share on practice D-1 winter legumes and practice F-1-A rye cover, it has been an -nounced by Jesse Meredith.

County ASCS office manager. The purpose of the covercrop practice is to establish a winter cover in the fall to protect the land from wind and water erosion during winter months, Meredith said. Grazing consistent with good management is permitted but harvesting in any manner is not permitted.

In order to be eligible for cost-share, you must file a written request before starting the practice. You should also file your request before purchase of seed or fertilizer so that you may be sure to purchase the correct requirements.

Peanut marketing cards for 1965 have been prepared and are ready for issuance, stat-ed Meredith. Cards may be obtained at the ASCS office or will be mailed to those requesting them. The card must be returned to the office after marketing is completed in order to avoid reduction in future allotments.

Farms with excess peanuts may receive a quota card after proper disposition of excess or after filing form MQ-92, agreeing to leave excess in the ground or hog off the excess acreage.

Farms with excess acreage should pay particular attention to the regulations governing disposition of excess reage and contact the ASCS office if questions arise.
