PRICE FIVE CENTS No. 105

MODESTY — A Texan walked into a New York night club and saw a customer slide helplessly from the bar stool. "Give me some of that," he said.

The slang expression — "two bits" — means 25 cents in American money. For the benefit of the females in our audience, it came to us from the West Indies where they used Spanish dollars (also called pieces of eight). Dollars there were cut into eight parts or "bits," each worth twelve and one-half cents in exchange for American money. . . . Ralph Gay, up from Austin over the weekend to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Gay, is scheduled to graduate from College of Pharmacy of the University of Texas this coming May. Young Gay, an honor student at TU, is a graduate of Ranger High School and Ranger Junior College. The Rangerite recently received this note from Henry M. Burlage, dean: "This short note is to extend my congratulations to you for having attained the honor roll in the College of Pharmacy with honors for the fall semester of the 1952-53 long session. I hope that you will continue to maintain such fine scholastic achievement" . . . For the information of his friends, here's the address of a new Army recruit: Pvt. Claude Madrin Huffman, US 5417088, Company D, 10th Medical Tank Battalion, 5th Armored Division, Camp Cheffee, Ark. He's in his basic training

NOT INJURED—Gov. Val Peterson, Administrator of Federal Civilian Defense, checks one of the dummies stationed in a test car near the atomic test site at Yucca Flat. The car, a Cadillac, had its roof caved in but the dummy was not "injured," the roof missing "her" head by a scant margin.

Last Rites For Cisco Woman This Afternoon

Funeral services for Miss Effie Jane Moore, 68-year-old retired postal worker and resident of Cisco for 45 years, were held this afternoon at 2 p. m. at the First Baptist Church in Blossom.

The Rev. Metzer of Hooks, Tex., officiated, and interment was in Knights of Honor Cemetery at Blossom.

Miss Moore died in a Cisco hospital early Wednesday morning following a brief illness.

Miss Moore came to Cisco in 1908 from Weatherford. She was born at Blossom, Lamar County, Aug. 5, 1884. In 1910 she began teaching in Cisco public schools and taught until 1919.

In January, 1920 she began working in the Cisco postoffice and held her position there until she retired in August, 1946. Miss Moore was an active worker in the First Baptist Church, where she taught a Sunday School class for many years, and is a former member of the 29th Century Club.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. J. H. Ragdale, Blossom; Mrs. Fielding Lee, Colorado City; and Miss Gertrude Moore, Cisco, and one brother, Rex Moore, Cisco.

MRS. S. E. SNODGRASS, LIVELY LITTLE LADY OF 95, KEEPS YOUNG IN DESDEMONA HOME

Mrs. S. E. Snodgrass, in many ways, is one of the most remarkable women in West Texas. First she has had more experience than every person in that area knows her. She has had more about 90 years of life to observe her 94th birthday, which comes in August of this year.

Mrs. Snodgrass is the widow of the late Dr. S. E. Snodgrass, who practiced medicine in Desdemona for more than half a century, and while he passed away along in the middle 30s, she has never seen fit to leave the old home place, according to her own statement, probably never will.

The writer made a special trip to Desdemona Monday afternoon, for the sole purpose of meeting this wonderful little lady. We had no trouble locating her home, for every person in that area knows her. We knocked on her door and looking through the glass we saw what we thought might be a woman in her sixties. To ourself we said "that's probably one of her daughters who looks after her."

We told the lady our name and our business, and asked if we might see Mrs. Snodgrass. Then we got the shock of our life when she said to us: "I am Mrs. Snodgrass." She invited us in and after we had been shown to a seat by this "young lady" we caught our breath, and remarked that it had been our opinion that she was an elderly lady about 90 years of age. "I am 95 now, will celebrate my 94th birthday in August." We could have fainted again, only didn't, for we were beginning to realize that we might need all our strength if other revelations should come from this fair lady.

We have interviewed presidents, governors and congressmen, but for the first time we felt a weakness—we didn't know what to ask her. Finally we regained consciousness and asked how long she had resided in Desdemona. "About 73 years," she replied. "The doctor and I moved here from Waco, immediately after our marriage." For a time they resided on their farm just north of town, but as the doctor's practice continued to grow it became necessary for the couple to move into town, though she says she really loved the farm home.

As we watched her walk about the room in a very graceful manner, we wondered how a person 96 years old could walk about with the greatest of ease. She is not stooped, but almost as straight as the proverbial Indian, and her voice sounds as though she might be 26 rather than 96 years of age. As a matter of fact she could pass for 60 to 65 anywhere.

Another thing we noted was the clearness of her mind. She was on the alert all the time we were there, answering questions and giving out information, and her mind appeared to be clear as that of a 16-year-old girl.

We knew she was a Christian from the very expression on her face. Finally we asked her about church affiliation, and she admitted that she was a Methodist, and had been for most of her life. This was good, but we figured a woman of her age had probably

Farmers Busy Result Recent General Rains

Farmers in most sections of the county are now getting their land ready for planting. The present season is fair, and it is possible there is enough moisture in the ground to bring up crops.

Corn should be in the ground, it is said, and while some farmers grown corn, it is not what we might term a leading crop. A visit over the south half of the county revealed the fact that considerable rain has been received during recent weeks, and that grain crops look fairly well. However, because of the lack of feed many individuals are now grazing these grain fields. Cattle look well, and pastures are beginning to get green.

In the peanut area most of the land has been prepared, but farmers are awaiting the time to plant. The same may be said with reference to cotton farmers.

Wreck Victims Out Of Danger; One Dismissed

Mrs. Wilson Keyes of Abilene, who was injured in a car crash earlier this week, has been dismissed from the Eastland Memorial hospital and has returned to her home in Abilene.

H. W. Seay and C. W. Funderburg, both of Olden, who were in the same wreck, are still in the hospital, but are doing nicely and will be dismissed within a day or so.

Muddy and wet pavement has been given as the cause for the wreck, in which three cars figured. The wreck occurred at a point about two miles east of Eastland.

Candidate For Mayor At Cisco Quits Tuesday

H. V. Kirby, one of the three Cisco men who had announced their candidacy for mayor in elections to be held April 4, announced Tuesday he has withdrawn from the race.

Kirby said he felt many vital issues face the city in the next two years and the post needs a man with more experience in government.

Area Farmers And Ranchmen Urged To Attend

A proposed silage program for the Ranger area is slated for discussion and probable action during a special meeting to be held at the office of the Chamber of Commerce in Ranger Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. Morris Newnam, chairman of the chamber's agriculture committee, announced late Wednesday.

Newnam and members of his committee meets with area farmers and ranchmen who are interested in the program which was initially discussed early in January.

The program, as planned by the local C of C committee, would be aided by purchase of an ensilage cutter which would be loaned to farmers and ranchmen interested in participation in the silage plan. Purpose of the program, Newnam said, is to encourage the building of trench or upright silos for storing feed. A bulldozer would be used for digging the trench silos.

J. M. Cooper, Eastland County agricultural agent, recently pointed out that the increase of dairy activity in this section is placing more and more emphasis on feed storage problems.

A delegation of Rangerites recently visited the Gainesville area in Cook County where a county-wide silage program is reported operating in a highly successful and profitable manner.

In addition to Newnam, chairman, other members of the agriculture committee of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce include F. T. Smith, Lee Eowhart, James W. Ratliff, L. H. Hagaman, T. C. Wayne, H. G. Adams, J. D. Johnson and John Tibbitts.

All ranchmen and farmers interested in the chamber's proposed silage program are urged to attend the important Friday night session at the Chamber of Commerce in Ranger, R. V. (Rip) Galloway, secretary-manager, said today.

And this interesting wordage about an Eastland Countian — Joseph A. Slicker of Cisco—appeared in a recent edition of The Dallas Morning News:

A former petroleum engineer who has helped repair numerous sick oil fields throughout the Southwest has arrived in Dallas to embark on a new career as a minister.

He is husky, six-foot Joseph A. Slicker of Cisco, fresh from Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Austin with the Bachelor of Divinity Degree.

The Dallas Presbytery, U. S. church court, has appointed 32-year-old Slicker to help organize a new church of the denomination. The new church will be located at 9999 Ferguson, northeast of the Casa Linda section of White Rock.

As a petroleum engineer, Slicker's job was to figure out how to revive sick oil fields that

XXXII

DOLLY DUMONT came downstairs that noon, for the first official time since her trouble. She was subdued, a trifle sheepish, and cold sober. But everyone, particularly Eve Wheeler, did his best to put her at ease. And Eve's stock, already high with me, climbed a couple more points.

The sight of Cravath, mingling on occasion with his prospective executioner, didn't help either. In fact, during one especially weak moment, I even made an attempt to call the whole dangerous scheme off.

I drew Cravath aside around 4 o'clock. "I'm getting cold feet," I said. "After all, who am I to suggest that you risk your life?"

He shook his head emphatically. "None of that now! Last night you sold me on the idea that it's the only way to get this fellow, and I'm still buying it. Everything's set. I spoke to Jack this morning, told him what you told me to tell him, and he understands what he's to do."

I did a little arguing, but it was half-hearted. But I had two more jobs to do before the zero hour. One was routine—just to look over the ground. I got away after my little talk with Cravath and confirmed it. The evergreen I remembered was there, all right, squat, thick, spreading. It would give me cover.

The other job? I went back toward the house by a circuitous route, trying to look like a man with nothing on his mind. Actually, my brain whirled and I had to make an effort to keep from breaking into a run.

I had tried to foresee how the murderer would act, now that he had learned about the plans for tonight. Sometime during the day, he would have to visit the attic. It was dangerous, with a good chance that he might be caught in a position which would have been highly difficult for him to explain.

But that chance he would have to run. For the last 50 yards of my walk back to the house, on the way to confirm an absolutely vital point, I'm afraid that I didn't look much like a man with nothing on his mind.

Provisionally, I did not encounter any interference. I slipped up to the third floor unobserved, went past the servants' quarters. I twisted an unresisting knob and entered the attic.

My heart pounded like something gone crazy as I hurried down that long cluttered loft-like room. Then I was yanking the chest out from under the eaves, falling over it in a belly-flop. Another was gone.

Window-killer was set to strike again.

MARSTON CRAVATH must have had steel fibers for nerves. And he might have made a very fair actor. You would never have suspected, from his deportment that evening, that around midnight he was scheduled to put his life on the spot.

At 11 o'clock he yawned behind a hand steady as Gibraltar and announced that he was ready for bed.

Dumont and Sladen had spent the evening playing billiards, up to the 10 o'clock drink. They'd joined the rest of us then in the living room, where I'd tried to concentrate on a novel while the canasta went on. My efforts had been lamentable.

I certainly envied Cravath and there was awe in the envy. Maybe, I thought, being to the manor born made some guys magnificent. Put them above the rest; in a class by themselves. But, however he'd been born, Marney Cravath was tops this night. A gent I wanted on my side, every time out.

And so we went through the motions, of the occupants of a great house about to retire. We drifted upstairs, leisurely, quietly—just seven supposedly nice people calling it a day.

One of the seven wasn't as nice even as a rattlesnake. I timed my ascent of the stairs with Cravath's. Despite his superb display, I was still leery. The man must have had qualms, doubts.

The best I could do was catch his eye, as we parted to go to our respective rooms. Marston Cravath grinned at me, before turning away. He was actually enjoying this.

In my own room I wasted no time. I peeled off my fancy dinner-clothes, got into the darkest slacks I owned and a black sweater. I slipped a businesslike 32 I kept for emergencies into my hip pocket and picked up a flashlight.

THERE WASN'T any difficulty about leaving the house. I stepped out into a welter of moonlight. The moon was really hiding. On the verge of putting my plan into execution, it had seemed to me to be flimsy and inadequate, and the article of precaution I had chosen seemed equally flimsy. But I had no better idea and no better preventative article. These, I thought, would have to do. So I set forth aware of gooseflesh starting to rise on my arms and shoulders in positive bumps.

I reached my car, having kept in shadow as much as I could on the way to it. The car was pulled aside on the grass, at the top of the little embankment down which the driveway to the garage slanted.

I unlocked my car with a shaking hand. The other hand shook as well, when I had to use both to haul the thing out. Now that I had it, the accessory appeared fragile, unsubstantial for the job I expected to do. It seemed to have one virtue.

The light green color of it, still a little sticky, and coming off on my hands, should blend inconspicuously with the work of the moonlight. Then I went to the Peacock Path.

Bob Revel is home now to stay, he says. The family has kept the home fire burning while he worked in West Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Strickler and Johnny Mac of Fort Worth, spent the week-end here with his mother, Mrs. J. P. Strickler and other relatives. They stated that Clanton, the older son, is stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station for his basic training.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Rogers and children went to the Jack Revel home following church service Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Freeman had as their guests, Bennett Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Charles House of Houston, and Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Huttrel of Lometa. Baker is an uncle of B. E. Freeman and brother of Mrs. J. H. Freeman.

Waterfowl Zone Plan Showing Big Expansion

The Executive Secretary of the Game and Fish Commission reported progress for the plan to zone the annual waterfowl harvest according to climate rather than by state lines.

The observation was made on his return from Washington where he presided at a meeting of the National Waterfowl Council of which he is chairman. This session preceded the annual North American Wildlife Conference.

The Executive Secretary said it was significant that the Waterfowl Council, which comprises representatives of the four flyway areas reflected further responsibility as a counseling medium and as a workhorse to aid in the United States Wildlife Service which sets seasons and establishes regulations.

The revolutionary plan to set hunting zones, placing the larger states like Texas in more than one zone, was endorsed by the Waterfowl Council last year. Texas has long contended that, since its vast boundaries involve such climatic extremes, separate seasons should be provided for the north and south stocks enhances the plan's chances.

The Executive Secretary said he expects no immediate authorization of the proposal but he believes its ultimate adoption is certain. He added that the present healthy condition of waterfowl stocks enhances the plan's chances.

He said sentiment in Washington seems to be to perpetuate waterfowl harvest regulations as to shooting hours, baiting and other basic regulations and to effect the annual adjustments of numbers of waterfowl to be killed through shorter or longer seasons, and smaller or larger bag limits.

Natural Gas Tax Would Solve Our Money Problems

"By passing a fair and adequate tax on natural gas, the Texas Legislature can meet all the financial problems of this state without hurting a single person", Rep. George T. Hinson of Mineola declared in Austin this week.

"It now is clear that this Legislature must raise additional revenue if we are to do our duty by the schools, the tubercular and insane asylums, our road program, and other essential state functions. We must raise this revenue through an adequate tax on natural gas," he asserted.

Rep. Hinson at the last session of the Legislature was one of the most active leaders of the group which fought for a natural gas tax as a source of money with which to carry on the state's farm-to-market road program.

"To meet our obligations for roads, teacher pay, old age pensions, state hospitals and special schools and other worthy causes, we must raise more money.

"We have four ways in which this can be done. We can tax property, we can levy a sales tax, we can put a fair tax on our natural resources such as natural gas," Hinson pointed out.

"I strongly favor a fair tax on natural gas. Governor Shivers, in his first message to the Legislature, said that if we needed additional money, we should get it from a tax on natural gas pipelines. Now is the time for us to levy such a tax.

"The greatest part of our natural gas is being shipped out of Texas to be burned in the homes and factories of Connecticut, California, Mexico, Canada, and most other states. A large quantity of our gas is being stored underground in those states for future use. We are not getting a fair tax on this natural gas now," Hinson declared.

"We ought to give the property owner a breathing spell. As long as our nation stands, property will be here to tax. The same is true of sales and income. We can always tax them. But this is not true of our precious natural resources.

"These resources are being used up at an alarming rate. Railroad Commissioner Bill Murray testified in court that our natural gas might be exhausted in about 15 years. When this gas is gone, there just won't be any more. Therefore, we must tax it now, or forever miss the opportunity to do so.

"A fair tax on natural gas should be a major function of this Legislature. By levying such a fair gas tax, we can meet all the state's financial needs, and at the same time, let more of the tax be paid by people in other states and foreign countries who are burning our natural gas. Now is the time for us to act, and I hope the people of Texas will let their legislators know their views on natural gas taxes," Hinson asserted.

There's Economy in These Beef Cuts

Surveys show that the average homemaker makes use of less than 30 per cent of the scores of available meat cuts. Since price per pound is affected by this demand for a comparatively few cuts, it is evident that she is overlooking many cuts that would help to stretch her meat dollar. Because meat is the center of the meal and is important in the food budget, it is of distinct advantage to be familiar with as many cuts as possible. The above chart presents a graphic picture of less-demanded beef cuts and their origin. The shaded areas, representing 50 per cent of the carcass, are sources of these lesser-known cuts. Unshaded areas provide the cuts in most popular demand. In addition to their price advantage, the less-demanded cuts afford increased variety in the menu, and are as rich in nutritive value as the more demanded cuts.

cluding 14 sets of twins. The fact that almost all students wear Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) uniforms daily doesn't make matters easier. Oddly enough, many of the just-plain-brothers are more difficult to unscramble than the twins. For example, there are four Sullivan boys, two of whom are brothers from Toledo and the others twin from Columbus. Anthony, Paul and William Burns of Alliance could pass for triplets, but are merely brothers.

The only ones among the 97 whom professors are certain of are the Platts. They are twins, and no one knows one from the other, "but at least we know they're Platts," said Eugene Mittinger, registrar. One of the most puzzling structures in New England is the Old Stone Mill in Newport, R. I. Many theorize it was built by the Vikings who before Columbus discovered America, but other claim it was built as a windmill about 1675 to grind grain for the colonists.

A&M College May Open Doors To Texas Girls

Eventual success for his campaign to open the doors of Texas A&M to girl students was predicted here today by Sen. William T. Moore of Bryan.

Senator Moore, an Aggie exponent himself, reported that he had received tremendous support from all over the state, from Aggies and non-Aggies alike, for his proposal that the tax-supported college become co-educational. His resolution instructing the A&M Board of Directors to admit female students was defeated in the Senate, but Senator Moore said today that "the matter of admitting girls to A&M is not a closed issue by any means."

In support of his position, Senator Moore pointed out that "A&M is supported by taxpayers of both sexes and by the parents of children of both sexes."

"I think that, legally, a qualified female student would have to be admitted to the college, if one should apply," he explained. "And I have no doubt but that the day will come when that issue will be made."

The Senator, in whose district A&M is located, pointed out that the college offers some courses which cannot be obtained at any other school in the state. A&M's enrollment is declining and will continue to decline, the Senator declared, unless it becomes a co-educational institution.

"In my opinion, all the noise against the proposal is being made by people who think more of their memories than they do of our school's future and the future of our children," Senator Moore continued. "The professional Aggies, re-living their days of personal glory on the campus, want to sacrifice the future of this great

Officials at John Carroll University have run into a tough identification problem this year. There are 97 brothers enrolled, in-school for the sake of their own reminiscences. Actually, admission of girls to A&M "would not harm a single tradition, the Senator contended. The only result would be that the college would once again attract in a 1 e students and regain its standing in the higher education system of Texas.

Drought Hits Antelope Herd

The Executive Secretary of the Game and Fish Commission said negative reports are being received from far West Texas about the antelope herd.

He said the status of the fleet, two-toned animals has become so uncertain that the weather during the next six weeks may determine whether there will be an open season next fall.

The Big Bend country was restocked several years ago and the herds thrived to the extent that three successive open seasons were held, the last being in 1951.

Then the following dry weather weakened the herd and cut the reproduction rate. The Game Commission, at its July 1952 meeting, decided that while a limited harvest was possible, it would be wiser to close the season altogether for 1952.

Lately, unfavorable reports have again been received because of the drought, according to the Executive Secretary. The antelope were described as running short of nourishment since the ranges have been blighted by a winter-long dry spell.

The executive secretary said that should the drought be broken shortly the natural food for the antelope probably would be restored in time to help the herd through the vital fawning season.

Meanwhile, he added, the small antelope herd in the Panhandle was reported thriving although there is some question as to whether it has attained sufficient size to warrant an open season.

and a different idea. She will never break up housekeeping, and she told them so. They are invited to live with her—all of them, but it will be in her home. A daughter and son-in-law reside with her at his time, and she admits that the on-in-law is one of the best men in the world, but she is still in her own home and fully capable of caring for herself if it should become necessary. She still helps with the housework, and can cook a meal as quickly as she did 75 years ago.

She plans to spend the balance of her days in Desdemona among friends, some of whom she has known for almost three quarters of a century. She has known Desdemona when it was a struggling village of one or two hundred people, and she has known it when it was a city of more than 30,000, during oil boom days.

Yes, she loves her home town and her friends, and will be one of them until she hears the final call.

More Livestock Is Sold — But Receipts Down

Texas producers sold more livestock during 1952 than in 1951 but their gross receipts were down 13 per cent. The lower average price for cattle was a major cause; however, according to C. H. Bates, farm management specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, other factors also helped cut the net returns to producers.

Feed supplies were short and the heavy expenditures for forage and concentrates "soaked-up" much of the $970 million received for livestock and livestock products during the past year, says Bates.

During recent years, he adds, about 62 percent of the farmers' gross income has been spent for operating expenses and when prices for livestock and related items were high, these costs were less painful. But, it is a different story today.

Since, says the specialist, feed purchases take a big chunk of the total income, this item may offer possibilities for savings. It is doubly important this year, he adds, because the cost of items used in production are not likely to drop in price.

Growing more of the needed feeds on the farm or ranch offers perhaps the best possibility for cutting costs. Of course, points out Bates, moisture conditions will have to change very materially in many areas of the state before plantings can be made. Here are his suggestions: increase plantings of high-yielding forage and grain crops; use supplementary pastures such as small grain, sudan and legumes where conditions permit; use fertilizers and soil renovation practices when practical and build the necessary fences to permit rotation grazing of pastures and fields.

And finally, says Bates, no livestock business can continue to be profitable without storage facilities for reserve feed supplies. One of the cheapest and best is the trench silo. Silage can be kept, if properly stored, for several seasons harvest season when prices are lowest. The same is true, says Bates, for either purchased or home grown grains.

It all adds up, he says, to good business management when adequate facilities are provided on the farm or ranch to store the reserve feed supplies needed. A conference with your local county agent, suggests Bates, may prove profitable for he can give tips on both production and storage problems.

Loan Sharks Are Gupping Texans

Many of the millions of dollars of which Texans are being gouged annually by loan shark companies go to the enrichment of out-of-state owners, declare members of the State Junior Bar anti-usury committee which is supporting an anti-loan shark amendment to the State Constitution.

A situation in which borrowers have to pay 200 per cent and more is indefensible even if the extortionate profits remained in Texas but is even more vicious when Texas citizens are maltreated for the benefit of a few residents of Georgia, Tennessee, Delaware, and other states who own loan company "chains."

President Tom Reavley of the State Junior Bar declares, "when the roll is called, I am confident that legislatures will line up for the welfare of our state and for the protection of its citizens."

Rep. Wm. Kugle of Galveston has introduced a constitutional amendment which would retain the 10 per cent maximum interest rate but would authorize the legislature to place a ceiling on all charges a borrower has to pay. This would permit legislation which has been found so effective in other states that it has driven the loan shark out of those states and into Texas.

Don't Expect Too Much' Is Couple's Advice

A couple that still likes to cuddle close after 68 years of married life advises newlyweds not to expect too much of each other.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hughes of Koscusko, Miss., have been together since Christmas night of 1884.

Mrs. Hughes, a very little woman with a big smile, said she promised herself when she was married that "I'm not going to let him be better to me than I am to him."

The two, who live on a modest farm home near here, have raised 10 children, and Mrs. Hughes made a promise to herself about the children, too.

"I used to say that no man would ever curse me because my girls didn't know how to cook and do other housework."

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes agree that children should be given little jobs to do at home.

"Raise children up to do nothing and the chances are that they won't do anything or amount to anything when they're grown," Hughes maintains.

They feel, too, that if you spank children "at the right time and in the right way, it will have the desired effect."

Parents today threaten too much and do too little," Mrs. Hughes said. "You've got to let children know you mean what you say."

But to get back to their advice that young married couples should not expect too much of each other.

"We're all human," Mrs. Hughes explained. "Nobody's right all the time," Hughes chimed in.

They have had their disagreements, but they never fight about them.

There are 26,000,000 females in Britain—over 1,500,000 more than the males. Below the age of 15, boys predominate.

They just remember that everyones human, and then try to out-do each other in being nice.

New Train Ticket Plan To Be Tried

A streamlined ticket operation, including the pre-printing of information usually written on tickets, will be tried out by New York Central at Cleveland, O., about April 1.

Besides pre-printing on the ticket specific accommodation, date and departure time, the installation will utilize a "reservation and availability" board that will tell both ticket office personnel and customers at a glance what accommodations are available on principal trains for several days.

Ticket sellers, reservation bureau and information bureau, now located in different parts of the terminal, will be brought into one central location. The procedure will eliminate the time-consuming telephone call from ticket seller to reservation bureau, with its numerous delays.

Ark. were active in the First Presbyterian Church. In the latter part of that year, he opened offices as a consulting petroleum engineer at Cisco.

Slicker definitely decided to become a minister after attending a lecture by Dr. George Buttrick, New York City, a clergyman, at a Presbyterian Church meeting at Sherman.

"I remember that Dr. Buttrick said then it was harder to repair a broken heart than an elevator. It seemed to me that I had spent all my life repairing sick oil fields and that now I should be pointing to Someone who could repair broken hearts.

"The Lord used that to put the squeeze on me."
 Slicker enrolled in the seminary in 1950. In 1942, he had been graduated from Texas A&M with Bachelor of Science degree in petroleum and mechanical engineering. Then he went into the Army as a second lieutenant and came out in 1945 as a major. He took part in the Iwo Jima invasion and many other Pacific battles during the war.

Did you ever take the wrong road out of an unfamiliar town and have to turn back to get on the right highway? If you have had this experience, were you a little bit stubborn about admitting to yourself and to others who might be riding with you that you were wrong and maybe even too stubborn to stop at a filling station to ask proper directions? If this has happened to you as it has to me, of course you lost time and effort.

My wife, Ruth, tells me that I depend too much on "dead reckoning" and not enough on highway signs. I usually figure that the man who made the map didn't know as much about the directions as I knew, and that probably the highway signs were incorrect any-men are due to strain carrying out ashes, he added.

 "Besides," he continued, "women are stronger anyway, as evidenced by their longer lives."

WOULD WELCOME INQUIRY—
 Charles F. Arnot, head of the State Department's International Press Service, said March 17 he would welcome a public inquiry by Senate investigators because "we've never had a chance to tell our story before."

way, it has always been a temptation to me to keep driving in the hope that a highway sign will appear showing that I am correct or that I will intersect the proper highway, and as a result, I would have cut through and saved time. My success at this has not been frequent.

What this leads up to is the Constitutional Amendment relative to the making of Treaties and Executive Agreements. There should be no "short-cuts" in arriving at Treaties and Agreements made by the president of the United States which have the effect of becoming the Supreme law of the land.

Legislation has been introduced in the Congress to amend the Constitution to prevent such action by the president which could deprive citizens of the country of their Constitutional rights.

Treaties are more supreme than ordinary laws passed by the Congress, since the laws we pass here in Washington are invalid if they do not conform to the Constitution. Treaties can take powers away from the Congress and give them to the president. Likewise, Treaties can take powers away from the states and give them to the federal government. In the case of certain actions in branches of the United Nations, Treaties or Agreements would take power away from this government and give them to some international body.

It is conceivable that such Treaties and Agreements made with foreign powers could completely nullify the provisions of state constitutions, state laws, state supreme court decisions, and federal laws, covering the same subjects as the Treaties cover.

The Supreme Court has held that Treaties and Agreements made with foreign powers by the president, even though not approved by Congress, could supersede the constitution and become the supreme law of the land.

It has been proven ever and over again that we cannot live in this world alone. We could not exist and maintain our present standards regardless of war without other nations of the world, but we should be very careful that no Treaties or Agreements made with foreign countries should ever deprive us of the precious rights guaranteed us under our constitution.

Therefore, it seems highly important that we take some action to amend our constitution to provide that in our dealings with other nations, we will not contract away our individual rights. A constitutional amendment is now proposed and, if passed by Congress, would be submitted to the state legislatures. It would be necessary for two-thirds of the states to ratify it to make it effective.

In my opinion, we have allowed some of these people running parts of the United Nations to get us in the wrong road. We have been desperate to achieve peace and prevent war, and I suppose have hesitated for fear of wrecking the United Nations to "shoot face" and come back to the main track. Unless this is done, I fear the United Nations may go the way of the League of Nations, and other efforts at world cooperation. If anything is any more serious, it is to allow ourselves to become a party to certain Socialist schemes for which we pay in both money and sacrifice of individual Constitutional rights.

The bill introduced is known as the Bricker Amendment. Hearings on this measure are now in progress in the Senate Judiciary Committee. I expect to support it in some form or other. I am opposed to the movement of World Federation and Atlantic Union. The actions of some of these branches of the United Nations result in
