FARM NEWS

Drought problems face virtually every farmer in Oklahoma and Texas and many city dwellers as well. How well they are met will determine how long it will take the area to recover economically after the rains come.

An unusual drought problem is being tackled in southwestern Oklahoma, where federal agencies are working on a set of regulations governing the grazing of cattle on the Fort Sill artillery ranges.

The grazing program on the military reservation may involve so much red tape that farmers will find they can better afford to buy hay and keep their cattle at home where they can give the stock personal attention.

The Army has set aside 11,000 acres for the grazing program. Nine thousand acres will be available until next June 1, and the remainder until March 1.

The Corps of Engineers district office at Tulsa must decide how many head of livestock can subsist on the acreage, and how the grazing rights should be divided among stockmen of Cotton, Tillman, Kiowa, Caddo, Grady and Comanche counties.

PMA officials at Lawton are trying to organize some sort of cooperative herding program. Water will have to be hauled to the herds.

Dr. D. H. Ricks, head of the Oklahoma Board of Agriculture veterinary division, said Thursday livestock parasites are due to take a heavy toll during the next few or five months because of the shortage of good winter pastures.

"A good many livestock owners blame death losses and weight losses, as well as lower milk production, on disease when the source of the trouble actually is external and internal parasites and malnutrition," Ricks said.

"In periods when good feed is scarce and our pastures are poor, losses from parasites increased to a marked degree."

Mrs. Wolnitzek Laid To Rest At Bellville

Funeral services for Mrs. Alvin Wolnitzek of Corpus Christi, daughter of Mrs. D. J. Veale of Ranger, were held recently at the Pete Atlinger Funeral Chapel, in Bellville, with a large number of friends attending the rites.

The Rev. Henry Gottschalk officiated and interment was in Oak Knoll Cemetery there. Serving as pallbearers were Henry Vogelpohl, G. E. Bader, M. I. Mellmuth, Herbert Schumann, Lawrence Dittert and Sheriff Marcus Steck.

Mrs. Wolnitzek died at 12:10 a.m. Monday, Oct. 20, in Corpus Christi, after an illness of two months. She was 44 years of age.

Hubbies Hunt For Wives They Once Married

Far too many wives fall flat on their faces when it comes to showing their mates any real understanding or appreciation, Marjorie Holmes says in the November Reader's Digest. Her article "What Became of the Girl I Married?" is condensed from Better Homes & Gardens. It considers the other side of her article "What Became of the Man I Married?"

"It may be true that husbands all too often take love for granted," Miss Holmes concedes in the current piece, "but women too often take for granted the responsibilities men assume for them." She points out that a man becomes an economic slave the minute he signs the marriage license. The trouble is that women are not realistically prepared for marriage. "Many a wife, instead of accepting her quite human but often quite wonderful husband for what he is, remains stubbornly in love with the Prince of the fairy tales. And she will shove, shame, weep, plead, connive and nag her bewildered partner in impossible attempts to fit him into that mold."

She urges wives in love with their own misery to write themselves a letter listing their own faults and their husbands' virtues. The result should make them more appreciative and hence more loving wives.

New Bulletin On Sorghums Is Available

Grain sorghums now rank as the state's most important grain producing crop and second only to cotton in total acre planted. An average of 6,835,000 acres were planted annually during the period from 1940-1949. Nearly 4,000,000 acres were planted for grain and the remainder for forage, including silage. The average annual production for the past five years has been about 90 million bushels.

As an aid to grain sorghum producers and others interested in the crop, the agronomists for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at College Station have recently prepared and released a bulletin on "Growing Grain Sorghums." Copies are now available at county extension offices.

Included in the bulletin are discussions on varieties, seed, chemical seed treatment, land preparation, planting, use of fertilizers, cultivation, irrigation, harvesting, diseases and storage. The bulletin in reality is a handbook on grain sorghum production.

The specialists have used the research findings of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in preparing the bulletin and especially acknowledge the assistance given by L. E. Karper and N. W. Kramer, agronomists at the Lubbock Substation.

Those interested in securing a copy of the publication should ask their local county agent for B-210, Growing Grain Sorghums.

More Hogs Are Needed In State.

An economic appraisal of hog production and pork consumption in Texas has just been published by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at College Station. Authors are John A. Kincannon and John G. McNeely, and the study was published as Bulletin 749.

While Texas does not produce enough animals to fill our need for pork products, yet the state ranks ninth nationally in hog production. Cash income to Texas farmers from sales of hogs amounted to more than 63 million dollars in 1950, the study reports.

Hogs are produced over all of Texas but the greatest concentration was found in the principal grain-producing areas. Farm and commercial slaughter of Texas hogs falls short of supplying the needs of the state's growing population. Annually thousands of live hogs and millions of pounds of pork products are shipped into Texas from other states to meet this demand.

Bulletin 749 shows the amounts of imports and the comparative prices paid for hogs in Texas and out-of-state markets. A summary is given on the present situation and possible adjustments in the future are indicated.

Eight Important WTCC Highway Meetings Begin

Eight important meetings of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce (WTCC) Highway Policy Committee will be held in a series of eight meetings in West Texas November 6 to 17, under auspices of local chambers of commerce and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the WTCC announced today.

The meetings were suggested by the WTCC Highway Policy Committee, which is headed by Virgil P. Patterson of Amarillo. The schedule follows: November 6, Lubbock; November 6, Amarillo; November 7, Wichita Falls; November 10, Monahans; November 12, Del Rio; November 13, Brownwood; November 14, Fort Worth; November 17, Abilene.

citizens are invited to take part in the conferences. He suggested they contact chambers of commerce of the host cities if they plan to attend.

James F. Melton, manager of the WTCC taxation and legislation department, will present a summary of contents of a pamphlet issued by the Highway Policy committee that contains an exhaustive analysis of needs for all types of roads, and financial problems they create.

The committee is confining its work to conducting an educational program. It will make a report of West Texas' needs to Governor Shivers. It will make no recommendations as to financing of construction and maintenance or division of funds between types of roads.

Schools Pushing Conservation of State Wildlife

As adult Texans surge ahead with the fall game harvest, the state's youngsters are probing into wildlife and its part in modern civilization for the answers to the need for wildlife conservation.

The eagerness for information and understanding in this field, according to the Director of Conservation Education and Departmental Publications for the Game and Fish Commission, is being expressed through the great number of requests for literature each month and the demand for consultants to interpret technical information to the classroom.

"Within another generation," he said, "at least a greater number of the persons sharing in the wildlife harvest will understand how wildlife populations are produced and maintained, and as a result will have a conservation attitude toward natural resources and practice desirable habits in relation to their use.

The director said the trend toward recognizing the importance of conserving natural resources has been marked by a tremendous response by school administrators and teachers in all areas of learning and in all stages of curriculum development.

"We are producing and distributing wildlife literature and providing consultant services in the technical field of conservation education," he said. "It is a constantly changing picture since there is yet a wide variety of opinions as to best procedures for educating the young in this important subject.

"But it is a universal effort. Approaches to this vital subject are being developed in many languages. The real with which the challenge is being accepted is much the same in other states, in Europe, in Africa, South America and Asia as it is in Texas. The human race is fast becoming cognizant of the continuous depletion of natural resources generally; all are aware of the problem posed by the uptrend in population and the difficulty of harmonizing social progress with production from the land and the other natural resources.

Soviets May Blast US With Rocket Bombers

On Stalin's personal order Soviet scientists are now pressing to finish a super rocket bomber with which Hitler once hoped to destroy New York and other vital U. S. centers. For the first time in America, it is revealed how this demonic weapon is planned to perform, in a recent issue of a national publication. The danger appears real, reports the magazine.

"We must work on this—fast!" The words were Stalin's. The place: the Kremlin. The time: late '45. The subject: the most astounding weapon devised by Nazi scientific skill—a super rocket bomber to encircle the globe, dropping its bomb loads and returning to base within 4 hours.

The Russians never caught up with Dr. Saenger. Persuasion failed. So did a kidnapping attempt when the intended kidnaper, Col. Tokajev, deserted to London.

Now Dr. Saenger works, carefully protected, on secret government rocket projects in France. But the Russians have other German scientists to help them. And they have a 376-page book full of drawings, tables and formulas, titled, "Ueber einen Raketenantrieb fuer Fernbomber" ("On a Rocket Motor for Long Range Bombers"). This paper-bound book was one of Hitler's highest secrets. It made Stalin act the moment he saw it. It lists complete construction and theoretical performance data for a stupendous rocket bomber—the result of 7 years' work by Saenger and a dozen engineers, aided by 50 technicians, in the research station at Trauen, Northern Germany. Most important result was plan and calculations for a new rocket motor, burning a mixture of oil, beryllium dust and polyisobutylene. Greatest problem was cooling the combustion chamber. Solution: Water, in continuous coil system, turning into steam of 600 degrees centigrade (the steam driving a turbine injecting fuel at high pressure). The steam would be condensed back into water by liquid oxygen of 185 degrees temperature.

The bomber would start off on a separate, ground-level, rocket-driven sled. The sled carries the bomber beyond the speed of sound before any of its own fuel is expended. In a hypothetical attack upon Sydney, Australia (10,000 miles from Germany), the bomber would burn 87 metric tons of fuel in 348 seconds, to reach a height of 63 miles at 16,200 mph. Then it would glide, releasing 3 tons of bombs from a 30-mile height, while still 687 miles from target. The 25,000-mile round-trip trip would take 13,060 seconds—less than 4 hours. Saenger describes this flight in precise detail, also denotes probable effect of rocket bomber attacks upon New York City (target point near Broadway and 14th Street, destruction from Battery to Central Park, with effect heightened over conventional bombardments by the bomb's high-speed impact).

Is Saenger's rocket bomber feasible? A leading German rocket expert, now aiding U. S. research, thinks it is. He is ex-Gen. Walter Dornberger, now working for Bell Aircraft, who was in charge of Hitler's V-2 project (a job corresponding to that of Gen. Leslie Groves in early U. S. A-bomb development). Says Dornberger: "Saenger must definitely be taken seriously. He has a first class scientific mind with the capacity for vision, even phantasy, of the first class scientist. His wife, who worked on the report with him, is a fact-minded mathematician, with her feet on the ground. They're quite a pair."

Dornberger—and other German top scientists—received Saenger's report in November '44. By then Hitler had halted the project, thinking that it would take 5 years to produce the first rocket bomber, and U. S. and Soviet forces were closing in. "This rocket bomber should take no less than 10-12 years to develop, with Russia's entire resources behind it," Dornberger believes. (He adds that after World War II the Russians presumably centered their industrial effort upon air defense, in fear of U. S. atomic attack. But other sources report the rocket bomber—as a prime Soviet aim now.) Dr. Dornberger believes that all 100 copies of the Saenger report were destroyed, except 2 sent to the Focke-

What's the Use of an Abstract—

... if it doesn't cure the title? is another puzzling question to some abstracters, but we have never worried much about this one. Neither does the doctor's prescription cure human ills in all cases, but it may help. The abstract never was designed to cure anybody's title, but the better type of abstract will reveal the condition of the title and place it in position where it may be perfected, if necessary, by the examining attorney.

DOG OF TODAY GETS EXPERT MEDICAL, NUTRITIONAL CARE

The dog is no longer leading a "dog's life," thanks to advances made in various fields of medicine and nutrition.

Man's best friend can now have a standard of living equal to man's.

All this is not news to the approximately 22 million dogs in this country. And not only is the dog's life safer and healthier today, but his life expectancy has increased, just as man's has. While no official statistics are available, most experts feel that if a pup survives the disease hazards of the first year, and is not run down by an automobile, he can look forward to a ripe old age of 11 to 12 years. Less than a decade ago, his life expectancy was only seven or eight years.

Let's speculate for a minute on what has happened to place Old Dog Tray in such a preferred position. Specifically, great advances have been made in preventive and therapeutic medicines, in animal hospitals and personnel, and in nutrition.

In no other aspect of veterinary medicine have medical advances and preventives been developed more rapidly than in the field of canine practice.

At a giant veterinary laboratory in Pearl River, N. Y., there is a special section devoted to researching and solving the various disease problems which make the dog's life hazardous and unpleasant. Out of this research have come some of the latest drugs for preventing and combating canine diseases.

One of these is a highly effective vaccine against distemper, most serious common disease in dogdom. Regardless of how well you treat your pooch, or how purebred he is, he is still susceptible to this virus-caused disease unless properly protected. There was a time when distemper killed more dogs than any other disease combined, but thanks to this new immunizing vaccine the picture is changing.

Rabies, the one-time horror of this

Wulf plant. But he was not surprised that the Russians have a copy also. "I know that reports of my interrogation on guided missiles were turned over to the Russians. This was in '45, under exchange of information arrangements existing then. I wondered about that, but all Americans told me there was no chance of war with Russia."

Other sources insist the Russians seized their copy of the Saenger report in the ruins of the Nazi Air Ministry, after they had conquered Berlin, reports the magazine.

The "wonder-drugs" developed for use in human diseases are also playing an important role in elevating the dog's health standards. The sulfa drugs, penicillin, and aureomycin are used for external and internal infections. An antibiotic developed by the firm for combating filariasis, a serious tropical disease which infects hundreds of millions of people, is being used by the veterinarian to combat heartworms and large roundworms in dogs.

Surprising developments have occurred in the animal hospital field. There are about 2,500 animal hospitals today equipped to take care of 10 or more animals. The latest official listing reveals that there are about 13,000 licensed veterinarians in this country.

A visit to one of these animal hospitals will startle the average layman. Many of them are better equipped than human hospitals, and since the standards of the veterinary profession are so high, many dog doctors are as well trained as human doctors. A sick dog today may get a thorough examination, including X-rays, blood test, heart test, diet test, and in fact, almost every test a human would get. At the first sign of pneumonia or other respiratory infection, many vets will prescribe the antibiotic "wonder drug" aureomycin for your dog.

All this fine care for dogs may seem silly to some people, but there is this to consider: with proper care, you may have the companionship of your dog a few years longer than was possible in the past. Children who grow up with a friendly dog can really appreciate this.

Car Thefts Up 21 Per Cent In Past Two Years

The hot car racket is called the fastest growing criminal enterprise in America, in an article appearing in the November Reader's Digest.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is quoted by the writer, Fred J. Cook, as reporting that auto thefts have increased 21 per cent in two years to a current average of 540 a day.

Mr. Cook says two factors are largely responsible: The high price of cars and the prevalence of the kind of money that shuns traceable business records. Rings operating across state borders include salesmen who take orders for specific models; thieves who cruise city streets looking for the required make, year, and color; mechanics who replace or alter the identifying serial number on the motor, and innocent dealers and drivers who ferry the car to its distant market. Yet 92 per cent of stolen cars are recovered.

Mr. Cook credits cooperation among highway patrolmen, local police, the FBI and the National Auto Theft Bureau of the insurance industry for this record.

"A few simple rules for the guidance of the motoring public are stressed by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover," Mr. Cook writes.

"Don't leave your car unlocked or the ventilator windows unlatched, even for the briefest time. Don't park for extended periods on dark streets. Don't leave furs or other valuables in your car as an invitation to larceny. Don't leave the registration in the glove compartment, thus simplifying matters for the thief. Make an identifying mark in your car, either by dropping a business card down a window panel or by scratching your initials in an inconspicuous place.

"Be suspicious of a bargain. Ask for more than a transfer of title; insist on getting the original bill of sale. Deal with a reputable firm. Get your own mechanic to check the motor number for signs of tampering."

D. D. IS DISC JOCKEY

Methods Must Aid Machines, Specialist Says

Only if your methods keep pace with your machines can you get full value from them. Labor-saving equipment for homemakers may require a change in habits for old ones may handicap or even harm new equipment.

Mrs. Bernice Clayton, home management specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at College Station says instruction books supplied with new appliances usually provide the homemaker information on the use, care and repair of the machines.

For example, in using a washer

the homemaker can make a poor washing job and strain the machine if she overloads it, uses the wrong detergent or does not measure the detergent. Another example of habits which some homemakers may still have is the use of bleach regularly even though these are hard on fabrics and unnecessary, if washers are used correctly. Soap may even continue to boil clothes to whiten them as grandmother did and thus offset the time and labor-saving advantages of the machine.

One old tradition worth banishing when a new washer comes into the house is the weekly wash-day. Some authorities think a more efficient way is to spread the washing through the week, doing one load instead of four or five a day. Besides not taxing the hot water supply this method has other advantages. The specialists says many mothers have found that by washing more often, their children need fewer clothes and less frequent washings saves clothing expense and closet space.
