

Texas Is Host To Democratic Nominee Adlai Stevenson Today

TOM MACCABE
United Press Staff Correspondent

The national political spotlight again fell on Texas Friday, with Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee, arriving for a two-day campaign and two Republican senators preparing for major speeches.

Stevenson was to arrive at Fort Worth by plane at 4:25 p.m. His tour of the Lone Star state came just two days after the departure of his Republican opponent, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Friday's other political developments:

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy R-Wis., prepared for a "nonpartisan" speech Friday night in Tyler. McCarthy will speak on Communism in government at a rally sponsored by the Tyler American Legion post.

Sen. James Duff R-Pa., a pioneer Eisenhower supporter, arrived for talks in Nocona Saturday and Lamesa and Big Spring Monday.

Republican realignments in Dallas announced Richard M. Nixon, GOP vice presidential candidate, would make a seven-stop, one-day flying tour of Texas Oct. 27.

No Full Story

Stevenson was challenged by Robert E. Stripling, former chief investigator for the House Un-American Activities Committee, to tell "the extent of his association" with Alger Hiss. Stripling said: "Here in Texas we haven't had the full story."

Gov. Allan Shivers who is supporting Eisenhower, said the federal government was "discriminating" against some Texas counties by not declaring them drought disaster areas. Shivers said: "Texas farmers and ranchers have lost more than $5 million" because of a delay in designating 82 of the state's 254 counties disaster areas and making them eligible for emergency relief.

Price Daniel, senatorial candidate of both parties, rushed to Austin after his son was seriously injured in a fall with a plastic horn in his mouth. Daniel cancelled a press conference and speech in San Antonio Thursday night.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, the only statewide Democratic candidate to refuse endorsement, campaigned for Stevenson in East Texas. White declared the Republicans were "falsely attempting to claim credit for advances made during Democratic administrations."

Stevenson will speak at Fort Worth about 5:15 p.m. and then travel to Dallas by automobile, stopping for a speech at Grand Prairie. His major speech of the day will be at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas at 8 p.m.

Saturday he will speak at San Antonio, Houston and Uvalde, where he will visit former Vice President John Nance Garner.

McCarthy's talk will be broadcast from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. over a 54-station, five-state network.

McCarthy at Tyler

The Wisconsin senator has been campaigning for Eisenhower throughout the country. He flew to Tyler from Milwaukee Thursday night and will fly to Tucson, Ariz., after his Tyler appearance. Duff, who will attend a private dinner in Dallas Friday, will keynote the final day of Oil Progress Week in Nocona.

Daniel had planned to speak Thursday night on the implied threat of Democratic National chairman Stephen A. Mitchell to withhold patronage from him because of Daniel's pro-Eisenhower activity.

He cancelled the speech after hearing his son, John 4, had been hurt when he fell while running and rammed a plastic horn against the roof of his mouth. Physicians described the boy's condition as serious, but not critical.

Rangers Crush North Texas Staters, 12-7

This one made this reporter guffaw. A Ranger sailor, home on leave, and his girl were out riding horseback in the country. As they paused in the shade for a rest, the two horses rubbed their necks affectionately.

"Ah, me," said the Ranger Navvyte, "that's what I'd like to do."

"Go ahead," said the girl, "it's your horse."

Our pigskin weekend—usually kicked off on a football Friday like this—got an early start here last night when Ranger Junior College tangled with North Texas State out at our Bulldog Stadium. Details of the p.m. collegiate carnage appear elsewhere in this edition of your Ranger Daily Times.

Tonight—it'll be Coach Stubby Warden's Ranger High Bulldogs, who've built themselves a three-straight streak, versus White Settlement High of Fort Worth. A non-conference encounter, but it promises to be a thriller. Right out at Bulldog Stadium.

An that leaves local fans loose for Saturday—with plenty of sizzling grid action offered all over the Southwest.

Rangerites are mighty lucky this fall—three good ball clubs, Ranger Junior College's Rangers, Ranger High's Bulldogs, and Ranger Junior High's undefeated Pups—yes, three great teams to follow and plenty of enjoyment for all good sports!

Down at the Ranger City Hall the other morning, a drunk jailed the night before had been taken before the local JP.

"Have you ever been up before me?"

"I don't know," the guy charged with drunkenness replied, "what time do you get up?"

Saturday the Great Lakes Naval Training Station eleven, gunning for its fourth win in six starts meets Scott Field at Belleville, Ill., in an armed forces grid encounter.

To give you an idea why this corner mentions the GLNTEs eleven, we quote in part a story from the big sports section of the Sunday Chicago Tribune, heralded as "The World's Greatest Newspaper."

"Two touchdowns passes by quarterback Junior Arterburn gave Great Lakes a 19-6 win over the previously undefeated Fort Knox (Ky.) Tankers Saturday at Great Lakes."

"Arterburn, honorable mention All-American at Texas Tech last year, completed eight of 14 passes for 205 yards as he staged a duel with Fort Knox quarterback Mickey Carter, who hit 12 of 19 passes for 163 yards."

"After a scoreless first quarter in the nationally televised battle, Great Lakes opened the second quarter with a 31-yard touchdown run by halfback Joe Ravel. Tom Martin kicked the extra point."

"Seven minutes later, Great Lakes scored again as Arterburn fired a screen pass to halfback Claude Tallafiera, who ran 84 yards for six more points."

"Fort Knox tallied its only

Officers Hunt Man, 22, For Auto Theft

An honorable discharge certificate from the Texas National Guard has put law enforcement officers on the trail of Thomas M. Spoon, 22-year-old Mineral Wells man, who's wanted by officers in Lubbock, Abilene, and Mineral Wells, Chief of Police W. G. Pounds of Ranger, said Thursday.

Ranger patrolmen picked up a 1950 Chevrolet sedan, stolen from an Abilene used car dealer last Saturday, here at midnight Saturday, but the driver of the vehicle escaped and abandoned the vehicle at a local service station.

A suitcase of clothes, including a discharge from the National Guard, identified the car thief who also is wanted for burglary at Lubbock and Palo Pinto County Sheriff Fred Foreman says he also has a warrant for young Spoon's arrest.

A charge of breaking and entering and car theft has been filed against the missing Mineral Wells man in Abilene, Chief Pounds said.

Spoon is 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 109 pounds, and has brown hair and green eyes.

He has relatives in Ranger, officers said.

Officers Hunt Man, 22, For Auto Theft

It was Quarterback Buddy Hamrick's night out at Bulldog Stadium in Ranger 26 hours ago when he led his Ranger Junior College mates to a 12 to 7 victory over the beefy North Texas State College "B" team before a sparse audience of 1,500 on-lookers.

During his stellar Thursday night performance, aided by the very cooperative efforts of his Purple & White brethren, Hamrick personally accounted for all but 48 yards of the Rangers' air and ground offensive total of 216 yards net. The triple-threatening field general, slashing off the spread, lugged the oval on 16 plays for 68 yards, and hurled a total of 17 passes, 10 of which were completed for 100 yards even.

The battle, a tightly contested affair with exception of the last three minutes of the first half, was a thriller. The coaching, too, was excellent with Assistant Coach Richard E. (Dick) Henderson handling the Purple & White machine during the absence of Coach Borne Yarbrough off on a coaching expedition.

Interception Sparks Scoring

As the minutes ticked away and the intermission break neared with the scoreboard displaying only zeros, Charles Blanton, 170-pound Ranger halfback, intercepted an Eaglet pass on the Ranger 32 and hustled it up to the 46 to set off a terrific offensive explosion.

From there Hamrick splattered his 170 pounds over right guard for four, shot back Kenneth Burton a spiral good for 15 yards, but failed to gain on an attempted end sweep from the 25. Blanton was thrown for a two-yard loss, and then Hamrick connected with Blanton on an eight-yard.

Tunnell Heads C-C Committee For Industry

B. A. Tunnell, Ranger agent for the Texas and Pacific Railway, heads the important industrial group, one of the 14 new standing committees recently appointed by Charlie Joe Owen, president of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce.

Other members of the committee are C. B. Pruet, Price Crawley, Bill Williams, Lester Crossley, J. A. Bates, C. A. Campbell, J. E. Matthews, J. J. Kelly, T. C. Wylie, Dr. P. M. Kuykendall, and T. J. Anderson.

"Now that we have a new lake in the offing which will furnish an adequate supply of water," says R. V. Galloway, secretary-manager of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, "every effort should be put forth by this committee to bring before industries Ranger's resources and advantages as an ideal location for factories and other industrial enterprises."

Another prime purpose of this 12-man committee, it was pointed out, is to support local existing industries to the "fullest extent."

Mild And Sunny Is Forecast

Mild, sunny weather prevailed over the Eastland County and best of Texas area Friday, with no relief in sight from the long drought that has parched crops and pastureland and cut water supplies.

The weatherman early this morning forecast "fair through Saturday—with no important temperature changes."

Oklahoma and Texas, the two states hardest hit by the drought, were bone-dry Thursday. The only rain in the seven-state area from Wyoming to the Rio Grande consisted of light showers around Sheridan, Wyo.

Presidio, Tex., and Roswell, N. M. shared honors as the hottest spots in the Southwest Thursday, each with a maximum of 87 degrees.

Mrs. Stiles Dies Friday; Ranger Rites Sunday

Mrs. Peachy Emma Stiles, 85, affectionately known to many Ranger residents as "Mother Stiles," died in the West Texas Hospital at Lubbock Thursday morning, it was reported this morning.

Mrs. Stiles, who moved to Eastland County back in 1907, resided in Ranger from 1921 until four years ago when she moved to the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. J. Sneed at Petersburg.

She became ill Oct. 6 and never recovered after having been placed in the Lubbock hospital. Mrs. Stiles' husband, the late Cole Younger Stiles, preceded his wife in death back in 1905.

Killingworth Funeral Home, in charge of arrangements, announced at noon today that funeral rites for the former Ranger resident will be held in Ranger at the First Baptist Church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Survivors include two sons, the Rev. E. R. Stiles of Ft. Worth and A. L. Stiles of Ranger; three daughters, Mrs. R. P. Sneed of Eastland, Mrs. P. J. Sneed of Petersburg, Tex., and Mrs. C. J. Gardner of Jefferson; 31 grandchildren, 20 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

Ross Cribbs Be Buried Saturday

Ross Cribbs, former resident of Olden, and retired Magnolia employee, passed away at New Braunfels, Wednesday, and will be buried Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p.m.

Mr. Cribbs was a member of the Olden Methodist Church, and had many friends in this community. He was for a number of years shop superintendent for the Magnolia.

Chesters Plan Breakfast To Kick-off Drive

The coming 1952 Community Chest drive which opens next Tuesday morning, Oct. 21, were near completion Friday, reports W. C. White, president, as leaders of the fund-raising group worked out final details for the opening kick-off breakfast.

The breakfast, to be held Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock at the Gholson Hotel, will be attended by scores of volunteer workers who'll canvass residents and business and professional men for donations during the coming campaign. Ranger's 1952 Chest goal is $6,500.

All workers, appointed by team captains who'll work under direction of Chairman Ted St. Clair, are expected—and urgently requested—to attend the kickoff breakfast. Price, only 60 cents per plate.

R. V. Galloway, secretary-manager of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the kickoff breakfast committee which also includes James A. Smith and John L. Smith, said reservations would be closed today.

Here is a list of the captains and their workers who already are slated to attend the breakfast:

Mrs. E. L. McMillan, chairman; Mrs. Saunders Gregg, Mrs. T. C. Wylie, Mrs. H. X. Wallace, J. E. Matthews, Mrs. L. A. Farnian, A. N. Larson, Mrs. A. N. Larson and Mrs. Jim McLaughlin.

Barnes, Hinds Still Out Of RHS Lineup

Fullback J. L. Barnes and End Tommy Hinds, a pair of the Ranger High Bulldogs' top horses, won't be in the starting lineup for tonight's non-conference battle between the protégés of coaches Stubby Warden and Sam Allie and a White Settlement (Fort Worth) eleven.

Early Friday morning Coach Warden announced the following starting lineup for tonight's fracas which is set to get underway at 8 p.m. out at Bulldog Stadium in Ranger:

In the backfield, Gerald Bagwell, 140 at quarter; Charlie Masseege, 134, and Billy Brown, 130, at the halves; and Herbert Williams, 160, at full.

The Ranger starting wall will have Bill Brazda, 185, and Chico Mendoza, 170, at the wings; Eddie James, 190, and Jimmy Wheeler, 170, at tackles; Wayne Hargrave, 160, and Ruby Justice, 160, at guards; and John Rush, 160, at center.

The White Settlement eleven is coached by John Bray, a former stellar Ranger High grisman who was a teammate of Coach Stubby Warden on the great district championship machines of 1931 and 1932. Coach Tray today released this starting lineup from his war camp in Fort Worth:

Donald Dobbins, 145, at quarter; Clarence Karr, 156 and Johnny Wilson, 145, at the halves; and Marvin Brodie, 140, at fullback.

Linemen due to start at the opening whistle are Thomas Stringham, 151, and Joe Davidson, 170, ends; Jay Show, 163, and William Roach, 197, at tackles; Van Laird, 139, and Raymond Benfer, 162, at guards; and R. C. Harry, 126, at center.

After tonight's contest Ranger's Maroon & Whiteners will have a week's rest—Oct. 24 is an open date—before colliding with rough and rugged Diamond Hill at Bulldog Stadium on Friday night, Oct. 31.

Hardin-Simmons A Capella Choir

Hardin-Simmons A Cappella Choir Be In Eastland Tuesday At 2 P. M.

Hardin-Simmons University's a cappella choir, of Abilene, one of the most widely travelled student choral groups in the Southwest, will be in Eastland Tuesday to present a concert in the high school auditorium. The program will begin at 2 p.m.

The 60-member organization, directed by Euell Porter, will be enroute to the Texas Baptist Convention in Ft. Worth, where it will sing Wednesday morning. The choir will appear Tuesday morning in Cisco.

Other engagements for the choir in Ft. Worth include a television appearance over WBAF-TV at 9:15 a.m. Wednesday, a radio broadcast that afternoon and a special Texas program that evening.

During the past three years the choir has sung for audiences in a dozen states. It has appeared regularly at the Southern Baptist Convention and Texas Baptist Convention, travelling more than 5,000 miles yearly. The choir also is in great demand for programs before civic, music, church and student groups throughout the Southwest.

Specializing in sacred presentations, the choir also sings spirituals, folk songs and semi-classical selections.

Its repertoire includes music by Palestrina, Bach, Billings, Cain, Dawson, Christiansen and Kern.

Appearing with the choir in its Eastland concert will be a male quartet. Members include Jack Kay, High Point, N.C., first tenor; Ronnie Bates, Brownwood, second tenor; Norman Ward, Beaumont, baritone; and Bill Hardage, Vernon, bass. The quartet also will sing at the Cisco concert and at a special Hardin-Simmons breakfast in Ft. Worth Wednesday.

Choral singers who hear the H-SU choir will recognize the influence of Dr. John Finley Williamson of Westminster Choir College. Porter, who is chairman of the Hardin-Simmons voice department, has studied under Williamson, and the latter has conducted summer choral clinics on the university campus.

Robes worn by the choir members are of wine gabardine and white satin. All performances are made from a phalanx formation.

ECLRA Barbecue Set Oct. 23

Plans are being completed to feed 600 people at the Annual barbecue of the Eastland County Livestock Raisers Association at the City Park in Eastland on October 23rd, according to Judge M. S. Long, Eastland, general chairman of arrangements for the affair.

Committee chairman to handle various phases of the work have been named by Judge Long. It was said. The committees are already at work.

The occasion which bring together livestock men, farmers, business and professional men and their wives has been an annual affair for many years. It will start promptly at 6:30 on that date, says Suttan Crofts, Claco, prominent Angus breeder and President of the organization.

D. E. Buchanan, Stephenville, formerly livestock specialist under the Marshall Plan aid to Europe has accepted an invitation to be the principal speaker. He is to talk on livestock production and management practices as he observed them in Europe and Africa and the Middle East. Buchanan formerly taught in the animal husbandry department at A&M College and is now in the livestock auction business at Stephenville.

Tickets for the barbecue, said to be as good as any ever cooked in West Texas, are available from different directors over the county, according to T. D. Wheat, Eastland, Secretary of the organization who has distributed the tickets. The price of the tickets are $1.00 each.

Other officers include Johnny Aaron, Eastland, Vice President and C. M. McCain, also of Eastland, Treasurer.

The nominating committee for officers and directors for the ensuing year to be elected the night of the barbecue has completed its work. Nominations from the floor can also be made just prior to the election it was explained.

The organization has for its principal objective the progress of the F.F.A. and 4-H boys in producing and showing better livestock.

touchdown early in the third period on a 10-yard pass from Carter to end Horace White. Carter's kick was wide.

"Four plays after the next kickoff, Arterburn unleashed a pass to Rayl, who covered 62 yards for Great Lakes' third marker."

The Bluejackets also drew publicity and praise in the Chicago Sun-Times which carried substantially the same story as The Tribune, adding that Arterburn "also carried the ball 13 times for 58 yards."

Young Arterburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Arterburn of Ranger, enlisted in the Navy on August 2, and a short time later was sent to the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. He didn't get on the Bluejacket grid squad, a star-studded roster of the nation's top collegiate football talent, until a few weeks ago. Within two weeks from the time he was issued his Navy cleats and mole-skins he had won hands-down possession of the quarterback slot on the 55-man squad which has a membership of 10 other Texans, including TCU's Lindy Berry.

Quarterbacking Junior played football at Ranger High, two years he starred at Ranger Junior College, then he played two years for Texas Tech in the Border Conference, was all-conference and an honorable mention for All-American, and clinched his collegiate career when he engineered the Raiders to their first Sun Bowl victory in six New Year's Day starts over the College of the Pacific last Jan. 1, at El Paso.

Arterburn is 23 years old, stands 5 feet and 8 inches and weighs a hefty 175 pounds.

His current career with the Great Lakes service club will be watched with interest in coming weeks.

aerial, after which the flinger veered around right end on a ground maneuver, cut sharply back toward center and loosed down to the visitors' 17 for a 9-yard gain. There he missed on a pitch to Rusty Talbot, but bulls-eyed on another to Blaxton who was dropped on the one. Another Hamrick heave to Talbot over in the end zone was good for TD No. 1. But Jeff Smith failed successfully to add the point with his fluke kick from placement.

The Rangers really whirlwinded their second tally and had struck again before the first round of audience ovation had completely faded.

Another Pass Interception

Tackle Leon Jones' short after touchdown return kick off boot was juggled but grabbed by NTSC's Brown, right guard, on the Eagles' 45 and he moved to the 50 where he was snared by a bevy of Ranger brown. At that spot quarterback Hayes, the NTSCers' 180-pound T-former engineer, tried a pass which was beautifully intercepted by Ranger's Walter Matthews who roared down to the NTSC 15-yard stripe. Then a 5-yard penalty against the Dentonmen nullified an incomplete pass by Hamrick and moved the TD-bound leather down to the 10. From there the RIC quarter cruised over right tackle into pay dirt. Smith again failed to annex the point from placement.

The out-played Eagles' only counter came four plays after the opening kickoff of the second half. After two line bucks by Right Half Hughes failed to gain, Hayes completed a pass good for 12 yards to the 34, and then the T-former handed off to Fullback Bowers who pattered 50 yards to score. Halfback Bowlin's boot for the point was perfect. The contest was a nip-and-tuck affair until the dying minutes.

USDA Warns Housewives Of Spud Shortage

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The Department of Agriculture has warned housewives they may face another potato shortage next spring.

Bad weather has cut down yields in Maine and other "late crop" bulk of the potatoes that go on sale in the spring.

Also, farmers aren't storing away as many potatoes as usual to be carried over the winter for spring marketing. Demand has been so great that they have been unable to market most of this year's crop.

Despite these ominous symptoms, government experts are hopeful that potatoes won't be quite as high priced and hard to find as they were early this year.

They point out that farmers in "early crop" potato producing states may increase their plantings enough to offset the fall losses in Maine and other late crop areas.

Otherwise, the latest Agriculture Department vegetable outlook report contains moderately encouraging news for family menu-planners.

The outlook for sweet potatoes and "most" fresh market crops is for increased production and prices averaging "a little below the relatively high levels of 1952."

On the fresh market list are cabbage, lettuce, onions, tomatoes and others.

The report said the commercial pack of canned vegetables next year will be about the same size as the 1952 pack. This year, production was down about 15 to 20 per cent but stocks in storage were up about 50 per cent from a year earlier.

Wholesale and retail prices of canned peas are expected to be higher; canned corn prices should be "significantly" lower; and canned asparagus prices should remain fairly stable.

of the game. At the final gun, the visitors, red-hot and eager to score that winning touchdown, fired up a sizzling drive on their own 35 and had roared down to the argumen's 19-yard stripe at the non-conference contest ended.

USDA Forecasts '52 Cotton Crop 14,400,000 Bales

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The Agriculture Department has forecast a 1952 cotton crop of 14.4 million bales, up 524,000 bales, or four percent, from last month's estimate.

The October forecast compares with a 13.9 million bale estimate of a month ago, 1951 production of 15.1 million bales, and a 10-year average output of 11.8 million bales.

The department said gains during the month were caused chiefly by improved conditions in Texas and the central cotton belt "with most areas holding their own or showing some improvement."

The crop reporting board said the condition of the crop on Oct. 1 was 71 per cent of normal. Last year at this time it was 74 per cent of normal while over the 10-year period of 1951-50 it was 72 per cent of normal on the same date.

The board said the indicated yield is 280.2 pounds of lint an acre on the 24.7 million acres estimated to be harvested this year. Last year yields averaged 271.9 pounds per acre and the 10-year average yield was 267.6 pounds. The department estimated a 3.6 million yield for Texas, compared with production last year of 4.1 million bales.

Arkansas' yield was estimated at 1.3 million, compared with an output in 1951 of 1.2 million. Estimates for other Southwest states included: Louisiana 718,000 bales compared with 662,000; New Mexico 300,000, compared with 273,000; Missouri 385,000 compared with 309,000; and Arizona 1.1 million, compared with 803,000.

Why Should I Have an Abstract?

is a question often asked of abstractors and one we like to answer. When ownership of real property enters your business life then title problems also come in. Buying, selling, mortgaging and otherwise dealing with real estate require correct title information. The abstract reflects the true record title and therefore has everything to do with values. That's one answer, there are many others.

NEWS FROM CHEANEY Mrs. Bill Tucker

"Did you know that there is a right and left plaid," was one of the questions asked at the Cheaney Home Demonstration club members meeting Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Bill Tucker.

The H. D. agent, Mildred Daniel was in charge of the visual demonstration of matching stripes and plaids when doing home sewing. Slip basting in place after placing material exactly makes the task of matching much easier. Emphasis was placed on being sure to place pattern according to a left or right design in material before cutting.

Other factors considered were color, patterns, and materials according to weight and height.

Mrs. Tucker gave the October Council report and plans for achievement day in November.

The next meeting will be October 23 with Mrs. Theibert Jones as hostess.

Relatives who visited the Herman Neger home last week were August Bontke and daughter, Cordia from Abilene, A. H. Leetha and wife, Bertha and daughter, Ernestine from Littlefield, Joe Bontke and wife, Minnie and his sister, Mrs. Augusta Kurts from Plainview.

Private Clinton Strickler of Ft. Bliss is here for a two weeks vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Strickler and grandmother, Mrs. J. P. Strickler. Maternal grandparents are Mrs. Vinnie Lee and Ike Lee of Ranger.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tucker of Ranger were Cheaney church visitors Sunday morning. They attended the birthday supper in the Kenneth Brown home near Desdemona honoring Kenneth on his 26th birthday. Mrs. Brown will be remembered as Salata Marie Tucker.

The Cheaney group who attended the Farm Bureau kick-off supper Thursday night in Eastland, prior to the membership drive on Friday were: Mr. and Mrs. Ben Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Ferrell, Mr. and Mrs. John Love, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Blackwell, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. Theibert Jones and Mrs. Bill Tucker. The supper was spread in the basement parlour of the Methodist church and about 80 persons were present and heard A. Z. Myrick, F. B. president, speak on vital issues pertaining to farming and agriculture.

Boyd Wisdom and his grandson, Joe Harry Powers III of Abilene were in the Cheaney community Sunday looking after the J. S. Motes farms and crop prospects.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Tucker returned Tuesday to their home in Jal, New Mexico after a two weeks vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Tucker of Ranger and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jorner of Gorman.

DEPORTATION HALTED BROWNSVILLE, Oct. 10 (UP)—Immigration officials were barred Friday from deporting Andres Hernandez of Alamo, Tex., charged with voting in a Mexican election illegally during a period of residence in Mexico ending in 1944. Judge James V. Allred enjoined the immigration service from deporting Hernandez until further evidence is presented.

THE girl who stepped down from the plane at the Capital City Airport was as smoothly beautiful as if she had stepped out of the pages of a fashion magazine instead of flight six from New York. She wore a dove gray suit of sheer woolen and a tiny yellow hat that echoed the tawny golden highlights in her short brown hair and made her dark eyes look even darker. She had a cheerful expectant look on her face, almost eager, and one wouldn't have dreamed that she was, at the moment, running away.

A man standing by the gate hurried to meet her and when she saw him her soft mouth curved into a smile. "Why cousin Bruno! How nice to see you! Where's Dad?"

"His car's in the garage, Laurie, and he phoned and asked if I'd meet you. What a pleasure it is to see you after all this time! You're looking wonderful, and all grown up too, and—sophisticated."

"Am I really?" She hugged his arm as they went toward the car. As he tucked her into the smart convertible Bruno said, "I thought I read where you were getting married this month, darling. Did something happen?"

Laurie French's face clouded. "I'll tell you all about it, Bruno. While he busied himself seeing that all her luggage was stacked safely to the back of the convertible, she tried to assemble her thoughts. It was awfully hard to explain a thing like this to people. It was as she told Bruno a few moments later, one of those things you do without quite knowing why.

"Such an awful mess! Mother was furious because she'd already made plans for the wedding. Fletcher was just bewildered. Of course we're still engaged. The wedding's to be in October now. But, Bruno, for some reason or other I just had to come and spend this one last summer with my father, my own father. He's the only one who tried to understand it."

"Your stepfather always was an understanding sort of a guy," Bruno said thoughtfully as he swung the car out into the state road that led to Ridgeville. "All ways liked him. Of course, I always liked Louis too."

"Sounds odd to hear you speak of my father as Louis. Mother always calls him 'your father'!" She tried to imitate her mother's disparaging tone. "I've never had much chance to really get to know him as a person. Only those summers I spent with him when I was small and then one summer four years ago, you remember. Was mother really in love with him when she married him?"

"Madly," Bruno said. He twirled the car around a curve with practiced ease. "The whole family was against her marrying him, of course. A small town guy, running a fairly prosperous hardware store, spending his spare time fishing and raising flowers and reading books interminably. And your mother, well, she was a good deal" shook as she began to dress. If she didn't hurry she'd never be able to catch him. A splash of icy water on her face from the bathroom tap, a hasty brush or two at her hair and a couple of expert dabs with a lipstick at her mouth and she was off, down the stairs and out the front door, eagerness making her feet fly.

Steve's boat had already left his dock. She trotted along the path at the edge of the water, following the sound of the creaking oarlocks. The mist was so thick it was hard to keep in the path. "Steve!" she called out, "Wait for me!"

Laurie had a hazy remembrance of going fishing with Steve during that previous summer.

like you, Laurie, a social butterfly, always had anything she wanted that money could buy. She had sophisticated tastes and she tried to make Louis over, well—he wouldn't be made over."

"At least," Laurie mused, "Fletcher and I are the same kind of people. We like the same things, know the same people, and—Fletcher's awfully handsome."

"Sounds like a good deal," Bruno said, intent on his driving. "I trust you are also in love with the guy."

She didn't answer. Bruno turned on the car radio, muttering something about not wanting to miss his regular newscast.

NOT that she didn't love Fletcher. She was terribly fond of him. She liked him better than any other man she had ever known. But the fact that she felt this overwhelming need to spend the summer in Ridgeville with her father and away from Fletcher, plus the fact that she had postponed the wedding, bewildered her as much as it did her mother and stepfather and fiancé.

Her mother had been one of the Markies from Capitol City. They were always spoken of as the "Chemical Markies" because that particular branch of the family had made its millions in the chemical business. Her father was just Louie French who owned a small hardware store in a crossroads town on a river—Indiana. Her mother had divorced him just after Laurie was born. Her stepfather Mark Carr was the only father she had ever known except for those few summers in Ridgeville.

Bruno snapped off the car radio. "There's the river, and the old covered bridge. Things never change down in this part of the country. It's been seven or eight years since I've been down here, but things look exactly the same."

"Yes," Laurie said. "It was four years ago I was down, but things look just the same. I was 16 then. Four years is a long time."

AS Bruno whirled the car down the long road through the valley, Laurie began to think of that summer four years ago that she had spent with her father. She had felt quite grown up and worldly because she had just graduated from the academy and would go to Smith in the fall. She had fallen in love that summer too, with a fellow named Steve Wysons, who lived in a river cabin down below her father's house on the river. It hadn't been any yesterday." He tipped up his battered old brown hat with his flies on it, and picked up the oars again and pulled the boat out into the stream.

love, of course, just a crush. Steve had been 16 years older than she, and just back from the mess in Europe. He'd been a pilot in the war, shot down, a prisoner and then convalescent and finally shipped home. He had started to write a book that summer and he and her father had been great friends. That was all she recalled of Steve except a hazy remembrance of dark eyes and hair and a lean face and broad shoulders. She recalled going fishing with him in his boat. She wondered whether he would still be around.

"There's Steve's house!" she said suddenly, leaning forward as Bruno pulled the car up the rutted clay road that led along the river.

"Steve's?"

"A friend of father's. Oh, I think I see him coming too. Someone—I think it's Steve."

A tall, broad-shouldered figure had rounded the bend in the lane. A hunting dog trotted at his side. Bruno brought the car to a stop as Laurie rolled down the window.

"Why hello, Steve! You—are Steve, aren't you?"

"That's right, and you're Laurie." The faint vestige of a smile brushed his strong mouth, but his eyes were asigmatic. "Your father's expecting you."

Laurie introduced Steve to her cousin Bruno and a few moments later they were driving on up the lane toward her father's house.

"Are you sure it's Louis that brought you back to Ridgeville for the summer?" Bruno said abruptly. He smiled and gave her a curious glance.

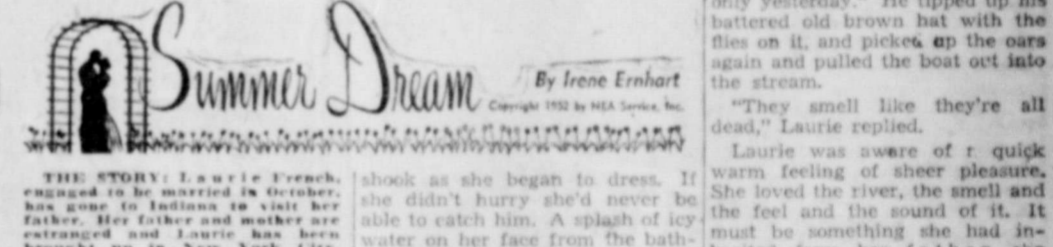

"I told you, Bruno, I'm not even sure myself why I had to come. But it couldn't be Steve Wysons, as you're trying to intimate it was, because I—why I don't even know him really. Besides, for all I know he may be married by now. Most eligible men are married by the time they're 30."

"I'm not," Bruno said, "but then I'm too intelligent to ever let myself in for anything as hazardous as marriage!"

They laughed together and Bruno stopped the car in the driveway. He stepped around to open Laurie's door for her, and just then Louis French came out of the house and strode across the porch and down the steps.

"Laurie, it's so good to see you!" Laurie ran into his arms. No matter what obscure reason had brought her here she was overwhelmingly glad now that she had come.

THE STORY: Laurie French, engaged to be married in October, runs away to Indiana to see her father. Her father and mother are estranged and Laurie has been brought up in New York City. Four years ago Laurie visited Indiana and met Steve Wysons, a young friend of her father's.

Laurie French awakened early that first morning in Ridgeville, despite the fact that she and her father and Bruno had talked until the wee small hours before Bruno started back to Capitol City.

As she opened her eyes the dawn was just beginning to tint the pink streamers of light into the sky. A soft cool May breeze plucked at the sprigged chintz drapes and bore a flowery fragrance into the room, mingled with the dank wet smell of the river. Somewhere a rooster crowed insistently and a dog began to bark. The dog was probably Steve's hunting dog Cass. Wasn't it silly she should remember a dog's name after all this time?

She began to think about Steve Wysons as she lay there. She had felt an odd stir of excitement when she had seen him yesterday, and she felt it again now.

A NEW DRINK FLAVOR DERIVED FROM REAL ORANGES. I LAURIE FRENCH awakened early that first morning in Ridgeville, despite the fact that she and her father and Bruno had talked until the wee small hours before Bruno started back to Capitol City. She began to think about Steve Wysons as she lay there. She had felt an odd stir of excitement when she had seen him yesterday, and she felt it again now. Presently she threw back the covers and got out of the warm bed and padded in her bare feet to the window. The sun would soon be up. She could catch the river smell more strongly now and hear the rush of water over the riffle. Another sound floated up the hill, echoing faintly, the sound of metal striking wood and the clinking of a chain. That would be Steve getting his boat out to go up the river and run his lines before the mist rose from the river. On sudden impulse Laurie opened one of her suitcases and rummaged in it, bringing out a pair of pale blue shorts, a white shirt monogrammed in blue and some blue rope sandals. Her hands

Ranger Royal Neighbors Attend District Convention In Graham

Nineteen members of the Ranger Royal Neighbors Camp No. 9554 were in Graham October 16 to attend the district convention and banquet. The call to order was given by Myrtle Long followed by the presentation of the flag, introduction of officers and presentation of corsages. The invocation was given by Mrs. Ethel Wright of the Ranger Camp.

Mark E. Jones Jr., vice-president of the Graham Chamber of Commerce, gave the welcoming address and Maude Marlow of Abilene gave the response. During the business meeting, the resolution and finance committees were appointed and one Ranger woman, Mrs. Leona Arterburn, will serve on the finance committee.

Following lunch, the Wichita Falls Camp seated the new officers and the Breckenridge Camp initiated six new members. It was announced that the next district meeting would be held in Abilene in April.

New district officers installed were: president, Eunice Myrick of Abilene; vice president, Mary Kelly of Breckenridge; Chancellor, Laura Todd of Ranger; reporter, Adella Frasier of Abilene; marshal, Betty Reese of Graham; and the flag bearer, Ruby Bell of Graham.

1920 Club Meets Thursday At 3

Members of the Ranger 1920 Club met Thursday afternoon at the Community Club House with Mrs. C. R. Pruet as chairman. During the business meeting, reports were heard from the standing committees and members voted to extend an invitation to the county federation to meet in Ranger November 15. Mrs. Pruet was elected as a delegate to the state convention in Austin, November 10-13.

You Can't Beat The High Cost of Feeding By Using Cheap Quality Feed!

You will find that a half-cent per pound doesn't make up for difference in quality.

"Red Chain Superior Feed" is tops in the field. Ask those who use it... they have proved it.

Cottonseed cake, meal and mixed hulls, range cubes for cattle and sheep. Feeders supplies, seed and fertilizer.
