900 the nation's symphony orchestras were a "handful." By 1951 we had 659 symphonic groups. Fifteen hundred American communities now support annual series of concerts. Sales of phonograph records in the "classical" category are estimated at 30 million for 1951.

"In a day when the cultural condition of the world rests heavily on America our culture may prove to have been not the enemy of excellence but its seedbed," Mr. Allen concludes. "This is something new; there has never been anything like it before."
