

Unplanted Land Due To Drought Won't Penalize Area Farmers

Farmers who have not waived, according to an announcement by Jesse G. Meredith, Eastland County official, their 1964 cotton and peanut allotments due to extreme drought conditions or other conditions beyond their control may file written requests that the planting provisions be not later than Sept. 15, and peanut farmers must file by Nov. 1, Mr. Meredith said. Questions about the provision can be answered at his office. Feed grain farmers were reminded that in order to qualify for price support and diverted acreage payments, the feed grain base or permitted acreage may not be exceeded on any farm in which they have an interest. They must also be within their conserving base on participating farms, Mr. Meredith added.

Substitution between wheat and feed grain will be permitted for 1965 in order to give greater planting flexibility. Mr. Meredith said that it would be necessary to establish an oat-rye base for farms requesting substitution.

The 1965 Community Committee election will be held on Sept. 8. Nominations by petition are now being accepted through Aug. 19, it was reported.

Two ASCS employees, Mrs. Barbara Anderson and Mrs. Myrtle Aaron, were recently presented certificates and service pins. The presentations were made by L. F. Bain, Farmer Fieldman.

Members of the Disaster Committee met at 10 a.m. Tuesday and voted unanimously to ask State Disaster Group to reconsider their previous decision on the delay of the livestock feed program. A letter was prepared and (Continued on Page 6)

LL All-Stars Win Again!

Ranger's Little League All-Stars moved another notch down the glamour-paved trail to the state title at Lubbock Tuesday night when they handily humbled Iowa Park, 9-4.

The Ranger club opened the game with a three-run barrage in the top of the first, added another tally in the second for a 4-run lead. They scored a lone run in the fifth and exploded with four more in the top of the sixth to cinch the win.

Losing Iowa Park tallied one run in the bottom of the fourth and three more in the sixth.

Ranger scored its nine runs on 11 hits, was charged with three errors. Iowa Park chipped Ranger pitching for five hits and the losers committed three fielding miscues.

Roy Nix slammed out a solo homer in the fifth, and Victor Salazar hit a four-master in the sixth with no mates aboard.

Larry Williams did Ranger's pitching.

Grid Games Draw Fans

Two West All-Star schoolboy grid squads overpowered East All-Star foes in the state pigskin duels which climaxed the Texas Six and Eight-Man Coaching School held here last week.

The Friday and Saturday night cleat-and-moleskin classics were unreeled on the virgin turf of Ranger Junior College's new stadium.

A total of 3,500 area sports fans got their first excitement of the popular autumn sport a full month before popular old King Football is due to spryly mount his throne for a thrill-packed three-month reign.

Ranger Jr. College officials report attendance at Friday night's grid clash totaled 1,700 and the following night's gate was 1,800.

Lionel Granado Leads Six-Man Mates To Win

In the six-man West-East skirmish Friday night, the West hammered out a 36-14 triumph, piling up 14 points in the second quarter, 14 more in the third stanza and 8 in the final period.

The East struck first in the initial quarter while the winning West was held scoreless. But the rest of the way was really rough going for the Easterners who ran out of gas until the final quarter when they scored their second TD. A safety gave them two points in the third period.

In the opening quarter the East's Ken Pollar, Coolidge, arched a 32-yard payoff pass to Albert Spitzer of Morgan. The aerial capped a 42-yard march. Try for the points after touchdown, however, failed.

A twisting, hard-driving speedster, Lionel Granado of Fort Davis, half-back and the offensive standout for the West, set off the initial explosion. (Continued on Page 5)

Tandy Cocoran Pace Offense Of 8-Man West

The West All-Stars scored a lopsided 20-0 shutout over the East's game but outclassed pigskinners in an eight-man battle Saturday night.

Statistics tell the sad story: The West piled up 15 first downs to only 3 for the East, ripped up a total of 184 yards via the ground to a net 7 for the losers. It was strictly a terra firma struggle; neither squad had any air play.

The eight-man West began piling up their victory points in the opening quarter when Quarterback Alfred Quintels, Buena Vista, cruised around left end from the 3-yard stripe. Try for extra point was a fluke.

Neither team was able to get close to pay dirt in the scoreless second period, but as the seconds ticked away as the first half, the West had begun to roll. But the intermission caught them as they were hustling to set up a TD from the East's 7.

After the midway break, the West squad came back with a little more zip. But they couldn't get any scoring action going until time was running out in the third quarter. Taking over in midfield (Continued on Page 5.)

Ranger's Hawks Topple Baird '9'; Lose to S'Angelo

Ranger's Hawks, undefeated in 12 straight diamond duels, rained into the No. 13 jinx at Sweetwater Tuesday night when they were eliminated from the playoffs by a potent San Angelo nine, 8-5.

The Ranger team received a runner-up trophy.

Prior to their Tuesday night defeat, the Hawks had topped Baird, 8-4, in the first round of the playoffs Monday night. The Ranger Club won 10 games in regular season play and defeated a team of Eastland-Carbon All-Stars, 5-4, on July 28, prior to entering the district playoffs at Sweetwater.

The Hawks were jarred in the first inning when San Angelo timber pounded out four runs. Larry Miller started for the Hawks, was relieved with two out by Larry Blackwell.

After a scoreless second inning, the Rangerites retaliated in the top of the third with a 5-run barrage to jump into the lead, 5-4. The Hawks tallied the 5 scores on three hits

Mystery Skeleton Still Unclaimed By Relatives

The skeleton of what is believed to be the body of a Mexican ranch hand Jesse Torres, is still unclaimed at County Sheriff's office, according to a report from Sheriff Lee Horn.

The skeleton was found July 6 in a pasture leased by R. M. Snee about seven miles from Eastland near the Yellow Mound community. The skeleton which had apparently never been buried, was in natural order and was found with a black sport tie shoe, with white laces and some of the toe bones still inside. The shoe was in fairly good condition considering exposure.

The head of the skeleton provided practically the only clue to the identity containing four gold capped teeth including two bridged teeth. Efforts were made to identify the skeleton through a dentist in Weatherford believed to have done dental work on the teeth of the Mexican laborer.

The mystery was considered solved when the wife of the laborer, Mrs. Jesse Torres of Quanah, called and claimed the skeleton. She was expected in Eastland almost two weeks ago to claim the body and was to have been accompanied by a Catholic priest (Continued on Page 5)

R. L. Craig, Sr., died in a Lampasas rest home Friday night, July 31, after a short illness.

Mr. Craig lived in Ranger for two years with his son, R. L. (Bob) Craig, Jr., former minister at the Eastside Church of Christ here.

The elder Mr. Craig resided with his son until he broke his hip and fell requiring his hospitalization. Mr. Craig's hip broke as he was standing, causing him to fall to the floor.

Funeral services were held Monday in Little Rock, Ark.

Yackety, Yak, Yak--Let's Close the Caddo Critter Caper

Sunday's Star-Telegram and Saturday night's newscast on WBAP-TV carried an alleged photograph of the "Caddo Critter." It mainly was a shadowy glub of nothing.

Every since first reports of such a man, monster or nothing roaming around that area, The Times hasn't been able to "buy" the story.

We even sent an experienced newsmen of our own over Caddo way two nights to check it out. He said he believed it was a "hoax."

And we were quite ashamed that the story in the Sunday Star-Telegram carried a Ranger dateline. We checked with Ed Capers, the state editor of the Fort Worth daily, and he said he didn't know who filed the story.

Ed also agreed with the editor of The Times that the photo certainly looked like a "phony."

Under the single column photo in the Sunday S-T were these words: "This vague still photograph purports to show the 'Caddo Critter,' a wild animal which reportedly has terrorized Eastland County residents."

Monday morning the Star-Telegram carried a follow-up on the Sunday dispatch, headed "It's Man, Monster, Nothing." The editor of The Times liked that head.

The story, datelined Breckenridge, said:

Some say it's a man. Some say it's a monster. Some say it's nothing at all.

So the comments went after a picture, reportedly that of the "Caddo Critter," appeared in the Sunday Star-Telegram.

But, "man or gorilla, he'll be dead if he keeps roamin' around here," said a Caddo resident, Mark Nelms.

Nelms has been a Caddo resident 40 years and his father has lived in Caddo for 75 years. "We never saw a gorilla here and we don't believe there is one," he said.

The average person who has lived in Caddo for a long period of time is generally a non-believer in the Critter. Residents say it's a figment of somebody's imagination.

Roger Carey, for instance, described the whole thing as "a lot of baloney."

Carey saw the film shown on WBAP-TV, the Star-Telegram station, Saturday night that two Arlington residents had taken of the Thing.

Carey said it was simply "a man dressed up like a gorilla runnin' out through the bushes."

Carey said he didn't believe anybody in Caddo has seen anything.

"For those of us who have lived in Caddo for a long time, this whole thing is embarrassing."

However, he said if he ever saw it, he'd rope it, put it in a pickup, bring it to town and let everybody see it.

Most of the residents of Stephens and Eastland counties, the spots the "Critter reportedly has been seen, don't care to comment on the reality of the creature.

But when Chase Booth, sheriff of Stephens County, was asked what he thought the creature was, he replied "I don't think there's anything to it at all. That's been my opinion from the first."

A myth? "You bet," he said.

It was interesting to note in the Sunday Star-Telegram that, and we quote again: "Whatever it is shown on the film shot by LeRoy Yarbrough, 22, and Jerry Oakes, 23, of Arlington.

"Yarbrough, who says he has hunted the animal on and off since 1955 reported he came within 20 yards of the 'Critter.'

"He said it was not aggressive and the two men snapped numerous photographs.

"Their still pictures, though fuzzy, showed a hairy black figure resembling a gorilla walking on two legs. It could have been a person dressed in costume.

"The movie film shown on WBAP-TV Saturday night, was a little sharper, but made it appear even more like a ruse.

"But the station left it up to its viewers to decide whether the 'Critter' was real."

We were quite interested to note that Yarbrough, now 22, has been hunting the "Critter" since he was a lad of 13!

We'd like to pose a question to these two Arlington hunters. At a short range of 20 yards, why didn't you just kill the unaggressive 'Critter,' bring him to town — and have some actual proof?

The answer to that question as most of you know, having heard and seen some interesting and revealing photos, interviews, etc., on TV.

At least one version of the myth of the "Caddo critter," was more than slightly exploded Monday when curious and probing newshawks of WBAP-TV (channel 5), Fort Worth, began doing a little serious sleuthing and made some interesting discoveries:

(1) One of the two Arlington Men who took movies and still shots of the purported "critter" is a native of Olden, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Connie Yarbrough. He's LeRoy Yarbrough, a very popular and likeable young man who has always, say chums, been quite a prankster.

(2) A costume shop in Fort Worth rented a gorilla costume to a blue-eyed blonde "in a very big hurry" Saturday morning. But the head with the particular costume wasn't "suitable."

(3) So another costume shop in Fort Worth reported that a blue-eyed blonde "in a very big hurry" Saturday morning came in and rented just a gorilla head.

(4) Late Monday afternoon the same blue-eyed blonde returned to the first costume shop and returned the disguise. The manager of the firm said it was covered with grass and weeds. The rental, she added, was $15.00.

(5) When renting the costume at the first shop the same blue-eyed blonde gave a Dallas address. Upon checking the TV reporters found that was the address of the (Continued on page 6)

Pizza Pie On A Summer Table Makes Instant Italy A Reality

By KAREN TAYLOR

Summertime appetites are often demanding, especially when the weather is hot and energy lags. Summer meals take just a little extra something to keep those eyes right around the dinner table. What mother doesn't like to see empty plates and hear an appreciative, "Wow, Mom, that was really good!"

When even your regular meat-and-potatoes men seem to pick at their food, it's time to take a break and make a change. One good idea for hot weather appetites is a steaming hot Italian Pizza Pie served with a fresh salad, crisp green lettuce and chilled tomatoes, and tall frosty glasses of iced tea with generous slices of lemon and sprigs of green mint.

Nobody but nobody could pretend a lagging appetite with that kind of a meal before them. Pizzas are wonderful hot weather dishes because they contain plenty of hot meat, a serving of bread in the dough, and plenty of extras, like tomato sauce and onion.

Pizzas can be prepared in a quick thirty minutes or ahead of time. We've even tried preparing them days or weeks ahead of time and popping them into the freezer. They freeze beautifully and the only refreshment preparation necessary for a quick party or quicker meal is to open the freezer and close the oven.

Presto! Instant Italy on your dinner table. Make your own succulent pizza pie as follows:

Italian Pizza Pie

- 1 large tray of roll dough, approximately 1/4 inch thick
- 1/2 lb. hamburger meat
- 1/2 lb. hot sausage meat
- 1/2 lb. mozzarella cheese
- 1 large onion
- 1 large can tomato sauce
- 1 small bottle olives
- 1 tablespoon oregano
- 1 tablespoon sage
- 1 tablespoon garlic powder
- 1 tablespoon thyme
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper

Prepare and roll out dough, placing on a large flat tray. In the meantime, cook hamburger meat, sausage and half of the large onion over a low heat until well done. When done, pour off excess grease, spread into tray over dough. Cut up remainder of onion and sprinkle generously over meat. Combine oregano, sage, garlic powder, thyme, salt and pepper and sprinkle over meat. Cut mozzarella into long strips and lay in generous heaps over spices after pouring tomato sauce over the meat and spices, covering completely. Olives should be halved or thirded and sprinkled over pizza.

Place in oven until outer crust is golden brown and cheese is thoroughly melted, approximately 375 degrees F. Use a large knife to slice into fourths or sixths while still hot.

Pizzas can be dressed up in a number of ways. Individual pizzas are good, cooked in small individual pie tins or trays, leftover pot pie tins, for instance. Try spicing your pizza's appearance up by sprinkling olives or sliced pepperoni sausage over the top. Mushrooms and shrimp make good garnishes and the other varieties are endless and delicious.

The meat in a pizza can be changed to suit the tastes of your family. All hamburger or all sausage pizzas are good, although our recipe mixes them. Shrimp pizzas, mushroom pizzas, chicken pizzas have all found their way to a high standing in Italian cuisine. Only your imagination is your limit in making a really good Italian pizza.

Serve your pizza steaming, piping hot straight from the oven. Minutes ahead of time, toss together a good Italian salad. Ingredients vary with your mood.

We like half a head of crisp green lettuce, torn by hand; two ripe, chilled tomatoes, cut into large slices; half a green bell pepper; half a chilled cucumber; two boiled eggs; several slices of chopped cheese; a small onion; several slices of chopped boiled ham; olives; anchovies; salt; a spicy Italian oil dressing with garlic; and several tangy hot jalapeno peppers for taste.

Toss the salad just minutes before you place it on the table and results will be evident when your family bites into that fresh garden salad that tastes like an Italian chef had a hand in its creation. Tall frosty glasses of iced tea with lemon and mint complete the meal. Seconds will be a thing of the past when those appreciative people start asking for thirds.

mother who told them "she didn't live there."
(6) Tuesday night the blue-eyed blonde appeared on the Fort Worth TV station and admitted it was all just a "practical joke."

The Times has been collecting clippings on this abortive story ever since it first began occupying print space and air and video time a couple weeks ago.

On Tuesday, July 21, The Abilene Reporter-News, carried a "story" with a Breckenridge dateline which went like this:

The "Caddo Critter" — that hairy, 7-foot-tall, ape-like "thing," is still around Caddo community. Charlie Gantt saw it again Sunday night and as one neighbor said: "If he says he saw it, he saw it! He's never told a lie in his life."

Gantt, a Caddo rancher, reported seeing the animal Sunday night near his home which is east of the Methodist Church. Gantt also unloaded 10 shots at the animal when he first saw it Saturday night, but apparently missed.

Mrs. Jo Roberts, Reporter-News correspondent in Breckenridge, said everyone who has seen the animal says that it is about seven feet tall, four feet wide and jet covered with hair.

Sheriff Chase Booth said Caddo residents are excited about the animal being in the area and are armed with rifles, pistols and shotguns in case the critter makes another appearance.

Meanwhile, the caretaker of the game preserve which had been maintained at Possum Kingdom Lake by the late F. Kirk Johnson of Fort Worth discounted a theory that the animal might be from there.

He said he had no recollection of such an animal being at the preserve.

Stephens County Sheriff Booth and Department of Public Safety patrolmen are assisting in searching for the animal in the Caddo community, which is 14 miles east of here.

Then a few days later the same newspaper carried another story, datelined Breckenridge, which chronicled a brand new development in the "critter" case. It said: Rancher Harold Cook can unravel the mystery of the

CADDO CRITTER
Just Monkey Business
Goin' On

FOR REAL — This is what a gorilla really looks like. And you won't find one in Wiles Canyon, either!

Caddo Critter, he said Thursday. It's a yak, hairy and six feet high, that wandered away from his place back during the spring.

Cook offered a $25 reward to anyone who will pen up the Asiatic ox and give him a call, Graham police reported.

The ranch where Cook lives — and from which the yak strayed — is located north of Caddo on Possum Kingdom Lake.

Caddo, 15 miles east of here, lies in hilly brush country where the Critter reportedly has been roaming for three weeks.

Graham police said Cook informed them the yak originally came from the Kirk Johnson game preserve on Possum Kingdom Lake. The mammoth bovine, after spending the winter on the Cook Ranch, disappeared a while back, Graham officers said.

The animal's coat is blackish-brown and its horns — much shorter than normal — are almost obscured by hair. It was reported. Its height at the shoulders is six feet.

Charlie Gantt of Caddo, who emptied his .22 pistol Saturday night at a creature he said looked like a gorilla, defined its dimensions at seven feet high and four feet wide.

That, we figured, was more like it. Now there was a lot of yak about a yak.

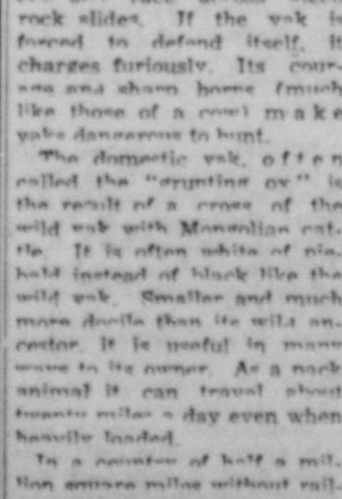

Now this yak is quite a "critter" itself. And for a more thorough description thereof —

Yak is the wild ox of Asia. It lives in the cold, dry plateaus of Tibet, often more than 16,000 feet above sea level. The wild yak stands more than six feet high at the shoulders, but it carries its head low with the nose almost touching the ground. It may weigh between 1,100 and 1,200 pounds. The yak is covered with black or deep brownish black hair, especially long and shaggy on shoulders, flanks, and tail. Sometimes it may even stand on the ground.

The yak is an agile creature inside of its bulk and evades, quietly leaves for quarters. It can slide down icy mountainsides, swim the swiftest rivers and race across steep rock slides. If the yak is forced to defend itself, it charges furiously. Its horns and sharp hooves make yaks dangerous to hunt.

The domestic yak, often called the "yapping ox" is the result of a cross of the wild yak with Mountain cattle. It is often white or pinkish instead of black like the wild yak. Smaller and much more docile than its wild ancestor, it is useful in many ways to its owner. As a pack animal it can travel about twenty miles a day even when heavily loaded.

In a number of half a million years ago yaks without tails.

HERE is a big yak — and a little yak.

roads and only 150 miles of telegraph lines, the yak carries travelers and mail.

The soft hair of the domestic yak is woven into cloth, and the coarser hair is made into mats and tent coverings. Alive, the animal contributes rich milk and butter. Dead, it supplies flesh which the people dry or roast for food.

The hide is made into saddles, whips, boots, and other articles. The bushy tail, dyed red, is used as a fly chaser at ceremonial processions in India, and as an ornament for a tomb or shrine.

Up until The Times went to press Wednesday at noon, even the Yak had remained hidden in its unknown habitat.

And so now, if you good readers don't object, we're going to take these many and various printed items about the "Caddo critter" and pitch 'em you-know-where.

In our file 13. As you know, an editor is a man with a very small desk and a great big wastebasket.

Now's Good Time To Check Social Security Record

All persons who have not checked their social security earnings record since July 1961 are reminded that now would be a good time to do so, according to R. R. Tuley, Jr., district manager of social security in Abilene.

He went on that there is an initial accuracy of 98 per cent in crediting the wages and self-employment income each year of over 75,000,000 persons. Many of the remaining 2 per cent have their earnings credited as a result of correspondence, but Tuley feels the individual's being interested enough to check his own record every three years is a big help in reaching the current 99.6 per cent accuracy figures.

The most common error that delays or prevents proper crediting is the omission of the social security account number on employers tax returns, followed closely by the error of entering the number incorrectly or incompletely on such tax returns. Some self-employed persons fail to reply to letters requesting account numbers from their individual tax returns. Tuley said that his office was at this time investigating some 300 errors in both types of tax returns for 1962 and 1963, ranging from items of small amounts to those of several hundred dollars.

Since all retirement, survivor, and disability benefits are computed from the individual's earnings record, uncredited earnings could lower, or even prevent, payments on claims, he added. A special post card designed for speedy checking of one's social security account will be sent to all insurers who write or call Social Security Administration in Abilene.
